Mr. Frank Cromwell of Galt, tells gladly of his escape. Unmistakable signs of Bright's Disease alarmed him. Pains in the back, bloating of the limbs, puffiness, etc., appeared. He used several remedies. All failed.

He then tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Of course there could be but one result. It followed as it always does. Mr. Cromwell was cured. "I had given up all hope of getting well, but four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me," says he.

THE MODERN MANGLE.

Ironing Machines With a Daily Capacity of Many Thousands of Pieces.

Mangles in one form and another have been used for hundreds of years, but the steam mangle of the present day is essentially a modern machine. Steam mangles are made of various sizes, with rolls ranging in length from 48 inches to 120 inches. One of the rolls is of hollow steel and heated with steam. The auxiliary rolls are of iron, covered with cotton cloth and blankets or felting. Steam mangles are made also with two hot rolls. In ironing such things as sheets and tablecloths by hand, it is customary to iron one side only. Steam mangles with a single hot roll iron in that manner. With two hot rolls the steam mangle irons with a smooth finish on both sides.

Mangles are used only for flat articles; for things without buttons or buckles; for sheets and pillow cases, tablecloths and napkins, towels and handkerchiefs, and so on. Mangles of the largest size will iron of a hotel's washing, taken just as it comes, 14,000 pieces in a day; of small pieces, such as napkins, they will iron four times as many pieces in a day.

From the washing machine the things go to an extractor to be dried. The extractor revolves at a high speed, and the moisture is whirled out by centrifugal action. From the extractor, just damp enough to work well, the things go to the mangle. Such things as sheets are fed into the great ironing machine by two men, each holding a corner. There is a fixed table, as long as the rolls, attached to the machine on the other side. Two men receive the sheet there and fold it. In ironing small pieces like napkins and towels on such a machine they would be fed in by a row of girls standing on one side and be received by another row of girls on the other side. On the largest machines there would be six or eight girls on each side. American steam mangles are used not only in this country, but they are sold in all the countries of Europe as well.

A great many mangles are made with wood rolls of polished maple. Such mangles are sometimes operated by power, but commonly by hand. They are used in hotels and laundries and restaurants and for household work. Mangles with wood rolls are exported to the various countries of Spanish America and to South Africa and Australia.—New York Sun.

REMARKABLE SHOOTING.

Killing Four Caribous Out of Five at Long Distances.

A party of four of us left Bath for the upper part of Maine for a four days' hunting trip. There was one man among us, Orderly Sergeant Richardson, U. S. A., at Fort Popham, Me., still in the service. On the third morning three of us—the sergeant, another and myself—left camp together in search of game, the snow falling thick, but calm; no wind. We had not gone more than a mile from camp when we saw on the next ridge (a hillside) five caribous standing in such an open place that it was almost impossible to get nearer to them without being seen. After a wait of some time for them to change their position, that we might advance and get a shot of more certainty, our silence was broken by the sergeant's remark that he had killed deer as far away as that, and thought he could kill one of these.

We all agreed to let him take a shot and estimated the distance at 500 yards. When he got in his position, which he calls the Texas grip, and selecting the one on the right told us to look out for him, at the crack of his rifle, to my great surprise, down came the animal with his back broken. The others, being bewildered, ran in a circle like, coming to a standstill somewhat nearer to us—all hands estimated 450 yards. Again he selected the one on the right, and at the crack of the gun again the animal dropped, shot through the heart. The other three leaped off in another direction, as we estimated, 600 yards. Then the sergeant adjusted his sights to that distance, and to my great surprise he killed the third one. The other two separated and one of them came back near to the first one that was shot, when he stood broadside to us, and the sergeant fired, but shot low and broke both front legs just above the knee. After a little skirmishing about 1. the brush we found him, and one more shot from the old springfield rifle, with the sergeant behind it, gave us four out of five caribous and only five shots fired, and by only one man at that. We went into camp with flying colors and were the center of attraction that evening.

One of the party inquired of the sergeant where he had obtained such proficiency in marksmanship, when he pulled his coat open and exhibited a splendid gold badge from the army, a distinguished marksman's medal, won by him in 1889 in the division competition of the army, department of the east. Our party were on this hunt for several days and killed six deer, two elks and four caribous, of which Sergeant Richardson killed four caribous, three deer and one elk, and he killed them all over 300 yards, except one deer, which he shot on the run and about 150 yards' distance, breaking its neck.—J. S. Jones, U. S. A., Retired, in Army and Navy Journal.

Death's Betrothal.

A few years ago a New York newspaper conducted an open discussion upon the topic: "Is Marriage a Failure?" The answer is easy and upon the surface. Where there is mutual love and respect, if there is also health, marriage is a success. When health is left out, even the most ardent love does not count, and marriage is invariably a failure.

Modern science has cried the warning so often that all should realize the dangers of wedlock to people in ill-health. In a case of this kind death lurks on every side—in the kiss of betrothal and the caress of the honeymoon. The man who is suffering from ill-health is a physical bankrupt, and has no right to condemn a woman to be his nurse for life and the mother of babes that inherit his physical weakness. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery acts directly on the digestive organism. It makes it strong and its action perfect. When a man's digestion is all right his blood will be pure; when his blood is pure his nervous system will be strong and his health vigorous.

A woman who suffers from weakness and disease of the delicate organism of her sex is certain to suffer from general ill-health, and to be an unhappy, helpless invalid and a disappointment as a wife. Her children will be weak, puny and peevish. A happy home is an impossibility for her until her health is restored. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures all troubles of the distinctly feminine organism. It cures them speedily, completely and permanently. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Both medicines are sold by all good dealers.

CANADA LIFE
Assurance Company.

ANOTHER PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Large Increase in Surplus.

The fifty-first annual report of the Canada Life shows this old established Company to be in a most flourishing condition. The annual meeting was held yesterday. Following is a synopsis of the report:—

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

In presenting to the Shareholders their 51st Annual Report, the Directors are gratified in announcing that the Company has fairly shared in the somewhat improved condition of the business of the country, as will be seen by the Statements and Accounts now submitted. By these it will be observed that the Company has transacted a larger business than during the previous year, and has increased its clear surplus by no less than $497,093 05.

NEW BUSINESS

The applications for new assurances during 1897 numbered 3 033, for the sum of $6,185,996, of which, however, 266 for $521,000 were declined, the lives not appearing up to that standard which it is in the interest of the company's other assurers should be maintained, and as 191 applications for $373,360 were not carried out, the issue of the year was for $5 291,636, under 2 609 policies, exceeding 1896 by 573 policies for $796,980.

The total business in force at the close of 1897 was $72,719,555 29 of Assurances, under 33,407 policies, upon 24,469 lives.

POLICY CLAIMS.

The claims by deaths paid during 1897 amounted to $770,108 45, and Endowment policies for $128,846 92, having matured, these sums, as well as $218,481 29 for profits, $147 411.18 for surrenders, and an annuity of $400, making in all $1,263,307 84, were paid to policyholders during the year.

INCREASE IN ASSETS.

The Income receipts of the year were $2,953,272.83, and deducting therefrom all payments to policy-holders for claims by death, for profits, and for matured Endowment policies, as well as other outlay, including expenses of management, there was left the sum of $1 272,486 05, which increased the Company's Assets to $18 678 915 67.

SURPLUS.

As appears by the Abstract of Assets and Liabilities, after providing fully for the necessary reserve for all policies of the Company, and for all its other Liabilities, there is shown a Surplus of $1,564,082 05.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, Mr. A. G. Ramsay, in moving the adoption of the report, said:

The Directors' Report and the usual accounts and statements have for some days been in your hands, and have now been taken as read. While the report is brief, it contains, I think, along with the various published accounts, all that is required to enable those interested in the Company to judge of its progress and success in the past year. The addition during 1897 of nearly half a million dollars to the surplus or profits fund is a large and satisfactory one, and without invidiously comparing it with the figures of any other particular Company, I may say that it is more than was attained by all the other Canadian companies combined. The new business of the year was, you will observe, of satisfactory and gratifying amount, and in excess of the previous year, and you will be pleased to know that it is of that desirable class which will result more to the profit of the Company than would a larger amount obtained at heavier expense, or from less desirable regions than the healthful climate of Canada, and the four Northern States to which we have thus far deemed it judicious to confine the operations of the Company. The existing assurances are $72,719,555 or nearly twice as much as they were 12 years ago. The death claims of the year continued of very favourable amount, and being well within what was calculated upon, that fact testifies to the care observed in the selection of the lives, and to the judicious limitation of the business to the healthful climates already alluded to.

The recent lamentable failures of some of the companies doing business on the assessment system, and the anxiety felt as to the others which are based upon the same fallacious principles lead me to point out that these occurrences are only the inevitable results, which were from the first predicted by those whose knowledge and experience enabled them to judge of what the future of companies of the kind must be. At our meeting in 1887, when concerns of the kind were making strenuous efforts to establish themselves in Canada, I alluded to the miserable failures they had been in England and in America, and I said that their "ephemeral existence indicates how useless the assessment system of assurance is as a family provision. It can only offer the uncertain hope of a cheap assurance for a few years, till the company breaks down. It cannot afford any guarantee that a definite amount of assurance will certainly be paid to a widow or children after an assurer's death, whether that occurs at an early day or a distant one, and without such a guarantee as that, which our own and other sound companies offer, life assurance must be a fraud and a delusion." I added that "I was aware that agents and managers of companies of the kind pointed to the names of prominent business and professional men who have joined them, or who act as their directors, but as some of them at all events allow their names to be employed in that way, simply because policies have been gratuitously given to them, one can judge how little weight should attach to the names of the gentlemen thus used to decoy others to join such companies." One cannot envy the feelings of the prominent gentlemen alluded to, who induced persons to take policies in companies of the kind, from which they are now driven out by their failure, or by the levy of such high payments as they are unable to meet.

As the accounts show, the year's income was within a trifle of three million dollars, and the assets of the company were increased to the very considerable amount of nearly nineteen million dollars, and yielding, after deducting liabilities of every kind, a net surplus or profit of $1,564,082 for allocation at the end of next year, along with whatever addition there may be made to it between now and that time, and as the management and other expenses by which the profits to policy-holders are very largely influenced continue to be on a more moderate percentage than that of other Canadian or American companies, he prospects for our assurers are of a favourable character.

It is anticipated that legislation will be introduced by the Government, modifying the present 4½ per cent. rate of interest prescribed by law as the basis for Life Assurance Reserves, and adopting the new mortality Tables based upon the observations and large experience of the British Insurance Companies, in course of compilation by the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, and I may say on behalf of the Board in reference to the amendment to the charter, alluded to in the Directors report of last year, that the Directors purpose to avail themselves of the occasion of that legislation to seek such amendments to the law as may meet the Board's requirements.

The motion was seconded by Mr. F. W. Gates, Vice-President, and unanimously carried. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the agents, officers, medical and legal advisers of the company, Mr. Adam Brown speaking in eloquent terms of their services rendered to the Company.

Mr. Leggat moved and Lieut.-Col. McLaren seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Company during the past year. Brief and interesting addresses were also made by Sir George Kirkpatrick and Sir George Burton, the latter of whom was heartily congratulated upon the recent honour conferred upon him by the Queen.

The retiring Directors, Chief Justice Sir George Burton, Col. Sir Casimer Gzowski, K.C.M.G., and Mr. N. Barrett, were re-elected. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. A. G. Ramsay was re-elected President and Mr. F. W. Gates Vice-President.

The meeting passed off very harmoniously, every one present being gratified with the progress and continued prosperity of the Canada Life, which, as Sir George Kirkpatrick remarked, was easily leader of all Companies in the Dominion.

CHESTERFIELD ONCE SAID.

We amend that by saying it's the mark of good taste—especially in Hat wear.

Handsome Hat and good—Variety to suit every taste and every head.

Well made Hats that come down to modest pocket books through the wonders wrought by having large buying facilities. Every new style, shape and shade is here—Youman's, Christy's, Tress, Stetson and all the rest. Prices start for good Hats at $1.00, and go up to $2.00 and $3.00 But we are as proud of our 50c Hat values as we are of our $3 00 ones.

If gentlemen will drop in at any convenient moment we'll easily convince them that it's good business sense to buy their Hats and Outing Caps here. It means having the most approved styles and colours, also a saving that soon amounts to many dollars.

CHURCH UNITY.

Progress and Development of the Movement—Important Additions to the Membership of the Society.

Some months back we published a report of the formation of a society, to be known as the Canadian Society of Christian Unity, for the promotion of the study of this important subject. The society began with a few Anglican clergy, who have long had this matter at heart, but it is not intended so be denominational in character, and the first labours of the society were devoted to the bringing of its objects before other churches. A deputation visited and received a warm welcome from Principal Cavan with the staff and students of Knox College. Since then Principal Grant, of Queen's University, has become a member of the Society, and a second deputation recently visited Victoria University. Chancellor Burwash is a well known advocate of unity, and the deputation received a cordial welcome, with the encouraging result that Rev. Professor Wallace joined the Society. With such distinguished representatives of these two great churches, there is small doubt that many other members will be enrolled in due time. The Society will probably be fully organized next fall, and the question of establishing local centres in all the towns of Ontario is under discussion.

WEDDING BELLS.

Nuptials of Miss Phoebe Page and Mr. Cecil Crowe.

A very pretty wedding took place at seven o'clock on the evening of the 12th, at the home of Mr. Harold Page, of Bobcaygeon, when his only daughter, Miss Phoebe Page, was united to Mr. Cecil Crowe, son of N. Crowe, Esq., of North Harvey.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Creighton, the beloved pastor of Christ's church, Bobcaygeon, who was also a welcome and genial guest at the subsequent festivities.

The bride looked charming in a gown of cream serge and lace, with gloves and slippers to match. She was attended by Miss Hattie Hamilton, who was also very becomingly attired and rivalled the bride in loveliness. The bridegroom was ably supported in this trying crisis of his life by his brother, Mr. Leslie Crowe. About nine o'clock the company proceeded to the supper room where the tables were beautifully arranged and bountifully supplied. When every one had done justice to this part of the business, Mr. Creighton very kindly and impressingly addressed the young couple concerning the new life upon which they had just entered, after which a toast was drank to the welfare and happiness of the bride and bridegroom. Music and dancing were then the order of the evening until a late hour. The young people will reside in Bobcaygeon.

A GREAT REWARD.

The Boy Who Wrote This has a Future as a Modern Novelist.

To the Editor

The accompanying little story was sent me by a niece in the West, and was written by a little boy in Denver, one of a class of children of 6 or 8 years old, who had been requested by their teacher to write a story they to select a subject, and their compositions not to be subject to revision by their teacher, but to be read before the children's parents exactly as written. This is one of the number submitted, and I thought it might amuse your readers.

Yours truly,
C. J. PRICE.

VIRTUE HAS ITS OWN REWARD.

A poor young men fell in love with the daughter of a rich lady, who kept a candy shop. The poor young man could not marry the rich candy lady's daughter because he had not enough money to buy any furniture.

A wicked man offered to give the young man twenty-five dollars if he would become a drunkard. The young man wanted the money very much, so he could marry the rich candy lady's daughter, but when he got to the saloon he turned to the wicked man and said : "I will not become a drunkard, even for great riches. Get thee behind me, Satan."

On his way home he found a pocketbook containing a million dollars in gold; then the young lady consented to marry him. They had a beautiful wedding and the next day they had twins. Thus you see that "virtue had its own reward."

MISS ESTHER YOUNG IS AGAIN MISSING.

THIS TIME SHE LEAVES HER MOTHER AT HAVELOCK.

The Reason of Her Second Disappearance Cannot be Accounted For—She is the Young Woman Who Was Thought to be Drowned Several Weeks Ago.

Miss Esther Young, of Rockdale, is again reported to be missing.

One day last week she accompanied her her mother to Havelock and while Mrs. Young was doing some shopping Esther left the rig and has not since been heard from. This is the second time she has disappeared, having recently strayed away from Peterborough, as stated in the EXAMINER, and being shortly afterwards found by her brothers near Springville.

Miss Young is a general favourite with all who know her and is much esteemed, and her strange actions cannot be accounted for.

JUDGMENT GIVEN.

Mr. White, of the National Hotel, Awarded $164.

Judgment was given yesterday by Judge Weller in the case of White vs. The Peterborough and Ashburnham Street Railway Co., in which the plaintiff was suing to recover damages for a horse being killed and another injured through their coming in contact with a live guard wire which had become detached from the trolley system at the corner of George and King streets.

EARTHWORKS BLOWN TO PIECES

300 Shots From the Flagship New York, the Puritan and the Cincinnati Between the Hours of 12.57 and 1.15 —Rear-Admiral Sampson Expresses His Satisfaction — Good Shooting.

On board the flagship New York, off Matanzas, April 27.—(2 p.m.)—The New York, the Puritan and the Cincinnati bombarded the forts at the south of Matanzas Harbor this afternoon. There were no casualities on the American side. It is believed that the hail of iron which pounded in the forts must have caused loss of life to the Spaniards, but nothing is known definitely.

The engagement commenced at 12.57 and ceased at 1.15. The object of the attack was to prevent the completion of earthworks at Punta Gorda.

A battery of the eastward arm of the bay opened fire on the flagship and this was also shelled. About twelve eight-inch shells were fired from the eastern forts, but all fell short. About five or six light shells were fired from the half completed battery. Two of these whizzed over the New York and one fell short. The ships left the bay for the open sea, the object of discovering the whereabouts of the batteries having been accomplished. In the neighborhood of 300 shots were put on land from the three ships at a range of from four thousand to seven thousand yards.

Rear-Admiral Sampson, when asked if he was satisfied with the result, said: "Yes, I am. I expected to be."

The half-completed Spanish earthworks and battery were apparently all ploughed up by the shells.

All the ships engaged showed excellent marksmanshipthroughout the engagement and when they were firing at the shortest range nearly every shell took effect. The forts which were bombarded were on a low lying point and were considered merely earthworks. They did not make a good target, yet when the big guns were fired at the shortest range portions of the fort could be seen flying in the air at every shot.

The flagship returned to Havana and the Puritan and Cincinnati were left on Matanzas station.

ON BOARD THE NEW YORK.

She Brings First Authentic Accounts of the Movements of the American Fleet Off Havana.

On board the flagship New York, off Havana, April 26, 5 p.m., via Key West, April 26, 1.15 a.m.—Since noon no strange sails have been sighted and the afternoon has been without incident.

Lieut. Delphine of the Spanish infantry, and his orderly, who were captured by the gunboat Wilmington on board a small schooner bound for Matanzas, were put on shore at Santa Cruz, 24 miles from Havana by the United States scout boat Algonquin, formerly the steamer E. Toro. The lieutenant was on furlough and was going to see his wife and infant child. The latter was born last Friday and the father had not seen his child. Under the circumstances, Rear-Admiral Sampson decided to let [illegible] and as orderly go under parole. The Algonquin, commanded by Ensign Crosly, flying a flag of truce, steamed into the Santa Cruz Inlet. The small craft was closely watched through many glasses on board the flagship New York, which was lying only a few miles off. A few persons were seen to gather near the small fortifications of Santa Cruz as the Algonquin approached. The latter performed her mission safely and apparently without incident. She then returned to Key West.

Fire on the Island.

Smoke was seen in large quantities throughout the day ascending from the inland ranges. It was believed that the insurgents were burning cane fields, and causing extensive devastation. However, the smoke may have been only from burning brush.

Arrest of the Lucilline.

News from Havana reached the squadron this evening when the British steamer Lucilline was stopped by the flagship. The Lucilline is commanded by Captain Tucker. She hails from London and was bound from Havana for Bermuda and Philadelphia. She has about 200 Cubans, men women and children, on board, besides a cargo of horses and sugar. She is the first boat known to have left Havana since last Friday, when the blockade was commenced. She was seen coming out from El Morro about 5 p.m., and was about six miles from land before the New York started on her trail. Smoke poured from the flagship's smokestacks as she rushed through the calm water to cut off the stranger, who was also going at a good pace. Lieut. Marble was sent on board by Captain Chadwick. The Cubans on the Lucilline's deck shouted "hurrah" and waved their hands at the New York.

Captain Tucker gave satisfactory proofs of the Lucilline's identity. He said that the people in Havana did not know that war was in progress. The English Consul-General, Mr. Gollin, had said nothing to him, so Captain Tucker alleged, about the war or the blockade. When asked what explanation was given in Havana for the appearance of American ships outside El Morro, Captain Tucker said he had not bothered his head about it and had not heard anyone talking on the subject. There were no evidences, he continued, of starvation in the city of Havana. His Cuban passengers—many of them children in arms—were being taken out of Havana "on general principles." He had heard that more mines were to be laid in the harbor. Captain Tucker declared that he had not read any of the Havana papers.

After a careful inspection, Lieut. Marble left the Lucilline, and three cheers were given as he went over the side.

Spanish Soldiers Patrol the Coast.

About 200 Spanish cavalry were seen on the beach about 15 miles from El Morro this afternoon. The flagship was lying at no great distance from the shore and they were within easy range, but no shots were fired. It is believed the Spanish cavalry is establishing a patrol to prevent a repetition of such incidents as the Porter landing last night. The El Morro batteries were believed to be firing at something about 5 o'clock, but it was impossible to ascertain definitely whether this was so or not.

The Wilmington captured the tiny schooner Sol of Sagua, with a cargo of sugar, but let her go, after being careful to see that she went in a direction opposite to Havana.

The news from Matanzas, Cardenas and Mariel indicates that the blockade has been firmly established at these ports.

NOVEL WAR PROPOSAL.

Mr. John P. Holland Proposes to Blow Up Morro Castle by Means of a Dynamite Bomb.

New York, April 28.—A Washington special to the Tribune says: The Strategy Board listened to John P. Holland of submarine boat fame yesterday, and discussed with him a plan for demoralising the Spaniards at Havana, which is unique among naval propositions. Mr. Holland yesterday proposed to go to Key West, join Admiral Sampson's squadron, and with his own crew enter the harbor of Havana by night in his submarine vessel and throw a dynamite bomb into Morro Castle. Mr. Holland will undertake this if the Government will guarantee to purchase the vessel at the conclusion of the performance.

The members of the Strategy Board fully recognized the tremendous moral effect such an assault would have upon the Spaniards, and were disposed to agree to the terms without further discussion, but the civilian authorities of the navy have preferred to take the matter under further consideration.

Postponed Till Fall.

In the War Department there is a growing belief that the campaign proper in Cuba will not be in full swing before next fall, when the rainy season has ended.

A PROPOSITION FROM SPAIN.

Proposal to Exchange Captured Vessels—New York Closed.

New York, April 28.—A Washington special to the World says Spain has made a proposition to the State Department through the French Ambassador, acting since Senor Polo departed, for an exchange of captured vessels. Spain proposes the formation of a Board of Exchange made up of representatives of foreign countries. Nothing has been done in the matter yet.

Offer of Yellow Fever "Immunes."

A New Orleans special says: "The Governor of Louisiana to-day offered Secretary Alger a regiment of immunes—men who have had yellow fever and are now proof against the disease—for swamp service in Cuba.

New York Is Closed.

New York harbor is now entirely closed at night. Sunset and sunrise guns indicate, respectively, the closing and opening of the port, as well as signifying the raising and lowering of the flag.

THE PROVINCIAL LISTS.

The House Rejects Mr. McInerney's Hostile Amendment.

MR. BLAIR'S RAILWAY ACTIVITY.

A Question About the U. S. Revenue Cutter Gresham Passing Through the Welland Canal—North Bay and Railroad Service—The Franchise Bill Again in Committee—Capital Notes.

Ottawa, April 28.—In the House yesterday Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in reply to Mr. Wallace, said authority had been given the United States Government to pass the Gresham through the Welland Canal on April 6, and the Government was aware of the fact that she had passed through

QUESTION AND ANSWER.

Mr. Clarke enquired whether the Government had appointed an inspector to enforce the alien labor law in Toronto.

The Solicitor-General answered that the Attorney-General of Canada had not authorized any one in Toronto to enforce the alien labor law.

By consent of the House, Mr. Casey secured a first reading for the bill to incorporate the Alberta & Yukon Navigation & Mining Company.

"Would the Minister of Railways and Canals," enquired Mr. Maclean, "tell the people of Ontario, and particularly the people of Toronto, if he has made any progress in settling the disputes between the C.P.R. and the Grand Trunk in regard to the service to North Bay?"

Mr. Blair replied that he had been in communication with the railway companies; that they had come together and he thought there was a disposition to arrive at a permanent understanding at no distant day.

The Franchise Bill.

The House went into committee on the Franchise bill.

Mr. Davin contended there was a demand from the Province of Manitoba for an appeal to the county judge, on the part of persons left off the voters' list, as proposed by Mr. McInerney's amendment.

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper made a speech for the adoption of the amendment, as did also Mr. McInerney.

The Solicitor-Genetal said that important amendments had been made at the suggestion of the Opposition, and the further amendment promised them, should convince the gentlemen opposite of the straightforwardness of the Government's course and intentions.

The following bills were passed after recess: Respecting the Vancouver, Victoria & Eastern Railway Company—Maxwell. To incorporate the Windsor & Detroit Union Bridge Company—Gibson. Respecting the Canada Atlantic Railway Company—Belcourt.

The discussion on the Franchise bill was continued all evening. At 12.45 McInerney's amendment was defeated and the clause adopting the provincial lists passed. The House then adjourned.

MURDER OF JOHN BRAY.

An Almost Incredible Story Borne Out by Details From Vancouver—A Toronto Man's Tragic Death.

Vancouver, B.C., April 28. — John Bray, who was foully murdered in Vancouver and whose body was found in a lonely shack on South Vancouver road, four miles from Vancouver, turns out to be a Toronto man and he has four brothers living there. He came here in advance of a party of six Toronto citizens bound for Klondike and became acquainted with one Morgan. Through Mr. Morgan the city reporters have traced his identity, which will probably lead to the capture of his murderer. The story of his tragic death is almost incredible, but seems borne out by detail and circumstantial evidence. On his arrival here two sharks got Bray drinking and decoyed him to a lonely spot four miles from the city, where they seized him and attempted to rob him. This they could not do without the use of their revolvers, for Bray fought hard. He was struck in the head with bullets three times and left to die. He returned to consciousness, however, but was demented by a bullet pressing on his brain. As he could give no account of himself he was confined to the city lock-up and next sent to the hospital.

It seems incredible, but apparently the doctors at the hospital did not notice the bullet wounds and Bray's brain was too confused for him to tell of his awful experience. As a result, Bray was discharged and in the course of two weeks he went up town to buy some rat poison to end his life. He then wandered to the cabin in the woods where he was found, and where death ended his sufferings without the aid of poison.

The police are hot on the track of Bray's assailants with every hope of their capture. Until Morgan identified Bray to day, the authorities were mystified. Mr. Morgan also describes the two sharpers who attempted the robbery.

Mrs. Sternaman's Second Trial.

Toronto, April 28.—Chief Inspector John Murray of the Provincial Detective Department is at present in St. Thomas, working up evidence for Mrs. Sternaman's second trial, which opens next week. Mr. B. B. Osler, Q.C., will be Crown prosecutor, and Mr. E. F. B. Johnston will defend the prisoner.

To Inspect the Locks.

Toronto, April 28.—Robert McCallum, Ontario Government Engineer, went yesterday to inspect the Trent Valley canal locks in course of construction at Young's Point on the Otonabee River.

THE GROWING TIME.

The effect of the war on breadstuffs has, says the Globe, been to cause Ontario wheat to advance 10 cents per bushel within a week and Manitoba grades 20 cents. Ontario flour has advanced 55 cents a barrel in the same period, and Manitoba from 85 cents to a dollar.

Canadian Pacific Railway earnings in the third week of April were $453,000, showing an increase of $87,000, and Grand Trunk earnings were $483,595, showing an increase of $13,302.

The trade returns for the nine months ending March 31 show an increase for the current year of $38,715,904.

Bank clearings for the week ending April 21, 1898, and the corresponding week of last year, compare as follows :—Toronto, $8,082,000, as against $5,200,000; Montreal, $12,200,000, as against $9,350,000; Winnipeg, $1,600,000, as against $840,000.

The figures in the Gazette show the note circulation for March, 1898, to have been $35,930,085, as compared with $31,082,521 for the same month of last year, and the bank deposits to have been $76,471,017, as against $67,456,225.

The immigration returns recently issued by the Department of the Interior show that between January 1st and April 12th over 10,000 bona-fide settlers passed through the Immigration Office at Winnipeg, besides 2,500 persons on their way to the gold fields. Another fair indication of the wave of immigration that seems to be setting towards this country is the arrival in one week of 951 Gallician immigrants. This is the more remarkable when we consider that the total number of Gallician immigrants for 1897 was only about 4,000.

This is Canada's growing time.

ONTARIO MINING INTERESTS.

We are in receipt of the preliminary report of the Ontario Bureau of Mines. The report deals with mining operations and the production of minerals resulting therefrom. As was to be expected, particular attention is given to the work of gold mining, which experienced a decided expansion during the year. This is shown by the comparison that, in 1895 the provincial production was only $50,871. Last year the production had increased nearly four-fold—to $190,244. If the gold mining operations have not been successful in the way of profit something, perhaps, as desirable has been accomplished—employment has been given labour to the extent $212,-966. Necessarily a large amount of the work done is tentative and explorative, but still there are some mines which have been operated at a profit and now that they are established on a solid basis it is expected that more extensive operations will represent a large net profit. In the matter of the employment of labour, the Montreal Herald points out this near relation of the wage payment to the value of the product should also be regarded as an indication of the highly desirable nature of the gold mining business in the interests o the country at large. Payments for labour mean increased demands for food and for the products of the labour of others. In this respect the gold industry compares very favourably with such operations as are employed say in marketing natural gas, where a value of $308,448 was obtained at a labour cost of $42,338 and with some branches of the oil business where a value of $1,777,591 only yielded $196,956 in wages to 364 hands. Ontario is making good progress in mineral development, although, of course, no more than a beginning has been made upon the immense resources of the Province. The Director of Mines is to be congratulated upon having issued an early and up-to-date report.

If the war should be as long as the range at which it is now carried on, it will last well into the next century.

BRITAIN'S SLICE OF CHINA.

An Enormous Supply of Britain's Backbone, Coal and Iron.

After holding out for open ports in China, Great Britain was eventually forced by circumstances to withdraw from her position and to accept certain rights in the port of Wei-Hai-Wei, together with the privilege of free access to the Province of Shan-Tung and the interior. It was generally supposed that British diplomacy had been worsted. Such does not now appear to have been the case. It would have been better, no doubt, if the first position could have been upheld, but as it is a British syndicate gets control of coal and iron deposits that promise to effect a commercial revolution in China, and may have an incalculable effect upon industries in other parts of the world. According to Baron Von Richthofen, who is regarded as the best authority on the geology of China, the coal measures which may now be opened up have an area of 13,500 acres, with practically no break in the deposits, which are of the finest coal, forty feet thick. A calculation upon this basis puts the quantity in sight at 630,000 million tons. "If one considers that an excellent iron ore is associated with this coal formation," says the baron, "one may well assume that no other known coal field in the world can be placed by the side of this one."

Here, therefore, we have Great Britain in control of an unlimited quantity of the coal and iron which have won her the place she now holds in the van of commerce and manufacturing. Nature has apparently done everything in her power to make it possible to produce steel and iron from the Chinese field in the economical manner, once modern machinery is introduced, and the proper transportation facilities are provided. There can be little doubt that the opening up of these deposits will produce a great stimulation of industry in China itself, and if the system of Richthofen is worthy the confidence placed in it by the best mining authorities, "when the coal and iron deposits are connected by rail with the great plain of Chi-Li, and the seaports, they will not fail to create a revolution in the commerce and intercouse of the world.

On the whole, it may be just as well if British sympathizers do not make too much of the assumption that British diplomacy has been beaten in the contest with Germany and Russia! It is not the usual experience.

BATTLESHIPS AND CRUISERS

HOW THEY DIFFER IN CONSTRUCTION AND FUNCTION.

How They are Armoured and the Services They Respectively Perform.

Great looseness is frequently shown in the use of the terms battleship and cruiser, many persons apparently thinking that any vessel which can fight a battle is therefore a battleship. There is in reality a very sharp distinction between the two. In the days of wood this was clearly recognized, and the old names were perhaps more logical then those now in use. A line-of-battle ship was a ship "fit to lie in the line of battle," and a frigate was a distinct type of vessel used for detached service and for scouting. In the days of the Spanish Armada and of the early Stuarts the ships of a fleet appear to have fought all huddled up together, as chance placed them. Gradually it was seen that small ships had so little chance against the large ones that it was suicidal for the small fry to pit themselves against the big fellows, while the heavy vessels were wasting their time and energy on such inglorious victories. A separation took place, and when a fleet engagement occurred the more powerful ships formed the line of battle, while the lighter craft remained aloof, ready to help injured ships, scout and perform other services. In the Napoleonic wars, when fighting under sail was reduced to a science, it was regarded as ungenerous for a line-of-battle ship to fire on a frigate, and the frigates were in turn from participating in a contest in which their feebler fire would prove ineffective

EXPECTED TO ABSTAIN

The changes wrought by steam, armor and rifled guns have not altered this classification. In a pitched battle only those vessels which at once can fight effectively and can hope to withstand the hammering of the enemy's fire have any business in the line of battle. But for the menace of the torpedo, the weapon by which the smallest vessel may chance to sink the mightiest, the line of separation would be drawn every whit as rigidly to-day as a century ago. The battleship is a vessel which (1) carries guns heavy enough to have a chance of piercing the armor of opposing battleships, and (2) is provided with armour stout enough to enable her to survive a fair amount of pounding from the big guns of the foe.

The cruiser, as a rule, is simply the old frigate, a vessel swift enough to be used as a scout, armed heavily enough to make her a fighting unit of some value, but unprovided with the heavy armour which enables the battleship to survive the fierce pounding of a pitched battle.

An ironclad, to use a designation which is going out of use, is not, as some people think, a vessel which has a hull of solid steel over so many inches thick. She has an ordinary steel hull, such as is given to any vessel. When the hull of a ship is completed she can carry a given number of tons of weight, and upon this fact the designer must figure. This weight can be distributed in a number of ways. It can be used up largely in engines, which will give great speed; in that case there must be less armour and fewer guns. It may be used to give heavy armament and armour, and then the engines cannot be so heavy. In nearly an arched steel deck, about two inches thick, is built over her engines, magazines and other vital parts for the entire length of the ship. The fact that a shot will glance on striking the water protects the hull below the waterline, and this arched deck protects the vitals, as shots will strike it at such an angle as to glance. If the ship is to be a battleship, on this foundation is erected the armoured citadel and the guns. The heaviest armour is around the biggest guns—the standard battleship carries four guns of from ten to thirteen inches diameter in the bore, able to fire a round in from one to two minutes. Two of these are in a thickly armoured fort (called a turret or barbette) forward, two in a simple structure towards the stern. Between these big guns are placed a number of smaller weapons, in British battleships usually ten or twelve six-inch quick-firing guns, which can fire half a dozen or more 100-pound shells in a minute. These guns are protected by casements of somewhat lighter armor, and the whole region of the ship which contains this heavy armament has a still thinner armor belt, extending a foot or two below the waterline, and several feet up the ship's sides. Out of the 360 or 390 feet of a battleship's length perhaps 250 feet will be armored by this belt. The ends may be smashed up by the enemy's fire—the watertight compartments and protective deck will keep the vessel from sinking, and no important guns are placed here. A battleship is comparatively short and broad, so as to be handy and to make a steady platform for the guns. She can usually stand at the Yalu the Japanese fired all day with some very heavy guns at two old-fashioned Chinese battleships, which were inefficiently fought, and while the Chinese cruisers came to grief, the battleships limped away, battered and unsubdued.

A GREAT DEAL OF POUNDING;

The cruiser is a lighter built ship, longer and narrower than the battleship, and unencumbered by the weight of heavy armor and guns which makes high speed impossible for the battleship. There are two types of large cruisers, the armoured and the protected. The armoured carry a certain amount of armour, either as a belt, as in battleships, or as a thin coat of mail. Protected cruisers rely on the steel arched decks, defending their larger guns by armoured casements or steel shields. The New York and Brooklyn among American warships are armoured; the Columbia, Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Olympia and others are specimens of the protected cruiser. The standard large British cruiser has a big 9.2 inch gun at each end, and a goodly number of 4.7-inch and 6-inch quick-firing guns along the side. Some American vessels use the 8-inch gun, a weapon which British naval architects do not regard with favour. Battleships can steam from 14 to 17 knots, a few very fast ones, chiefly in the British navy, making 18 or 18.5 knots an hour. For a cruiser 17 knots an hour is dangerously slow, and most new large ones range from 20 to 23 knots. Vessels of less than 2,000 or 3,000 tons dispense with the protective deck, and are then termed unprotected cruisers. Each type of vessel has its recognised place as of old, though the armour of the armoured cruiser may tempt her into the experiment of staying in the line of battle, and the uncertain chances of the torpedo may lead light craft to try their luck at sinking the big ships.—Globe.

RAISE IN WHEAT.

The war scare has sent the price of wheat went up with a rush. No. 1 hard Manitoba sold yesterday at $1 33 per bushel. Higher prices for grain and a free export movement will stimulate business. It looks as if every bushel of Ontario and Manitoba wheat will be used up before next crop. A most active season is looked for at Canadian port cities. On the local market very little was offered, but all that was brought in was quickly taken at a dollar.

WHERE IS THE FLEET?

Spanish War Minister Is the Only Landsman Who Knows.

THE WORLD WILL SOON KNOW.

The Bombardment of American Coast Towns Momentarily Expected—Portugal Will Decree Neutrality and Then Cape de Verde Will Be No Place for the Fleet—War to Be Long.

London, April 28.—It is reported from Madrid that the Spanish fleet has been at sea for some days, and the news of the bombardment of American coast towns is expected at the Spanish capital before long.

Only the Minister Knows.

It is reported here from Madrid that the destination of the Spanish fleet, which is said to have been at sea for some days, is unknown to anyone but the Minister of Marine, Admiral Bermejo. But, it is added, news is expected before long, at the Spanish capital, of the bombardment of American coast towns.

The reports from Madrid also say that the Spanish naval authorities are satisfied that Spain can easily force the blockade of Cuba when she desires to do so. But in the meanwhile, it is explained, as the Governors of Cuba and Porto Rico have advised the Spanish Government that they do not need the fleet, the Government has decided to "utilize the warships elsewhere."

THE SPANISH BUDGET.

Taxation to Be Increased Both Directly and Indirectly for the Purposes of the War—A Special Loan.

London, April 28.—The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says: The budget of 1898-99 shows 865,509,774 pesetas, expenditure; and 576,014,870, income. There will be an increase in all direct and indirect taxation. The extraordinary budget is chiefly devoted to additional military and naval expenditures, which is covered by the navigation tax, and a credit for 100,000,000 pesetas, nominal, of Treasury bonds guaranteed by the Almeda quicksilver mines.

A special proposal devises means of war and authorizes the Government to create a state of Treasury debt, with the guarantee of all the resources of the nation; to increase the note issue of the Bank of Spain, subject to certain conditions as to cash reserve; to negotiate advances from the farmers of the state monopolies and revenues, to enforce an advance of one whole year of territorial and industrial taxes; to create Treasury bonds in exchange for the existing floating debt, and to cover whatever balance may be due by the Treasury, by the end of June, to the Bank of Spain, converting the exterior debt into interior consols.

Proceedings of the Cortes.

At the opening of the Cortes, Senor Romero Robledo received most severe rebukes from the leaders of the Conservative party and the Republicans. All declared that to enter upon academical debates would be inopportune and a waste of the precious time required to vote measures of supplies for the services, naval and military, which they would heartily support. The speech of the Republican leader, Senor Salmeron, made a sensation, as he ominously declared that a day would come—perhaps was not very distant—when the democracy would call to account the monarchical Cabinets. Meanwhile, he censured the idea of suspending the sitting of Parliament in such critical conditions, when everybody fully foresaw that the Cortes would have to solve so many important national and decisive matters.

Bought Italian Ships.

Spain, according to a despatch from Rome to a London news agency, has bought the Italian Navigation Company's steamers Birie, Orione and Regina Margherita for conversion into auxiliary cruisers.

CAPTURED BY SPAIN.

Gunboat Elcano Ran the American Barque Saranac, With 1,640 Tons of Coal, Into Iloilo, Philippine Islands.

Madrid, April 28.—An official despatch from Manila, capital of the Philippine Islands, says the Governor of Iloilo, Philippine Islands, announces that the Spanish gunboat Elcano has arrived there, having captured the American barque, Saranac, Capt. Bartaby, from Newcastle, N.S.W., on Feb. 26, for Iloilo. The Saranac had 1,640 tons of coal on board.

Awaiting the Onslaught.

London, April 28.—According to a special despatch received here from Madrid the Spanish Minister of Marine, Admiral Bermejo, received a cipher message from the Spanish admiral in command at Manila, Admiral Montejo, announcing that after taking the measures necessary to organize the naval defences of Manila and Cavito, he was about to sail with his squadron to take up a position and await the coming of the United States fleet. The Spanish Minister of Marine, the special despatch continues, forthwith communicated with Premier Sagasta, who summoned the Minister of War, General Correo, and the three Ministers held a conference. Shortly afterwards another despatch arrived from the Captain-General of the Philippine Islands, detailing the military measures he is taking to support the action of the Spanish squadron, and to defend Manila, Cavito and other places against any American attempt to land in combination with the insurgents.

The news soon reached the clubs and the newspapers and created an immense sensation.

TROOPS CONCENTRATE.

Preparations in Cuba for the Reception of the United States Troops.

Havana, April 28.—(Via Cienfuegos.)—The Spanish troops throughout the island have been concentrated at different points along the coast, so as to be ready to meet any attempt to land troops from the United States. Thousands of men are reported to be enlisting in the volunteer battalions throughout Cuba.

The commission of the Colonial Government, which went to confer with the insurgent Government, has not returned, and even in Government and political circles here it is admitted that the efforts of the commission to bring about a settlement of peace have proved a failure.

The recent expulsion of Mr. Ackers, the correspondent of the London Times, has caused more and more ill-feeling against correspondents among the masses, if not in the more enlightened circles. However, it is generally admitted that the Government is doing everything possible to protect the foreigners who remain here, Americans included.

A LONG WAR PROMISED.

The Spaniards Say They Would Rather Fight America Openly Than as Secretly Fomenting Insurrection.

Madrid, April 28.—The general tone of the evening papers bears out the opinion last cabled that the war will be a long one. As Senor Silvela, leader of the dissident Conservatives, has said, Spain has already lost the material advantages resulting from the possession of Cuba, but will fight to the last on the question of maintaining the flag, preferring to fight America openly rather than America secretly fomenting insurrection. The result of defeat, Senor Silvela says, will only mean a loss of what has already gone, since Europe will not allow an army of occupation in Spain pending the payment of war indemnity.

The general opinion among Spaniards is that America has coveted Cuba from the first. A better balanced opinion, held by a few, is that she wished to secure a peaceful and prosperous Cuba, owing to mutual commercial interests, but that, this obtained, the American Government could not withstand the "jingo wave" which has swept the country.

It is argued that the war must be disastrous to the true interests of the United States. Spain intends to prolong it "until European interests are involved and the powers are compelled to intervene in self-defence, or until the expected general conflagration of Europe against Anglo-Saxon domination is brought about."

Spain's determination to set the world ablaze, rather than to withdraw from the conflict dishonored, is very marked.

Ready for the Fray.

DEADLY BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

Cured by Four Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

GALT, April 18th.—(Special)—From town to town over the whole broad land rolls the irresistible wave of marvellous popularity of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are bringing the luxury of life to thousands of pain-worn mortals and banishing kidney disease from our country.

Mr. Frank Cromwell of Galt, tells gladly of his escape. Unmistakable signs of Bright's Disease alarmed him. Pains in the back, bloating of the limbs, puffiness, etc., appeared. He used several remedies. All failed.

He then tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Of course there could be but one result. It followed as it always does. Mr. Cromwell was cured. "I had given up all hope of getting well, but four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me," says he.

BUT ONE NATION.

Great Britain, the United States and Canada in Their Essential Spirit.

Toronto, April 28.—Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, Brooklyn, N.Y., the illustrious successor of Henry Ward Beecher, lectured in Toronto last night.

"It is not fitting to speak of anything these stormy days except the war," were the speaker's opening words. He thought he was coming to a land of peace when he came to Canada, but was glad to see the Toronto papers as full of the war as were the American. This was not unnatural, for "the war is of as great interest to Canada as it is to the United States."

The speaker claimed that Canada, England and the United States were in essential spirit but one nation. He hoped that the United States would exhibit the courage in this war, now being waged, of an Anglo-Saxon nation. (Applause.) He claimed the war had been entered upon with great reluctance. "We have been scourged to it by inexorable duty," was the way he expressed it. It was the old fight of Queen Bess against Philip of Spain being fought out in a new age. It was a fight of humanity and liberty against cruelty and rapine." (Applause.)

The speaker then announced his subject as "Evolution and Religion," which he discussed in a manner impossible to do justice to in a newspaper paragraph.

The Glitter of Gold

Lure men on, so that in the wild rush for wealth, they too often neglect health. They have Dyspepsia, Constipation, Liver Disorder Impure Blood, which make life miserable. Then they look for a cure—they get Burdock Blood Bitters. Their blood becomes rich and pure. The liver troubles and constipation disappear, they are hearty and healthy again. B. B. B. is to them a greater prize than gold.

THE YUKON STAFF.

The Canada Loan Co.'s Bill—Company to Be Subject to General Acts.

Ottawa, Ont., April 28.—Mr. Sifton has decided upon a course of action regarding the Yukon district which will commend itself to the country. Next week two of the leading members of the Geological Survey staff, Messrs. R. G. McConnell and T. C. Tyrrell, leave for the Yukon, by way of Pyramid Harbor and Dalton Trail.

Canada Loan Company Bill.

There was a big muster of members at the meeting of the Banking and Commerce Committee yesterday when the bill incorporating the Central Canada Loan & Savings Company was again under consideration. As at previous meetings, the discussion centered upon the clause giving very extensive powers to the company. Mr. Foster succeeded in securing one important amendment, which provides that the company's investments in any chartered bank shall not exceed 20 per cent. of the stock of such bank. With the exception of this amendment the bill passed substantially as it came from the Senate. An amendment of Mr. Foster's debarring the company from investing in the debentures, bonds, stocks, etc., of any Canadian incorporated company, was negatived by a vote of 51 to 17.

On Mr. Fielding's suggestion a clause was added stating that the company would not be exempt from the operation of any general Act which might be passed by Parliament to regulate such companies.

Bogus Letter From Klondike.

Persons having relatives in the Klondike need not worry in the slightest if they receive a letter stating that their brother or father, as the case may be, "is dangerously ill; lost all his outfit, and wants money."

During the past three months Chief Powell has learned that a number of such letters have been written by crooks in the Klondike.

A Toronto Publisher's Contract.

Papers in connection with Klondike Dan Rose's bargain with the Government for publication of Ogilvie's report were presented to Parliament to-day. It was Nov. 11 when Mr. Rose made his first offer to the Government, and by Jan. 3 he had everything fixed. He was to supply the Government with 7,000 copies of the book, and if Mr. Sifton required by March 1 6,000 copies more, Mr. Rose was to supply them. Plates and cuts for maps and illustrations were to be the property of the Minister. Mr. Rose was to notify the Government of the number of copies issued in each edition, and after 40,000 had been placed on the market the Government was to receive a royalty of 5 cents a copy for all over that number.

Toronto and Hudson Bay Railway.

An important conference respecting the proposed Toronto & Hudson Bay Railway was held yesterday. There were present: Mayor John Shaw and two of the Hudson Bay Railway Commissioners, George Goodeham and W. R. Brock, with W. T. Jennings, engineer of the company, and Messrs. Wallace Nesbitt, Q.C., Clarke, Osler, Bertram, Robertson, Maclean and Wallace. After a big fight, an agreement was reached whereby all opposition to the proposed Toronto charter is to be withdrawn, but it is understood that after it has passed Parliament operations will be suspended for two years in order to give the McKenzie-McMurrich syndicate an opportunity of putting their road through from North Bay to James Bay. Should they be successful in doing this it is an understanding that a guarantee is given to Toronto in the matter of rates. Failing positive action by existing companies within the period named, then the Toronto commissioners will go to work actively under the charter now being asked from Parliament.

Finger Nails Came Off.

A wonderful story comes from Emerson, Man., to the effect that Mrs. Jas. Saunders of that place lost her finger nails through a severe attack of Salt Rheum. Nothing seemed to do her any good till she commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters, with the result that the Salt Rheum has all gone and her finger nails gradually grew on again

Paris in Peterboro

We can't bring Paris to Peterborough, but we can give our patrons a peep into the Paris Millinery world, and present to their view the latest conceits of the French Capital.

You can look here and see what's over there. As a matter of fact you cannot keep in touch with the dictates of Fashion without knowing what we have to offer.

A MAY-DAY OPENING.

Busy as we are, we set to work a month ago to prepare for a Semi-Opening of Fashionable SUMMER Millinery during the first week of May.

Every Dollar's worth shown will be the very latest in style and colouring.

'But every week here has been a series of elaborate "Opening" events. Extensive Novelties have claimed the eager attention of the ladies, day in and day out, and rendered their repeated visits quite as entertaining as the regular Formal Opening events of other stores.

Fast as the loveliest samples are picked new ones replace them to keep the display perfect, steadily beautiful and interesting.

The crowded condition of our workroom is unmistakable evidence of the leadership of this store in Millinery of all kinds, and the service is so successful that the wants of every lady is promptly supplied.

This week, we are making another and attractive display of New Styles in New Hats and Bonnets, New Flowers and Ribbons, New Veilings, Gloves and Neckwear—equal to the best attempt at any second Millinery Opening elsewhere. We welcome you to look or to buy. Were you here recently?

UNFOUNDED RUMOUR OF MR. GLADSTONE'S DEATH.

An Incorrect Dispatch Sent Out to Many Evening Journals.

Yesterday the EXAMINER was led into printing a telegraphic despatch announcing the death of Mr. Gladstone, which it is since learned, was unfounded. This morning, in response to inquiries respecting the matter, the following was received at the local office of the G. N. W. Telegraph Co.:

TORONTO, April 28th.

Your service, the Gladstone story, reached us from an authorative source, and we had no reason to doubt its authenticity. We learn today that it originated in the New York World.
[signed] EASSON.

What seems remarkable is that the Associated Press notified the Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa evening papers that the report was incorrect, but the EXAMINER, and other evening papers in the Province, were not so notified, and, doubtless, like the EXAMINER, they used the despatch in all good faith, as there was no reason to suppose that from such a source unfounded despatches might be sent out.

LOST HIS EYE.

Through the Optic Being Cut by a Flying Chip of Iron in the Wm. Hamilton Boiler Shop.

Mr. Fred Eastland, an employee of the Wm. Hamilton Mfg Co., lost his right eye to-day through the optic being struck by a flying chip of iron in the boiler shop.

The flesh around the eye was also badly lacerated, and it was some time before the iron sliver could be extracted by Dr. McCullough. The squeous humour has entirely run out of the eye, thus destroying the eyesight completely of one optic.

Mr. Eastland is suffering intense pain. He is greatly sympathized with by his fellow-employees.

Mr. David Boyle's Visit.

Mr. David Boyle, curator of the Ontario Archaeological museum, was in town yesterday. He was on his way home from Rice Lake district, where he went to investigate the genuineness of a supposed serpent mound near Hiawatha, which proved to be a "false alarm," as the assumed mound was only a natural formation. Mr. Boyle took an exploring cruise around Rice Lake by the North Star, upon which he came to town. He reports the residents of the Rice Lake region in a state of fear over the possible incursion of a Spanish or American gunboat, but the visit and presence of the North Star and a passenger with a camera had a reassuring effect.

"THE HOLY CITY."

It will be Presented in the Opera House on May 5th.

Great interest is being aroused in the preparation for the presentation of Gaul's cantata "The Holy City," on May 5th, in the Opera House, by local talent under the supervision of Mr. P. W. Owens, organist of St. John's church.

The first part of "The Holy City" was suggested by the passages of Scripture, "Here have we no continuing city," "Thy Kingdom Come," and sets forth the desire for a higher life, as expressed in the words "My soul is athirst for God," which desire is followed by other passages expressive of the perfection of the higher life such as "Eye hath not seen." The second part was suggested by the words, "I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away," thus realising the desire contained in the first part.

Solos, duets, trios and quartettes are provided for, and the best local talent is giving assistance. The solos, "A New Heaven and a New Earth," and "To the Lord our God," by Rev. E. V. Stevenson and Mr. J. Brown, respectively, are spoken of as being specially meritorious.

A POINTER FOR THE STREET COMMITTEE.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—A reference to the liability of injury from boards with nails sticking through them, lying around the streets of the town, was made in your columns a short time since. On Sunday afternoon last while Mr. Little, of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, was driving out, his handsome driver was suddenly very painfully injured from a nail penetrating deeply into his hoof. Anyone who could once see the effects of such an accident on so noble an animal as a good horse, would never after pass a board or loose bit of wood with a projecting nail, lying on the public highway, without removing it where it would be unlikely to be the cause of such agony.

Yours, etc.,
CUM.

[We know of a gentleman who is so careful in this respect that when he sees, as he too often does, boards with projecting nails pointing dangerously upward, he either breaks of the nails or turns them downward. The wounds made by a rusty nail are very dangerous. We see recorded very frequently death resulting from such causes. Do unto other as you would have others do unto you, is the golden rule. Carelessly leaving nails sticking up to entrap your neighbour, is the iron rule, and a very bad one it is.

AN EVENING WEDDDING.

Nuptials of Miss Ada Webber and Mr. Edwin Balmer, Last Evening.

A very happy event took place last night at the residence of Mr. John Webber, 161 Antrim street, when his daughter Ada was united in marriage to Mr. Edwin Balmer, of Smith. The marriage ceremony was celebrated by Rev. Jas. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's church. Mr. Herbert McKee supported the groom, and Miss Bertha Sutton acted as bridesmaid, while Miss A. Webber, who was very prettily attired in white muslin, with flowers, acted as maid of honour. Both bride and bridesmaid wore brown with chiffon trimmings and both carried bouquets. Among the guests present was Mr. Frank Millington, representing friends in Montreal.

The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful gifts including some from Montreal, and a pair of Persian lamb gauntlets, the gift of the groom.

An elaborate wedding supper was served during the evening.

DAY—TEMPEST.

Nuptials of Mr. R. F. Day and Miss Maude Murray Tempest.

PORT HOPE, April 27.—The marriage of Mr. Robert F. Day, formerly of Peterborough, and Miss Maude Murray Tempest, took place at 6 o'clock this morning in St. Mary's church, Rev. Father Lynch officiating.

The happy nuptial event was, on account of a recent death, a very quiet affair, and only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. The bridesmaid was Miss J. Tempest, sister of the bride, and the best man was the groom's brother, Mr. James Day, barrister, of Guelph. The bride was married in a very pretty travelling dress.

The bride is one of Port Hope's most popular young ladies, and the groom, although not a native of Port Hope, has made a host of friends during his two or three years's residence here as the energetic manager of the Day-Gough Company, of which firm he is a member.

The newly-wedded pair left on the 7.45 train for Toronto and points west. Upon their return they will take up their residence, temporarily, at the home of the bride's mother, Pine street.

Mr. and Mrs. Day were the recipients of numerous beautiful presents, among which was a beautiful brass lamp presented by the clerks of the Day-Gough Company.

LAID HIM OUT

Amid the Paraphernalia of a Death-Chamber.

A young man wandered into a George street merchant's stable at noon to-day in an advanced stage of intoxication and dropped down "dead to the world" just as he crossed the threshold. For a joke the boys laid him out in proper style, with all the paraphernalia of the death chamber around him, and now they are hanging around to watch his actions when he awakes again.

PERSONAL.

Rev Father Lynch, of Port Hope, was in town to-day.

The Barrie Gazette says:—Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Ward and Miss Ida Ward left on Thursday of last week to reside in Peterborough.

THE CRICKET CLUB MINSTRELS ONCE AGAIN.

SECOND NIGHT'S PERFORMANCE WELL ATTENDED.

The Cake Walk Was Probably the Best Feature of the Whole Entertainment—Some New Features.

The second night's performance of the Cricket Club minstrels passed off fully as successfully as that of the first night, and the programme was improved upon by the deliverance of a capital stump speech by Mr. C. N. Brown, and the competition known as the "cake walk," in which the following couples participated:

Mr. Jim Spence and Miss Courthope Poussette.
Mr. Chas. N. Brown and Miss Bob Hay.
Mr. Geo. Ames and Miss Arthur Bell.
Mr. Waldo Poussette and Miss Walter Collins.
Mr. Harry Neil and Miss Walter Phelan.
Mr. A. A. Hollingshead and Miss Stanley Bradd.
Mr. A. J. Waddell and Miss Ernie Wasson.
Mr. Eddie Graham and Miss Dick Simons.

Messrs. W. Salisbury, Peter Campbell and A. W. Spence acted as judges.

The competition was keen and the costumes were "out of sight." Again and again the coloured couples paraded in front of the judges and made their most graceful courtesies. So evenly matched were they that it was difficult to make a selection of the winner, but after carefully considering the points of the competition, the cake was awarded to Mr. A. A. Hollingshead and Miss Stanley Bradd. In this connection it might be mentioned that the cake, which was a most elaborate affair, was constructed by Mrs. Harry Neil of Ashburnham, and certainly was a close imitation of "the real thing."

The rest of the programme was similar to that of the evening before, with the exception of the fact that a new lot of jokes were sprung by the end men.

After the programme was concluded supper was served in the ante-room to the performers and the Palace Restaurant put a nice spread on the table for them. Mr. R. B. Rogers, President of the Cricket Club, was the the head of the board, and made a few remarks after supper, heartily thanking all who had assisted in the presentation of the programme, and extended a hearty invitation to them to come to the grounds at any time and join in a game of cricket with the club. In closing cheers were given for Mr. Rogers, Mr. R. M. Roy, Mr. E. M. Poussette, Mr. Charlie Flood and the end men.

It is not generally known that Mr. Charlie Flood came down from Toronto at his own expense to assist the boys in staging the minstrels.

Such an organization as the Minstrels should not be allowed to disband. By keeping together during the summer months they would be in fine shape to give another performance in the fall.

In last night's reference to the minstrel entertainment mention was inadvertently omitted of the excellent mandolin solo, "Marguerite" so well performed by Mr. S. Pigeon. His performance was of such merit that by request it was repeated, as also was the splendid quartette "Shadow of the Pines" sung with fine effect by Messrs. H. Morphet, who took the solo in good style, and Messrs. Mein, Shelton and Skitch. The balance of parts was just right and the expressive rendering of the number made it one of the most attractive vocal numbers on both evenings.

When has a visiting orchestra come to Peterborough that could begin to compare with that of the minstrels.

Young Andrews is the coming man in the art of twirling the stick. Peterborough won't be able to keep that lad long.

"Bobby" Beech's performance on the drum and traps was noticed by everyone.

Some good jokes were cracked last evening at the expense of our American cousins, in connection with the war.

Travellers who attended the performance stated that they had never seen a cake walk put on in Toronto or Montreal in which the costumes could equal those worn last evening by the competitors, nor had they ever seen a closer competition. The boys went to great expense and trouble to procure the costumes, which each provided for himself.

Was in Belleville.

The Belleville Intelligencer speaks as follows of an entertainment given in that city by Mr. R. M. Roy Tuesday evening:—Mr. Roy began his lecture with a brief history of South Africa and the struggles between the Boers and the British. He dealt at some length with the causes leading up to Jamieson's Raid, the dash over the border, his defeat by the Boers and ultimate surrender His pictures of "Dr. Jim," his men, the battlefield, the Boers and other scenes incident to this stirring episode in South African history were excellent and gave the audience a fair idea of the men on both sides in the brief conflict. Mr. Roy also gave pictures of the different natives of South Africa, their amusements, etc., together with several good views of the Kimberley diamond mine and its surroundings. He also showed portraits of Jamieson, Cecil Rhodes and Paul Kruger and his wife. He then threw on the canvas several scenic views, together with a number of very fine pictures of the exterior of the Colosseum at Rome, when it was used as a place of amusement for the Roman nobles. The entertainment was greatly appreciated by the audience and Mr. Roy certainly has a number of splendid views and an excellent light, but the room was not high enough to allow the machine to do justice to the pictures last evening.

INSPECTING PAVEMENTS.

With a View of Replacing Peterborough's Sidewalk by Something Better.

Mayor Davis and Councillors J. B. McWilliams, Wm. Langford and T. H. Hamilton, accompanied by Town Engineer Bellcher have returned from Belleville, where they were inspecting the permanent pavements.

The deputation reports having received most hospitable treatment from Belleville's mayor, aldermen and officials, every information being furnished them which was required.

The Belleville pavements have been laid for four years and are as good as the day they were laid down. The system of payment adopted was a frontage tax of 60 per cent. of the cost on the property holders and the balance raised by general taxation.

The committee purposes going to Brantford and Guelph in the near future to inspect the pavements there also.

CLEAN COATED TONGUE

ALL ALIVE IN QUEBEC.

The Dominion's Historic City Has Awakened to Her Business Advantages and Will Seek Them Forth.

Quebec, April 27.—In view of the impending war between the United States and Spain and the possibility of interruption to shipping at American ports, the Quebec Board of Trade have issued a circular to the shipping world explaining the advantages of Quebec's harbor.

The circular states that navigation of St. Lawrence River to Quebec is perfectly safe at any time. That the port of Quebec covers a circuit of 20 miles of safe and easy anchorage.

Quebec, as a distributing centre, offers exceptional facilities, as it is the converging point of six railways, thus ensuring constant rail communication with all parts of Canada and the United States, from both sides of the harbor. Passengers for New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Chicago and other points in the United States and Canada can reach their destination from Quebec many hours earlier than by using any other Canadian port. The same remarks apply to freight.

Although a very busy man, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has found time in which to write a great book of over a thousand pages entitled, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in Plain English, or Medicine Simplified. Few books printed in the English language have reached so great a sale as has this popular work, over 680,000 copies having been sold at $1.50 each. The profits on this enormous sale having repaid its author for the great amount of labour and money expended on its production he has now decided to give away, absolutely free, 680,000 copies of this valuable book, the recipient only being required to mail to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., of which company he is president, 21 one cent stamps, the actual cost of mailing only, and the book will be sent postpaid. It is a veritable medical library, complete in one volume. It contains 1008 large pages, and over 300 illustrations, some of them in colours. The free edition is precisely the same as that sold at $1.50 except only that the books are bound in strong manilla paper covers, instead of cloth. It is not often that our readers have an opportunity to obtain a valuable book on such generous terms, and we predict that few will miss availing themselves of the unusual and liberal offer to which we have called their attention.

Eloped With the Furniture.

Ottawa, April 26.—Frederick Orrell, a young man about 25 years of age, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective Flannagan in a Cambridge street boarding house on a charge of stealing a large quantity of furniture from William Foley of Toronto. In the arrest of Orrell an interesting elopement case is unearthed. About the middle of March the young man eloped from Toronto with Mrs. Foley and came to this city, where they had been living together ever since. The couple brought with them, so it is said, a large quantity of Foley's furniture in Toronto. The enraged husband arrived here yesterday and met his little boy on the street. The child told the whole story of his mother's elopement, and Orrell's arrest followed.

A Drunken Man's Escapade.

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 26.—A young man named Thomas O'Neill, aged 27 years, of this town was arrested yesterday morning by the Ontario police, charged with housebreaking and attempted criminal assault. The charge was made by an old lady 73 years of age, named Mrs. Moore, the widow of the late James Moore. The accused had a hearing before Police Magistrate Logan, who committed him for trial.

FEMALE WEAKNESS CURED.

Mrs. Saunders Made Well and Strong by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Brantford, April 25—(Special)—The wives and mothers of Ontario are the most ardent disciples of Dodd's way of curing curing Diseases of Women—i.e. by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This is natural, for no medicine, no earth, no agency known to man has saved women one tithe of the agony that Dodd's Kidney Pills have banished.

Mrs. F. Saunders, of Brantford, tells her suffering sisters what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for her: I have been a martyr to Female Weakness for the past year and suffered terribly. Dodd's Kidney Pills made me strong and well and healthy, though several other remedies I used did me no good whatever."

So the record grows. Cures made every day. Failures—never.

THE ROAD A DISGRACE

Mr. Davis Airs the Grievances of His Constituents.

A BIG SUBSIDY FOR NOTHING.

The Charge Made That the Q., L. L. and S. Railway Is Mismanaged and That It Is of No Public Service, Although It Receives $80,000 a Year—The Franchise Debate.

Ottawa, April 27.—The feature of public interest in the proceedings of the House yesterday was the arraignment by Mr. Davis of Saskatchewan of the management of the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake & Saskatchewan Railway, which, though liberally subsidized to provide transportation facilities for the country between Regina and Prince Albert, is giving poor satisfaction to the people. He called upon the Government to bring pressure to bear to improve the service, and Mr. Blair promised that the matter would receive his earnest attention. The President of the company is Mr. E. B. Osler, M.P. The House talked about the Franchise bill till midnight, but made absolutely no progress. The discussion will be continued to-day.

Mr. Choquette presented the report of the Committee on Debates recommending that better accommodation be provided for the Hansard reporters. At present 21 men have to work in one small room.

Mr. McInnis introduced a bill to incorporate the Dawson City Electric Company.

It Is a Disgrace.

Mr. Davis of Saskatchewan again called attention to the grievances of his constituents in regard to the operation of the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake & Saskaschewan Railroad. He stated that there had been only three trains into Prince Albert in the last two months, and that the railway absolutely refuses to carry freight or passengers into Prince Albert for six weeks to come. The bridge at Saskatoon was injured and the company said it would take at least three weeks or a month to repair it. He read telegrams stating that a train and workmen had arrived, but that the officials said nothing could be done until the arrival of material, which would have to come from British Columbia. He asked if it was not possible to compel the railway to fulfill the conditions of their charter, which required them to run trains at least twice a week, and from which they received $80,000 a year subsidy. Mr. Davis continued his arraignment of the management of the road in these words: "The road is a disgrace, the track is sunk into the mud; it never did anything at all. The company have only got enough section men on it to look after about 50 miles. The stations are going to wreck; the bridge is rotten and has not been repaired since it was built six or seven years ago."

Mr. Blair promised to give the matter his earnest attention.

The Franchise Bill.

The House then went into committee on the Franchise bill. Section 5, which has already been the subject of so much controversy, was again taken up.

Mr. McInerney (for Sir Charles Tupper), moved an amendment that an appeal should be from the revisers to the County Court judges, and in counties where there was no county judge, to the Superior Court judges.

The Solicitor-General pointed out that in Ontario and Quebec this very provision existed, so that if the amendment were adopted it would mean that the judges would be sitting in review of their own decisions.

The discussion on the amendment was carried on with great animation by Messrs. Foster, Mills, Montague, Blair, Costigan, McInerney, Fielding, Bell (Pictou), Davin, McNeill, Quinn, Hughes, McDougall and Haggart.

Solicitor-General Pitzpatrick said that Parliament was not delegating its powers, but adopting as a standard the provincial qualification.

After Mr. Wallace, Mr. McDougall and Mr. Clancy had spoken, Sir Wilfrid Laurier moved the adjournment of the debate.

The motion carried, and the House adjourned at 12.30, with the understanding that the Franchise bill would be again discussed to-day.

If you are not feeling well, why don't you take Hood's Sarsaparilla? It will purify and enrich your blood and do you wonderful good.

Niagara Fruit Growers Want a Wharf.

Toronto, April 23.—A deputation from the Niagara Fruit Growers' Association waited on the Government in Council yesterday afternoon and requested permission for the construction of a wharf at some point on the Niagara River between Queenston and Niagara as a place of call for steamers. The Government heard the statements presented, and appointed 2.30 p.m. Tuesday for hearing any persons who had objections to the granting of the request.

Washington, April 27. — The Lacy-General Arkin bill, which has been pending for some months, was agreed on in conference yesterday, and will be reported back to both Houses to-day. The Canadian reciprocal clause is amended to read as follows:

"And the President of the United States is hereby authorized to appoint three commissioners, to meet a like number of commissioners appointed on the part of the Government of Great Britain and the Dominion of Canada, the said commissioners to formulate and consider a plan for the settlement and final determination of the North Atlantic fishery question and the ultimate adjustment of any other question the solution of which would further promote the friendly relations now existing between the two countries, in respect of mutual interests in trade and commerce on the American continent, the findings of the said commissioners to be reported for appropriate action to the President of the United States."

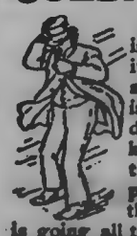
JUST A BAD COLD.



A sharp stinging pain in the back—you think it doesn't amount to anything—be all right in a few days—but it doesn't get all right—kidneys are not doing their duty, and the poisonous matter that they ought to remove is going all through the system—causing rheumatism, gout, dyspepsia, headaches, backaches—all sorts of ills.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Cure the disease by removing the cause.

MR. WILLIAM FRANKS, in charge of the Grand Trunk Engine Shops, Port Dover, Ont., says: "Four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of a very bad attack of kidney complaint and lame back. I was suffering greatly, so much so that I was thinking seriously of giving up my situation."

"When I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills I was in such a condition that I could hardly move on account of the pain in my back. As soon as I began taking them, however, I grew better. Day by day the pain became less and less, and after having taken four boxes it was entirely gone. They made a complete cure, for I have not had the slightest sign of kidney or back trouble since."

Book that tells all about these pills sent free to any address. The Doan Kidney Pill Co, Toronto, Ont.

WHEAT ADVANCING.

An Increase at Chicago and Liverpool, and 4c. and 5c. on the Street at Toronto—Quotations.

Tuesday Evening, April 26.

Flour is 25c higher in Toronto.

Cheese advanced 6d at Liverpool to-day.

Wheat advanced 4c to 5c per bush on the street at Toronto to-day.

Foreign grain markets continued their phenomenal advance to-day. At Liverpool spot wheat rose 4d and futures from 1¼ to 5d. At Paris, the gain for the day was 80 to 85 centimes, while Antwerp showed an improvement of 1 franc 35 centimes. In sympathy with cable advices to this effect, American markets repeated the striking advances of yesterday. At Chicago May wheat sold up 5¼c to $1.25, and July 5½c to 90c, with corresponding advances at New York, Duluth and other centres. At these high prices, however, some holders in the West sought to realise profits, and a recession followed, the slump being assisted by the intelligence that ocean freights have become so high as to be almost prohibitive. Despite these bearish influences, wheat closed at all the chief centres at appreciable advances over yesterday's close. At Chicago May gained 3½c for the day, at New York 4⅝c, at St. Louis 1¾c, at Duluth 1½c. Corn closed 1c higher at Chicago, and from 1½d to 3d higher at Liverpool.

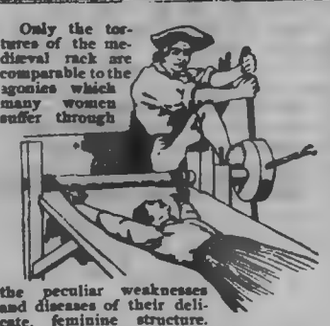
ABSENTMINDED MAN.

He Moved, but When He Tried to Find His House He Failed.

An absentminded man moved to this city from a neighboring town last week. He and his wife staid at a hotel while they were finding a house, but his business prevented the man from doing his share of the house hunting, and the task fell, as it often does, upon the wife. She at last found a place which suited her and she took her husband to see it. It was satisfactory, and they came down town, he to go back to his business and she to attend to the moving of their goods from the railway car to the house. Her task was soon accomplished, and in a short time she had put away most of the things, settled a bedroom and got the kitchen and dining room in order. By 5:30 in the afternoon she and the new girl had the first dinner in the new flat all ready for the head of the house.

In the meantime the absentminded husband was plodding through the work at his office. About the time that the plates were being put on the table at his home he began to feel the need of food, and he locked up his office and started for the street car. When he reached the street, he suddenly remembered that he had not noticed the address of his new residence. He stood on the corner a long while and tried to think what the name of the street was. He consulted the directory, but none of the street names was familiar—in fact, he had not been in the city long enough to know any of the streets by name except that on which his office was situated and the location of the hotel where he had staid temporarily. He looked aimlessly at the crowded street cars and envied the men and women who knew where their homes were. The pangs of hunger were increasing momentarily, but no suggestion of the locality of his home came to him.

His mind on that point was a perfect blank. He had even forgotten to notice in what style of building the flat was situated. Cursing his stupidity, he made his way to the hotel, ate his dinner in disgusted solitude and went to bed. In the meantime his wife was nearly frantic at his absence. Night having fallen, she was afraid to venture out, and she, too, went to bed alone and spent a sleepless night. In the morning she made her way down town, found the office and threw herself weeping into her husband's arms. That afternoon the man bought a map of the city and marked accurately upon it his place of residence, and then he had a hundred cards printed containing his house address.—Chicago Chronicle.



Only the tortures of the mediæval rack are comparable to the agonies which many women suffer through the peculiar weaknesses and diseases of their delicate, feminine structure. Nothing less than unbearable torment would induce sensitive-minded women to submit to the intolerable methods of the average doctor in dealing with diseases of this nature.

That there is "a better way" than these detestable "examinations" and "local applications" is a truth which some women have yet to learn, although thousands are already rejoicing in the knowledge. They have found in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the one unfailing remedy which heals feminine weaknesses at their very source. This marvelous "Prescription" restores absolute health to the internal organism; stops weakening drains and ulcerated conditions, gives elastic strength to the supporting ligaments, vitality to the nerve centers, and complete womanly vigor to the entire constitution.

It is the perfect fortifier and regulator of women at every critical period in their development; from the time when they merge into womanhood until the "change of life." It is the one medicine which makes motherhood safe and almost free from pain.

A lady living at 7 Park Avenue, Chicago, Ills., Mrs. Emily Howe, writes: "I, myself, suffered a long time from female weakness and seemed to be going into a decline. Took several bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and it saved me from a great deal of suffering. I now enjoy perfect health and will ever praise the wonderful efficacy of your medicine."

The best popular medical book in the world is Dr. R. V. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of customs and mailing only. Address the Doctor at Buffalo, N. Y., or send 50 stamps for cloth-bound copy.

NO MAN'S LAND.

A Western Australian Desert and Its Leading Characteristics.

Hon. David W. Carnegie, son of the Earl of Southesk, returned to England after a 18 months' journey across the Great Victoria and Great Sandy deserts of western Australia. Speaking of the natives in the interior, Mr. Carnegie said: "The people are very dark, and add to their blackness by smearing themselves with grease and ashes, a fact which makes their presence known at a considerable distance. They are very ugly—more like monkeys than anything else, with their flat foreheads and protruding lips. As a rule they are very thin and of small stature—on two occasions only I saw men upward of 6 feet in height. Men, women and children are all stark naked. They have no houses, and have no villages. They simply scoop out a hole in the sand and squat in it. When they first saw our camels and caravan, they were greatly excited, never having seen a white man before. We never suffered any hurt from them, but when any of them got us alone, they tried to be hasty, and no doubt would have proved troublesome if they had been given much opportunity. They are only one degree removed from animals.

"It was only from the smoke caused by their hunting fires that we were able to track them, and so find water."

Of the results of his journey the explorer said:

"We have proved the whole of the interior of Western Australia between Coolgardie and the Kimberley goldfields to be quite useless for man or beast. We saw no auriferous country between Lake Darlot district and Kimberley."—Montreal Star.

HEAD A MASS OF SCABS

COULDN'T GO NEAR THE STOVE.

Treated by Different Doctors.

CURED BY DR. CHASE.

The most intractable and distressing skin diseases which defy all manner of treatment—even the best medical skill—are readily cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

MRS. JOS. QUERIN, hotelkeeper's wife, at Ethel, Ont., was troubled with Eczema of the Head and Face for about 9 years, and was so bad at times she could not go near the hot stove to do her cooking. Her head was one mass of scabs, and although she treated with doctors it kept getting worse. On hearing of Dr. Chase's Ointment, she got some, and was delighted to find the first application do her good. She used two more boxes of the Ointment, is now free from disease, can do her own cooking, and would not begrudge $200 for the good it has done her.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In Death. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, Mr. A. G. Ramsay, in moving the adoption of the report, said:

The Directors' Report and the usual accounts and statements have for some days been in your hands, and have now been taken as read. While the report is brief, it contains, I think, along with the various published accounts, all that is required to enable those interested in the Company to judge of its progress and success in the past year. The addition during 1897 of nearly half a million dollars to the surplus or profits fund is a large and satisfactory one, and without invidiously comparing it with the figures of any other particular Company, I may say that it is more than was attained by all the other Canadian companies combined. The new business of the year was, you will observe, of satisfactory and gratifying amount, and in excess of the previous year, and you will be pleased to know that it is of that desirable class which will result more to the profit of the Company than would a larger amount obtained at heavier expense, or from less desirable regions than the healthful climate of Canada, and the four Northern States to which we have thus far deemed it judicious to confine the operations of the Company. The existing assurances are $72,719,555 or nearly twice as much as they were 12 years ago. The death claims of the year continued of very favourable amount, and being well within what was calculated upon, that fact testifies to the care observed in the selection of the lives, and to the judicious limitation of the business to the healthful climates already alluded to.

The recent lamentable failures of some of the companies doing business on the assessment system, and the anxiety felt as to the others which are based upon the same fallacious principles lead me to point out that these occurrences are only the inevitable results, which were from the first predicted by those whose knowledge and experience enabled them to judge of what the future of companies of the kind must be. At our meeting in 1887, when concerns of the kind were making strenuous efforts to establish themselves in Canada, I alluded to the miserable failures they had been in England and in America, and I said that their "ephemeral existance indicates how useless the assessment system of assurance is as a family provision. It can only offer the uncertain hope of a cheap assurance for a few years, till the company breaks down. It cannot afford any guarantee that a definite amount of assurance will certainly be paid to a widow or children after an assurer's death, whether that occurs at an early day or a distant one, and without such a guarantee as that, which our own and other sound companies offer, life assurance must be a fraud and a delusion." I added that "I was aware that agents and managers of companies of the kind pointed to the names of prominent business and professional men who have joined them, or who act as their directors, but as some of them at all events allow their names to be employed in that way, simply because policies have been gratuitously given to them, one can judge how little weight should attach to the names of the gentlemen thus used to decoy others to join such companies." One cannot envy the feelings of the prominent gentlemen alluded to, who induced persons to take policies in companies of the kind, from which they are now driven out by their failure, or by the levy of such high payments as they are unable to meet.

As the accounts show, the year's income was within a trifle of three million dollars, and the assets of the company were increased to the very considerable amount of nearly nineteen million dollars, and yielding, after deducting liabilities of every kind, a net surplus or profit of $1,564,082 for allocation at the end of next year, along with whatever addition there may be made to it between now and that time, and as the management and other expenses by which the profits to policy-holders are very largely influenced continue to be on a more moderate percentage than that of other Canadian or American companies, the prospects for our assurers are of a favourable character.

It is anticipated that legislation will be introduced by the Government, modifying the present 4½ per cent. rate of interest prescribed by law as the basis for Life Assurance Reserves, and adopting the new mortality Tables based upon the observations and large experience of the British Insurance Companies, in course of compilation by the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, and I may say on behalf of the Board in reference to the amendment to the charter, alluded to in the Directors report of last year, that the Directors purpose to avail themselves of the occasion of that legislation to seek such amendments to the law as may meet the Board's requirements.

The motion was seconded by Mr. F. W. Gates, Vice-President, and unanimously carried. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the agents, officers, medical and legal advisers of the company, Mr. Adam Brown speaking in eloquent terms of their services rendered to the Company.

Mr. Leggat moved and Lieut.-Col. McLaren seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Company during the past year. Brief and interesting addresses were also made by Sir George Kirkpatrick and Sir George Barton, the latter of whom was heartily congratulated upon the recent honour conferred upon him by the Queen.

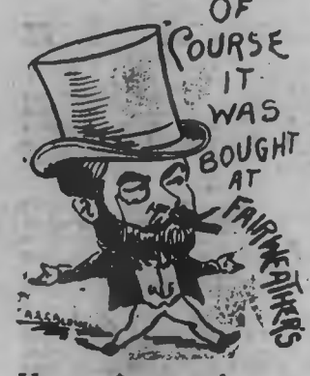
The retiring Directors, Chief Justice Sir George Burton, Col. Sir Casimer Gzowski, K.C.M.G., and Mr. N. Barrett, were re-elected. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. A. G. Ramsay was re-elected President and Mr. F. W. Gates Vice-President.

The meeting passed off very harmoniously, every one present being gratified with the progress and continued prosperity of the Canada Life, which, as Sir George Kirkpatrick remarked, was easily leader of all Companies in the Dominion.

"Style is the Dress of Thought"

CHESTERFIELD ONCE SAID.

We amend that by saying it's the mark of good taste—especially in Hat wear.



Handsome Hat and good—Variety to suit every taste and every head.

Well made Hats that come down to modest pocket books through the wonders wrought by having large buying facilities. Every new style, shape and shade is here—Youman's, Christy's, Tress, Stetson and all the rest. Prices start for good Hats at $1.00, and go up to $2.00 and $3.00. But we are as proud of our 50c Hat values as we are of our $3 00 ones.

If gentlemen will drop in at any convenient moment we'll easily convince them that it's good business sense to buy their Hats and Outing Caps here. It means having the most approved styles and colours, also a saving that soon amounts to many dollars.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR.

Consecration Meeting of St. Andrew's Y. P. S. C. E.

St. Andrew's Y. P. S. C. E. consecration meeting was well attended Monday evening. We were pleased to have a number of strangers with us. Our new President, Mr. B. Anderson, led the meeting and also introduced the topic on "Habits." He brought out the cause of not being a power for good in the world in a very practical way and said the surest salvation from worldiness is habits of worship of God in spiritual service. Too many become absorbed in the empty follies of other affairs so that they have not intelligent thought about missions or soul-saving. Simply because our lives are void of that spirit Paul speaks of in Galatians. The true desire of every heart should be the words contained in our pledge, which are as as follows: — "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I promise Him that I will strive to do whatever He would like to have me do; that I will make it the rule of my life to pray and to read the Bible every day, and to support my own church in every way, especially by attending all her regular Sunday and week services unless prevented by some reason which I can conscientiously give to my Saviour, and that just so far as I know how, throughout my whole life, I will endeavour to lead a Christian life. As an active member I promise to be true to all my duties, to be present at and take some some part aside from singing in every Christian Endeavour prayer meeting unless hindered by some reason which I can conscientiously give to my Lord and Master. If obliged to be absent from the monthly consecration meeting of the society, I will, if possible, send at least a verse of Scripture to be read in response to my name at the roll call."

LACROSSE.

Everybody turn out next Monday evening.

Lionel King returned last night from Toronto, where he was attending a meeting of the Council of the Canadian Lacrosse Association. He entered the Peterboroughs in the senior, intermediate and junior series, on the understanding that the first team could play in both the senior and intermediate games, whilst the second team would play in the junior series.

There are seven clubs in the senior series, viz., Orangeville, Georgetown, Seaforth, St. Catharines, Elms of Toronto, Peterboroughs and Orillias. The first five named comprise the Western District, whilst Peterborough and Orillia are in the East. The winners of the two districts play home and home games for the senior championship, so that the Peterboroughs stand a good show of winning the pennant, as by beating Orillia they step at once into the finals and play for the championship with the best team from the five western clubs.

In the Intermediate series the clubs in this districts are: Orillia, Beaverton, Midland, Young Torontos and Peterborough, which will assure many fast games being played here early in the season.

The Junior schedule has not been drawn up yet, but the clubs in this district will probably be Peterborough Juniors, Norwood, Millbrook, Campbellford, Marmora, Hastings and Madoc, which will be swift enough company to make our second team keep hustling if they are to get into the final games.

The Peterborough players who were suspended last year for playing games out of town after the local club had dropped out of the series, will be re-instated on June 1st, when their suspensions expire. As no Association games will take place before that date the team will be complete in time to enable it to put its full strength against its opponents.

The following is the schedule arranged:

Niagara—St. Catharines II, Merritton, Thorold, Beamsville, Niagara Falls. Secretary, H O'Loughlin, St. Catharines.

The Districts will meet on the 13th of May to make up their schedules and their season's arrangements.

President Lennox occupied the chair at the Council meeting, at which were present Secretary Hartley, Vice-President P McMillan, Beaverton; Jos Phelan, Arthur; W McIntyre, Grand Valley; B R Kean, Orillia; Lionel King, Peterborough; W H Hall, Markham, and Past President D A Rose.

The cases of a number of players who were suspended by President Craig were taken up. The decisions were to reinstate D. Guthrie, of Georgetown, to take effect June 9; W. Copping of Mitchell, June 15; Phelan, Rubidge and Dobbin, of Peterborough, and W. J. Hawkshaw, of Seaforth, to take effect June 1.

To settle an old score, Orillia was ordered to give Midland a game at home by June 25.

The report of the Goal Net Committee was presented by Mr. Francis Nelson and adopted. It provides that goal nets of cord with a mesh of not more than 1½ inche must be used, extending to a point, seven feet back of the centre of the goal and of conical shape.

The following new reading of rule IV., sec. 3, was adopted:—

Players shall not be allowed to change clubs during the season unless they be members of a junior or intermediate club in amalgamation with a senior club, or representing a club whose senior or intermediate team is a member of the association, in which case they shall be allowed promotion to the senior or intermediate team, but in no case shall any player be allowed to return to the junior team during the same season after having played on more than one occasion on either the senior or intermediate team, nor shall any player be allowed to return to the intermediate team during the same season after having played on more than one occasion with such senior team, or unless they be members or ex-members of a school, college or university, in which case they shall be eligible to play for such school, college or university club, and one other club only.

The club charges no club fee for playing members, and all those who intend playing the game are asked to be on hand Monday evening next at 7 o'clock sharp with uniforms and sticks. Practice nights, Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

THE WHEEL.

County Councillor Middleton was in town yesterday, and in talking with Mr. E. B. Edwards over the construction of a bicycle path between Peterborough and Chemong, strongly endorsed the scheme.

SHADE TREES.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—It appears that a difficulty has been experienced in procuring good, suitable young shade trees for street planting. One thing is quite evident, and that is, that the trees procured from local sources have not given satisfaction. The opinion has been expressed that nursery stock although costing more at first, was cheaper in the end, as a much larger percentage of the nursery stock was likely to live.

As is known to all who have given the subject any thought, the vitality of a tree and its chances of growing when transplanted, depends largely upon the amount of fibrous root which it has. Nursery stock as a rule, is better supplied with such small roots, on account of being often transplanted, and also on account of the young trees have more room to grow than forest trees generally have. In selecting the latter trees for transplanting, if small trees, say from one-half to one-inch in thickness at the root and from four to six feet in height, were chosen, better results would be seen than occurs from the planting of larger trees. One acre of land planted to trees in rows six feet distant and the trees placed three apart in the rows, would accommodate 2420 trees.

If the town has an acre or half an acre of land not in use, would it not pay to plant it in this way? Small trees suitable for planting in nursery rows could be obtained within four or five miles of town for the trouble of going after them. If such trees were transplanted on suitable ground, with very little expense the town would in a short time, say two or three years, have good trees fit for transplanting where shade might be needed, and costing less than one-half the price of nursery stock. They would also be more liable to live, for by adopting the plan of a local nursery the roots of the young trees would only necessarily have to be exposed to the air for a short time after being taken up. Why not take a corner of one of the parks and plant ten or twelve hundred trees, thinning them out as they are wanted for street planting? The residue left standing would serve to ornament and afford shade.

* * * * *

We started in with the intention of making the spring season of 1898 one memorable in the Hat Department of our Big Store, and we have succeeded far beyond our expectations. For Elegance, Variety and Style our stock this year is beyond worded description, unapproachable by local competition and unexcellend by the other big stores in the larger cities; and LOW PRICES are the two words which stand out most prominently on the banner waving over this magnificent stock. Our combination of stores, with their capital combined, together with our Cash System, enables us to buy the best and most stylish shapes from the leading manufacturers, and sell them for less than others charge for what we call our inferior goods. Buy where you like and we can duplicate your purchase or give you a better quality of Hat, and you will have enough from the difference in the prices to purchase something else of half the value. An investigation of this year's handsome stock will convince you that these are unvarnished facts. Come in and see us, it is worth your while to view the stock.

APRIL'S BUSINESS WAS GREAT!

It has passed into history as a record breaker.

It wasn't necessary either to shout "Crowds! Crowds!" as some do, when the crowds, so far as they are concerned, are in the street.

We've simply never had a better April in business. It serves to show how firmly imbedded in the hearts of the people the Golden Lion, is, and strengthens the conviction that no other house is in a position to underbuy or undersell this one.

Larger than ever before and fuller is this old store, and it would be hard to find any article that is NOT LOWER IN PRICE than it used to be.

The expectation of our customers to find the LOWEST PRICES here must not be disappointed. Whether we lose or make, every change in values will be registered on the goods here.

W. W. JOHNSTON
STOCK
In the Crystal Block

Has created an epedemic of enthusiasm. Never saw anything like it! It's the talk of the town—indicates the approval of satisfied shoppers at this phenomenal sale. Of course it must go on now LIVELIER THAN EVER.

The store is all alive with quick movement, taxing the capacity of our large staff of salesmen to keep up with their work.

Why?

Because the goods we want to sell are the goods you want to buy. Just when you need these goods most we sell them cheapest. And the entire stock is offered at prices that cannot, under any circumstances, be equalled elsewhere.

HALF PRICE IS A BIG WORD

But we do as we advertise—we tell the plain truth and furnish the proof.

It's a Sale for the masses—regardless of cost or value.

We want to make the Second Week of this sale Eclipse the First.

Lucky that Mr. Fair got this stock, and that he wasn't a monopolist, or you could never get such snaps at this sale of the W. W. JOHNSTON stock, Crystal Block.

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my thanks for your cheque just handed to me, for $3,201.96, in settlement of my $2,500 Fifteen Year Endowment Policy in your Company. Such a result as this, after the risk on my life has been carried for fifteen years, beginning when forty-five years of age, argues one thing strongly, namely, that the engagements of the North American Life must be in competent hands. The other options you have offered me, viz.: a Paid-up Life policy for $3,610.00, or a Life Annuity for $401.96, are, I presume, equally liberal, and it affords me much pleasure to recommend your Company to my friends or any one desiring insurance.

BOMBARDMENT OF MATANZAS.

The Spanish Claim the Victory Although They Lost 160 Men—The Details of Their Point of View—England Warned Concerning Torpedo-Protected Harbors—General War News.

London, April 29.—The trend of English sentiment towards Spain is becoming so pronounced as to be a generally recognized fact. All resident Americans, even American diplomats, are compelled to admit it. Although the Government's friendly attitude is unchanged, it is questioned whether a majority in Parliament is not now Spanish in its sympathies, although a week ago practically unanimous partizans of the United States. A straw indicating the direction of the wind is shown with a popular music hall in London, where nightly pictures of the American and Spanish warships are shown by the kinetoscope. The American warships are only moderately applauded, the Spanish most enthusiastically.

The expected fight off Manila is awaited in England with the greatest interest; first, because it may have considerable political significance, and, second, because it is the first instance of a modern squadron fighting so far from a well-equipped base. The effects of the war continue to be felt in Europe in the rise of prices of various commodities.

Spanish Officials Bewildered.

London, April 29.—Another special despatch from Madrid says the Spanish Government officials are bewildered at the attitude of Great Britain. They believe the Government and the people of Great Britain hold divergent opinions, and that the official acts of Great Britain are due to a secret compact with the United States Government.

The Anglo-American Alliance.

London, April 29.—A letter appears in the Morning Post yesterday, signed, "A Canadian Militia Officer," in which, commenting on the advocacy of an Anglo-American alliance, he says the most unpopular act of Sir John A. Macdonald's life was his consenting to the Canadian claims for the Fenian raid being wiped out in the settlement arrived at by the treaty of Washington. Concluding, he asks Englishmen to contemplate the situation, and they will observe that it is the Radicals, Anarchists and Irish Nationalists who are shouting for the success of the Yankees.

The Globe yesterday says editorially that if Congress authorizes President McKinley to appoint commissioners to parley with the Canadian and British ones on the outstanding questions of an irritating character, a good opportunity will be furnished to exactly delimit the Canadian-American boundary in the Yukon.

A U. S. Ship Aground.

Madrid, April 29.—An official despatch from General Blanco says: "Part of the enemy's squadron has gone eastward. One of the American ironclads has grounded opposite Dimas, Province of Pinar Del Rio, and three other ships are working to refloat her. Spanish volunteers are watching on shore."

A despatch to El Imparcial from Havana says the insurgents attacked Artemisa, Province of Pinar Del Rio, but were repulsed.

ABOUT MATANZAS.

Capt.-General Blanco's Account of the Bombardment Cabled to the Home Government 160 Men Killed.

London, April 29.—A Madrid despatch gives the Spanish side of the Matanzas bombardment. Blanco cabled the news of it to his Government. He says in effect that Spain has gained the first victory of the war, although at the cost of over one hundred and sixty loyal and honored lives.

Blanco declares that the entire American fleet sailed toward Matanzas harbor, sending in a continuous fire. The American shells did considerable damage to the fortifications, he says, but little to the city. In the forts there were many casualities due to the bravery of the Spanish gunners. The forts, after an hour's terrific fighting, he declares, succeeded in driving the American fleet away.

As They Tell It.

Madrid, April 29.—Little credence is attached in Madrid to the despatches from New York, telling of the bombardment of Matanzas, as the latter "conflict with the official reports."

The latter, in addition to saying the Americans "were obliged to retreat," admit that "several men were killed" and that "some damage was done to the town," also remarking that the American loss is not known. The forts of Havana, it is announced here, have not yet fired a single projectile, the cannon shots heard being merely signal guns.

Spanish Fleet Awaiting Attack.

An official despatch from Manila, capital of the Philippine Islands, received yesterday, says the Spanish squadron, which has taken up a position several miles from Manila, is still awaiting the arrival of the United States squadron, under the command of Rear-Admiral Dewey.

The Governor's proclamation, appealing to the patriotism, honor and religious prejudices of the Spaniards, and otherwise inciting them to animosity against the Americans, is said to have had a great effect upon the people, who are alleged to be volunteering in large numbers, eager "to repulse the enemy."

War Dogs Still Watching.

Gibraltar, April 29.—Two Spanish torpedo boat destroyers continue cruising in the Straits of Gibraltar. They approach all vessels leaving the Mediterranean.

Beware of the Torpedoes.

London, April 29.—The Spanish Embassy has informed the Foreign Office that the ports of Cuba, the Philippine Islands and Porto Rico are defended by torpedoes, and that entry is only possible under the guidance of pilots in waiting outside.

It is reported in Madrid, says a special despatch this afternoon, that the Spanish squadron, consisting of nine warships, sailed from Manila on Monday last to take up positions off Subig Bay, where they will await the passage of American merchant vessels, for the purpose of capturing them.

THE SINEWS OF WAR.

Secretary Gage Found New York Financiers Willing to Help in Raising the Cash.

Washington, April 29.—Secretary Gage returned this morning from New York, where he had a conference yesterday with prominent bankers in regard to the proposed bond issue for raising a war fund, which was eminently satisfactory. All seemed disposed to do anything and everything possible to give any needed financial support to the Government in the present emergency. All favored the popular loan idea and thought that the people should be given an opportunity to invest in the new issue. Some of the bankers expressed doubt as to the ability of the Government to place among the people as much as $100,000,000 of the bonds at 3 per cent., and especially as many of the savings banks throughout the country were paying 3½ and 4 per cent. However they were willing to assist in disposing of whatever was left, and they had no doubt that the whole amount offered would be subscribed for at once, and possibly two or three times over.

Before the debate upon the war revenue bill was resumed in the House yesterday an urgency war measure was passed by unanimous consent to repeal the limitations upon the purchase of quartermasters' supplies during the existing war with Spain.

Spanish Fleet Has Left Cape Verde.

New York, April 28.—It is reported here that the Spanish fleet left Cape Verde Island late last night for the Canaries, as they have not sufficient coal to carry them across the Atlantic.

Fears for the Paris.

A Washington special says: A man prominent in the country's affairs said there is nervousness in the Strategy Board concerning the Paris. It seems well-assured there are several Spanish warships between her and home which she must elude.

War Comes High.

Washington, April 29.—The several allotments made by the President from day to day out of the $50,000,000 national defence appropriation now aggregate $41,293,115, as follows: War, $16,148,697; navy, $25,078,489; treasury, $5,000. Of these amounts the Navy Department has disbursed $11,145,000 and the War Department $8,145,000.

That Yankee Captive.

London, April 29.—Lloyds' advices from Manila say the American barque Saranac, owned by William Simpson, jr., of New York, which was captured at Iloilo, Philippine Islands, by the Spanish gunboat El Cano, as cabled to the Associated Press exclusively yesterday, was seized after she had unloaded her cargo of coal at that port, which was her destination.

War Hurting Business.

Washington, April 29.—In the Senate yesterday Mr. Pasco (Fla.) presented memorials from the Florida Board of Trade, concerning the interference with the coastwise trade by the present conditions of war. Mr. Pasco said that the matter was becoming serious, as American vessels were being forced by the conditions existing to refuse business. He thought the Committee on Commerce ought to consider the subject promptly, and the memorials were referred to that committee.

THE TERRIBLE PRIZE.

The Spanish Str. Guido With Money and Provisions for the Troops.

Key West, April 29.—The large Spanish steamer Guido, bound from Corunna for Havana, with a large cargo of provisions and money for the Spanish troops, was captured early yesterday morning by the United States monitor Terror. The Spanish steamer Guido, Capt. Amarelchia, is a vessel of 2,065 tons net, owned by the Navigation Company of Bilbao. She was built at Belfast in 1893 and is 360 feet long. The Guido left Liverpool on April 8 and Corunna on April 9 for Havana.

Prize to Be Surrendered.

Washington, April 29.—The Treasury Department has ordered the Saturnina, Spanish, seized in Biloxi harbor, released.

Cannot Get Enough Coal.

Plymouth, April 29.—A steamer which arrived here yesterday from St. Vincent, Cape Verde Islands, reports that the Spanish warships there are unable to get half the amount of coal which they require to fill their bunkers.

Paying Up the Bill.

St. Vincent, Cape Verde Islands, April 29.—Although the Spanish squadron is still at anchor here, it is believed the warships will probably sail to-day, as the paymasters have been settling up accounts.

Sugar Plantation Plundered.

St. Thomas, West Indies, April 29.—An American sugar estate in Porto Rico was plundered after the declaration of war. The British Consul, in charge of American interests, has asked for the presence of a British warship.

A TORY OUTRAGE.

The British Columbia Government Refuses to Allow the Opposition Amendments to Be Put to the House.

Victoria, April 29.—The Legislature was in session all Tuesday night and until 8.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The Committee of the Whole reported progress on the Redistribution bill, having passed all but a few minor clauses.

The Opposition had fought valiantly for the rights of the people and had offered numerous amendments to certain clauses of the Government's bill. Finally the chairman, in committee, refused to put an amendment. The Opposition appealed to the Speaker, who sustained the chairman. Mr. Semlin, the leader of the Opposition, then said:

"We have endevored to render this bill as unobjectionable as possible, but we have been defeated by a remarkable application of the rules, and I say the Government has taken the responsibility of deciding the fate of the bill."

All the members of the Opposition, with the exception of three, then withdrew from the chamber, and the committee proceeded with the consideration of the bill.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

J. W. Heaslip's barn near Wellandport, together with contents, was destroyed by fire. Loss about $700.

The wife of Daniel Mills of Palmyra dropped dead at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. Werner of Rodney. Death was caused by apoplexy. Her husband is a brother of the Hon. David Mills, Minister of Justice.

Calumet Passed Down.

Port Colborne, Ont., April 29.—The United States revenue cutter Calumet passed down the canal at noon yesterday from Chicago to Ogdensburg. She will engage in the same business on the coast as the Gresham, which passed down a few days ago. The Calumet is a much smaller boat, and she will have less trouble to pass through the lower canals.

Awarded Bicknell $5,000.

Kingston, April 29.—A jury at Napanee Assizes awarded E. S. Bicknell $5,000 damages in a suit brought against the Grand Trunk Railway system for damages for injuries caused by a collision at Lansdowne, whereby Dr. Wray was killed and Mr. Bicknell badly hurt. A point of law as to the railway company's liability has yet to be argued.

Brisk Export Cattle Trade.

Toronto, April 29.—Secretary Hodgson of the Stock Breeders' Association stated yesterday that in all the years of his experience he had never seen the export business in Ontario thoroughbred cattle as brisk as it is at present. The buyers are from the Northwest and the States. Prices, though fair, are not high. Sir Roderick Cameron has recently ordered 2,200 yearlings to be purchased in Ontario for his Northwest ranch. The annual cost of feeding these animals is computed at 50 cents per head and they will be sold in a couple of years at a net profit of from 50 to 75 per cent.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE Spanish-American trouble is getting serious—somebody should read the riot act and call out the police.

IT is time for international interference in the Spanish American trouble. This reckless shooting at the Atlantic Ocean by the guns of powerful battleships, if it continues, will end in somebody being hurt.

THE price of bread is going up all around, and Peterborough may possibly expect something in that line. It is all right for bread to rise, but if the price following its example does not appeal to popular enthusiasm.

THE Kingston city council has declined to grant $50,000 to the Dominion cotton mills as a bonus. The council very properly prevented a scheme to compel the people to contribute $50,000 to the dividends of the cotton company.

THE Montreal Witness includes among the disadvantages to Canada arising from the Hispano-American war, the rise in the price of wheat. The higher wheat goes the better. It may increase the price of bread, but it will be accompanied by general prosperity. The workmen's wages will sympathize with the rise in grain, times will be better and employment more plentiful. When the farmer is prosperous all the world, which he feeds, stands a chance of being prosperous also.

"IT turns out," says the Globe, "that the official majority for Mr. McLellan, M. P., in West Prince, P. E. I., is 316. This is a remarkable triumph for the Government. The Conservative candidate had very great strength in the constituency. In the general election the Liberal majority in Prince was only 89." The decadence of the Liberal party in relation to public appreciation, which partizan journals chatter about, is something of the style of decadence which her enemies attribute to the British Empire.

"THE Opposition in the House of Commons are giving their namesakes in the Ontario Legislature," says the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, "a close run for the booby prize. In the Legislature the Opposition have immortalized their name in connection with the "calf with a cough" and the Humber piggery. The Opposition at Ottawa are seeking immortality by associating their name with an ale bottle.' It is an unconfined rumour that Hon. John Carling is to lead the beer crusade brigade in the Senate.

SOME American newspapers are complaining that the Canadians are not friendly to the United States. They are at bottom in sympathy with the United States as against Spain in its treatment of its Cuban subjects, but Canadians are a people of action, and believe more in doing things than talking things. If a Canadian hen lays an egg her cackle is not telegraphed around the world with as much parade and style as though she had laid a Kohinor diamond or a Klondyke nugget as big as a cricket ball. What the Canadians don't sympathise with is the Yankee blow and bluster, and the magnifying of every trivial incident, like the capture of a fishing smack, into a heroic naval triumph worthy of the pen of a Homer, or the pencil of a Caton Woodville.

PHILIPPINE Island, of the Philippines group, in the China Sea, where a naval set-to between the Spanish and American fleets is booked for at an early date, is an important Spanish possession. Its area and population are about four times as great as that of Cuba. There are three other islands in the group under Spanish control. The total area of these islands is 116,000 square miles and the total population is over seven millions. These islands are ruled by a governor and captain-general appointed by Spain, very similar to the Government of Cuba and, like Cuba, badly governed, since the Philippines, like Cuba, are in a state of chronic revolt. From the situation of these islands it is probable that the news of the expected naval enbounter will not come through American sources.

THE Plebiscite Bill, and the form it takes, seem to have met with the warm approval of prohibitionists generally, and of the Dominion Alliance especially. In pursuance a great convention is to be held in Toronto, beginning on July 5th, and the call is being sent out to all churches, young people's religious organizations and temperance societies in Ontario. It is expected that this will be the largest gathering of the kind ever held in Toronto and will mark the real beginning of an aggressive campaign for the carrying of the prohibition plebiscite when the vote is taken. The celebrated polyglot petition, signed by over a million women, asking for prohibition, will be presented to the members of the Dominion Parliament in the Dominion Methodist Church, Ottawa, next Tuesday evening, another sign of the boom that has set in in regard to advancing the interests of the prohibition movement in relation to the coming plebiscite.

ATTENTION is drawn by The Moosomin Spectator to an instance of regard for the interests of the farmer by the Canadian Pacific Railway. "Freight rates are no doubt necessarily high," says The Spectator, "but in some particular cases the C. P.R. management has made concessions which are of great importance to the farmers of the Northwest. In the case of thoroughbred stock all true farmers have reason to be thankful for the facilities afforded them by which they are enabled to bring into this country from the east all kinds of high-class live stock at exceedingly moderate rates. Here is an opportunity for our western farmers which is not taken advantage of to the extent it ought to be. Perhaps the opportunity is not generally known. But the fact that any single animal of high grade standing, of cattle, sheep or swine class, may be imported to-day from the east at carload rates should be considered a golden opportunity by every wide-awake farmer. This concession, for concession it must be called, was gained thryugh the Live Stock Breeders' Associations of eastern Canada, and these associations found the much-abused railway companies quite willing to meet their request." The Globe adds: "This is a great reduction from the rates prevalent a few years ago, when a settler near Moosomin found that he would have to pay $7 a hundredweight for a thoroughbred animal for which he was negotiating." It is perhaps worth asking whether the action of the railway in this direction has not been influenced by the initiative of the government in procuring the reduction of freight rates.

$54,466,075 IN AMERICAN SHIPS.

RICH PLUNDER FOR THE SPANIARDS IF THEY CAN CATCH THEM.

All are now on the Seas—Seven Hundred and Fifty Vessels Far From Port with no Idea that the War is Really on.

A careful review of the weekly compendium of the New York Maritime Register, just issued, shows that there are at the present moment on the high seas exactly 760 vessels flying the American flag.

In the single item of vessels the Spaniards have a chance for a gross sum of $54,466,075 in prize money, which is more than the first emergency appropriation made by Congress for the use of the President in preparation for war.

These ships are scattered all over the world, many of them in places where they are really without a particle of protection beyond their own speed, and this is a reliance that is not very far reaching, except in a few isolated instances. The American merchant marine does not include many such flyers as the St. Louis, the Paris and the New York, and of the other steamers almost everyone is liable to capture by the speedy Spanish cruisers and gunboats. With their cargoes they would afford more prize money for the Spanish sailors than they have ever dreamed of. There is not one of them that could defend herself, and colours would have to be lowered at the firing of the first gun.

Many of these ships were chartered for long voyages before there was any great fear of war, and no extraordinary precautions were taken for their protection or safety. For instance, there is a great fleet that is now on its way around Cape Horn and up into the Pacific to engage in the Klondyke trade. These left Atlantic seaports weeks ago, and their captains have no idea now of the serious turn of affairs since they steamed ont of American harbours.

Perhaps the first intimation they will receive will be the roar of a shotted gun, an unanswerable challenge for them to heave to and deliver. The Klondyke steamers have large cargoes of supplies and numerous passengers, men and women, on their way to the land of golden promise, with no suspicion of the danger that impends.

Then there are the steamers engaged in the West Indian and South American trade. The goods which they carry, in many instances imperishable provisions, are just the thing the Spaniards need the most, and they will make every endeavour to capture as many of them as possible.

A sample instance of the danger to the steamers that have left Atlantic ports for the Pacific is found in the case of the Ohio, which sailed from Philadelphia on March 8, bound for San Francisco, Seattle, and Tacoma, with a cargo of supplies for the Klondyke trade. She was last heard of at Coronel, a Chilian port, where she touched on April 13. She remained there three days taking on coal, and when she sailed her commander, Capt. Broomhead, could not have heard of the state of war.

A similiar instance is that of the steamer Illinois, a sister ship of the Ohio, which is engaged in the same trade. The Illinois left Philadelphia on March 23, and has not yet touched at any port where there is cable communication with the United States. Her captain had no orders touching his procedure in case of war at the time of her sailing.

There are at least a dozen of these steamers which have sailed from New York, Boston and Philadelphia for the Pacific coast, and every one of them is in imminent danger of becoming a Spanish prize.

One of the richest harvest fields for the Spaniards on the ocean is found among the clipper ships that are carro carriers between this country, China and the East Indies. These ships are the finest vessels of their class, most of them built in Maine, and their cargoes are always of the most valuable kind. Many of them are engaged in the tea trade.

Take, for instance, the big ship Abner Coburn, one of the best of this class. She sailed from Hong Kong on December 4th, bound for New York, with little likelihood of her touching at any port during her long voyage. With her cargo she would make a prize worth at least $300,000 to the Spaniards, and it is nothing wonderful, therefore, that the Dons are inclined to countenance privateering, when there are from fifty to one hundred of just such prizes now on the high seas.

All in all, the best authorities admit that there is a tremendous danger to American shipping, with little or no chance for an adequate reprisal, for the Spanish merchant marine is not one-tenth as valuable as the American, and where the Spaniards have ten chances to make a capture the Americans will not have one.

The greater includes the less. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, and may be depended upon to cure boils and pimples.

WARSAW.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Messrs. Burton Earle and Rev. W. L. Armitage, of Peterborough, were the guest of Mr. A. F. Choate on Friday last.

Commodore Tully's steamer, Tramp, made its first trip up the lakes Saturday last. He has had it re-painted, and it is without doubt one of the fastest yachts on these waters. As Mr. Tully is very accommodating and obliging, it is expected that he will do a good business during the coming season.

Messrs. Doughty and Stevenson were in town for a couple of days last week. We were pleased to see Mr. Doughty's aldermanic face in our midst again.

Try one of Payne's patent turnip sowers. Best on the market. This factory is doing an immense business in the Northwest at present.

Baby carriages seem to be the chief mode of conveyance now used by the people of this town. Judging by the number of them constantly moving on our sidewalks, we think that the population must be on the increase very fast.

The old saying, "Wars and rumours of wars," seems to be divided in interest in Warsaw with "Weddings and rumours of weddings." Whether these two things are identical or not, we cannot say, having no experience in this line.

Mr. W. H. Kidd is doing quite a business in wheels. He is selling the Huron and Common Sense.

Warsaw is expecting to have a very strong football team this season. They think of entering the league, but have not decided as yet.

Mr. Stewart Miller has arrived safely at Vancouver.

Although a very busy man, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has found time in which to write a great book of over a thousand pages entitled, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in Plain English, or Medicine Simplified. Few books printed in the English language have reached so great a sale as has this popular work, over 680,000 copies having been sold at $1.50 each. The profits on this enormous sale having repaid its author for the great amount of labour and money expended on its production he has now decided to give away, absolutely free, 500,000 copies of this valuable book, the recipient only being required to mail to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., of which company he is president, 21 one cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only, and the book will be sent postpaid. It is a veritable medical library, complete in one volume. It contains 1008 large pages, and over 300 illustrations, some of them in colours. The free edition is precisely the same as that sold at $1.50 except only that the books are bound in strong manilla paper covers, instead of cloth. It is not often that our readers have an opportunity to obtain a valuable book on such generous terms, and we predict that few will miss availing themselves of the unusual and liberal offer to which we have called their attention.

THE INVASION OF CUBA

Uncle Sam Has Arranged to Capture the Island.

HOW HE WILL GO ABOUT IT TOLD

Gen. Miles Will Lead the Attack and Will Have 10,000 Troops Behind Him—Havana to Be Attacked From the Rear—That City Is in a Panic.

New York, April 28.—A Washington special says: "Gen. Miles will personally lead the invasion of Cuba. Ten thousand troops will accompany him, working in conjunction with the navy and insurgent forces. This was finally decided upon yesterday at the conference in the White House between President McKinley, Secretary Alger, Generals Shafter and Miles. The point of invasion and occupation has been selected. Havana is to be attacked from the rear. The Red Cross steamer State of Texas is to be sent ahead with supplies for the Cubans. If the Spaniards fire upon it that will be the signal for bombardment."

Havana in a Panic.

An Havana special says: "The news from Madrid that the United States has completed plans for the invasion of Havana, this, with the silencing of the Matanzas batteries, has thrown the city into a panic. Gen. Blanco considers the water batteries equal to repulsing the American ships, and says they will do great havoc. Work on the defences in rear of the city are pushed night and day. There is a panicky feeling in the city."

CONQUEST OF SANTIAGO.

This Is to Be Carried Out by Land and Naval Forces.

New York, April 29.—A Kingston, Jamaica, special says: Detailed plans for a combined land and sea conquest of Santiago were completed yesterday, and will be actively put in operation in a few days by the navy, supported by a landing force from the United States army. Santiago is next in importance to Havana. It is the stronghold of the Spaniards, commanding the south and east end of Cuba, precisely as Havana is the military key to the north and west end of the Island. General Lunarez, the Spanish commander, has about 200,000 men, it is said, with four small gunboats and one cruiser in the harbor.

A Spanish Girl's Expose.

A Key West special says: A Spanish senorita, one of twenty-four Spanish passengers on the captured steamship Panama, has betrayed the fact that her compatriot fellow-voyagers were going to join the Spanish army, and were not refugees, and their passages had been paid by the late Spanish Consul at New York. Learning these facts, the Attorney-General in Washington ordered that they be held as prisoners of war.

ABOUT MATANZAS.

The Correspondent of the New York Herald's Account to His Paper—Good Shooting by U. S. Marines.

New York, April 29.—A despatch via Key West from a correspondent of the Herald, who was a witness of the bombardment of Matanzas by the American ships, says: Admiral Sampson on Wednesday afternoon bombarded, silenced and pretty well destroyed the Spanish batteries in position and in course of construction at the entrance of the harbor of Matanzas. He did it with the flagship New York, the monitor Puritan and the cruiser Cincinnati.

Not one of the American ships was struck, the Spanish gunnery being wild.

There is as yet no means of knowing the number of dead and wounded on the Spanish side. It must be considerable.

While the New York, Puritan and Cincinnati were reconnoitering in force for the purpose of locating and destroying the formidable defences being constructed, the ships were fired on by the batteries on Point Rubalcaya and Point Maya, guarding the entrance of the harbor.

The New York replied, firing her forward eight-inch gun on the port side. She steamed boldly in between the batteries and soon blazed away with both broadsides at them. The Puritan steamed in behind the New York and engaged the fortification on Point Maya, while the New York went to starboard close up to the land and poured her shells into Rubalcaya. The Cincinnati, which had remained well astern under orders, signalled for permission to engage, and received it, and soon was firing her guns at the fort on the west side of the bay. The batteries fired explosive shells, and most of them fell wide of the mark. One burst just beyond the stern of the New York, and a schrapnel shell exploded above her. It took the three ships just 18 minutes to silence the batteries. The last shot that was fired by the Spanish came from Point Rubalcaya. The Puritan replied with one of her 12-inch guns. The shell struck the battery with wonderful accuracy, and blew up a portion of it.

After waiting in vain for the Spanish to renew the engagements the ships withdrew, leaving both batteries in ruins.

Not a shell had struck one of them, but there had been three narrow misses of the New York. The Spanish fired schrapnel once, which had burst about the ship, a shell had struck just fore of her and another struck just aft.

The fact that the Spaniards failed to strike such a large target as the New York, towering as she does like a house out of the water, was taken as evidence that they are not good marksmen. On the other hand, every shot that the New York fired after she got the range was pitched right into the batteries.

In point of time the engagement lasted just 18 minutes. It began at 57 minutes past 12 and ended at 15 minutes past 1. The Puritan and Cincinnati were left on guard at Matanzas and the New York returned to her old position.

All told, the United States ships fired 86 shots at the forts. The forts fired probably 25 shots.

But far more important than the destruction of the Matanzas batteries is the conclusion about the future which may be drawn from the bombardment. This conclusion is that Havana is absolutely at the mercy of the United States fleet whenever we choose to open fire.

His Furlough.

"What is a furlough?" asked a Columbus (O.) teacher.

"It means a mule," was the reply of Mary.

"Oh, no," replied the teacher, "it doesn't mean a mule."

"Indeed, it does," said Mary. "I have a book at home that says so."

"Well," said the teacher, now thoroughly interested, "you may bring the book to school, and we'll see about it."

The next day Mary brought the book, and in some triumph opened to a page where there was a picture of a soldier standing beside a mule. Below the picture were the words, "Going Home on His Furlough."—Exchange.

DEADLY BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

Cured by Four Boxes of Dodds Kidney Pills.

GALT, April 18th.—(Special)—From town to town over the whole broad land rolls the irresistible wave of marvellous popularity of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are bringing the luxury of life to thousands of paleworn mortals and banishing kidney disease from our country.

Mr. Frank Cromwell of Galt, tells gladly of his escape. Unmistakable signs of Bright's Disease alarmed him. Pains in the back, bloating of the limbs, puffiness, etc., appeared. He used several remedies. All failed.

He then tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Of course there could be but one result. It followed as it always does. Mr. Cromwell was cured. "I had given up all hope of getting well, but four boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me," says he.

BURNED TO THE WATER'S EDGE.

A Shipping Disaster on Lake Superior—The Crew Rescued by the C.P.R.'s Alberta—$120,000 Loss.

Buffalo, April 29.—A special to the Commercial from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., yesterday says: "The steamer Servia was burned on Lake Superior, about 15 miles northward of White Fish Point, at 3 o'clock this morning. Captain Fred Ahlstrom and his crew were brought here by the tug Merrick. The Servia, with the schooner Frank D. Ewen in tow, bound from Duluth to Kingston with cargoes of corn, sighted the steamer Argonaut flying signals of distress about 30 miles off Whitefish Point, and went to her assistance. The Argonaut's machinery had broken down. The disabled steamer was taken in tow. Some three hours later fire broke out in the forward part of the Servia, and gained rapid headway. The fire extinguishers and pumps were manned, but the flames were beyond control. The Canadian Pacific passenger steamer Alberta, upbound, discovered the blazing ship, and went to the rescue, arriving alongside the Servia at 7 o'clock. The Alberta sent her crew aboard and manned her own pumps to assist in fighting the fire. Heroic efforts were made by the combined crews to subdue the flames until 3 o'clock, when the Servia had burned to the water's edge and went to the bottom a few minutes afterward. The crews remained aboard until the last minute. The burned boat was owned by the Hawgood & Avery Company of Cleveland. She was of 1,183 tons, and was built in 1883. The boat and cargo were worth $120,000. Both were insured.

FEMALE WEAKNESS CURED.

Mrs. Saunders Made Well and Strong by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Brantford, April 25—(Special)—The wives and mothers of Ontario are the most ardent disciples of Dodd's way of curing Diseases of Women—i.e. by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This is natural, for no medicine, no earth, no agency known to man has saved women one tithe of the agony that Dodd's Kidney Pills have banished.

Mrs. F. Saunders, of Brantford, tells her suffering sisters what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for her: I have been a martyr to Female Weakness for the past year and suffered terribly. Dodd's Kidney Pills made me strong and well and healthy, though several other remedies I used did me no good whatever."

So the record grows. Cures made every day. Failures—never.

A PHRENOLOGIST'S EXPERIENCE.

Prof. J. W. Crouter Strongly Recommends Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for Severe Palpitation.

Anyone who has ever used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for such diseases as arise from Disordered Nerves, Weak Heart, or Watery Blood, is so thankful for a cure that he desires to let all sufferers know of their sterling merits.

Prof. J. W. Crouter, the well-known Phrenologist, and author of several advanced scientific works, writes from Penetanguishene, as follows:—"Last October I had an attack of palpitation of the heart, which grew so bad that I was induced to take medicine for it. Occasionally I obtained relief, but was not cured, and the beatings of my heart became more and more intermittent and violent, till I feared the valves of my heart would burst. Incidentally I read of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in the Globe, and with a feeling bordering on despair I determined to try them. I went to Mr. Nettleton's drug store and got a box. I took them regularly for about three days, when the beatings of my heart became quite regular. I continued to use them for about three day's more, and by that time my heart was beating naturally and has continued to do so since.

"You are at liberty to publish this letter as it may direct others similarly afflicted to the right remedy."

Yours truly, J. W. CROUTER.

APPALLING DEATH

From Kidney Disease Prevented by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? It means that the kidneys are either rotten, or rotting; the blood is full of poisonous, death-dealing corruption; that the Kidneys can't do their work; that the victim is a walking charnel-house; that his hours are numbered; that the victim MUST take Dodd's Kidney Pills if he does not want to die.

Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

Paris in Peterboro

We can't bring Paris to Peterborough, but we can give our patrons a peep into the Paris Millinery world, and present to their view the latest conceits of the French Capital.

You can look here and see what's over there. As a matter of fact you cannot keep in touch with the dictates of Fashion without knowing what we have to offer.

A MAY-DAY OPENING.

Busy as we are, we set to work a month ago to prepare for a Semi-Opening of Fashionable SUMMER Millinery during the first week of May.

Every Dollar's worth shown will be the very latest in style and colouring.

But every week here has been a series of elaborate "Opening" events. Extensive Novelties have claimed the eager attention of the ladies, day in and day out, and rendered their repeated visits quite as entertaining as the regular Formal Opening events of other stores.

Fast as the loveliest samples are picked new ones replace them to keep the display perfect, steadily beautiful and interesting.

The crowded condition of our workroom is unmistakable evidence of the leadership of this store in Millinery of all kinds, and the service is so successful that the wants of every lady is promptly supplied.

This week, we are making another and attractive display of New Styles in New Hats and Bonnets, New Flowers and Ribbons, New Vellings, Gloves and Neckwear—equal to the best attempt at any second Millinery Opening elsewhere. We welcome you to look or to buy. Were you here recently?

NINTH ANNIVERSARY

Of the Consecration of His Lordship Bishop O'Connor

On the occasion of the ninth anniversary of the consecration of His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, as bishop of the diocese of Peterborough, which will be commemorated on Sunday next, special services will be conducted in the Cathedral.

Pontifical High Mass will be sung at 10.30 a.m., His Lordship being the celebrant.

The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Teefy, President of St. Michael's College, Toronto, who will probably speak in the evening, also.

Special music has been prepared for the occasion. Miss L. Harley will sing "Haec Dies," as a solo; Lambillotte's Magnificat will be given by the full choir, Miss M. Dunn taking the solos; the full choir will give "Regina Coeli." Mr. Geo. Ball will take the solos in "O Salutaris," and "Tantum Ergo" will be given by Mrs. Ball.

EDITION DE LUXE

Of Dr. Drummond's Poems Received by Rev. Father O'Sullivan.

Rev. Frank O'Sullivan, of the Cathedral clergy, was this morning the pleased recipient of an autograph copy of an edition de luxe of "The Habitant," from the author of the poems, Dr. Drummond, in which the printer and bookbinder have evidently striven to make the exterior finish vie with the contents of the doctor's delightful book of poems. The copy is exquisitely illustrated by Frederick Sampson Coburn. Evidently a copy of the EXAMINER containing a report of Rev. Father O'Sullivan's eloquent and appreciative lecture, before the C. L. A. Society, in which so fine a tribute was paid to the poetical genius of Dr. Drummond, reached that gentleman.

A PASTORAL VISIT OF BISHOP O'CONNOR.

TO THE PARISH OF YOUNG'S POINT ON SUNDAY.

Confirmation Service—Prizes Awarded to the Children—His Lordship is Presented With an Address.

Last Sunday was a red letter day for the parishioners of Young's Point, it being the occasion of his Lordship Bishop O'Connor's pastoral visit to the parish. At 8 o'clock his Lordship said low mass and gave Holy Communion to the children, who were prepared for confirmation. After mass he spoke to them of the necessity of receiving worthily and frequently the sacrament of the Blessed Eucharist. Half-past 10 o'clock mass was said by Father Fitzpatrick, after which his Lordship administered Confirmation to thirty-one children, most of whom were from the Point, the others being from Lakefield and Hastings. Again his Lordship spoke on the Sacrament of Confirmation.

At the close his Lordship distributed prizes among the children, who gave evidence of careful study of the Catechism. When all was over Mr. Patrick Young, the venerable and saintly old patriarch of Young's Point, came forward and read the following address to his Lordship:

To the Rt Rev. R. A. O'Connor, D. D., Bishop of Peterborough:

MY LORD.—It is with feelings of the deepest pleasure that we, the parishioners of Young's Point, greet Your Lordship on this your pastoral visit. It is indeed for us a day of much joy and happiness. To see so many of our children enlisted soldiers of Christ, to listen to your kind words of instruction and encouragement, to receive the blessings of a saintly and zealous bishop, are to us so many sources of comfort and consolation. We are conscious, My Lord, of the many important duties, the never-ending round of labours which your exalted and sacred office necessarily imposes upon you, and we are therefore all the more grateful for the special kindness and attention you have always manifested towards us. It seems but yesterday since we were glad to be able to attend the Holy sacrifice of the Mass once a month, but now, thank God, it is our daily privilege, a privilege, which it is needless to say, we most heartily appreciate, and for which we are entirely indebted to Your Lordship's anxious care for the eternal salvation of each and every soul entrusted to your charge. In sickness and sorrow we have a priest at our door to cheer and console us, one who will sympathize with us in our difficulties and intercede for us at the altar of God.

In the appointment of a priest to live and labour among us, you have conferred upon us an honour, which some of us, who remember the past, could scarcely dare to hope for. True, our numbers are small, our means of supporting a priest limited, but we can assure Your Lordship that our modest offering will always be given with a generous heart. We are pleased to tell you that our congregation continues to increase, and we hope, ere long, to be able to enlarge our little church, so as to provide more ample accommodation for our growing numbers.

We trust, too, that in the course of time we shall be able to provide a more suitable home for a resident priest.

Free from debt of any kind, and encouraged by recent circumstances, we will go on in the good work of building up a parish, of which your Lordship may some day feel proud. And that you may be long spared to watch over and direct the affairs of your extensive diocese, that God may continue to shower upon you His choicest graces and blessings and that you may in the future, as in the past, regard us, the least among your flock, with the same kind fatherly love, is the fondest hope of the parishioners of Young's Point.

His Lordship replied at considerable length, praising the members of the parish for their genuine piety and generosity in the past and hoped that in the future they would continue to lead the same good charitable lives.

In the evening his Lordship preached an eloquent and instructive sermon, taking for his text the following words from the 15th chapter of St. John: "I am the vine, ye the branches, he that abideth in Me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit, for without Me you can do nothing."

THE CASE DISMISSED.

It Was Possible But Not Probable That the Window Would be Broken by the Stone.

Before Judge Weller yesterday in the interim sittings of the county court Mr. J. LeFave appeared for trial in connection with the breaking of one of the large plate glass windows in the Cox block on George street.

From the evidence which was adduced, His Honour decided that when the stone was thrown it was possible but not probable that the window would be broken and the case was dismissed.

It will be remembered that the defendant was bitten by a dog some time ago on George street, and afterwards threw a stone at the animal, which, missing the dog, went through the window. On being summoned before Magistrate Dumble, he was committed for trial, but was discharged yesterday.

Mr. R E Wood conducted the prosecution, and Mr. R. M. Dennistoun appeared for the defence.

STILL ADVANCING.

Wheat Still Continues to Rise—The Situation in Europe—English Farmers Holding for a Rise—Quotations.

Wednesday Evening, April 27.

Breadstuffs continue to grow dearer. Yesterday's grain markets were unsteady, with the European prices growing stronger. At Liverpool spot wheat and the May delivery closed 3d higher for the day, though the remoter options fell off 1d. At Paris the final figures were 40 to 55 centimes higher than Tuesday's close, while Antwerp closed at advances of 75 centimes and 1 franc 25 centimes. Favorable crop reports caused traders on this side of the water to be bearish early in the session, but later the strong cables led to a firming up of prices. At Chicago May wheat closed 1¾c lower than yesterday, while the July option closed 1⅝c higher. On the street at Toronto wheat advanced 2½c to 7c to-day, receipts being very light. Corn is a fraction higher on both sides of the water, but provisions are a shade weaker at Chicago.

The Situation in Europe.

A London, Eng., cable says: There is much speculation throughout England and on the Continent as to the effect of war on the prices of wheat and bread. M. Meline, the French Premier, yesterday reported to the Cabinet that there was no need for anxiety. He said that, in addition to the existing stocks, large quantities of grain and flour were en route for France, to say nothing of the abundant harvest in Algeria and Tunis. At those the price of bread shows a further advance, the cheapest quality now selling at 4d.

At the enhanced rates for bread, the situation is becoming more serious. It now affects many of the farmers, who refuse to sell, hoping for better prices. The Leeds Corn Millers' Association has further advanced the price of flour, making a rise of 5s for the week. Other markets show the following increases: Ashford 2s per quarter; Axminster, 8s; Bristol, 2s; Liverpool, 6d to 9d per central, and Dublin, 7s per quarter. The rise at Leeds is from 3s to 6s per quarter.

Mrs. Foley rushed toward her husband weeping bitterly, but this demonstration of affection failed to "melt" William, who left with his son on the Toronto express, and Mrs. Foley returned to the boarding house on Cambridge street.

The Plague of Pimples.

Once pimples start how hard to get rid of them. Here and there they crop up causing discomfort and annoyance. The foul blood keeps supplying the material for their development.

A course of the blood purifying, blood enriching Burdock Blood Bitters is all that is needed to make Pimples, Rashes, Eruptions, Eczema, Shingles and all kinds of skin diseases disappear.

Mr. D. C. McRae, Kearney, Ont., writes as follows:—

"I have used B.B.B. for pimples on the face caused by bad blood. Before I had finished the third bottle the pimples disappeared entirely, and my general health was much improved. B.B.B. is certainly a great blood purifier."

PROVING METTLE.

Robert Wilson, the young owner of the Sycamore ranch, had passed a busy day in preparation for the spring rodeo, which would begin the following morning. Frank Howard, accompanied by one of his men, appeared, and the men set out for the rodeo ground, which was located five miles from the ranchhouse and about the center of the range. Howard had worked in the country for several years as farmhand, but recently he had accepted the position of superintendents of cattle, or "mayor domo," as the Mexicans call the important personage, and the lordly vaqueros were inclined to resent the idea of a farmhand as "cattle boss" and intimated that he knew more about plows than he did about cattle.

As Howard rode up to the camp, where about a dozen men had assembled, he was the object of many curious glances, but the vaqueros were forced to admit that he did not look much like a greenhorn. He wore the usual free and easy cowboy garb, and the men who expected to see him wearing a straw hat and a "jumper" were not a little disappointed at his appearance. He greeted them with easy cordiality and proceeded to make himself at home in true cowboy fashion.

"Remember how you lost the branding iron, Bill?" said one of the men, with a chuckle at the recollection.

"Guess I do," replied Bill mournfully; "went back five miles over the roughest sort of country looking for the blamed thing and then found it rolled up in my coat behind the saddle."

"Do you carry an iron when you are out on the range?" asked Howard, with some surprise.

"Bob does," replied Bill promptly, "and whenever he sees a likely orejano he claps the iron on it. He's got so expert that he can brand a yearling on the run."

"But how does he keep the iron hot?" said Howard incredulously.

He was interrupted by a burst of laughter from the men.

"You're altogether too easily fooled," said Robert, endeavoring to suppress a smile. "Bill has been giving you a fill. You mustn't believe anything that fellow says."

After swallowing a hasty breakfast of bread and coffee before daybreak the men brought the horses, which had been grazing in a field near by, and Robert at once saddled his own and rode to the rodeo corral to ascertain if it was in condition to receive the cattle. Jack Williams showed Howard the horse which had been assigned to him and then turned to throw the saddle on his own horse.

"Look out for him; he's dangerous," he remarked as Howard's mount drew back with a snort at his too sudden approach.

"Why, what does he do?" asked Howard.

"Bucks like the devil; nearly killed a man last week," answered Jack laconically.

"He doesn't look like a bronco," said Howard, surveying the horse with some disfavor.

"No; he's a meek looking cuss, but these old plugs are the worst. They buck for pure meanness. You'd better blind him, or he'll never let you get into the saddle. You can have my blinder. I won't need it today," said Jack, with such friendly concern that Howard could not suspect him of guile and accepted the proffered bandage.

The men nudged each other and exchanged expressive winks as Howard drew the blind carefully over Borego's eyes, mounted in haste, settled himself firmly in the saddle, then cautiously raised the blind. Borego stared about him for an instant and when touched with the spurs walked quietly away.

"He won't buck this time, but you can't trust him," observed Jack gravely.

By this time all the men were in their saddles, and the party turned toward the scene of the day's search. They were soon joined by Robert, who reined up beside Howard and at once observed Borego's unusual headgear.

"Why did you put a blinder on that horse?" he asked, suspecting that some one had perpetrated a joke in his absence.

"Why, Jack said he's a bucker," began Howard, but stopped when he saw that Robert was smiling and the other men were chuckling silently.

"Didn't I tell you not to believe these fellows? Borego hasn't bucked in ten years, and I believe he's forgotten how. You ought to have known that I wouldn't put you on a broncho," said Robert, trying to speak gravely, but much amused at the sight of the blind on Borego's placid brow.

"Sold again!" said Howard resignedly. "I wouldn't have believed Bill Lane, but Jack looked so innocent that I couldn't doubt his word. Never mind, boys, I'll get even with you yet."

When they came to where the creek branched, Robert sent the men in twos and threes to search the country thoroughly, and all the cattle they found were driven to the rodeo ground. By 10 o'clock all the detachments had arrived, and, leaving a few men to guard the cattle, the hungry vaqueros proceeded to satisfy their ravenous appetites with the products of Ramon's skill.

A brief rest followed, and then came the work of separating the cows and the calves, parting the strays and marking and branding the calves. This being accomplished, Robert and his men slept soundly after the day's exertion, but the first faint gleams of dawn found them again in saddle and riding with renewed energy into the hills.

"We have some lively work before us today," remarked Robert to Howard as they approached the point of separation. "Somewhere around the headwaters of this creek is a bunch of cattle that we haven't been able to get out for two years. They are as wild as deer and take to the brush whenever a man appears. We must get them today if it can be done. Bill, you come with us, and I think the four of us can do the business."

With his three aids, Robert proceeded to the place where he expected to find the wild cattle. "Now, Bill," he said, "you and Howard go a little way up on the hill, so as to be out of sight. Jack and I will get above the cattle and start them down the canyon. When they come along, you fellows take in after them and run them like blazes and be very careful they don't turn up any of these side canyons or we'll never see them again."

Bill and Howard stationed themselves behind a clump of bushes and watched and waited, with ears straining to catch every sound. Suddenly a shout from the opposite side of the canyon turned their eyes in that direction. A bunch of cattle in mad flight were crossing the canyon and heading for a narrow ravine which opened below and to the left of where the men stood. Robert was dashing down the hill behind them, yelling: "Stop 'em, boys! Head 'em off!"

"No use; it can't be done," said Bill, seeing at a glance that the cattle would be in the ravine long before he could reach it. Hold on! You can't go that way," as his companion turned and galloped up the hill. Howard made no reply, but disappeared over the crest of the hill, which Bill knew descended almost perpendicularly to the ravine. Bill spurred his horse to the top and stood in petrified amazement watching Howard's flying figure. "He'll break his neck, sure as shooting, but I guess he's nobody's coward," was his inward comment. However, Howard made the descent in safety, turned the cattle and drove them at a breakneck pace down the canyon, closely followed by the other men.

"Howard, you're a brick," said Robert as soon as conversation was possible. "You turned those cattle just in the nick of time. But you're the most reckless fellow I ever saw. I wouldn't ride down that hill as you did for all the cattle on this ranch."

"Why, you said to stop them, and that was the only way to do it," said Howard, evidently surprised to find that he had created a sensation. He would have been more surprised had he known how much he had risen in Bill's estimation. That worthy had found a man more daring than himself, and his respect for him was boundless. "Boys, you ought to have seen him!" he said afterward to an interested circle to whom he was relating the adventure. "Maybe he doesn't know much about the cattle business, but a fellow with that much grit is bound to learn."

On the third day of the rodeo Robert took with him, as usual, Howard and the faithful Jack, while the other men scattered in various directions. Howard and Jack were searching one side of a canyon when they heard Robert shouting to them from a hill on the other side. They rode over at once and found him sitting on his horse and watching a patch of brush from which mysterious crackling sounds issued. "That old long horned Arizona cow is in there," he said to Jack. "I tried to drive her, but she made a run at me and then went into the bush, and I can't get her out. Tie your horse and see if you can't make her move. She's fighting mad, though, so look out for yourself."

Jack crawled warily into the thicket, while Robert and Howard stood by, riatas in hand. A shout from Jack warned them: "Look out! She's coming, and she's mad as fury. I can see her eyes blaze."

The brush snapped and parted, and out plunged the cow, took one glance at the situation and plunged straight for Robert, who was the nearest. The attack was so sudden that before he could throw the riata or move the cow struck his horse and, with a vicious twist of her horns, tore a gaping wound in the poor brute's side. The shock sent horse and rider over in a heap, and the cow faced about ready for new foes. Robert was up in an instant, with the elasticity of a man used to hard falls, and ran for the nearest tree. The cow heard him, wheeled like a flash and charged after him with a snort of rage. She was almost on him when Howard's riata settled around her horns and stopped her with a jerk that threw her to the ground, while Robert made quick time to a point of safety.

In a moment the cow was again on her feet, bellowing and pawing the ground. Then, with lowered horns, she dashed furiously at Howard, whose keen eyes were watching her every movement and who still had one end of the riata twisted around the horn of his saddle. He spurred his horse in the opposite direction, a maneuver which stood the astonished cow on her head at the imminent risk of fracturing her neck. Before she could rise Jack was sitting on her head, and, with riatas, they bound her legs till she was helpless.

"You're a trump, Howard!" said Robert warmly as soon as the excitement was over. "I'd have been badly hurt only for you. I thought I was done for when I heard that old cow snort behind me, but I believe I'd just as soon be killed outright as scared to death."

"Well, I'm glad that you're only scared," replied Howard. "It was a pretty close call, though, and it's lucky I didn't miss."

This incident settled Howard's standing as a vaquero. The man who rode with brilliant daring and threw his riata with unerring aim in the face of danger was worthy to take his place among the shining lights of the land.—Celia Lynn in Argonaut.

"Beauty and Power."

The secret of a woman's power is in her complete womanliness, both physical and mental. This does not mean perfection of outline nor regularity of features. It does not mean wit, nor talents nor accomplishments. It means that physical attractiveness that comes from perfect bodily condition and the bright, happy cheerfulness of disposition which only complete health can insure.

A woman with a bright eye, clear complexion, mantling color in the cheeks and buoyant elastic step and manner has a natural attractiveness that no artificial agency can counterfeit.

A woman who is afflicted with the mortifying misfortune of a dull, sallow, pimply complexion or that listless movement and attitude which provokes only disgust and revulsion in the opposite sex, ought to avail herself of the purifying, invigorating power of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which makes a strong, healthy stomach and digestive organism; purifies the blood and imparts a natural stimulus to the excretory functions; insures healthy weight, clear skin, bright eyes and the animated manner and bearing of perfect health.

A lady living in West Virginia, Miss Anna Callow, of Kyger, Roane Co., writes: "It is with pleasure I write you after using a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I think them valuable medicines for female troubles and weaknesses. I could hardly go about my work I had such inward weakness and constant misery in the womb. It worried me so that I would give out in walking a short distance. I had a bad cough and my lungs hurt me all the time. I got very thin, my complexion was bad, and my eyes would get so heavy in the evening they seemed stiff in the lids. I could hardly move them. Many persons were alarmed about me, I looked so bad and had such a cough; they were afraid I would go into consumption. I felt so badly every day that I had no life about me. I used only five bottles in all. I shall ever speak in praise of your grand medicines. They are blessings to suffering females."

Another good thing to have in the house is a vial of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They cure biliousness and constipation and never gripe.

A FREE SLAVE.

She said to him, her lover:
"I would not hold you—no!
If once the dream seemed over,
If once you wished to go,
You're free at any season,
At any moment—free!"
"But that is just the reason
You hold me fast!" said he.

TRIALS OF A PUBLIC MAN.

It Takes Time to Get Used to the Ways of Newspaper Correspondents.

A new member of the senate was complaining to an old member of some of the difficulties he was encountering. "For one thing," he said, "these newspaper fellows don't always get things straight. I don't mean to accuse them of carelessness or of intentional misrepresentation, but now and then some remarkable stories are printed about me at home."

"You'll get used to that," replied the veteran. "That won't hurt. That's part of your apprenticeship. I've been all along there. Let me tell you of a little experience of mine. Soon after I first came here I picked up a paper from my state and saw it asserted in a letter from Washington that my colleague and myself had met and arranged a slate, and that all the patronage for the state would be distributed according to that arrangement.

"There was no warrant for the statement, and I made inquiries for the correspondent. He came to see me and proved to be a bright and most agreeable young man. I asked him for his authority, and he pleasantly refused to give it, but said that he had every faith in his informant. To that I replied that all I would ask, then, would be the privilege of denying the story—of putting my statement against the other. He said that was only fair and that he would attend to the matter.

"When the correction appeared, it read something like this: 'Your correspondent's story about the deal between Senator —— and his colleague, by which the patronage of the state is to be divided between them, has raised quite a stir here. There is no question as to its absolute truth. But Senator ——, who evidently has been rattled by the publication, now solemnly assures your correspondent that he had nothing whatever to do with the deal.' After that I went slow on corrections."—Bangor Whig and Courier.

Snobbishness.

A lady living in an unfashionable street invited a gentleman of leisurely life to her home, because in her simplicity she thought he seemed lonely. He came, and at the close of the evening remarked to her, "I had no idea I should meet so many distinguished people at your house," his voice unconsciously emphasizing the pronoun. In a little book, "About People," Mrs. Kate Gannett Wells gives the following instance of a lack of good manners:

Snobbishness is not confined to one set of people. Emphasized by fashion or literary pretensions, it spreads from village to city. It exists in sardine factories and in palatial mansions; it is met with at picnics and dances as well as at dinner or conversation parties. The links are close.

One of Boston's oldest families gave a reception. Two scions of other old families attended, to whom the host said, "I'll introduce you to those ladies opposite," and he moved toward them.

"Excuse us," said one of the men; "the ladies are of a peasant style of beauty; it is hardly worth while."

The host bowed low in recognition of their farseeing power, adding, "Yes, they are my nieces from the country, but I will not trouble you."

No apology would be receive, though one was eagerly offered.

CANADA LIFE
Assurance Company.

ANOTHER PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Large Increase in Surplus.

The fifty-first annual report of the Canada Life shows this old established Company to be in a most flourishing condition. The annual meeting was held yesterday. Following is a synopsis of the report:—

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

In presenting to the Shareholders their 51st Annual Report, the Directors are gratified in announcing that the Company has fairly shared in the somewhat improved condition of the business of the country, as will be seen by the Statements and Accounts now submitted. By these it will be observed that the Company has transacted a larger business than during the previous year, and has increased its clear surplus by no less than $497,093 05.

NEW BUSINESS

The applications for new assurances during 1897 numbered 3 066, for the sum of $6,185,996, of which, however, 295 for $631,000 were declined, the lives not appearing up to that standard which it is in the interest of the company's other assurers should be maintained, and as 191 applications for $373,360 were not carried out, the issue of the year was for $5 291,636, under 2 689 policies, exceeding 1886 by 573 policies for $796,980.

The total business in force at the close of 1897 was $72,719,555 29 of Assurances, under 33,407 policies, upon 24,469 lives.

POLICY CLAIMS.

The claims by deaths paid during 1897 amounted to $770,168 45, and Endowment policies for $128,840 92, having matured, these sums, as well as $218,481 29 for profits, $145 411.18 for surrenders, and an annuity of $400, making in all $1,263,307 84, were paid to policyholders during the year.

INCREASE IN ASSETS.

The Income receipts of the year were $2,953,272.83, and deducting therefrom all payments to policy-holders for claims by death, for profits, and for matured Endowment policies, as well as other outlay, including expenses of management, there was left the sum of $1 272,486 05, which increased the Company's Assets to $18 678 915 67.

SURPLUS.

As appears by the Abstract of Assets and Liabilities, after providing fully for the necessary reserve for all policies of the Company, and for all its other Liabilities, there is shown a Surplus of $1,564,082 05.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, Mr. A. G. Ramsay, in moving the adoption of the report, said:

The Directors' Report and the usual accounts and statements have for some days been in your hands, and have now been taken as read. While the report is brief, it contains, I think, along with the various published accounts, all that is required to enable those interested in the Company to judge of its progress and success in the past year. The addition during 1897 of nearly half a million dollars to the surplus or profits fund is a large and satisfactory one, and without invidiously comparing it with the figures of any other particular Company, I may say that it is more than was attained by all the other Canadian companies combined. The new business of the year was, you will observe, of satisfactory and gratifying amount, and in excess of the previous year, and you will be pleased to know that it is of that desirable class which will result more to the profit of the Company than would a larger amount obtained at heavier expense, or from less desirable regions than the healthful climate of Canada, and the four Northern States to which we have thus far deemed it judicious to confine the operations of the Company. The existing assurances are $72,719,555 or nearly twice as much as they were 12 years ago. The death claims of the year continued of very favourable amount, and being well within what was calculated upon, that fact testifies to the care observed in the selection of the lives, and to the judicious limitation of the business to the healthful climates already alluded to.

The recent lamentable failures of some of the companies doing business on the assessment system, and the anxiety felt as to the others which are based upon the same fallacious principles lead me to point out that these occurrences are only the inevitable results, which were from the first predicted by those whose knowledge and experience enabled them to judge of what the future of companies of the kind must be. At our meeting in 1887, when concerns of the kind were making strenuous efforts to establish themselves in Canada, I alluded to the miserable failures they had been in England and in America, and I said that their "ephemeral existence indicates how useless the assessment system of assurance is as a family provision. It can only offer the uncertain hope of a cheap assurance for a few years, till the company breaks down. It cannot afford any guarantee that a definite amount of assurance will certainly be paid to a widow or children after an assurer's death, whether that occurs at an early day or a distant one, and without such a guarantee as that, which our own and other sound companies offer, life assurance must be a fraud and a delusion." I added that "I was aware that agents and managers of companies of the kind pointed to the names of prominent business and professional men who have joined them, or who act as their directors, but as some of them at all events allow their names to be employed in that way, simply because policies have been gratuitously given to them, one can judge how little weight should attach to the names of the gentlemen thus used to decoy others to join such companies." One cannot envy the feelings of the prominent gentlemen alluded to, who induced persons to take policies in companies of the kind, from which they are now driven out by their failure, or by the levy of such high payments as they are unable to meet.

As the accounts show, the year's income was within a trifle of three million dollars, and the assets of the company were increased to the very considerable amount of nearly nineteen million dollars, and yielding, after deducting liabilities of every kind, a net surplus or profit of $1,564,082 for allocation at the end of next year, along with whatever addition there may be made to it between now and that time, and as the management and other expenses by which the profits to policy-holders are very largely influenced continue to be on a more moderate percentage than that of other Canadian or American companies, the prospects for our assurers are of a favourable character.

It is anticipated that legislation will be introduced by the Government, modifying the present 4½ per cent. rate of interest prescribed by law as the basis for Life Assurance Reserves, and adopting the new mortality Tables based upon the observations and large experience of the British Insurance Companies, in course of compilation by the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, and I may say on behalf of the Board in reference to the amendment to the charter, alluded to in the Directors report of last year, that the Directors purpose to avail themselves of the occasion of that legislation to seek such amendments to the law as may meet the Board's requirements.

The motion was seconded by Mr. F. W. Gates, Vice-President, and unanimously carried. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the agents, officers, medical and legal advisers of the company, Mr. Adam Brown speaking in eloquent terms of their services rendered to the Company.

Mr. Leggat moved and Lieut.-Col. McLaren seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Company during the past year. Brief and interesting addresses were also made by Sir George Kirkpatrick and Sir George Burton, the latter of whom was heartily congratulated upon the recent honour conferred upon him by the Queen.

The retiring Directors, Chief Justice Sir George Burton, Col. Sir Casimer Gzowski, K.C.M.G., and Mr. N. Murrist, were re-elected. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. A. G. Ramsay was re-elected President and Mr. F. W. Gates Vice-President.

The meeting passed off very harmoniously, every one present being gratified with the progress and continued prosperity of the Canada Life, which, as Sir George Kirkpatrick remarked, was easily leader of all Companies in the Dominion.

THE SONG LECTURE.

It Proved a Great Success in the Charlotte Street Church Last Evening.

The Social and Song Lecture in the Charlotte street Methodist church last evening was attended by a fair-sized audience.

The chair was occupied by Rev. J. E. Moore of Ashburnham, who introduced the speaker of the evening with a few complimentary words, representing him as the sweet singer and finance minister of Methodism.

Mr. Crossley on rising, said it had been his desire from early childhood to cross the ocean and visit the Old Land, so in company with Crossley and Hunter, the evangelists, J. W. Crossley, Rev. R. M. Pope, and Hon. E. J. Davis, he set sail from New York in steamship State of California for the Old World.

The first two days of the voyage was calm and delightful, but on the morning of the third day on waking, they realised a peculiar sensation, and on rising found that a considerable storm was raging, sending waves over the deck of the vessel. At this point in the lecture Mr. Crossley sang "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep."

The vessel reached Glasgow on Sunday morning. Church service was attended at 11 a.m., and in the afternoon at 2 o'clock the free dinner given to poor children was visited. Thirteen hundred children were present on this occasion, when, after singing, prayer and a short address, the whole company of little ones were fed with buns and a mug of boiled rice and milk. This work was carried on from year to year by the late Mr. Miller, first at his own expense, but later by to free gifts of the public. The children were called "gutter snipes," because they got their living mostly from the gutters during the week.

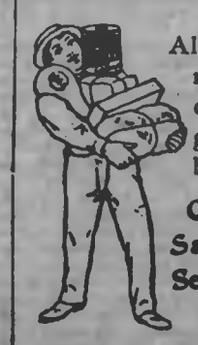
After speaking of Glasgow as a city, the speaker described a trip through the Trossochs, or highlands of Scotland, a part of the country so rough and hilly that a railroad could not be built, but so attractive that nearly all tourists make a point to take it in.

Edinburgh city, with its castles, palaces, monuments, parks and ocean beach were visited and described by the speaker. A railroad train, called the "Flying Scotchman," running four hundred miles in eight hours, conveyed them to London, where nine days were spent in seeing a part of the sights of that wonderful city. Among the places visited and described by the speaker were:—Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Church, City Temple, City Road Church, Wesley's house, Zoological Gardens, British Museum, Madam Tussand's wax figures, Tower of London, etc. A visit also was made to Windsor Castle, where the Queen was seen as she went for her afternoon drive. The streets of London, the habits and customs of the people were described by the lecturer. Next came a visit to Ireland—Dublin, Belfast and Londonderry were each spoken of and interesting descriptions given. As souveniers of that country, Mr. Crossley showed the audience a stone from the walls of Derry, a piece of turf and a black-thorn cane.

From Londonderry the party took tender and boarded the steamship Parisian at Moville for home.

During the evening Mr. Crossley sang four times, closing with "Home Sweet Home."

The lecture throughout was very entertaining, and many complimentary things were said to Mr. Crossley at the close. Refreshments were afterwards served by the Ladies' Aid in the Sunday school rooms.



Almost with reverence does the grocer's boy regard Chase & Sanborn's Seal Brand Coffee.

Often has he been admonished to bring only Chase & Sanborn's Seal Brand, he now realizes that it stands in a class by itself.

The best people to whose houses he is sent demand this brand.

No matter what he may forget, no matter what he may bring wrong, he never makes a mistake in bringing another kind of coffee when Seal Brand is ordered.

All grocers sell it, in pound and two-pound tin cans.

A Practical Talk on how to Become a Camera Fiend.

A very successful meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Camera Club was held last night, when Mr. Geo. Whiten gave a practical talk on "How to Begin."

It is needless to say the many valuable hints were greatly appreciated by all present. The young men seem to evince great interest in the club. The membership fee is put at a very low figure, so as to debar no one. It is the intention to hold an exhibition of work done by members at the close of the season.

So full of interest was Mr. Whiten's talk that many young men asked numerous questions, which were cheerfully answered.

The dark-room is nearing completion. It is the intention of the club to fit up a room second to none in the town.

"THE HOLY CITY."

It will be Presented in the Opera House on May 5th.

Great interest is being aroused in the preparation for the presentation of Gaul's cantata "The Holy City," on May 5th, in the Opera House, by local talent under the supervision of Mr. P. W. Owens, organist of St. John's church.

The first part of "The Holy City" was suggested by the passages of Scripture, "Here have we no continuing city," "Thy Kingdom Come," and sets forth the desire for a higher life, as expressed in the words "My soul is athirst for God," which desire is followed by other passages expressive of the perfection of the higher life such as "Eye hath not seen." The second part was suggested by the words, "I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away," thus realising the desire contained in the first part.

Solos, duets, trios and quartettes are provided for, and the best local talent is giving assistance. The solos, "A New Heaven and a New Earth," and "To the Lord our God," by Rev. E. V. Stevenson and Mr. J. Brown, respectively, are spoken of as being specially meritorious.

New eavestroughing is being placed in position, and altogether the station will look quite rejuvenated when Foreman Turnbull and his men get through with their work.

WRESTLING.

A big crowd gathered in the rooms over the Palace Restaurant last evening to witness Wrestler Doyle "try out" a couple of local men. He first took Gauthier in hand and after securing two falls against him, took on Curtis. The latter is as nimble as a cat, but Doyle knew too much about the game for him and gave him four neat falls afterwards giving an exhibition of intricate head wrestling, showing great strength in the muscles of his neck. His skipping the rope was also quite interesting to watch. Doyle's match with Harrison takes place in the Opera House on May 4th.

Have Outstripped All Previous Records.

We started in with the intention of making the spring season of 1898 one memorable in the Hat Department of our Big Store, and we have succeeded far beyond our expectations. For Elegance, Variety and Style our stock this year is beyond worded description, unapproachable by local competition and unexcellend by the other big stores in the larger cities; and LOW PRICES are the two words which stand out most prominently on the banner waving over this magnificent stock. Our combination of stores, with their capital combined, together with our Cash System, enables us to buy the best and most stylish shapes from the leading manufacturers, and sell them for less than others charge for what we call our inferior goods. Buy where you like and we can duplicate your purchase or give you a better quality of Hat, and you will have enough from the difference in the prices to purchase something else of half the value. An investigation of this years handsome stock will convince you that these are unvarnished facts. Come in and see us, i is worth your while to view the stock.

APRIL'S BUSINESS WAS GREAT!

It has passed into history as a record breaker.

It wasn't necessary either to shout "Crowds! Crowds!" as some do, when the crowds, so far as they are concerned, are in the street.

We've simply never had a better April in business. It serves to show how firmly imbedded in the hearts of the people the Golden Lion is, and strengthens the conviction that no other house is in a position to underbuy or undersell this one.

Larger than ever before and fuller is this old store, and it would be hard to find any article that is NOT LOWER IN PRICE than it used to be.

The expectation of our customers to find the LOWEST PRICES here must not be disappointed. Whether we lose or make, every change in values will be registered on the goods here.

"IT'S FAIR'S WAY."

"Umbrellas Re-Covered While You Wait."

EXTRA—The Carpet story, as told by the Golden Lion, is more interesting to women just now than the "war news."

The Sensational Sale

... OF THE ...

W. W. JOHNSTON STOCK

In the Crystal Block

Has created an epedemic of enthusiasm. Never saw anything like it! It's the talk of the town—indicates the approval of satisfied shoppers at this phenomenal sale. Of course it must go on now LIVELIER THAN EVER.

The store is all alive with quick movement, taxing the capacity of our large staff of salesmen to keep up with their work.

Why?

Because the goods we want to sell are the goods you want to buy. Just when you need these goods most we sell them cheapest. And the entire stock is offered at prices that cannot, under any circumstances, be equalled elsewhere.

HALF PRICE IS A BIG WORD

But we do as we advertise—we tell the plain truth and furnish the proof.

It's a Sale for the masses—regardless of cost or value.

We want to make the Second Week of this sale Eclipse the First.

Lucky that Mr. Fair got this stock, and that he wasn't a monopolist, or you could never get such snaps at this sale of the W. W. JOHNSTON stock' Crystal Block.

We'd Rather Miss Sales Than Miss Fits

Built - - TO - - Order

That's the way you want your Clothes made. No two are built alike, hence the impossibility of any man being fitted properly except with a Suit made to order.

Who wants to wear cloths that would fit somebody else better? Who wants to wear a suit that looks as though he swapped it with somebody else, when we can fit him to a nicety at $13, $14, $15.

We are anxious to show you that we can give you as good a fit, finish and workmanship as you can get in any exclusive merchant tailor's—don't care where he lives.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my thanks for your cheque just handed to me, for $3,991.26, in settlement of my $2,500 Fifteen Year Endowment Policy in your Company. Such a result as this, after the risk on my life has been carried for fifteen years, beginning from forty-five years of age, argues one thing strongly, namely, that the management of the North American Life must be in competent hands. The other options you have offered me, viz.: a Paid-up Life policy for $3510.00, or a Life Annuity for $401.20, are, I presume, equally liberal, and it affords me much pleasure to recommend your Company to my friends or any one desiring insurance.

HAS SAILED FOR CUBA

The Spanish Fleet Has Now Left Cape de Verde.

BATTLE NEWS EXPECTED SOON.

American Squadron Is Awaited at Manila by the Spanish Fleet They Are Bound to Fight When They Meet—Another "Official" Account of the Matanzas Bombardment.

London, April 30.—The Evening News yesterday published a despatch from St. Vincent, Cape Verde Islands, saying the Spanish cruisers Maria Teresa, Almirante Oquendo, Vizcaya and Cristobal Colon, accompanied by the Spanish torpedo boat destroyers Pluton, Terror and Furor, had sailed at 9 o'clock in a westerly direction, presumably going towards Cuba.

The despatch adds that the Spanish torpedo boats Azor, Ruyo and Arlete and the Spanish transports San Francisco and Ciudad de Cadiz sailed at the same time in a northerly direction, probably going to the Canary Islands. The News says: "The import of the cablegram is that the whole effective fighting force of the squadron has been despatched west, while the non-effectives and the non-combatants are proceeding to another anchorage.

"Well-informed naval authorities are aware that the torpedo boats could not traverse the Atlantic at the present time, as they have not sufficient coal capacity for a voyage to Cuba and the risk of coaling in mid-ocean is too great.

"This long-delayed move is most significant. Its significance is in the fact, which can hardly be over-emphasized, that it is practically Spain's first real move since the outbreak of hostilities."

Spanish Fleet Left Cape Verde.

St. Vincent, Cape Verde Islands, April 30.—The Spanish squadron sailed in a southwardly direction at 8.30 o'clock yesterday (Friday) morning. Destination unknown. Orders to be given at sea.

ANOTHER "OFFICIAL" ACCOUNT.

According to This Spanish Story the Only Matanzas Victim Was a Mule—An American Hit.

Madrid, April 30.—The Minister of War, General Correa, in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, replying to inquiries for particulars in regard to the bombardment of the forts at Matanzas, said the Government had decided to publish "All the news received, good or bad." General Correa told the Deputies that the United States squadron fired sixty projectiles, and that the only victim was a mule, a remark which aroused laughter among the Spaniards. The General next informed the House that the American warships were injured by the fire of the Spanish batteries, and continuing, he asserted that the insurgents were acting in conjunction with the United States forces, as they advanced in the direction of Matanzas while the bombardment was proceeding. "But," added the Minister of War, "they were completely routed.

In conclusion, General Correa remarked: "It was a glorious day for the Spanish arms."

The Marquis Lama asked if telegraphic communication with the Antilles had been assured. He recalled the Convention of Paris, and said he hoped communication via Halifax, the Bermudas and Jamaica would not be interrupted.

In a later despatch regarding the bombardment of the forts at Matanzas Capt.-General Blanco says: "One funnel was certainly hit. During the bombardment Col. Alfabs, with a column of troops, attacked a rebel band, under Betancourt, at Mogote, south of Matanzas, capturing their positions and killing twenty men, including two chiefs. A quantity of arms, horses, stores and the insurgent camps were captured. Five mounted rebels and a chief, Ajona, surrendered."

A Carlist Deputy asked for the publication of all the correspondence with the United States since the Cuban war.

In the Spanish Senate Senator Lastres of Porto Rico forcibly protested against "Yankee encroachment in the Antilles." During the course of his remarks he said that among the population of Porto Rico an immense majority of natives desired to remain Spanish.

CANNON SOON TO ROAR.

The Spanish Fleet Awaiting for the Arrival of the American Squadron at Manila.

Madrid, April 30.—Despatches received here yesterday from Manila, capital of the Philippine Islands, say the United States fleet is expected to arrive at Manila on Sunday. The Spanish fleet has been divided into two squadrons. Two cruisers, the Castilla and other vessels, remain near the front of Manila; the remaining Spanish warships, under Admiral Montejo, are patrolling the western coasts awaiting the arrival of the American warships.

The Spanish fleet, it appears, have been reinforced by a large auxiliary cruiser, said to be capable of steaming 20 knots, and armed as a warship. She is known as the Montevideo, but an examination of the maritime registers fails to establish her identity. It is claimed, however, that she is a very large vessel.

Germany's Attitude.

Madrid, April 30.—A great impression has been produced here by a rumor that the German Government has issued a note declaring that it will not oppose the landing of troops in the Philippines, but will not permit a bombardment, owing to the important German mercantile interests in all the towns of the island. Germany's omission to declare neutrality is held to give color to this rumor.

The Belligerent Canaries.

London, April 30.—Letters dated April 19 from Teneriffe, Canary Islands, say that placards, signed by the mayor, have been posted on the walls of Santa Cruse, calling upon the Spaniards in defense of their country, saying they defeated the great Nelson and others and setting forth that to-day they will vanquish the Americans.

Santa Cruse, the letters also say, is full of troops. The bull ring has been converted into a barracks and about 1,500 troops with artillery have been sent to Fort Aratavo, at Santa Cruse. It is said the fortifications are provided with very fine guns, including some Kruppe and four 25-ton Spanish guns.

A battery of five-ton guns is to be placed on Anaga Point and a number of mule mountain batteries have been organized and are prepared to move to any part of the island.

A special despatch from Madrid, received here last evening, says the Spanish Government is upon the point of expelling all citizens of the United States from Spain.

PORTUGAL'S DECREE.

Official Declaration of Neutrality in the War Between Spain and the U. S.

Lisbon, April 30.—The Official Gazette yesterday published the neutrality decree of Portugal in the war between Spain and the United States. It is similar to decrees issued at the time of the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war, and contains six articles:

1. Forbids the equipment of privateers in Portuguese waters.
2. Forbids the entry of privateers in Portuguese waters.
3. Permits belligerents to make a short stay at Portuguese ports.
4. Defines legitimate trade, as regards belligerents, and forbids trading in goods which may be considered contraband of war.
5. Warns Portuguese and foreigners in Portugal against actions contrary to the security of the State.
6. Refuses protection to any infringers of the decree.

SPANISH WAR NOTES.

The captain of the Spanish mail ship Compania believes he can run the blockade at Havana.

The Spanish Government will not allow the transmission of either score or cipher telegraphic messages to or from the Philippines.

There is great activity about the Government arsenals in France, and large orders for munitions of war and stores of provisions are being filled.

The Imparcial, the Spanish Times, estimates the United States navy to consist of "five ironclads, two belted cruisers, three unbelted, the fastest and most powerful cruisers; all the rest are theatrical supers."

Two hundred and eighteen boxes of powder and 20,000 caps that were being transported by pack train to the mines in Mexico exploded en route, killing 15 men and 60 mules.

A BIG SEIZURE.

Customs Officers Find 192 Cases of the Yukon Variety in the Hold of a Ship at Victoria, B.C.

Victoria, B.C., April 30. — Custom officers here have seized 192 cases of whisky, which were in process of being landed at the wharf from the steamer Centennial, but were not on the manifest. The officers of the ship disclaim any knowledge that it was on board, and a peculiar story is told concerning the whisky. This is that, by private arrangement with members of the crew, it was smuggled into the hold of the Centennial from a small craft while she lay at the wharf there, prior to her last trip to Alaska, the intention being to smuggle it into that territory at Wrangel. At that point, however, the customs officers were found for once on the alert to prevent the landing of whisky, and the stuff was taken on to Skaguay, with no better results, for Collector Ivery himself was found there zealous in the cause of prohibition. The whisky therefore had to be brought back to Victoria.

Protection From Spaniards.

The U.S.S. Monadnock has arrived at Port Angeles and will remain there on guard at the entrance to Puget Sound against the possible depredations by Spanish craft

CIVIC COMMITTEES.

The Street and Bridge Committee Gets After Various Corporations With a Sharp Stick.

The Mayor presided over the meeting of the Finance Committee last evening.

The matter of the $20,000 worth of the debenture debt of $59,000, which required to be re-issued was explained by Mr. Hig. Pearse, secretary-treasurer Town Trust Commissioners. The Commissioners will take up $30,000 worth of the debentures.

On motion of Councillors McWilliams and J. M. White, the offer was accepted of Messrs. Hall and McGill to purchase $10,000 of the re-issued debentures for the Mechanics' Institute, and $19,000 for the Nicholls Estate at 4 per cent. at par.

An order was passed for the payment of the expenses of the committee which went to Belleville re permanent pavements, amounting to $31.75.

The application of the Fire Brigade Band for the annual grant was allowed to stand.

John Tangney's application for rebate in license was not allowed.

A number of accounts were passed.

STREET AND BRIDGE COMMITTEE.

A motion was passed by the Street and Bridge Committee notifying the Grand Trunk Railway to construct a culvert at Bonaccord street.

Contractors Kennedy & Wade will be instructed to put in a waste pipe from the McDonel street fountain to the sewer.

Tenders for the building of a sidewalk from the Auburn bridge to Water street were received as follows:

Vissette & Craig	$300 00
H Evans	290 00
Thos Lee	297 00
Jnos Evans	295 00
Thos Chapman	315 00
C a Launderville	65c per foot (550 ft)
Finnie & Gordon	245 00
A T Dugan	275 00
John Morrison	297 00

On motion of Councillors McWilliams and Best, the council will be recommended to accept the lowest tender, that of Finnie & Gordon at $245.

The following motion, which was introduced by Councillors Langford and McWilliams and was carried, speaks for itself:

"That George McLennan and his bondsmen be notified that as he has not performed his contract to the satisfaction of the Street and Bridge Committee, the council intends either to call on the bondsmen to put on someone who will do the work properly or to cancel the contract, and that a bylaw be prepared to authorize a contract with Z. Blodgett at the amount of his tender, less proportionate reduction for one month passed."

On motion of Councillors McWilliams and W. H. White, the following resolution was passed:

"That the Peterborough and Ashburnham Street Railway Co. be notified to put the street and track in proper condition from Charlotte street south on George street, or to take up the track."

On motion of Councillors White and Langford, the Bell Telephone Co. will be notified to remove all ends of wire from the streets and not to permit any more to fall on them.

On motion of Councillors McWilliams and Best, the Chief of Police was instructed to notify the Auburn Power Co. to put the streets around their poles in proper condition, and if they do not do so within ten days to take proceedings against them.

HALIBURTON SANITARIUM.

The Locality is so Healthful That it May be Made a Resort.

A Haliburton correspondent says:—The healthiness of this locality is gradually forcing itself into general attention, and we have much hope and some reason in anticipating that ere long there will be a sanitarium established adjoining the village, on the lake shore. Several scientific gentlemen have reported favourably, and frankly admit that the healthiness of the locality is phenomenal. No case of ague or malaria was ever known here. A man might sleep on the ground in a swamp for a whole summer and derive no harm to his health. The air, so the scientific gentlemen report, is charged with ozone. Quite a number of persons afflicted with kidney complaints have come here and in one month have been completely cured. This is owing to the water being so pure. It must be noted that the water holds small quantities of iron and sulphur in solution and these have a beneficial effect. To those afflicted with consumption this is a haven of safety, and a short residence here remedies all such attacks when in their earlier stages. There is a variation in opinion among the scientists as to the cause of the admitted healthiness of the locality. Some attribute it to the ozone, others to the iron, and one gentleman says it is because there is more ozone in the atmosphere than elsewhere, owing to this being the height of land and about a thousand feet higher than Toronto. Within a few miles of this village there are some creeks which flow into the Ottawa, others which flow into Lake Huron, and others which flow into the Ontario basin. So that there is good reason to expect a great sanitarium to be established here.

KEENE.

The village is going ahead. Several new buildings are being erected this summer. Mr. Wm. Drummond, in anticipation of becoming a citizen, is erecting a fine residence on our main street. Mr. Alex. Anderson is putting up a new residence south of Mrs. Gall's residence, and Mr. S. Mathers will remodel and improve a building on the same street.

There is no fishing now—Inspector Gilchrist is too much in evidence for that.

Keene citizens are calling on the council for a wharf at the bridge. There is no wharf now, and persons do not care to go to the trouble of taking their bathing suits with them to enable them to board a steamer.

Persons who do not keep cows are complaining of the lack of a cow bylaw.

Mr. Yourex has sold his mills to Mr. Sills, of Myersburg, Hastings County, who will operate them if he gets expected financial encouragement from Keene.

Spring Humors

During the colder season impure humors accumulate in the blood.

The surface of the body being chilled, the pores are closed and clogged, and impurities which might pass off in perspiration are forced back into the blood. Besides this, winter's hearty food, fats and sweets, contribute more impurities.

This briefly explains the existence of Spring Humors—those unsightly eruptions, painful boils, annoying pimples and other affections, which make the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla absolutely necessary at this season.

But with some people, impurities in the blood cause very different symptoms. The kidneys, liver and bowels are overmatched in their efforts to relieve the clogged system. Dizzy headaches, bilious attacks, failure of appetite, coated tongue, lame back, indigestion or that tired feeling are some of the results.

From the same cause may also come scrofula, neuralgia sciatica or rheumatism.

All these troubles and more may properly be called "Spring Humors," and just as there is one cause, a cure is found in just one remedy, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the impure blood.
Hood's Sarsaparilla enriches that which is weak and thin.
Hood's Sarsaparilla vitalizes that which lacks vitality.
Hood's Sarsaparilla leads in Merit, Sales and Cures.

THE NEW FRANCHISE ACT.

The prospects of the Liberal party in either bye or general elections will be greatly improved by the adoption of the new Franchise Act. But the Liberal party will have no advantage except in comparison with the old, unfair, cumbersome and partizan Dominion Franchise Act. Under the new act both parties will be placed upon a perfect equality in the matter of lists. The new lists will be prepared by non-partizan officials and will be equally fair to both parties. There is no machinery under the new act for disfranchising one party by keeping off, or making difficult to get on, the voter's lists. The new measure will be infinitely less expensive and far more effective in securing a fair and full expression of popular opinion. Here is another instance in which the government has redeemed to the full its pledge, made in opposition as to the reforms it would bring about if returned to power. The people are well pleased with the manner in which it has implemented its promises in this as well as in all other cases.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

MISFORTUNES do not come singly. Now shameless Yankees have taken to writing war poetry. The war despatches are bad enough, but war poetry should be a causus belli.

THE fifty million war fund voted a few days ago by Congress is all spent, there being, according to Mr. Long, Secretary of the Navy, not enough left to buy a punt. Uncle Sam is spending money at the rate of about two millions a day.

THE United States seems to have a weakness for lumber. The first capture of the war was a lumber barge. The war correspondents load up the newspapers with typographical lumber, and a recent capture was a vessel, the Catalina, loaded with lumber—staves. This was no prize, however. The matter was represented by a member of the Chatham, Ontario, firm, which owns the lumber, to Sir Julian Pauncefort, the British ambassador at Washington, and the vessel was released.

IT is not generally suspected that the employees of the Grand Trunk are troubled with cowardice. But the employees of a railway in Chicago seem to have shown the white feather—have taken alarm at the dangers of railroading and wish to get an occupation attended with a great deal less danger. They want to enter the army in the Spanish-American war. The Grand Trunk does not expect these employees likely to be subjected to much danger. Their situations are to be kept open for them.

THE FRANCHISE BILL.

Montreal Witness, (Independent.)

Opposition to the franchise bill seems to be perfunctory in Parliament and almost nil in the country. The main object of the bill is simply to make the provincial franchise and electoral lists the bases and to a large extent the measure of the national ones. It is a reversion to the condition which obtained during the first Macdonald and Mackenzie administration—the first half of the history of the Dominion. The British North American Act gave the national government the power for the constitution of its own franchise and election machinery by the Dominion, and at times the leaders of both parties, moved by a too high regard perhaps for the supposed advantages of a uniform franchise throughout the Dominion and its educative influence upon the more conservative provinces, and influenced, perhaps, by the thought of securidg the dignity of the Dominion Parliament by making it independent in this matter of the provincial legislatures, expressed opinions in favour of the Dominion Parliament establishing its own separate and complete franchise and electoral machinery. The old machinery worked so well in practice, however, that no change was made during Parliament after Parliament. On Sir John Macdonald's return to power, and during an era of much political corruption, when every party advantage was seized by those in power, the present Dominion franchise act was passed.

IN COMPANY WITH A GERRYMANDER redistribution act. In one or two of the Maritime Provinces, where the Intercolonial Railway employees almost dominated the elections in certain constituencies, Liberal governments in power there had deprived these Dominion civil servants of the franchise on the ground that they were not independent. This furnished an occasion for the establishment by the Dominion of its own franchise and electoral machinery, which Sir John Macdonald seized, and the act, which provided for partisan revising barristers and returning officers appointed by the government for itself, with all the machinery for printing the lists left at the mercy of a local official appointment by the government, which was worked for all it was worth against one political party and in favour of another, was passed and became law.

This measure worked well from a party point of view. Government political clubs and organizations had naturally no trouble in placing names on the lists controlled by former presidents and members of their societies, while the Opposition organizations also naturally enough met with insurmountable difficulties and obstacles. There was reason for suspicion that even after the lists were made up and revised, they were changed by the partisan organs and establishments that had for some time the printing of them. The cost of revision proved so great that the annual revision of the lists had to be abandoned from the very first. One of the party dodges of the government was to spring the elections upon the country in the hope of taking

THE OPPOSITION AT A DISADVANTAGE, a practice which made it impossible to secure the revision of the lists in preparation for the elections, so that in spite of the immense cost of the lists, the elections were held generally on lists two or three years old, which disfranchised many more people than ever the provincial lists had disfranchised. The act and all its works became a byword, and even the government ceased to defend it. Sir John Thompson proposed its repeal and the substitution of a system reverting, very much as the present bill does, to the former condition of things, and basing the franchise and lists of the Dominion upon those of the provinces.

When the present bill was introduced there was not a word in defence, not a regret expressed for the abandonment of the former Dominion act; it was a disgraceful, costly, inefficient measure, and its authors were afraid, if not ashamed, even to excuse it. The new bill will save the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars to the country by simply making use of electoral lists and machinery which the province have to furnish for themselves anyway, and which they provide cheaply. If the franchise suits the people of the province no one else need complain, for no one else outside the province will be practically affected, and the people of a province may be trusted to frame their own franchise, as they know and understand their conditions best. The bill provides against disfranchisement on the part of the provinces of any section of the electors, and also against any changes which may be made by a province in anticipation of the Dominion elections. The provincial lists are based upon the municipal lists, which are not in Canada prepared for political purposes and are therefore more likely to be honest from a party point of view. The Dominion lists, if the new act works successfully, will be up to date whenever an election occurs, and it will cost very little as compared with the old, inefficient partizan one.

MODERN SLAVERY

Caused by Weak, Exhausted Stomachs, is Almost Universal.

It is Unknown, However, Where Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are Used—There is no Other Cure for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Etc.

You, reader, would not permit your neighbour to call you out of bed at midnight and oblige you to walk the pavement for two or three hours every night. You would not allow him to burn your hand wilfully, nor to cut your finger off, just to please him. Why, then do you allow your stomach to cause you loss of sleep, nightmare and continual suffering? Every dyspeptic, every sufferer from indigestion, biliousness, heartburn, waterbrash, catarrh of the stomach and other stomach diseases, is a slave to his or her stomach. There is only one way—only one—of breaking the chains of slavery. That is by using Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

What is the use of suffering for hours after every meal? Why should you, or I do so? It is not necessary. We can prevent the agonies of dyspepsia, indigestion, etc., in a simple, sure and cheap way. All we need do is to take one or two of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal.

These digest the food you have eaten. They don't need aid from the stomach, which is therefore given time to rest and gain strength. They regulate the bowels, which carry off the waste portion of the food not used in making blood. Thus the stomach is emptied and prepared to receive the next meal.

No foul gas can form in the stomach if you use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, for the food is digested by them, at once, and does not remain in the stomach to rot and cause disease.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists, at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or will be sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

ONEIDA.

From Our Own Correspondent.

People are busy again seeding, but not very much growth yet.

The funeral of the late Wm. Jackson was very largely attended, he being an old and esteemed resident of Emily. The solemn ceremonies were conducted by Rev. Mr. Pope at the house, and at the church and grave at Cavan by the Rev. W. C. Allen, of Millbrook. There were about 150 Orangemen and Foresters present in regalia, showing the respect the deceased was held in.

Thos. Robinson, the victim of an accident several weeks ago by being trampled on by horses, died suddenly of hemorrhage on Saturday evening. The deceased has somewhat rallied, and hopes of his ultimate recovery were entertained. Mr. Robinson has reached the age of 54 years and was amongst the most industrious and prosperous of our farmers. The funeral was largely attended by friends from Peterborough, Lindsay and surrounding country.

Our bicyclists are already preparing to attend the meet at Peterborough on July 1st and 2nd.

We have a few citizens living here who have reached nearly 100 years of age.

The Kind You Need

Is the Kind That Has Cured Others.

Paine's Celery Compund
Nature's Spring Medicine

GIVES NEW BLOOD, NEW ENERGY AND NEW LIFE FOR A NEW SEASON.

The Only Remedy That Thoroughly Cleanses the System.

Beware of Deceptive Imitations.

Ask Your Druggist for "PAINE'S," the Kind the Best Physicians Recommend.

This month there are thousands of persons who manage in a way to attend to their work and daily duties, who are, nevertheless, badly "out of health," and who will soon be confined to sick beds unless they give immediate attention to their complaints.

This month pale and sallow faced men, women, boys and girls are seen on every street. Their blood is thin, watery and impure, making the most fertile soil for the nourishment of disease. We see the languid, tired, listless and ambitionless on every hand—people who seem to be positively short of life. We can easily detect poison and disease by a glance at the thousands of faces we see each day. Pimples, sores, eczema, salt rheum and skin diseases tell that the blood needs cleansing and purifying. All such are truly on the brink of some organic disease.

Paine's Celery Compound will, at this time, regulate the entire nervous system; will cleanse the vitiated blood and give it a proper proportion of red corpuscles, and send it coursing healthily through the whole body. Paine's Celery Compound never fails to increase the appetite; it strengthens the powers of assimilation, increases weight, gives rest and sleep, and bestows a health that every true man and woman should possess in spring time.

If you are one of the unfortunates referred to, why remain in danger of disease and death when you are assured of a speedy and certain cure?

Just a word for your benefit about imitations. When you decide to buy Paine's Celery Compound, it will be well for you to see that each package bears the name "PAINE'S," because some dealers for the sake of extra profit sell imitations that are not only worthless but are positively dangerous to life.

Paine's Celery Compound cures disease. This statement is supported by thousands of testimonials.

Equal to the Occasion.

They tell this story in London about the Countess Waldegrave, who was married four times: One evening she appeared at the opera in Dublin during her fourth husband's occupancy of the post of chief secretary for Ireland. An audacious Celt, catching sight of her ladyship in one of the boxes, shouted out with real Irish temerity, "Lady Waldegrave, which of the four did you like best?"

The countess was equal to the occasion. Without a moment's hesitation she rose from her seat and exclaimed enthusiastically, "Why, the Irishman, of course"—a remark which naturally "brought down the house."

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence, "Black Death" was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than any of these. It is so common that nine-tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing constipation. It makes people listless, causes dizziness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath and distress after eating. The little help needed is furnished by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative and two a mild cathartic. Once used, always in favour. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well. Be sure and get Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Send 21 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

"WILL BACK AMERICA"

Robert Barr, the Canadian Novelist, on the English Feeling.

TIMES AND WOLSELEY AGREE.

Washington Alarmed by Rumors of a Disquieting Nature, But They Turned Out to Be Unfounded—Event Side of the War News Tame—Decisive Action Expected.

Detroit, April 30.—Robert Barr, the well-known novelist, in an interview yesterday said: "Americans are foolish to pay any attention to the nonsensical stories that England is not with America in this Spanish war. England will back America to a man."

He asserted further that the St. James Gazette, noted for its vitriolic utterances against the United States in the present crisis, is not indicative of English public opinion, saying that for the true feeling they should watch the Times, Chronicle Standard or Telegraph, which are papers of the old school.

English Sentiment.

London, April 30.—The Times yesterday devotes considerable space to combatting the statement that public opinion here is verging towards Spain. It says: 'Our sympathies, on the main question, are with the United States, as they are held to be in the right. But, on the matter of form, we are not so clear or unanimous."

In spite of the Times' assertion the facts are as cabled. The Government and most of the important newspapers are friendly to the United States, but individual opinion and the sympathies of a large majority of the British are undoubtedly anti-American.

Lord Wolseley on the War.

London, April 30.—A prominent Englishman who believes in the justice of America's cause, and who is also of the opinion that the United States will certainly have a walk-over, is Lord Wolseley, the commander-in-chief of the British forces. During a dinner party conversation, Lord Wolseley drew a parallel between Cuba and Crete, saying: "While England interfered in Crete on moral grounds, the United States has both moral and material justification for intervention in Cuba.

"I believe the quality of the American army and navy is so much superior to Spain's that the Americans will have no difficulty in defeating Spain's ships and land forces, which are their equals or superiors on paper only."

NOTHING BUT SCARE TALK.

The Blowing Up of Monitors and the Punishment of Traitors Were Yellow Yarns—Sampson's Report.

Washington, April 30.—Yesterday was a day of alarming rumors, running all the way from the blowing up of a big monitor to the detection and punishment of traitors, but fortunately all of them turned out, on enquiry, to be without foundation. Actual events of importance were few in number. The news of the day of most interest was the departure from Cape Verde of the Spanish fleet, the stay of which at St. Vincent has been a source of anxiety on the part of the officials here, because it seemed to indicate that the sympathy of Portugal for Spain might lead her to wink at a violation of neutrality laws in favor of Spain. Late in the afternoon a cablegram came to the State Department from Cape Verde, bearing no signature, announcing that four battleships and three torpedo boats had started north, and some of the transports for Cuba, and that the northern fleet returned shortly, having been in collision. Because there was no signature attached, the officials did not know what importance to attach to this message, as these are not times to accept what appears to be information without close scrutiny.

Capt. Sampson sent a telegram relative to the firing at the Matanzas forts, but it was disappointingly lacking in detail. The few words contained in the despatch went to confirm the official view that the affair was nothing more than a naval reconnaissance.

TO GO ON A FLEET HUNT.

If the Spanish Fleet Will Not Come Out the American Fleet Will Cross the Atlantic.

New York, April 30.—A special to the Journal and Advertiser from Washington says: The Board of Strategy recommended at a late hour Thursday evening that as soon as it becomes apparent that the Spanish flotilla does not intend to cross the Atlantic, the Canary Islands, in the Atlantic, and one of the Balearic Islands, in the Mediterranean, probably the Island of Minorca, will be seized by the United States as base of supplies. If the Spanish fleet does not come to us, the Board of Strategy has decided, that to end the war the United States warships must attack Spain at home. The best warships are certain to reach the other side of the Atlantic considerably the worse for the voyage. By seizing the Canaries they can be made a base of operations against the Spanish.

Carried News and Fish.

Key West, April 30.—The Engracia was captured off Cabanas, not off Cardenas, as previously telegraphed. Only one shot was necessary to bring her to. She had on board a crew of seven men and a cargo of fish. The men on board the prize cargo had been in the Spanish navy and serve as a sort of naval reserve.

The officers of the Newport say the capture is an important one, in view of the fact that the little vessel was attempting to carry into Havana news of the movements of the United States fleet.

U. S. WAR NOTES.

The troopship Panther brought 800 marines to Key West Thursday.

The new American torpedo boat McKee has made her trial trip, making 24¼ knots an hour.

The United States War Department has estimated that war expenses for the next two months will amount to $90,000,000.

Col. Methville A. Cochrane, in command of a brigade at Key West, has been instructed to hold his troops in readiness for immediate departure.

Miss Helen Gould of New York offered to subscribe $100,000 to the American war fund. President McKinley has suggested to Miss Gould that the money be applied to purchase a war vessel to be presented to the navy.

The Norwegian steamer Orange has arrived at Savannah, Ga., from Matanzas and is now in quarantine. The Orange had aboard fifty women and children, Cuban refugees.

Arrangements are being made for the departure of foreigners from Havana before the city is bombarded. British, French, German, Austrian and Italian warships are within easy reach of Cuban waters to take aboard their countrymen. Admiral Sampson is to give ample notice before the bombardment begins.

HOW IT AFFECTS US.

Deflection of Business From U. S. Ports Because of the War Has Helped Us, So Bradstreets Says.

New York, April 30. — Bradstreets says: Canadian trade is undeniably good, being helped alike by higher prices for cereals, good weather and the expected deflection of considerable export trade from this country to Dominion channels. Toronto reports hardware, iron and structural material in good demand, dry goods active and railways busy. Weather in the Maritime Provinces has hurt seasonable trade, and the fish and molasses business has been injured by the war, the latter product tending upward in price, as is also provisions and freight rates. Quite a general advance in prices is reported from Montreal, sugar, flour, white lead and linseed oil being particularly notable. Ocean navigation has formally opened, but no shipments are yet reported. Freight rates are firm and tend upwards. A good business is doing at Victoria and Vancouver. Shipping trade is active, and a large number of boats are being taken north. Business failures in Canada this week number 22, against 15 last: 31 in this week a year ago, and 26 in 1896. Canadian bank clearings aggregate $24,678,489, a fraction of 1 per cent. gain over last week and 18.6 per cent. increase over this week a year ago.

FEMALE WEAKNESS CURED.

Mrs. Saunders Made Well and Strong by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Brantford, April 25—(Special)—The wives and mothers of Ontario are the most ardent disciples of Dodd's way of curing curing Diseases of Women—i.e. by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This is natural, for no medicine, no earth, no agency known to man has saved women one tithe of the agony that Dodd's Kidney Pills have banished.

Mrs. F. Saunders, of Brantford, tells her suffering sisters what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for her: I have been a martyr to Female Weakness for the past year and suffered terribly. Dodd's Kidney Pills made me strong and well and healthy, though several other remedies I used did me no good whatever."

So the record grows. Cures made every day. Failures—never.

A Complete Medicicine Chest.

Must Take an Hour for Lunch.

Toronto, April 30.—Although the employes of the Toronto Biscuit & Confectionery Company prefer to take only half an hour for lunch and get off at 5.30, instead of 6, the laws of the land will not allow them to do it, though the firm is willing. The factory inspector instituted a prosecution, but the case was dismissed in the Police Court yesterday on the understanding that the full hour for lunch must be taken by the employes.

It is understood that Ratcliffe has been engaged to do the hanging. The death watch has been set over the prisoner, who takes his fate coolly.

Paris in Peterboro

We can't bring Paris to Peterborough, but we can give our patrons a peep into the Paris Millinery world, and present to their view the latest conceits of the French Capital.

You can look here and see what's over there. As a matter of fact you cannot keep in touch with the dictates of Fashion without knowing what we have to offer.

A MAY-DAY OPENING.

Busy as we are, we set to work a month ago to prepare for a Semi-Opening of Fashionable SUMMER Millinery during the first week of May.

Every Dollar's worth shown will be the very latest in style and colouring.

But every week here has been a series of elaborate "Opening" events. Extensive Novelties have claimed the eager attention of the ladies, day in and day out, and rendered their repeated visits quite as entertaining as the regular Formal Opening events of other stores.

Fast as the loveliest samples are picked new ones replace them to keep the display perfect, steadily beautiful and interesting.

The crowded condition of our workroom is unmistakable evidence of the leadership of this store in Millinery of all kinds, and the service is so successful that the wants of every lady is promptly supplied.

This week, we are making another and attractive display of New Styles in New Hats and Bonnets. New Flowers and Ribbons, New Veilings, Gloves and Neckwear—equal to the best attempt at any second Millinery Opening elsewhere. We welcome you to look or to buy. Were you here recently?

The entry list was a large one, and the judging began at about three o'clock, Mr. Jas. Davidson of Ashburn, taking the heavy horses, and Dr. Bradd of town, the light harness ones. The latter kindly consented to act at the last minute in the absence of Dr. Willoughby, who was to have officiated.

The Company has also placed the catering of the boat entirely in the hands of Mrs. Lane, and wiser selections could not have been made. The Captain has, perhaps, the longest experience of any man on the waters, and the mention of Mrs. Lane's dinners touches the hearts of many Americans throughout the Northern States. The Capt. and Mrs. Lane are certain to exercise a material influence in popularizing travel over the Peterborough Navigation Co'y's route.

AN OUT-DOOR PROGRAMME.

An Outing Club Organized at the Y. M. C. A. Last Night at an Enthusiastic Meeting.

A most enthusiastic and largely attended meeting of Y. M. C. A. members was held in the parlour of the association last evening to discuss the programme of the summer and to organize for the same.

Mr. J. S. Knapman, the energetic and popular chairman of the Physical Work Committee, presided and in opening the meeting stated the object of the meeting. This was followed by a free discussion. Mr. C. H. Matthias acted as secretary.

It was decided to use the P. A. A. A. grounds for the summer on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week, when it would not be used by the Lacrosse Club.

Lacrosse, football, baseball and canoeing together with vaulting, running, etc., will be the leading features.

It was unanimously decided that the outdoor work should be organized under the name of "The Y. M. C. A. Outing Club."

This department to include all the wheelmen of the Association, instead of organizing a separate wheeling club. This arrangement will embrace members of all wheeling clubs of the town who are members of the Association.

Mr. Bunton announced that a number of long trips would be planned shortly for the benefit of the members. It is provided that if any member of the Outing Club wishes to be connected with the C. W. A. he can do so through the town bicycle clubs.

The Camera Club will also be affiliated with the Outing Club, so that all will be under the supervision of the Physical Department.

A committee composed of the following members was appointed to act in conjunction with the Physical Committee in completing the arrangements for the out-door sports:—Messrs. Irwin, Halpin, Matthias, W. Wilson and Glover. The committee will meet on Monday evening.

A decision took place in reference to the raising of funds to the amount of $50 required to run the club for the season. Mr. Williamson suggested the plan of asking the Board to devote the last fifty dollars of the $500 to be raised by the young men by June 1st to be devoted for this purpose. This was adopted upon the understanding that the remaining 15 of the remaining $5 block on the scheme be guaranteed at once. An illuminated parade under the auspices of the club will be a feature of the near future.

A PLEASANT HOUR.

A splendid way to spend an hour on Sunday is to attend the men's meeting at 4.15 p.m. To-morrow Mr. A. H. Dymond, law clerk of the Provincial Legislature, Toronto, will be the speaker.

The Secretary's Bible class will be held at 3 o'clock. The topic will "Parting Words." This is the last of the series of 34 studies in the life of Christ. All men welcome.

Mr. S. R. Armstrong leads the conference on the Sunday school lesson to night at 8 o'clock.

WOMAN'S WAY

Gert's Timely Talk on Local Topics

It makes me feel like a new woman to be able to step outside the door without being swathed in heavy clothing like a Klondyke adventurer; to feel the fresh genial air of spring; to blink and bask in the bright warm sunshine, that calls up the rich mellow green of the grass and to see all nature, airily yawning as it were, in rousing herself from her long, long winter sleep. How perfectly delightful to have the saucy black bird come whistling round the backyard door, to welcome the friendly robins as they make love and bill and coo, then spend a few days of the honeymoon cultivating old friends again before they make themselves scarce and become busy with the serious duties of housekeeping, building a little home and furnishing it with the fluffy lingerie that constitutes their little trousseau for the most important event in domestic life—an addition to the family.

The early spring helped me through with my house cleaning, and I am so glad. I can now devote myself to my little gardening operations and "make clean the outside of the cup and platter," that is, the lawn and premises, which, with good housewifery, are as important as the inside. John, my husband, says, and he's no fool as an observer—he showed this in selecting a wife—"that nine times out of ten one can judge by the outside what the inside of a house is like—"I tell you, Gert, if you see the outside premises dirty and untidy, if the kids are allowed to dig holes in the front lawn, drive nails in the walks, make mud pies on the front verandah, if old tins and boxes brought in by the dog and all sorts of nuts, bric-a-brac are allowed to cumber the front premises, you may bet your bottom bit of bullion that the woman living inside is a slattern, and, perhaps, a shrew." John is right about the outside of a home being a type of the inside, and sometimes right about the housekeeper being a slattern and a shrew. I know a few of this class who justify the epitaph placed by a relieved husband over the grave of such a wife:

Here lies my dear wife—
A sad slattern and shrew—
If I said I regretted her
I should lie too.

But most of this class of house-keepers are good natured, careless creatures without ambition enough to lose their temper, good, easy-going souls who will let the flies cluster four deep over the breakfast dishes while she drops down in an easy chair, sitting generally on one foot curled up underneath her, reading with all her heart and soul a yellow novel, and weeping over the woes of the yellow-haired heroine; and her husband comes home to a wretchedly-cooked dinner, and swears—I don't blame him a bit—at the unsavoury masses of fly haunted food, hardly fit for a Humber pig, and enough to give indigestion to a refrigerator.

This weather makes me think of flowers; and how flowers and graceful, grass, creeping vines do beautify and refine the most humble surroundings. We have a lot of beautiful places in town, well kept, and "things of beauty." Court House Park is the loveliest place in all the land, with it beautiful flowers and velvet sward. And another beautiful place is Little Lake Cemetery. How well it is kept, and how finely does art co-operate with the advantages of nature in making it the most picturesque and attractive resting place for the dead I know of. Attractive, applied to a cemetery, is a queer word, but why should it be so? Heaven knows we scatter few enough flowers in the pathway of our loved ones in life, and it is a sort of melancholy reparation to beautify their unchanging last resting place. I think flowers are the most suitable adornments for a cemetery. They are a beautiful emblem in their growth, death and springtime resurrection of our faith in the life of our loved ones beyond the grave, and they are a tribute that both rich and poor can pay. It isn't everybody that can afford a costly monument, but when we see both combined as at Little Lake it adds to the beauty of the spot hallowed by the dust of our beloved ones.

Friday was such a delightful day, I decided to drive out and visit our two cemeteries—the Roman Catholic and Little Lake. Aside from the main object I had in view—that of deciding for the erection of a memorial tablet for a departed parent—there is always something alluring to me in the attractive resting places of the dead. It was a little early early to see these "God's acres" in their full summer beauty, but now is the best season to prepare for the erection of monuments. A little later, under nature's lavish hand, and the artificial skill of human hands—each contributing to the general beauty of the grounds—a visit will afford some pleasant surprises. To me, it is an indication of a greater degree of intelligence and tention which is being given to the erection of beautiful monuments as well as to the improvement of cemeteries.

In order to have the benefit of practical advice, I had requested Mr. John Coughlin, of the firm of Coughlin Bros., to accompany me, for I hadn't decided what design of memorial stone I should have. It was gratifying to see that the old style of gloomy looking marble slabs is fast disappearing. The modern idea is the reverse of this, for the monument should not only suggest respect for the dead, but be beautified by the art of the sculptor and marble cutter. It was a pleasure, therefore, to note that in the erection of recent "In Memoriam," the pillared granites, on which much skill, care and expense has been devoted, as well as the unique sarcophagus and cottage designs of memorials, are largely preferred. Granite in varied colours is specially well adapted for monumental work. The attractive variegation and the beautiful contrasts between the polished and hammered portions render its susceptible of pleasing effects and of great value in executing lettering and making ornamental portions distinct and durable. On my return I visited the warerooms of the Coughlin Bros., on Hunter street. Here there was ample evidence that they had made no superficial study of their business, as I found on exhibition a large display of finished work, which helped me to decision much more promptly than I had expected. There was shown a number of very pretty designs in rustic memorials and tablets; also, round and square shaft monuments, cottage designs, pretty head marks, etc., with cross and scroll design, so appropriate for cemetery work. I was struck with the satisfactory detail and proportion of the designing, which I consider essential for first-class results. I did not see an ill-shaped or badly proportioned monument in the lot. I learned that the members of the firm are good draughtsmen and can make original designs to which they devote their personal attention. There is an excellent polished finish to their monuments and an artistic skill in their workmanship. It was interesting to learn the names of the granites from the different quarries in the world which I saw here. Handsome greys and different shades of quiet reds from Scotland, blue pearl from Norway, dark red from Sweden, and other shades from Italy and the United States, but our own bright red Canadian granite, quarried in New Brunswick, beats the world. I selected a very nice memorial in the shape of a rustic tablet, which I was advised would stand the tests of sun and weather for centuries. Let me advise that in putting up a monument, its lasting qualities are of great importance. The advice I got was to select a stone of such a quality that you can rest assured that in years hence it will look as well as when erected, that the lustre of the polished parts will be still undimmed, and the lettering as readable as when freshly cut.

It may be interesting to your readers to let you know that in my interview with Mr. Coughlin he was glad to report business prospects very bright. He had spent part of this week driving through the country, and booked quite a lot of good orders, including some from Norwood, Hastings, Campbellford, Madoc, Marmora and Belleville. Among the handsomest of the monuments to be erected is one for Norwood, which is of Italian marble of an unique design, and when set up will stand about 25 feet high. It will be the finest in that section. The firm is busy finishing up a carload of monuments, etc., to be shipped to Marmora next week.

SHORT WEIGHT BUTTER.

Seizures made on the Market Square this Morning by the Chief of Police.

There was a panic on the market this morning when the Chief of Police suddenly appeared, and ordered that all butter be brought forward and weighed for his inspection.

As large quantities are put up in pound and half pound prints and are not weighed but simply turned out of a wooden mould, the makers were not sure whether their butter would be over or under weight and consequently awaited results with considerable trepidation.

Two lots were confiscated and the owners summoned to appear before the magistrate at two o'clock in the afternoon.

At the trial one lot of 24 lbs. was found 21½ ounces underweight, the other of 9 lbs. being 6½ ounces short.

The magistrate decided not to impose any fine as there was evidently no intention on the part of the owners to defraud, the fault lying entirely in the defective moulds. The seizures, however, will serve as a timely warning, and all butter makers will hereafter weigh their dairy produce before offering it for sale.

Mr. Reeve Crough, J.P., of Eenlamore, occupied a seat on the bench with Magistrate Dumble.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE.

LAW OF THE UMBRELLA.

An Important Opinion That Has Been Ascribed to Lord Coleridge.

The law as to umbrellas was settled once for all by Lord Coleridge in a leading English case. His lordship held:

"Umbrellas, properly considered, are a part of the atmospheric or meteorological condition, and as such there can be no individual property right in them. In Sampson versus Thompson defendant was charged with standing on plaintiff's front steps during a storm and thereby soaking up a large quantity of rain to which plaintiff was entitled. But the court held that the rain was any man's rain, no matter where it fell. It follows, therefore, that the umbrella is any man's umbrella. In all ages rain and umbrellas have gone together, and there is no reason why they should be separated in law. An umbrella may, under certain circumstances—the chief of which is possession—take on the attributes of personal property, just as if a man set a tub and catch a quantity of rainwater, that rainwater will be considered as his personal belonging while it is in his tub. But if the sun evaporate the water and it is rained down again or if the tub is upset and the water spilled then the attribute of personal ownership instantly disappears. So if a man hold his umbrella in his hand it may be considered a personal belonging, but the moment it leaves his hand it returns to the great, general, indivisable, common stock of umbrellas, whither the law will not attempt to pursue it."

So far as we know there has never been a successful appeal from this decision.—Chicago News.

Suffering Vanquished.

A NOVA SCOTIA FARMER TELLS HOW HE REGAINED HEALTH.

Had Suffered From Acute Rheumatism and General Debility—Scarcely Able to do the Lightest Work.

From the Acadian, Wolfville, N.S.

One of the most prosperous and intelligent farmers of the village of Greenwich, N.S., is Mr. Edward Manning. Anyone intimate with Mr. Manning knows him as a man of strong integrity and veracity, so that every confidence can be placed in the information which he gave a reporter of the Acadian, for publication the other day. During a very pleasant interview he gave the following statements of his severe suffering and recovery:

"Two years ago last September," said Manning, "I was taken with an acute attack of rheumatism. I had not been feeling well for some time previous to that date, having been troubled with sleeplessness and general debility. My constitution seemed completely run down. Beginning in the small of my back the pain soon passed into my hip, where it remained without intermission, and I became a terrible sufferer. All winter long I was scarcely able to do any work, and it was only with the acutest of suffering that I managed to hobble to the barn each day to do my chores. I appealed to medical men for help, but they failed to bring any relief. At last I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pills, and with their use came a complete and lasting cure. I had not used quite three boxes when I began to feel decidedly better. I continued using them until twelve boxes had been consumed, when my complete recovery warranted me in discontinuing their use. I have never felt better than since that time. My health seems to have improved in every way. During the past summer I have worked very hard, but have felt no bad effects. The gratitude I feel to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills none but those who have suffered as I have and been cured can appreciate.

An analysis shows that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain in a condensed form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are a specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration, all diseases depending upon vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. Sold by all dealers or sent post paid at 50c a box or six boxes for $2 50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE FRANCHISE BILL.

Good Progress Made Through Mr. Fitzpatrick's Suavity.

MR. D'ALTON M'CARTHY SPEAKS

Several Amendments Offered and With the Solicitor-General's Help They Were Whipped Into Shape and Passed—He Wins Warm Encomiums From Both Sides for His Conduct.

Ottawa, April 29.—Substantial progress was made on the Franchise bill yesterday. This was due largely to the tact and conciliation of Solicitor-General Fitzpatrick, who met the objections put forward by the Opposition in a spirit of fairness, which was most commendable. Mr. Fitzpatrick's handling of the bill has won warm encomiums from both sides of the House.

At the opening of the House, Mr. Osler took the opportunity to reply to the attack made the other evening by Mr. Oliver against the management of the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake & Saskatchewan Railway.

Mr. Oliver brought up the matter of the detachment of the Northwest Mounted Police which left Edmonton last fall for the Yukon.

The Minister of the Interior replied that the detachment had arrived at Fort Graham, on the Finley River, but were unable to proceed farther on account of deep snow and lack of food for their dogs.

The Franchise Bill.

In committee on the Franchise Act Mr. Bennett offered an amendment providing that the returning officer should indicate the polling places and subdivisions in his proclamation. This, he pointed out, would obviate such confusion as resulted in the recent provincial election in Ottawa.

The Solicitor-General promised to consider the amendment at a later stage.

At the suggestion of Mr. Powell, the Solicitor-General added an amendment to allow non-resident qualified voters to vote at the shire town.

Mr. Fitzpatrick also promised to take into consideration an amendment by Dr. Montague covering the cases of voters disqualified in Ontario by reason of removal of their residence.

By accepting the Nova Scotia provincial franchise, all Dominion officials or employes whatsoever are disfranchised. Moreover, the revisers are not supposed to place the names of such persons on the list.

In view of this, the Solicitor-General submitted an amendment, providing that no persons disqualified by a provincial law from voting by reason of being a Government employe, etc., shall be disqualified for a Dominion election. Moreover, it provides that when such persons are left off the provincial list, they shall be allowed to vote upon taking an oath that they are legally qualified to vote, and that their names were omitted from the list only because of the provincial disqualification.

A protracted discussion ensued.

D'Alton McCarthy made his first speech of the session. He merely criticized the construction of the amendment as being too diffuse, but the sense of the committee was favorable to the Solicitor-General's wording. The amendment was adopted.

Another amendment was presented by the Solicitor-General, providing that when more than 300 qualified voters are on the list in one polling division, the returning officer must provide separate polling stations, so that no less than 200 nor more than 300 shall be on the voters' list for each poll, the lists to be divided so that the voters shall cast their ballots in polling booths properly with the initial letter of the voter's name, as, for instance, A to K, L to R, and S to Z.

Steady progress was made on the bill at the evening sitting, and by 11.30 the committee stage was practically concluded, only one or two unimportant clauses having yet to be disposed of. The bill will finally pass to-day, and, if Mr. Fisher is in town, the second reading of the Plebiscite bill will be moved.

The House adjourned at 11.30 o'clock.

THE SENATE.

Other Matters of Interest in and Around the House.

In the Senate yesterday, on the third reading of the bill respecting the Hamilton & Lake Erie Power Company, Senator McCallum said he would oppose the bill if he believed that the company ever intended using the powers given them under their charter. The company has power, under its act of incorporation, to use the waters of the Niagara River for power purposes, and the present bill enables them to increase their capital stock, and borrowing powers, from one to three million dollars. Senator McCallum claimed that the carrying out of the scheme of the company would menace the utility of the Welland Canal. The bill was read a third time and passed.

Representatives of the civil service interviewed the Premier yesterday on matters affecting public servants.

An hour in the Railway Committee sufficed to dispose of the Toronto & Hudson Bay Railway bill, the agreement reached last night having cleared the air wonderfully.

The Railway Committee.

Before the bill passed the committee, the Minister of Railways said it was unwise to duplicate lines over the same ground. In his opinion, the simplest plan was to arrange for running powers from Gravenhurst to North Bay, but he admitted it might be necessary to build a line from Gravenhurst to Toronto. He did not want to grant another charter, and then have the company come to Parliament and use its powerful influence to secure a Dominion subsidy, when $12,000 a mile had already been voted the present line to North Bay.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Never fails to Cure.

IF THE ROSE COULD ONLY SPEAK.

Within the rose I found a trembling tear
Close curtained in a gloom of crimson night
By tender petals from the outer light.
I plucked the flower and held it to my ear,
And thought within its fervid breast to hear
A smothered heart beat throbbing soft and low.
I heard its busy lifeblood gently flow,
Now far away and now so strangely near.
Ah, thought I, if these silent lips of flame
Could be unsealed and fling into the air
Their woe, their passion, and in speech proclaim
Their warm intoxication of despair,
Then would I give the rose into thy hand.
Then could'st its voice, beloved, not withstand.
—Hjalmer Hjorth Boyesen.

A Disturbing Sermon.

Many years ago an English clergyman in a small town preached as his own a sermon, one that he had bought, and which had been originally preached in London when the plague was raging in that city. After reproving the vice of the people, the sermon went on:

"For this vice it is that God has visited you and your families with that cruel scourge, the plague, which is now spreading everywhere in this town."

At his uttering these words the people were all so thunderstruck that the chief magistrate was obliged to go to the pulpit and to ask him:

"For God's sake, sir, pardon the interruption, and inform me where the plague is, that I may instantly endeavor to prevent its further spreading."

"The plague, sir!" replied the preacher. "I know nothing about the plague. Whether it is in the town or not, it is in my homily."

A Reluctant Complaint.

The Denver Times tells of a schoolboy in that city who has written a letter to the school board which shows that the average American youth can see a point before he sits down on it. He says: "Mr. Director—My sister, who is the schoolteacher, whips me every day. Pa and ma told her to whip me oftener than she did the others so they wouldn't think she was partial. I write to let you know this is too thin. She is an old maid and gets mad because she can't get married, and whenever she gets to feeling that way she larrups me. I hate to say such things about my sister, but it's so."

WHEAT UP AGAIN.

Another Sensational Advance in Liverpool Breadstuffs Dearer in Britain and the Continent—Quotations.

Thursday Evening, April 28.

The world's grain markets were again very irregular to-day, the feature being another sensational advance over night at Liverpool. In that market No. 1 Northern spot wheat, which on Wednesday closed at 5s 0½d, opened up at 5s 8d, futures opening at gains of from 1¾d to 4¾d. This rise over night was first attributed to Liverpool speculation on the war scare, especially as continental quotations were slightly lower this morning than last night. The strength of the market, however, increased all day, with the result that spot wheat closed at 5s 9d, the May delivery at 5s 10d and the July delivery at 5s 5¼d, making the gains over Wednesday's final figures from 5¾d to 6¼d. As the day grew continental markets firmed up, in sympathy with the English prices, with the result that Paris rose 5 to 25 centimes for the day and Antwerp 25 centimes. At Chicago the May delivery closed with an advance of 1¼c and the July at an advance of ⅝c, the remoter options, however, weakening.

A WOMAN'S WOES.

Quickly and Permanently Relieved by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. R. Roberts of Stratford, Tells a Glad Story—Cured of Kidney Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Stratford, April 29.—Mrs. R. Roberts, Downie street, is one of our most popular and prominent ladies. Her friends, whose name is legion, are congratulating her heartily on her signal success in her recent contest against a monster that has for years past ravaged this city and the County of Perth.

Mrs. Roberts, telling the story of her struggle, said she had been troubled for three years with kidney disease. She suffered the utmost misery and no efforts of her medical attendants served to relieve her. Several highly recommended remedies were tried, but they too failed.

At length, worn out with suffering, she acted on the advice of a friend and tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. The first box produced an astounding improvement. The second carried on the good work, and five boxes cured her completely.

Not even in the palmy days of her free and joyous girlhood did she enjoy better health than she has now. And she owes it all to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are woman's best friend. They may be confidently relied on to not only relieve but to cure the most painful and stubborn case of Female Troubles, all of which spring from diseased kidneys.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists, at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50 or are sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

PETER'S EASTER HAT.

A Fashion Reminiscence In Verse by Cyclone Simmons of Placer Flat.

On the day precedin Easter Harvard Pete of Placer Flat
Got a package 'at was loaded with a tall an shiny hat.
'Twas a reg'lar plug 'at glistened like a pane o' polished glass,
An 'twas sent him by an ancient aunt who camped in Boston, Mass.
Harvard Pete had lived in Boston an was on to eastern style,
An the secint 'at he seen her people heard him yell a mile,
"I'm the only dude in Placer with an Easter hat in sight,
An I'll wear her Easter mornin, or ye'll know there's been a fight!"

Then the boys they held a meetin in McClosky Simpson's place
An opined an resoluted 'at 'twould be a derned disgrace
If 'twas known in Keno City 'at a man in Placer Flat
Had been gittin soft an dudish an was sportin sech a hat.
"Why," said Sleepy Dick, the miner, who was in partickler riled,
"Fust we know ef Pete ain't headed he'll be wearin shirts 'at's biled.
He'll be slingin on perfoom'ry an be usin toilet soap
An be wearin paper collars where he oughter wear a rope!"

Sleepy Dick an Shaky Dawson then was deputised to pay
Harvard Pete a call to turn him from the error o' his way.
"If ye wear her, Pete," they told him in a sort o' formal chat,
"Every man 'at lives in Placer will be out to shoot the hat!"
Harvard Pete was full o' ginger as a box o' ginger snaps—
He'd been loadin up his pistols an was puttin on the caps.
"Ye kin tell the boys I'll wear her"—them's the very words he said—
"Ye kin tell the boys I'll wear her of I wear her full o' lead!"

Sleepy Dick an Shaky Dawson, each with stern an anxious face,
Pulled their freight an soon reported at McClosky Simpson's place,
An the boys by resolution voted Pete his lead—a ton—
An adjourned while Shaky Dawson whistled "Johnny, Git Yer Gun."
Forty men on Easter mornin was on hand with guns to greet
Harvard Pete as he come waltsin, hat an all, along the street,
An as Tell once shot the apple from his kid in days o' yore
So the miners popped the shiny plug 'at Harvard Peter wore.

Billyum Tell was not more careful o' his kid the day his bow
Sent the arrow than the miners was o' Harvard Pete, ye know,
But mistakes will often happen when ye do yer level best—
Thirty bullets hit the Easter plug, but Pete he stopped the rest.
All the boys was awful sorry Pete was shot an couldn't live,
An they waited fer reproaches, but he hadn't none to give.
"Boys," he said, "I ax yer pardon; ye was right about the hat.
It was wrong fer me to force her on the camp o' Placer Flat.

"It was wrong for me to wear her as I done at any time.
It worse'n wrong to wear her—it was an atrocious crime.
Even eastern folks, I'm certain, would 'a' been as much provoked.
Had I wore her thus in Boston ten to one I would 'a' croaked.
I kin feel myself a-goin, boys; I'm gittin worse an worse,
An the day 'at I am planted put above my head this verse—
"'Harvard Peter wore an Easter plug, a stovepipe hat, good friend,
But he wore her with a flannel shirt an well deserved his end!'"
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

LAW OF SELF DEFENSE.

The English Theory of Where Protection Ends and Revenge Begins.

The right of self defense is by some old writers declared to be inherent in all men by the law of nature. Now, these "natural rights" are all very well, but they are not recognized by the law of Great Britain. It is the law that a man may defend himself, his wife, child or servant from physical aggression. He may also repel by force a forcible attack upon his property. When you, or your wife, child, or servant is attacked, or threatened with violence in such a manner as reasonably to lead you to believe that violence is about to be used, you may resist the aggressor. And as the best mode of resistance is very often to attack, you may lawfully follow the advice given by an old prize-fighter to a pupil—i. e., "get in the first whack."

BABY'S SKIN

Freed from all Eruptions, Made Pure and White by

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Mothers take a pride in having their Infants' skin of that delicate pink and white—soft as velvet. When torturing and disfiguring eruptions seize upon the little body, they want a remedy that will not disappoint nor fail. Time and again Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven itself a specific for all skin diseases to which babies are peculiarly subject.

MRS. CHAS. K. MOSS, of Berlin, Ont., had a little baby 6 months old, with itching sores on her body. Dr. Chase's Ointment cured her when everything else failed.

Another mother who holds Dr. Chase's Ointment in high esteem is MRS. JAS. BROWN, Molesworth, Ont. Her baby boy was covered all over the face, sides and hips with Eczema. The first application of the Ointment stopped the itching, and 3 boxes effected a complete cure.

These are but samples of the hundreds of mothers who are delighted with Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Price, 60 Cents a Box.

Pleasant Dreams.

It does not lie in the painter's fancy to imagine a prettier picture than that of a young girl, with lips luscious with the promise of love, half parted in the smiles of happy dreamland. The mind of happy maidenhood is a clear and polished mirror, which, when the wits go wandering into the ghostland of dreams, reflects the impressions of waking hours. If those impressions are pleasant and painless and happy she will smile in her sleep. If the impressions are those of a suffering woman, tortured with the special ailments to which the feminine organism is liable, the picture is spoiled by the lines of suffering and despondency. Maladies of this nature unfit a woman for joyous maidenhood and for capable motherhood. They incapacitate her to bear the burdens of life in any sphere of action. Household, marital and social duties alike are a burden to the woman who is constantly suffering from headaches, backaches, dragging sensations and weakening drains. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription positively, completely, unfailingly cures troubles of this nature. It imparts health, strength, vigor to the distinctly womanly organs. It fits for carefree, healthy maidenhood, happy wifehood and capable motherhood.

"I have a little step-daughter who had St. Vitus's Dance, which your medicine cured," writes Mrs. T. F. Bose, of Ford, Dinwiddie Co., Va. "I spent about twenty dollars for doctor's bills and medicine, and it did not do the child one cent's worth of good. We commenced giving Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and used three bottles of each, which cost only six dollars. Now the child is running around every where and is just as healthy as ever."

But self defense must be moderate. It must not be totally disproportioned to the attack. For instance, if a hulking ruffian runs at me with a knife, I may shoot him. But if he runs at me merely with his fists clinched, and I shoot him dead with a revolver, I shall probably be hanged by the neck. Not that the law expects a man to be calm and cool and collected in all circumstances. By no means. For instance, if the said burly ruffian rushes at me with clinched fists, evidently meaning mischief, and I hit him with a heavy stick on the back of the ear, I may kill him. But I shall not be hanged for that. I had a right to use the stick, and in the circumstances I am not to be supposed to be cool enough to aim for a spot not likely to be fatal. Again, self defense must not develop into revenge. Thus, if I am threatened with a knife, and by the timely display of a pistol I frighten my assailant so that he runs away, I must not shoot after him. If I do, I am just as liable as though he had never threatened me, because I shoot at him not in self defense, but by way of punishment or revenge.—Family Lawyer.

Cured after Years of Tedious but Fruitless Treatment—These are the Words of Rev. L. W. Showers of Elderton, Pa.

I am now using my fifth bottle and experience great improvement. The choking, abnormal beating and warm feeling and thumping have entirely disappeared. This remedy will save your life if you are a victim of heart disease." Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

Peterborough, Ont., April 26, 1898

Composed for the farewell gathering tendered to Mr. O. A. Morse, on the eve of his departure for Melbourne, Australia.

MYSTERIES.

(by H. I. Farnum.)

Unconscious of the good enwrought,
Unconscious of the ill;
With careless hand or anxious thought
We weave our pattern still.

We come and go, we meet and part,
We breathe the vernal air,
And ply the task with heavy heart
Or prospects bright and fair.

As in one garden blossoms shoot,
Fed by the self same shower;
Each from its own peculiar root
But every one a flower.

Some light, some dark, some high, some low,
Fragrance divinified—
So God has form'd, and bid us grow
And labour side by side.

If sphere be small, or sphere be great,
If work be more or less,
It matters not; the estimate
Is based on faithfulness.

The tinted petals of the rose,
Its aroma and grace,
In solitude and silence grows,
And grows, and grows, apace.

And, thus, the character upreare,
Of word and deed and thought,
Of all we see, or feel, or hear,
This fabric, rare, is wrought.

These silent forces, working still,
Do surely educate;
Yea, tip the scales for good or ill,
And cast the die of fate.

Then let the thoughts of God be thine,
His word thy counsellor;
On every heart the stamp Divine,
And each His follower.

So shall we meet to part no more,
No ocean roll between;
All anchor on another shore,
And see as we are seen.

Warm hearts poor words, we proffer these—
Memento of our "Band"—
Bear with you to the land
Of the Antipodes.

It would be well for our country if the valuable thoughts presented in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth stanzas were ever kept in mind by parents and educators, as well as by the pupils. As an experienced and successful teacher, the author has had abundant opportunity to observe the demonstration of those principles.

Man in Distress.

A man is fearfully suffering. A dull nothing of misery or muscle, or the acute pangs of neuralgia, toothache, or headache—life is misery. But Nerviline—nerve-pain cure—will relieve all these. Nerviline is powerful, penetrating, and effectual.

UNLCE SOL

Back to Town.

I say, Maria, after you gets the dishes washed we'll have a look 'round town.

All right, Sol, I'm agreed; I've been in the house all day and I think a walk would do me good.

I tell you, Maria, this Peterborough has grow'd wonderful; just to see it now and the difference with twenty years ago, when we went to Michigan with Tom.

Poor Tom! Our only boy, to think he'd go and enlist with them there Yankees to fight Spain, and then to send us back to Canada for fear we'd get blow'd up.

Oh! Sol, please don't talk about it any more, haven't I been fretting about him all day till I'm really sick.

Oh, well, Maria, never mind, we'll go out and have a walk, that'll brighten us up a bit.

Wait a minute, Sol, till I fix up my bonnet; I guess Peterborough isn't like your big American cities. Over there nobody seems to notice you, but here, I suppose, every person will gape at you to see what kind of hat you wear and if your dress is out to the latest style.

Never mind, Maria, as long's I think you're all right what need ye care? Come along and we'll go up the main street.

Say Sol, do tell me what those lead pipes are for.

What pipes, Maria?

Why, Sol, don't you see them up on those poles?

Oh, those are the "over head sewer" the town is putting in. You see Peterborough is bound not to be behind other towns, so she is tearing up all the streets and making the roads a perfect "Rocky Road to Dublin," so they say; and in the meantime are running special lines of her sewer down George street on poles.

Come now, Sol, you're trying to fool me.

Upon my honesty, Sol. Just step up a little to the market and I'll show you. Now where do the lead pipes run to, Maria?

Why, into those big iron pipes.

You're a brick, Maria. Now, where do the iron pipes run?

Under the ground, Sol.

Now, where would any human being suppose they'd run after that, Maria?

Oh, I suppose into the sewer,

That's correct, Maria. Your' a fine reasoner.

I do declare, Sol, I never heard tell o' the like before.

Look quick, Maria—there's a dividend.

A what Sol?

A div-i-dend!

Where is the dividend, Sol? I can't see any.

Why, in the street car, Maria.

Well now, Sol, I can't see any dividend, as you call it. I just see three people in it.

Well, I'm telling you, that's a dividend. If they carry two that pays expenses, so if they carry three there must be a dividend.

Say, old gal, I wonder what's the crowd over there, let's go and see. War news, eh!—Cubans bombarding the Canadian General Electric Works, and aided by a detachment of niggers drove out their task masters, the Spaniards. Took two white men prisoners, a boss and a slave. Captured two arc lights and a thumb-screw.

Well, well, what'll they be doing next. I wonder if poor Tom was in it, poor fellow!

Hold on, Sol, don't be in such a hurry. What are you running for?

Hurry up, quick, Maria, or you'll be snapped.

Who'll snap me, Sol, when you're with me.

Why, the Y.M.C.A. has a snap-shot club and they are 'round cracking at everything they see.

Well, well, Sol, what'll boys be up to next.

I really don't know, Maria. But what—what's this sign, let's read it—The Holy City—a grand Or-a-tor-i-o.

I wonder what that means, Sol.

Why, Maria, they're a going to play "Peterborough" on the stage. You know Peterborough is noted for having the greatest number of religions of any town in the Dominion.

Oh, Sol, do come home. I'm really afraid.

Alright, Maria, and some other night we'll have another look 'round town.

WEDDING BELLS.

O'REILLY-KENNEALLY.

A very interesting event took place at Keene on Tuesday morning, when Mr. Charles O'Reilly, of Norwood, and Miss Margaret Kennealy were married at the Roman Catholic church there, the nuptial knot being tied by Rev. J. O'Sullivan. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Joanna Kennealy, and the groom by Mr. P. J. O'Shea, of Asphodel. Mrs. Dr. Harrison, of Keene, very kindly assisted in the musical part of the ceremony. The happy event took place at ten o'clock and after the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Jas. Bowie, Lang, where a reception was held. Early in the evening Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly took their departure for their home in Norwood.

WILSON—SCRIVEN.

The Church of the Epiphany, Toronto, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday evening, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Effie, eldest daughter of Mr. Joseph Scriven, formerly of Havelock, to Mr. D. Wilson, of Havelock. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. Bernard Bryans. The bride was attired in a charming gown of silk grenadine, over white satin trimmed with lace and ribbons, and wore a wreath of natural orange blossoms, which was sent by a friend from California. She also carried a beautiful bouquet of roses and carnations. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Madge, and her cousin, Miss Nellie Scriven, of Kingston, both of whom were faultlessly clad in crepon, trimmed with lace and ribbons. They also carried bouquets of roses and carnations. Mr. P. G. Cromar performed the duties of groomsman. The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful pin, to the bridesmaids, Miss Madge and Miss Nellie, a gold chain and an opal ring respectively. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to the home of the bride's parents, Parkdale, where a sumptuous wedding breakfast awaited them. After all had partaken of these dainties, the young couple were accompanied by their friends to the Union Station, where they took the nine o'clock train to Havelock, where they will reside. Both the bride and groom are very popular, and they received many handsome presents from their numerous friends.

THE CROWNED LEADERS OF THE HAT TRADE

Have Outstripped All Previous Records.

We started in with the intention of making the spring season of 1898 one memorable in the Hat Department of our Big Store, and we have succeeded far beyond our expectations. For Elegance, Variety and Style our stock this year is beyond worded description, unapproachable by local competition and unexcellend by the other big stores in the larger cities; and LOW PRICES are the two words which stand out most prominently on the banner waving over this magnificent stock. Our combination of stores, with their capital combined, together with our Cash System, enables us to buy the best and most stylish shapes from the leading manufacturers, and sell them for less than others charge for what we call our inferior goods. Buy where you like and we can duplicate your purchase or give you a better quality of Hat, and you will have enough from the difference in the prices to purchase something else of half the value. An investigation of this year's handsome stock will convince you that these are unvarnished facts. Come in and see us, is worth your while to view the stock.

APRIL'S BUSINESS WAS GREAT!

It has passed into history as a record breaker.

It wasn't necessary either to shout "Crowds! Crowds!" as some do, when the crowds, so far as they are concerned, are in the street.

We've simply never had a better April in business. It serves to show how firmly imbedded in the hearts of the people the Golden Lion is, and strengthens the conviction that no other house is in a position to underbuy or undersell this one.

Larger than ever before and fuller is this old store, and it would be hard to find any article that is NOT LOWER IN PRICE than it used to be.

The expectation of our customers to find the LOWEST PRICES here must not be disappointed. Whether we lose or make, every change in values will be registered on the goods here.

The Sensational Sale

... OF THE ...

W. W. JOHNSTON STOCK

In the Crystal Block

Has created an epedemic of enthusiasm. Never saw anything like it! It's the talk of the town—indicates the approval of satisfied shoppers at this phenomenal sale. Of course it must go on now LIVELIER THAN EVER.

The store is all alive with quick movement, taxing the capacity of our large staff of salesmen to keep up with their work.

Why?

Because the goods we want to sell are the goods you want to buy. Just when you need these goods most we sell them cheapest. And the entire stock is offered at prices that cannot, under any circumstances, be equalled elsewhere.

HALF PRICE IS A BIG WORD

But we do as we advertise—we tell the plain truth and furnish the proof.

It's a Sale for the masses—regardless of cost or value.

We want to make the Second Week of this sale Eclipse the First.

Lucky that Mr. Fair got this stock, and that he wasn't a monopolist, or you could never get such snaps at this sale of the W. W. JOHNSTON stock, Crystal Block.

We'd Rather Miss Sales Than Miss Fits

Built - - TO - - Order

That's the way you want your Clothes made. No two are built alike, hence the impossibility of any man being fitted properly except with a Suit made to order.

Who wants to wear cloths that would fit somebody else better? Who wants to wear a suit that looks as though he swapped it with somebody else, when we can fit him to a nicety at $13, $14, $15.

We are anxious to show you that we can give you as good a fit, finish and workmanship as you can get in any exclusive merchant tailor's—don't care where he lives.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my thanks for your cheque just handed to me, for $3,201.96, in settlement of my $3,500 Fifteen Year Endowment Policy in your Company. Such a result as this, after the risk on my life has been carried for fifteen years, beginning from forty-five years of age, argues one thing strongly, namely, that the management of the North American Life must be in competent hands. The other options you have offered me, viz.: a Paid-up Life policy for $3310.00, or a Life Annuity for $401.20, are, I presume, equally liberal, and it affords me much pleasure to recommend your Company to my friends or any one desiring insurance.

BATTLE OF THE PHILIPPINES.

The Maria Christina Burned and the Don Juan de Austria Blown Up The Latter's Commander, Capt. Cadarso, Killed Spain's War Minister Could Hardly Control Himself The Details.

Madrid, May 2.—Advices from Manila say the American squadron under Commander Dewey appeared off the Bay of Manila at 5 o'clock Sunday morning, and opened a strong cannonade against the Spanish squadron and forts protecting the harbor. The Spanish second-class cruiser Don Juan de Austria was severely damaged, and her commander was killed. Another Spanish vessel was burned. The American squadron retired, having also sustained severe damage. A second naval engagement followed, in which the American squadron suffered considerable loss and the Spanish warships Mindanao and Hilloa were damaged.

London Has the News.

London, May 2.—The second section of the Madrid despatch reporting the engagement off Manila Bay has just reached here at midnight on Sunday. It shows that there was serious fighting off Cavite.

Admiral Bermejo, according to the despatch, has wired congratulations to the Spanish navy on the behavior of warships against superior forces.

A VICTORY FOR SPAIN.

The Spanish Minister of Marine Could Hardly Restrain Himself.

Madrid, May 2.—Admiral Bermejo, Minister of Marine, joined the Cabinet Council last evening and informed his colleagues that the Spanish forces had gained a victory in the Philippines. He asserted that he found difficulty in restraining his unusual emotions.

The official despatch does not mention the destruction of any American vessel, although it says that the United States squadron finally cast anchor in the bay behind the foreign merchantmen.

Description of the Burned Vessels.

The Reina Maria Christina was a steel cruiser of 3,520 tons and 3,970 indicated horse-power. She was about 282 feet long; she was built at Ferrol in 1885, and carried 6.2 inch Honsoria guns, two 3.7 inch guns, two 2 inch quick-firers, six 3 pounders and two Maxim guns.

The cruiser Castilla was a wooden vessel of 3,342 tons and was 246 feet long. Her indicated horse-power was 4,400. She was built in 1881 at Cadiz. Her armament consisted of four 5.9 inch Krupp guns, two 4.7 inch, two 3.7 inch, four 3.9 inch, eight quick-firing and two Maxim guns.

DETAILS OF THE MEETING.

The Spanish Official Account Makes Admissions That Indicate That the U. S. Had a Partial Victory.

Madrid, May 2.—The following is the text of official despatch from the Governor-General of the Philippines to the Minister of War, Lieut.-Gen. Correa, as to the engagement off Manila:

"Saturday night, April 30, the batteries at the entrance to the port announced the arrival of the enemy's squadron, forcing a passage under the obscurity of the night. At daybreak the enemy took up positions, opening with a strong fire against Fort Cavite and the arsenal.

"Our fleet engaged the enemy in a brilliant combat, protected by the Cavite and Manila forts. They obliged the enemy, with heavy loss, to manoeuvre repeatedly. At 9 o'clock the American squadron took refuge behind the foreign merchant shipping, on the east side of the bay.

"Our fleet, considering the enemy's superiority, naturally suffered a severe loss. The Maria Christina is on fire, and another ship, believed to be the Don Juan de Austria, was blown up.

"There was considerable loss of life. Captain Cadarso, commanding the Maria Christina, is among the killed. I cannot now give further details. The spirit of the navy and volunteers is excellent."

A Complete Spanish Defeat.

Lisbon, May 2.—Reliable despatches received here state that the Spanish fleet was completely defeated off Cavite.

Has Transferred His Flag.

Madrid, May 2.—Late official telegrams say Admiral Montejo has transferred his flag to the cruiser Isla de Cuba from the cruiser Reina Maria Christina, which is completely burnt. The Spanish cruiser Castilla was also burnt. The other ships retired from the combat, some being sunk to avoid their falling into the enemy's hands. Cabinet Ministers speak of "serious but honorable losses."

ALL QUIET AT MADRID.

A Festival Being Organized to Celebrate Some Old Victories.

Madrid, May 2.—All is quiet here, but the festival organized for to-day promises to be an unusual demonstration, being the anniversary both of the liberation of Spain from France and of the naval "victory" of Spain at Callao, Peru, in 1866. The Mayor of Madrid has issued a manifesto, inviting all the inhabitants of this city to participate in the celebration.

He says: "Spain is engaged in a struggle to repel the unjustifiable attempts of the Yankees to rob her of her rights in Cuba, but the Yankees will not find it an easy task to conquer a race whose whole history during twenty centuries has been notable only for warlike exploits."

CIENFUEGOS BOMBARDED.

The American Warship Driven Off by Three Spanish Gunboats.

Madrid, May 2.—An official despatch from Havana dated yesterday says: "An American ship has bombarded a battery at the entrance of Cienfuegos, but it was driven off by three of our gunboats, which put out of the harbor in another direction. We sustained some slight damage. Other men-of-war have threatened the Mariel coast. Troops have gone to its defence."

A despatch from Havana says: "Many Cubans are offering their services to the Spaniards to 'repel the American attacks,' and it is added that they will be incorporated into a Cuban brigade, which is now being formed."

An Unverified Report.

Madrid, May 2.—A report, which could not be verified, was in circulation here Sunday afternoon, to the effect that the British Channel squadron is going to the Canary Islands.

It is reported that a new Spanish ironclad, which is being fitted out at Carthagena, will soon join the Spanish squadron at Cadiz.

Further Details.

Madrid, May 2.—El Heraldo de Madrid says that Admiral Montejo changed his flagship during the engagement or between the two encounters in order to better direct the manoeuvres. In this way he escaped the fate of the commander of the Reina Maria Christina.

The second engagement, according to El Heraldo, was apparently begun by the Americans after landing their wounded on the west side of the bay. In the latter engagement the Spanish Mindanao and Ulloa suffered heavily.

The Truth Dawning.

The town is greatly excited by the serious news from the Philippines, and there is an immense gathering in the Calle de Sevilla. The civil guards on horseback were called out to preserve order and all precautions have been taken. There is much muttering, but, up to the present, nothing more serious has occurred.

Blanco Will Defend Desperately.

London, May 2.—The Havana correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing on April 26, says Captain-General Blanco has determined upon a desperate defence of Havana. In Matanzas 10,000 soldiers are engaged day and night in throwing up earthworks and encompassing the entire city in a segment of a great circle.

AT THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

Affairs Are in a Terrible State Between a Shortness of Food and Active Native Insurgents.

Shanghai, May 2.—Despatches received from Manila by the Shanghai Gazette say the capital of the Philippine Islands is short of food and ammunition, and that the conditions prevailing have been made worse by the flocking into Manila of the Spaniards from the provinces. It is added that the natives are already looting and killing in the provinces, Spanish women and children being included in the victims. It is further asserted that the priests are the special objects of the natives' vengeance, about a dozen priests having been killed during the past week.

Burying Their Valuables.

The Manila correspondent of the Shanghai Gazette says it is considered certain the insurgents will sack the city when the United States fleet appears. People are burying their valuables. The despatches allege that the Spaniards at Manila are almost unprepared to withstand an attack upon the part of the United States fleet, claiming that no defences, in addition to the recently laid harbor mines, exist, except obsolete artillery. The natives, it appears, are gathering on the Bulacan coasts, expecting the arrival of the insurgent leaders.

Famine Prices Prevail.

Famine prices for food are said to prevail at Manila, and, it is claimed, the Spanish authorities are maintaining order with difficulty. People are burying their valuables to prevent their seizure by the insurgents or Americans. The military authorities are endeavoring to put a bold front on the situation, but, the Manila correspondent of the Shanghai Gazette asserts, it is considered certain that the insurgents will sack the city when the United States fleet appears, not discriminating between Spaniards and other foreigners.

Massacre Feared at Manila.

Hong-Kong, May 2.—Advices from Manila say a massacre there is feared. The British Consul has cabled for a warship.

Queen Appeals to the Czar.

London, May 2.—The Berlin correspondent of the Sunday Special asserts that the Queen Regent of Spain has appealed to the Czar, through Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, to assist Spain in her conflict with the United States. Emperor Nicholas replied directly to the Queen Regent, assuring her of his deepest sympathy with Spain, on which country the United States has forced war, stating, however, that he does not consider matters yet ripe for Russian diplomacy or military intervention, but that he will do whatever is possible at the proper time.

Will Germany Help Spain?

Madrid, May 2.—It is pointed out here that since Germany has made no declaration of neutrality, German factories are not precluded from supplying Spain with war materials.

It is reported that the Spanish Government has purchased two foreign warships; but no details regarding the newly-acquired vessels are obtainable.

To Bombard an American Port.

Paris, May 2.—The Eclair says: "Commercial Europe, especially Great Britain, could not tolerate the Americans' capture of Las Palmas."

Continuing, the Eclair remarks: "An autonomist deputy from Havana to the Spanish Chamber, says the Spanish squadron which has just left St. Vincent contemplates the bombardment of an American port. It is not likely that there will be a fight in Cuban waters, Havana being amply fortified to resist the American fleet."

Coal Schooner Liberated.

London, May 2.—Advices from Iloilo say that the cargo of coal of the American barque Saranac, which was captured at that place by the Spanish gun boat El Cano, has been liberated.

BULLETIN FROM HAWARDEN.

Mr. Gladstone's Local Malady Making a Slow Advance—Easier Sunday.

London, May 2.—The following bulletin as to Mr. Gladstone's condition was posted a Hawarden Sunday evening: "There has been no material change in Mr. Gladstone's condition since last Sunday. There is a slow advance in the local malady, and he has at times considerable pain, but he has felt easier this afternoon."

FATAL RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

Frightful Accident at Lundy's Crossing on the Northern Railway Four Adults Killed and Baby Injured.

Newmarket, Ont., May 2.—An empty gravel train from Toronto passed through Newmarket about 7 o'clock Saturday evening and when about two miles north of here, at Lundy's Crossing, it struck a rig containing two men and two married women, one of whom had a child with her. The men and women were instantly killed, but the child escaped with a big gash in its head and may recover. The names of the parties: William Peters, Edward Linstead, Mrs Walter York and Mrs. Miller. They all live on farms some miles northeast of Queensville. The bodies were brought to the station here in the caboose of the gravel train. They all seem to have been struck on the head. The rig was wrecked, but the horse escaped with only a slight scratch on its hind leg.

An inquest will be held.

Another Protest This Makes 65.

Toronto, May 2.—A protest against the return of J. T. Garrow for West Huron was filed with Registrar Grant of the Court of Appeal on Saturday. Deputy-Returning Officer Alexander L. Gibson is made a co-respondent on a general charge of illegal conduct, and on a specific charge of having placed Nixon Sturdy, a deputy-returning officer, in an inconvenient polling booth.

A motion was made on Saturday before the Master-in-Chambers, G. W. D. McPherson, to set aside the protest against the election of C. B. Powell in Ottawa, on the ground that notice of presentation was not given.

Rough on New York Workmen.

New York, May 2.—A meeting of the contractors engaged on city work was held and they decided, in self-defence, to suspend operations on practically all public works, thus throwing about 40,000 men out of employment. This action is the result of the recent decision of Comptroller Coler that the city has largely exceeded its debt limit, and that no funds will be available for the completion of much work now under contract.

Salisbury in London.

London, May 2.—Lord Salisbury returned to London yesterday afternoon. He appeared bronzed and robust and has never looked better.

Killed at Port Credit.

Port Credit, May 2.—Section Foreman Rogers of the G.T.R. at this place was struck and instantly killed on Saturday night by the C.P.R. train from Hamilton, due in Toronto at 9.05, and which passes Port Credit shortly after 8 o'clock. Rogers had, it is said, been drinking heavily during the week, and on Saturday quit work at 4.30, but did not go home. He is stated to have been the worse for liquor when killed. The body was badly mangled.

Won't Get the Extra Three Hours.

Toronto, May 2.—Word reached here on Saturday morning that the Government had refused the request of the Canadian Marine Association to have the canals close at 6 o'clock Sunday morning, and open again at 9 o'clock. At present they open three hours later.

The Clipper Gap Powder Works, seven miles from Auburn, Cal., were blown up Sunday evening. It is supposed that lightning caused the explosion.

THE "GOLD TRAIN."

It Was an Old Lady who Gave the Name.

It is an old-established custom amongst many railway companies to give distinctive names to their principal trains, which are not only peculiarly suggestive to the travelling public, but appropriately characteristic of their peculiar "runs." In the old country, for instance, is the "Irish Mail," and the "Flying Scotchman" is the only name by which the fast express between London and Edinburg has been known for year. In the United States the practice is widespread, and the "Empire State," "Cannon Ball," "Black Diamond" and "Fast Mail" are amongst the many train titles which are familiar to travellers. In Canada, Nova Scotia has the "Flying Bluenose," and New Brunswick its "Flying Yankee," which speeds between St. John and Boston.

The latest train christening is that of the Canadian Pacific's westbound transcontinental express, which is now known as the "Gold Train"—a peculiarly appropriate name, for since the beginning of the great rush to the Klondike this train, daily crowded with gold-seekers, frequently pulls out in two, three, four and even as many as five sections. Windsor street station presents an unusually animated scene now-a-days in consequence, all sorts and conditions of men, women and children gathering to witness the departure of the "Gold Train," and to bid good-bye and wish good luck to the fortune-hunters who represent pretty nearly every nationality and all walks in life.

It was on one of these occasions that No. 1 received its auriferous cognomen. An old lady bustled in, evidently in search of some departing friend, and enquired of an official "Has the Gold Train gone yet?"

"Gold Train"—happy thought—the name stuck. The old lady had unconsciously hit upon a name far more expressive than that which perhaps many a railway magnate would have cudgelled his brains over in vain to evolve; and the "Gold Train" will ever remain a prominent feature of the Canadian Pacific service while the powerful magnetism of the illimitable gold fields of the far Canadian West remains undiminished.—Montreal Herald, April 13th, 1898.

APSLEY.

Council Meeting.

From Our Own Correspondent.

A meeting of the municipal council of Burleigh and Anstruther was held in the town hall on Saturday, April 23rd, when all the members were present—Wm Gallon, reeve, in the chair, Councillors G Matthews, Wm Wilson, D Brown, T Dean. The minutes of former meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr T Eastland waited on council in regard to repairs to bridge over Eel's creek, asking council to inspect bridge. Inspection being made, it was decided to leave it in the hands of our county councillor, Mr T Eastland, to make the necessary repairs.

Moved by Messrs Wilson and Brown, that the collector be furnished with a new tax bill for J J Crowe.—Carried.

Mr. Cowley waited on council and and informed them that he had worked out his taxes on road, but W McKay had not done so and asked for future grant.

Moved by Messrs Matthews and Brown, that the clerk notify Wm McKay to do the work at once or collector would be instructed to collect the full amount of taxes.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs Tean and Wilson, that the clerk notify the County treasurer to remove all charges from his books against Islands Nos. 14 and 15 Stony Lake, assessed to E. H. Strickland.—Carried.

Moved by Mr Wilson, seconded by D Brown, that owing to the late winter having broken up so much earlier than usual this year, that it is the opinion of this council that the Ontario Government should be asked, through our member, Mr. Thos Blezard, to have the monies granted for the building and repairs of roads in this municipality expended earlier this season than hitherto has been done, and that the road commissioners be empowered to commence work not later than May 24th, which would prove more beneficial to the roads, and would also give the settlers all a chance to do the work between seeding time and the hay harvest. And that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Mr. Blezard for his consideration and action in the matter.

Council adjourned until Monday, May 30th, when they will meet as a Court of Revision on the assessment roll.

Mr. P. Shewen has discovered a vein of gold bearing quarts with the gold ore plainly visible to the naked eye. This will be a new "Klondyke" discovered in North Peterborough yet. Then perhaps we will get a railroad.

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence. "Black Death" was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than any of these. It is so common that nine-tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing constipation. It makes people listless, causes dizziness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath and distress after eating. The little help needed is furnished by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative and two a mild catharic. Once used, always in favour. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well. FOR A TRADE TREATY

The International Conference Shortly to Be Held at Ottawa.

PRELIMINARY ARRANGEMENTS.

Sir Louis Davies Goes to Washington This Week to Settle Them With Sir Julian Pauncefote—The Date Also to Be Fixed—General News From Ottawa.

Ottawa, May 2.—Progress has been made with the preliminary arrangements for the coming Ottawa conference between representatives from Great Britain, Canada and the United States for an arbitration treaty on trade, fishery and others; so much so that Sir Louis Davies goes to Washington this week to talk the matter over with Sir Julian Pauncefote, and to aid in fixing a date for the conference to commence.

To Settle Vexed Questions.

Advices received by the Government state that Major Walsh, Administrator of the Yukon, is on his way to Ottawa and may be expected here in about three weeks. It is said he is coming east to consult with the Government in regard to vexed questions of international import.

The Canadian team for the Bisley meeting will sail from Montreal on Saturday, June 18, on the R. M. S. Parisian. Only one of the twenty men on the list has dropped out. He is Lieut. Thomas Michell of the 18th of Hamilton.

Masters and Mates.

The Imperial Board of Trade has adopted additional rules for governing examinations for certificates of competency to masters and mates of sea-going vessels. These rules will also apply to Canadian examination. An examination of candidates for certificates as Dominion land surveyors is to be held at Victoria on June 20.

The Bisley Team.

Mr. C. H. Lugrin, editor of the Victoria Colonist, has instructed his solicitor to begin proceedings, both civil and criminal, against Senator Macdonald, T. L. Graham, editor of the Victoria Times, the Times Publishing Company, and the Ottawa Citizen for libel, on account of the publication of statements to the effect that he was dismissed from the Klondike Mining, Trading & Transport Corporation, of which Sir Charles Tupper is managing director in Canada.

Personal and General.

With the definite acceptance of the 8th Royal Rifles of Quebec, and the 57th Battalion of Peterboro, to Ottawa's invitation to join in our proposed Queen's birthday celebration, and the strong likelihood of other corps who have not yet been heard from, answering in the affirmative, the success of the proposed field day and review appears assured.

The Bar Association meets in Ottawa this year, May 18 and 19 being the dates fixed for the gathering. The local bar will entertain the visitors.

Mr. John Kerr, postmaster of Hull, is dead. He had held the position for 18 years.

The next militia general order will contain the appointment of Lieut.-Col. White as honorary lieut.-colonel of the 43rd Battalion.

Sir Louis Davies, while endeavoring to learn the art of riding the silent steed on Metcalfe street, Ottawa, was thrown from the wheel and had his nasal organ somewhat damaged.

About fifty delegates are expected to be present at the convention of the National Council of Women, commencing at Ottawa on the 16th.

The return of Mr. McLellan, M.P. for West Prince, was gazetted Saturday.

The Inland Revenue Department will receive tenders for the privilege of ferrying between Queenston and Lewiston up to noon of Monday, May 16.

The Marine Department has issued a notice calling attention to the new aids to navigation in the entrance to Parry Sound.

May Day celebration on Saturday at Government House was possibly one of the most unique, certainly it was one of the prettiest, open-air entertainments ever given in Ottawa, the company comparing favorably with the famous garden party on Parliament Hill to the colonial delegates of 1893.

News of Great Wealth.

Hamilton, May 2.—The mad race for easily-acquired wealth is kept up by various Hamiltonians. Not so long ago Mr. John Ira Flatt was about sure he had $700,000 in the palm of his hand, but the bubble soon burst. Now, another batch of people belonging to Hamilton and other parts of Ontario have got what they think is a pretty strong string on $25,000,000. This snug little sum is said to be lying in the Bank of England awaiting the heirs of one estimable but very much dead admiral named Purvis, a Scotchman. Among those who consider themselves entitled to a slice of the fortune are: Mrs. Blain of Galt; Wm. Webb, Galt; Mrs. Staunton, Barrie; Mrs. McKay, Hamilton, and families named Lawrason of Galt and Paris. Representatives of these and other claimants have met to map out a course of action to acquire Admiral Purvis' enormous wealth.

Poisonous Candy Thrown to a Child.

Toronto, May 2.—The 4-year old daughter of Mr. C. L. Winters of 31 Calendar street had a very painful experience on Friday afternoon, and circumstances have led Mr. Winters to place the case in the hands of the police.

It appears, while the child was playing in the back yard, a small round ball of some material that exactly resembled cream candy, was thrown over the neighboring fence. The child naturally picked it up and conveyed it to her mouth, with the result that her fingers, lips and the interior of her mouth were terribly burned from some acid in the mixture. Mr. Winters knows of no reason why such a thing should be done maliciously, but he is having the case looked into.

The child at present is doing well under medical care.

FIERCE NAVAL FIGHT

Precipitated by an Attack on Fort Cavite, Philippines.

HEAVY LOSSES ON BOTH SIDES.

The Spaniards Fought Bravely and Compelled the American Fleet to Retire. Nevertheless at Least Half Victory Rests With the United States—Spanish Spy Shot—General War News.

New York, May 2.—A London special says: News comes from Madrid that a fierce battle has been fought at the Philippines between Admiral Dewey's fleet and the Spanish ships and forts. The American ships arrived off Cavite at daylight Sunday, and Dewey immediately opened fire on the Spanish vessels and forts. The cannonade is described as having been terrific. The Spaniards fought bravely, according to the report, and compelled the American fleet to retire. Admiral Dewey renewed the attack and had several ships disabled. The Spaniards admit that four of their ships were badly damaged. A Spanish gunboat was struck and the captain killed.

The Spanish admission of loss is regarded by naval men as an indication that Dewey has won a great victory. The Spaniards control the cable from Manila.

VICTORY FOR U. S.

Is What It Appears to Have Been for the American Fleet, According to the Later Reports.

New York, May 2.—A London special says: Further reports from Madrid admits that Admiral Dewey landed his men under a strong guard after the first engagement was fought, preparatory to making a combined land and naval attack on the ports. The Spaniards admit that the American ships are now anchored together inside the bay, and, although some are damaged, none are badly disabled. The Spanish report says five of their ships were badly damaged, and says the American fleet was compelled to retire. The Spanish boats sought refuge under the guns of the Cavite forts.

The Castolia was burned to the water's edge. Several of the Spanish fleet were sunk to prevent them falling into the hands of the Americans.

Only Half a Victory.

London, May 2.—While it is quite clear that the Spanish squadron has suffere a crushing defeat, the despatches leave unclear the intensely interesting question whether the American squadron has suffered material damage.

All news thus far comes from Spanish sources, but it seems evident that Commodore Dewey has not captured Manila. Unless he is able to make another attack and capture the town, he will be in an awkard position, having no base upon which to retire and refit. Probably, therefore, the United States squdaron will be obliged to make for San Francisco, as the entrance to Manila Bay was heavily mined with torpedoes.

Commodore Dewey displayed great pluck and daring in making for the inner harbor.

Probabilities point in the direction of the second engagement having occurred through the Spaniards trying to prevent the landing of the American wounded.

Reliable details cannot be had until Commodore Dewey is able to communicate with Hong-Kong. There is, however, a suspicious frankness about the Spanish despatches that savors of a desire to break unpleasant news to the Spaniards. It is not unlikely, therefore, that Commodore Dewey may be able to renew the attack.

Washington Rejoiced.

Washington, May 2.—Washington is rejoiced to-night. Not since the dark days of the great civil conflict of a third of a century ago have the people of this city been so profoundly moved by war news as they were last evening. The first battle of the Hispano-American war has been fought and victory lies with Commodore Dewey's squadron. That set the people of Washington almost in a frenzy of enthusiastic rejoicing.

SPANISH SPY SHOT.

The Spaniard Who Tried to Blow Up the Puritan Fails to Twelve Bullets.

New York, May 2.—A Key West special says: Jose Yglesias, the Spanish spy who plotted to blow up the Puritan, was condemned to death by a drumhead court martial and shot yesterday at sunset. Twelve bullets were fired into his body.

Matanzas to Be Attacked Again.

Atlanta, Ga., May 2.—The Journal's correspondent with the fleet telegraphs that an officer of the Puritan says Matanzas is to be attacked again Tuesday, and a Red Cross steamer, with provisions, landed immediately thereafter; and it is also stated from another source that Havana will be shelled at the same time.

Another Capture.

Key West, Fla., May 2.—The Government tug Leyden brought in yesterday the small Spanish schooner Mascota, captured near Havana yesterday by the torpedo boat Foote. She is a small coaster, was loaded with fruit and was bound for Havana.

U. S. Legation Guarded.

Montevideo, Uruguay, May 2.—The United States Legation has been placed under guard. The United States Minister, Mr. William R Finch, has received a number of threatening letters from people who sympathize with the Spaniards.

Key West Closed at Night.

Key West, Fla., May 2.—Twelve hundred Cubans will be equipped by the United States and transported to Cuba immediately.

Beginning to-night, this port will be closed to all incoming vessels from 8 o'clock in the evening until daylight.

The Oregon at Rio Janeiro.

Rio Janeiro, May 2.—The first-class battleship Oregon, Captain Clark commanding, has arrived here.

Horrors at Manzanillo.

New York, May 2.—A Kingston special says: Pestilence and famine are reported prevalent at Manzanillo. The prisons are filled with Cubans and Spanish officers are inciting to violence. Refugees are fleeing to Jamaica, many destitute. The lives of Americans are in danger. The British Consul at Cienfuegos is trying to secure a steamer to have them removed.

Salem, Mass., to Be Attacked.

New York, May 2.—A Washington special says: The Government has reason to believe that if the Spanish fleet crosses the Atlantic one of the first places attacked will be Salem, Mass., where nearly 70,000 tons of coal is stored. Salem harbor is practically unprotected.

THE PARIS COMES IN.

She Experienced Heavy Weather, But Never Had a Sight of the Spaniards—President McKinley Gratified.

New York, May 2.—The American line steamer Paris arrived Saturday morning from Southampton, after a rough winter passage of 7 days 17 hours and 45 minutes, with nine saloon, 43 second cabin and 90 steerage passengers. The Paris left Southampton at 2.05 p.m., April 22, passing Hurst Castle at 3.25 p.m. and the Lizard at 11.47 at night. After clearing the land Captain Watkins shaped his course about north, and after a run of thirty miles headed for home, keeping a distance of about 30 miles from the usual course taken in previous trips. Captain Watkins had no fear that a Spanish war vessel would catch the fleet Paris after she got sea room, but it was thought possible that some craft of the enemy might be lurking in the vicinity of the Channel or the neighborhood of the Irish coast to waylay the American craft. At night every light on board of the Paris was extinguished and headlights were covered. Strict watch was maintained to detect the approach of vessels. Leaving the Lizard with the wind southeast, the weather became overcast and a long westerly swell prevailed. This condition of weather continued until the wind became heavy, and commencing the 28rd increased to a gale. Rough sea with fog, rain and generally thick weather prevailed. On the American coast she met a heavy northeast gale with high head seas.

The Paris, in addition to her 160 passengers, brought 16 cases of munitions of war and a small quantity of miscellaneous merchandise. The Paris entered the Narrows through the field of mines and torpedoes at 6.30 o'clock, and was saluted by steam whistles of passing craft as she went to her dock. It is expected that the Paris will immediately discharge her cargo and will be received by the naval authorities, when her name will be changed to "Yale."

The President Is Pleased.

Washington, May 2.—The President read with keen interest the Associated Press dispatches Saturday announcing the arrival of the Paris at New York and expressed considerable relief that the Atlantic liner was safe in port.

Insurgents Gathering.

Hong-Kong, May 2.—Letters to the insurgent Junta here assert that the Philippine insurgents are occupying all the hills surrounding Manila in a radius of ten to twenty miles, awaiting the arrival of the United States fleet under Commodore Dewey.

Philippines Want Independence.

London, May 2.—A Hong-Kong despatch to the Evening News says the Philippine insurgents have submitted a scheme for independence to Commodore Dewey.

Spanish Schooner Scuttled.

Hong-Kong, May 2.—The Spanish cruiser Castella, it is announced, has been scuttled near the entrance of Manila Bay.

Cubans Gone to Fight.

New York, May 2.—About 180 Cubans left the Junta here to join the United States troops at Tampa.

DOCTORS COULDN'T CURE.

But Mrs. Rowe was Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Woodstock, May 2—(Special) Woodstock ladies are among the healthiest and prettiest in Canada. When therefore it became known that one of them, Mrs. W. Rowe, was suffering, and had suffered for twelve years, with that curse of womankind—Female Weakness—aggravated by Kidney and Liver Disease, the sympathy of her sisters was freely given her.

The female population of Woodstock are now overjoyed over Mrs. Rowe's recovery. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it.

The doctor told Mrs. Rowe she could never be cured.

Different "remedies" failed to help her.

A few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her completely.

HARCOURT AFTER SALISBURY.

The Liberal Leader Says the "Open Door" Policy Was a Failure.

London, April 30.—The Liberal leader, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the former Chancellor of the Exchequer, arraigned the policy of the Marquis of Salisbury in the far East in the House of Commons last evening, pointing out the collapse of his "open door" policy through Germany obtaining preferential privileges on the Shan-Tung Peninsula, while Great Britain, he added, had made an undignified retreat in the Ta-Lien-Wan affair. Germany and Russia, the speaker contended, had both scored at the expense of Great Britain.

The Liberal leader was listened to by a full House, and great interest is attached to the debate, in view of the intense dissatisfaction felt at the Government's policy among its own followers and by the Conservative newspapers.

In reply to Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Mr. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury, Government leader in the House and Acting Foreign Secretary, denied that there had been violation of the treaty of Tien-Tsin. He claimed that throughout the length and breadth of China Britishers had equal rights with other nations. England, he declared, took Wei-Hai-Wei for military and diplomatic reasons, and without reference to considerations of trade and commerce. Mr. Balfour contended that Russia, instead of being in a better, was in a worse position in China than she was seven months ago.

Sir Charles Dilke, Radical member for the Forest of Dean, and others spoke. The debate was finally adjourned.

A Brilliant Record.

It affords the EXAMINER much pleasure to note the fact that among the names of the graduates in art who were invested at McGill University convocation, appears that of Miss Violet Dover, daughter of Mr. Fred Dover, Ashburnham. Miss Dover passed her examination for her degree of B.A. with distinguished success. She took first class in Mathematics and a very high stand in Natural Science. Miss Dover, with justifiable pride, counts amongst her most valued possessions the ermine hood of the B.A. degree and a case of several yards of parchment. She received her preliminary education at the Collegiate Institute, tempore Mr. Long, and was coached for matriculation by the late Mr. F. J. Lynch. Her entire university course was very successful. She passed all the intermediate examinations with great credit. Miss Dover is now prepared to coach pupils in all ordinary subjects, her specialties being natural science. She is worthy of great credit for the energy and application that have guided her fine natural abilities to the satisfactory success she has achieved.

TWO ACCIDENTS.

In Which a Couple of Mr. J. J. Turner's Sons Figure.

On Saturday evening when driving a colt down George street, just this side of the C.P.R. track, the king-bolt came out of a phaeton in which Achilles Turner was seated, throwing him out and giving the horse its liberty with just a pair of wheels behind him. It ran across the track and turned into the freight yards just south of the sheds where it was caught. No damage was done the rig, but Achilles was so much shaken up that he is confined to his bed to-day.

Yesterday afternoon as Webber Turner, a young son of Mr. J. J. Turner, was returning from St. Luke's church Sunday school, he fell from his bicycle while coasting down the Ashburnham hill, and badly sprained his wrist.

ACCIDENT TO MR. R. C. M'HARRIE.

The Local Manager of the Bank of Commerce has a Leg Broken.

While wheeling on Sherbourne, near Bloor, in Toronto, last evening about 8.30, Mr. R. C. McHarrie, manager of the Bank of Commerce, Peterborough, was unfortunate enough to meet with a severe accident.

In turning off the railway track to avoid a car, his wheel slipped on the wet pavement, and he fell heavily, breaking both bones of the left leg, a few inches above the ankle.

Mr. McHarrie was taken in the ambulance to the General Hospital.

FELL INTO THE CANAL.

A Driver and his Team Go Over an Embankment.

On Friday afternoon while Mr. John Craig, of Ashburnham, was teaming on the Corry & Laverdure section of the canal, near Ludgate's, he met with an accident from which his escape from serious injury was most miraculous.

As he was nearing the dump with his load, the team had to go through a pitch-hole of considerable depth, close to the edge of the path. In some way at this juncture the waggon overbalanced and went rolling down the bank with the driver and team.

Mr. Craig was so badly shaken up that he has been confined to his bed since, but fortunately no bones were broken. The horses, it is understood, were severely injured by the fall.

—The canal contractors are experiencing considerable difficulty at the site of the entrance of the canal to the Little Lake. At this place a coffer dam has been built out into the lake a short distance, and efforts have repeatedly been made by several steam pumps to empty the water so that work at the excavation for the lock chamber could be proceeded with. Owing to the porous nature of the sandy soil and leaks in the dam the water has filtered in as fast as it was pumped out. A large centrifugal pump worked by the engine of the steam shovel is now being placed in position, and is expected to succeed where the other have failed.

A FESTAL SERVICE AT ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

BISHOP O'CONNOR'S EIGHTH ANNIVERSARY.

His Lordship Celebrated Pontifical High Mass—Dr. Teefy's Eloquent Sermon—The Bishop's Thankfulness—An Auspicious Occasion.

Yesterday, Sunday, the first day of the month of May, was the eighth anniversary of the consecration of Rt. Rev. R. A. O'Connor, D.D., as third Bishop of the Diocese of Peterborough, and the occasion was celebrated with the ecclesiastical pomp and circumstances becoming the occasion. At 10.30 o'clock the beautiful church of St. Peter's was filled with a large congregation, and the church itself was in festal garb in sympathy with the occasion. The high altar was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and was brilliant with lights.

On May 1st 1889 the church witnessed the solemn and impressive ceremony of His Lordship's consecration, which was an ecclesiastical function that attracted four archbishops—Archbishop Duhamel, of Ottawa; Archbishop Fabre, of Montreal; Archbishop Cleary, of Kingston, and Archbishop Walsh, of Toronto. His Eminence the late Cardinal Taschereau was represented by Mgr. Le Gave. There were present besides four bishops and nearly ninety minor church dignitaries and priests. His Grace Archbishop Cleary was Consecrator and and Archbishop Walsh preached the sermon. The promise and hope of a faithful episcopate made and entertained at the time of Bishop O'Connor's consecration have been kept and realized in a very high degree. Looking back on the nine years that elapsed, there is evidence of much effective work.

A NINE YEARS' RECORD.

During his episcopate forty-two new churches have been built, mainly on the line of the C.P.R. in Algoma and Nipissing and the northern districts. These are chiefly modest structures, but some of the churches built, such as those in Douro, Cobourg and Sudbury, are large and costly edifices. Six churches, including the Cathedral church of St. Peters, have been enlarged and greatly improved. Ten new presbyteries have been built; two hospitals have been established and equipped; eight new parishes have been formed and many outlying missions established and supplied from a central parish. The holy rite of confirmation has been administered in the case of 8,678 persons, and sixteen priests have been ordained for the diocese. The sisters of St. Joseph, Toronto, had a few missions in the diocese and one of His Lordship's first acts was to establish them as a diocesian institution and Mount St. Joseph was purchased as a mother house. They have now six houses in the diocese engaged in conducting hospitals, caring for the orphan and engaged in teaching.

Consecrated Bishop of Peterborough May 1, 1889

Rt. Rev. Alphonso O'Connor, D. D., was born in 1838 at Listowel, County Kerry, Ireland. At the age of three years he came with his parents to Canada, residing in Toronto. He entered St. Michael's College in 1852 as one of its first students. After spending some time at the Grand Seminary, he was ordained by the late Archbishop Lynch in 1861 and in 1870 was appointed Dean of Barrie, where he built a fine church and a large convent for the Sisters of St. Joseph. As stated elsewhere he was consecrated Bishop of Peterborough on May 1st, 1889, and in addition to the record of his work the past nine years there are numerous more improvements and advances, small perhaps in themselves, but collectively, forming a grand contribution to the record of effective work that has marked the nine years of his faithful episcopate.

Therefore the celebration of his Lordship's eighth anniversary had a significance that added impressiveness to the religious character. Yesterday his lordship celebrated pontificial high mass. He entered the sanctuary attended by a brilliant retinue of priests to the stirring music of a processional march and after being vested the mass began. He was assisted by Rev. Dr. Teefy, President of St. Michael's College, as high priest, Rev. Father J. O'Sullivan, as deacon, Rev. Father F. J. O'Sullivan as sub-deacon and Master James Doris as master of ceremonies.

THE SERMON

was preached by Rev. Dr. Tiefy, who selected his text from the 20th chapter of the Gospel according to St. John:—"As the Father hath sent me so I send you." The preacher began by pointing out that a stranger entering the church would naturally ask the meaning of the special pomp of ceremonial on a Sunday ranking no higher than any other Sunday of the year. Why was the Bishop in full pontifical celebrating the mass? Why did the church put forth its most solemn ceremonial and put on its most dignified tone? It was the eighth anniversary of the Bishop's consecration, and it was fitting that it should be a day of joy and gladness. The gospel of the day brought out the thought most apposite to the occasion. He told his disciples what they failed to understand, that "in a little while they should not see him, but Christ was not going to take back the gift of man's salvation he had brought—he would send, as He did send, another Paraclete, the true Comforter. Man had need of such a Paraclete. It was well for us, as for His disciples, that the Holy Spirit was sent. The day of Pentecost showed that there was a new force in the world—a power to humble, yet exalt men to the position of kings and priests unto God. Men needed to be taught and Christ sent His apostles to teach the world. Man had need of grace—that grace that would raise us above ourselves. This was exemplified in the sacrament of baptism and the sacrifice of the mass, whereby man was brought into a new relation to God. Grace had been with man since Adam fell, it was with the children of Israel and so throughout the ages. But in the new dispensation there was given the power of administration the light of teaching and the grace of administration. On the day of Pentecost the Holy Ghost came down and gave such power to the poor fisherman that he went forth, and at his preaching three thousand were converted, and that power remained with him and the other apostles and their successors. It was the power of Christ—"as the Father has sent me so I send you." He sent His apostles forth with the same power, and they were to be at harmony in the exercise of that power. He prayed especially for Peter, and that power had since been shown through Peter and his successors. Nine years ago the successor of St. Peter spoke, the power came to a bishop, and he became a centre of that power to a diocese in the western world. The Church was a visible Church — there could not be an invisible Church. There must be a visible power for man to turn to. The Church was as a city set upon a hill. It was a city set upon seven hills that took the place of Jerusalem. There must be teaching—we must have education—religious as well as secular. Teaching must be by an authorative voice. The teacher must have the authority of Christ—"He that heareth Me heareth Him that sent Me." What the Church teacheth is the truth and all must obey it. The Christian

RELIGION IS NOT PHILOSOPHY,

but it had overcome and survived all philosophies. The Church must supply grace through the administration of the sacraments. The sacramental system of the Church was established to make His sacrifice available to the wants of men. Men must be baptized, must eat of that flesh and drink of that blood, and must offer with the priest the sacrifice of the mass. In the priesthood was given the power to offer sacrifice and to forgive, but they had not full power, the Bishop had received from Christ through St. Peter the power of conferring holy orders and of consecrating priests. There was no office more deserving of the reverence of mankind than the episcopate. An eloquent tribute was paid by the preacher to the martyrdom, heroism and self-sacrifice of the bishops for the past eighteen hundred years, and he particularized by speaking in high terms of the manner in which the present bishop had fulfilled in all respects his episcopal duties since his consecration nine years ago. This was shown both in his solicitude for the spiritual and material interests of the Church in this diocese, in which he was the centre from which radiated all spiritual power, teaching and grace throughout the diocese. The preacher concluded his eloquent sermon with the prayer that the bishop might be spared many years in the exercise of his high duties.

At the conclusion of the mass His Lordship addressed a few words to the congregation. He was thankful for the large congregation present, and for the prayers which he knew had been offered in his behalf. A bishop had especial need for the prayers of his flock. He had to bear a heavy burthen of responsibility. He was not only responsible for the salvation of his own soul, but for the souls of all in his diocese. The nine years of his episcopate had been years of great joy and happiness to him. The people had faithfully followed the advice and teaching of their pastors and had been zealous in doing their share in building up the interests of the diocese, and he had been greatly helped by them. In conclusion he again asked their prayers, so that the good he might be able to do would be for the glory of God and the happiness of his flock.

The music was, of course, special and specially good. Mr. F. W. Miller, under whose leadership it was presented, deserves much credit for the excellent use he made of the good material at his command. The mass was Henry Farmer's, in which the soprano solos were taken by Mrs. Geo. Ball and Miss Dunn, alto solos by Miss Lillie Hurley and Miss Katie Dunn, the tenor by Mr. Geo. Ball and the bass by Mr. Jas. Wyer. At the offertory a beautiful duet—"Ecce Panis"—was well sung by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ball. The music, in its spirited execution, was well worthy of the great festal occasion.

THE EVENING SERVICE.

In the evening there was another very large congregation. Pontifical Vespers were sung by his Lordship, assisted by Rev. Fathers F. and F. J. O'Sullivan. The preacher was Rev. Dr. Teefy. His text was from the book of Wisdom and his subject was practically upon the virtues, merits and intercessory power of the Blessed Virgin. There was no heart that the divine grace had worked upon like her's but she was not honoured at the expense of the Son—in honouring the mother we did double honour to the Son. She was spoken of as specially selected in the councils of heaven to be the mother of God and was therefore by divine interposition conceived without sin. The preacher who delivered a most eloquent sermon, urged upon his hearers to imitate especially the three virtues that distinguished the Holy Mother, her humility, her transcendent purity and her patient suffering. They were to imitate these graces, but without her grace which she would bestow in answer to prayer, they could not succeed.

The Vesper music was special and particularly good. Lambillotte's magnificent "Magnificat" was given, in which the solos were taken by Miss Dunn and Mr. Wyer. In the duo and chorus "Regina Coeli," the duet was taken charmingly by Mrs. Geo. Ball and Miss Hurley. In the "O Salutaris," Mr. Geo. Ball effectively took tenor solo. Mrs. Ball sang the difficult solo in Millard's "Tantum Ergo." Altogether the music was of a high order, and very satisfactorily performed. The orchestral processional and recessional marches were worthy of special mention.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? IN DEATH. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

WHEAT UNSTEADY.

A Slight Reaction After the Recent Big Advances—Cattle in Toronto—The Latest Quotations.

Friday Evening, April 29.

A slight decline marked the wheat markets to-day, but the recession was wholly insignificant, as compared with the startling advances that have recently occurred as a result of the Spanish-American war. In England futures fell off 2½d to 4½d, though spot wheat advanced 1d to 2d. No. 1 Cal. selling at 9s 11d. At Paris, May wheat declined 35 centimes, cash stuff at the same time advancing 25 centimes. The cereal rose another 25 centimes at Antwerp. At Chicago, the May delivery fell an extreme 5c on realization sales, but partially reacted and closed 2½c lower than yesterday, the remoter futures showing losses of ½c to 2c in that market. Similar declines occurred at other American grain centres, cash wheat, as an exception, rising at Duluth. Corn declined 3c to ½c for the day at Chicago, in sympathy with wheat, and maize futures fell 2 to 2½d at Liverpool. Oats sold up ½c at Chicago, on a cable from Berlin, asking for all oats possible.

Canadian Cheese.

The cheese outlook is better now than a month ago, when finest fall makes were a drug on the market at 7¼c. Within the past fortnight a noticeable improvement has set in, values advancing a full cent, and 15,000 to 18,000 cheese were cleared off the Montreal market at a range of 7½c to 8¼c, the final 10,000 boxes being at the outside figure. This practically cleans up all the old cheese in Canada, so prices should be maintained until the new is on the market.

In the past two weeks the price of colored cheese has advanced 6s at Liverpool, but there was room for this improvement, as the following comparison of quotations for the first four months of '96, '97 and '98 will show:

THE FRANCHISE BILL

And the Civil Service Estimates Considered in the House.

THREE NEW BILLS INTRODUCED

Bills Passed After Recess—Dr. Sproule Talks Out the Toronto-Hudson Bay Railway Bill—A Question of Policy Clearly Defined—Sir Richard Cartwright's Important Announcement—The Senate.

Ottawa, April 30.—The proceedings in the House yesterday were not characterized by any sensationalism. The Franchise bill was advanced another stage, and ordered to be reprinted with the amendments made in committee. It will then be given whatever concluding touches may be found to be necessary, read a third time, and passed. The bill is now as nearly acceptable to the Tories as any Liberal legislation can ever hope to be, and the Solicitor-General is to be congratulated upon his tact in carrying out Liberal principles in the least obnoxious manner to his opponents.

New Bills Introduced.

Bills respecting the Saskatchewan Railway & Mining Company, to amend the penalties imposed under the Fisheries Act and to amend the General Inspection Act were introduced.

Mr. Fielding gave formal notice of the resolution to fix the Major-General's salary at $4,000 a year, and allowances not to exceed $2,000 per annum.

Civil Service Estimates.

The House considered the civil service estimates in committee. The matter of statutory increases is really a matter of policy, and the Government persists, to the holy horror of the Conservatives, in rewarding the faithful servants of the Crown for diligence in the discharge of their duties. Sir Richard Cartwright neatly drew from Mr. Foster a declaration of the Tory policy by asking him point blank: "Do you really think the increases should be made indiscriminately and all round?"

"My view of the law," Mr. Foster replied, "is that every clerk in every department who conscientiously and well fulfills his duty for the year has a right to his $50 increase in fulfillment of a quasi contract."

Bills Passed

On resuming, after recess, the following bills were passed:

To incorporate the British American Light & Power Company—Mr. Rosamond.

To incorporate the Canadian Mining Institute—Mr. Haley.

Respecting the Atlas Loan Company—Mr. Casey.

Incorporating the Central Canada Loan & Savings Company—Mr. Casey.

Toronto-Hudson Bay Railway Bill.

On motion for the committee stage of the Toronto & Hudson Bay Railway bill, Dr. Sproule reiterated his objections to the measure. He talked until 6 o'clock, when the hour for the consideration of private bills expired. Accordingly, the further consideration of the measure was postponed until next week.

High Commissioner's Office.

Resuming in supply, the vote for the High Commissioner's office was taken up.

Sir Richard Cartwright made an important announcement in connection with our representation at London, Eng. The question of a central office devoted to the trading rather than the diplomatic side of Canada's interests has been before the mercantile public of the Dominion for some time, and in pursuance of the Government's policy of being a business government for a business people, Sir Richard said that after the session one of the Ministers would proceed to London to enquire into the matter fully. This will be good news to the business community.

There was great fun over the Inland Revenue appropriation. Sir Henri Joly taking the chaffing in good part.

Mr. Pope wanted to know for what purpose three rat traps had been purchased by the Inland Revenue Department.

Sir Henri pleaded ignorance, whereupon Mr. Pope suggested, amid great laughter, that they were to furnish fresh meat for Li Hung Chang. Then Mr. Pope tackled the Minister about an item of three corkscrews.

Sir Henri said they were to open the ink bottles, but Mr. Pope rather doubted this explanation, as the next item was for water filters, a suspicious connection.

Fair progress was made up to 11.30 p.m., when the committee rose and the House adjourned.

Proceedings in the Senate.

On motion for the third reading of the bill respecting the Lake Manitoba Railway & Canal Company, Senator Boulton moved that a clause be added to the bill providing that the amalgamation should only apply to that portion of the line of the Winnipeg & Great Northern Railway between the Saskatchewan River and the terminus of the line of the Lake Manitoba Railway & Canal Company.

After Senators Lougheed, Macdonald, P.E.I., and Allan had spoken, the amendment was carried on a vote of 15 to 10.

Senator Lougheed asked that the motion for a third reading of the bill be allowed to stand until Monday, but the Secretary of State objected and the bill, as amended, was read a third time and passed.

The bill to incorporate the Miles Canon & White Horse Tramway Company was also read a third time. Bills to incorporate the Klondike & Peace River Railway Company, to incorporate the Klondike & Peace River Gold Mining Land & Transportation Company, and to incorporate the Nickel Steel Company of Canada were read a second time.

The Secretary of State informed Senator Landry that neither the Government, nor any member of the Administration, had asked the authorities of the Vatican to appoint an apostolic delegate to remain permanently in Canada for the purpose of assisting the Government in the settlement of the Manitoba school question.

FOR MANITOBA FARMERS.

Mr. Douglas' Bill to Regulate the Transit of Grain Taken Up in the Railway Committee—Ottawa Notes.

Ottawa, April 30.—The Railway Committee yesterday took up Mr. Douglas' bill to regulate the transit of grain in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. Mr. Douglas explained that the adoption by the C.P.R. of a standard elevator, containing 50,000 bushels, had practically shut out all the smaller dealers, and many have been forced to give up their occupation as such. Parties making small shipments, too, have found it impossible to secure cars. The bill was framed for the commercial freedom of the Western farmer. He calculated that the abolition of the old system would cost the farmers $1,500,000. The grain trade of the west should not be subjected to such hampering conditions. After a conference with the C.P.R. officials, he was willing to insert an amendment limiting the time that shippers may detain cars for direct shipment.

Penitentiary Binder Twine.

The Public Accounts Committee was occupied yesterday examining Mr. Douglas Stewart, Inspector of Penitentiaries, and some of the officials of the Kingston Penitentiary, in regard to the manufacture of binder twine.

A sub-committee was appointed to look into the over-rulings of the Treasury Board in regard to the contentions of the Auditor-General. The sub-committee is composed of Messrs. Foster, McMullen, Somerville, Cnagrain, Dr. Macdonald, Flint, Malouin, Clarke, Fitzpatrick and Sir Hibbert Tupper.

STAHL WANTS A SURE THING.

Proposed Muskets Loaded With Buckshot for a Duel With Carranza.

Fremont, O., April 30.—Captain Henry Stahl, late of the 3rd Ohio Cavalry, has challenged Lieut. Raymond Carranza, the Spaniard who challenged Lee and Sigsbee. Stahl is an export swordsman, and says he will fight in Lee's and Sigsbee's place. The challenge was sent yesterday.

Stahl, during the war, was known as the most fearless cavalryman in the army. He was one of the best swordsmen in the army, and still retains his skill. While he is very anxious to meet Carranza and show him that American skill and valor are more than Spanish boast and vaunted courage and is ready to fight him with sword or saber, he prefers a duel with muskets loaded with buckshot, fearing that Carranza might attempt to run away when the critical moment arrives.

Stahl is deadly in earnest, and sincerely hopes that his challenge will be accepted. The time and place of meeting are to be determined when Carranza accepts, by the seconds of the principals.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

(Incorporated by Act of Legislature, 1893)

Information requested. Informants name kept strictly private. FINCH W. MILLER. Agent and Asst. Sec. OFFICE—Town Buildings. Office Hours—10 to 11 a.m. and 4 to 5 p.m. Children for adoption.

When a young man asks a father for his daughter's hand in marriage, if the father is a wise one, he thinks of one thing equally as important as the young man's morals, social and business standing and intelligence. A young man who suffers from ill-health has no right to marry until his health is restored. To do so is to commit a crime against the human race. While all diseases may not be directly inherited, the constitutional tendency to acquire them is inherited. If a man is a consumptive, the chances are that his children will have weak, undersized lungs, and a predisposition to acquire the same disease.

The young man who suffers from bronchitis, weak lungs, spitting of blood or any disease of the air-passages which, if neglected leads up to consumption, may take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with almost absolute assurance of recovery. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases when taken in time. It soothes and heals the delicate and sensitive tissues of the air-passages and lungs, checks the cough, facilitates expectoration, drives out all impurities and disease germs from the tainted blood and builds new and healthy tissues.

Mr. John G. Born, of 4920 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: "Some thirty months ago I said to my wife, 'I don't want to keep anything from you, I must tell you I am in the last stage of consumption.' In December 1896 I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I could then only speak in whispers. I have taken thirteen bottles, and can say with truth I am greatly benefited. People are surprised to hear me speak. I can halloo, and my voice has not been as good in eight years. My stomach was never in better condition. Formerly I could not eat without suffering very much immediately after, but now I can eat anything."

THE GAME WENT ON.

BIXBY TELLS AN INTERESTING STORY WHILE PLAYING POKER.

It Was About a Sad Incident With a Humorous Side at the Battle of Antietam — How a Game of Draw Generally Takes All a Fellow's Attention.

Johnson was dealing when Bixby began to tell his yarn.

"I heard a first rate story today," he said. "It may be old to you boys, but it was new to me. Colonel Jim Williams of Kentucky was telling it, and he got all the points in, of course, much better than I can. No colonel in Kentucky can tell a better story than Williams. I don't claim to be much of a story teller myself, but"—

"You in, Bixby?" asked Butler.

Bixby picked up his hands and played a pair of aces through to his loss. When another player began shuffling the cards, Bixby resumed.

"The story was something like this," he said. "Ike Doolittle was a private in the war. It was at the battle of Antietam. He had a grudge against Lieutenant Forrest. A shell came along, and"—

"Are we going to play for anything this time?" asked Johnson.

"Your ante," said Butler to Bixby.

Bixby anted. "This shell came along," he said, "and took off Forrest's foot. He saw Doolittle near him, and called to him to take"—

"I'm in," said Walters.

"Raise it a couple of rods," said Butler.

Bixby picked up three eights and stood the raise. He drew a fourth and won the pot. Then it was his deal. He shuffled leisurely as he said: "The shell, it seems, took off Forrest's foot, and he called to Doolittle to carry him back to the ambulance. Doolittle lifted him to his shoulder and"—

"I had three kings to go," said Williams, referring to his previous hand.

"I had a straight four flush," said Johnson sadly.

"Doolittle lifted him up," continued Bixby, "and"—

"Going to shuffle the spots off the cards?" asked Butler.

Bixby started to deal. "Doolittle was carrying him back," he said, "with his head hanging over his shoulder, when along came another shell, and"—

"Give me another stack," said Williams. He got it. While the hand was being played Bixby turned to Butler, who had staid out like himself.

"Just then," said Bixby, "another shell came along and took off Forrest's head. Doolittle didn't see it."

"Where was this?" asked Butler politely.

"At Antietam," answered Bixby. "During the war, you know. Doolittle was carrying Forrest back to the ambulance. He said he had his foot shot off. He was being taken back to the ambulance. He"—

Butler picked up three aces. "I'm in for a minute," he said. Johnson raised him ten. He saw it and raised back. Johnson staid, and they drew. Butler bet ten and Johnson raised him 20. Butler hesitated and ran over his cards. Then he looked long and searchingly at Johnson. There was a curious tensity in the silence. Bixby turned to Williams.

"Doolittle," he said, "didn't know that Forrest's head had been shot off."

"Why didn't he know it?" Williams absently asked, watching the players.

"He didn't see it," explained Bixby. "He kept on carrying him back toward the ambulance. Private Canfield came along and said to Doolittle:

"'What you carrying that for?'

"'It's Lieutenant Forrest,' said Doolittle. 'I'm taking him back to the ambulance.'

"'What can they do with him in the ambulance with his head shot off?' asked Private Canfield."

"I call," said Butler, shoving in his chips. Johnson won, and Bixby picked up the cards to deal again.

"Private Canfield," he said, "wanted to know what they could do with him there with his head shot off. 'His head!' shouted Doolittle. 'The blamed fool told me 'twas his foot.'"

Bixby pounded the table and laughed heartily. His companions looked at him wonderingly.

"Who was Doolittle?" asked Johnson.

"Why, he was the fellow that was carrying Forrest"—

"Bixby's been telling a story," said Williams.

"What's the point?" asked Butler.

"The point is," said Bixby, "that Doolittle thought his foot was shot off when it was his head. He was carrying him back at the time, and"—

"I've got six cards," said Williams.

"It's a misdeal," said Johnson.

"Go on with your story," said Williams to Bixby.

"Yes," said two or three others, "give us the story."

"But I've got through with it," explained Bixby.

"Oh, have you?" said Williams. "That's good."—New York Sun.

FEMALE WEAKNESS CURED.

Mrs. Saunders Made Well and Strong by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Brantford, April 25—(Special)—The wives and mothers of Ontario are the most ardent disciples of Dodd's way of curing curing Diseases of Women—i.e. by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This is natural, for no medicine, no earth, no agency known to man has saved women one tithe of the agony that Dodd's Kidney Pills have banished.

Mrs. F. Saunders, of Brantford, tells her suffering sisters what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for her: I have been a martyr to Female Weakness for the past year and suffered terribly. Dodd's Kidney Pills made me strong and well and healthy, though several other remedies I used did me no good whatever."

So the record grows. Cures made every day. Failures—never.

SAVED BY HIS REPUTATION.

He Confessed He Stole the Horse, and the Lynchers Surprised Him.

The few determined men, with the prisoner in their midst, worked quietly but quickly. A rope was soon thrown over a limb of a live oak tree and the end knotted around the condemned man's neck. Then he was placed upon a barrel and the leader was preparing to kick it from under the unfortunate man when he opened his mouth and spoke for the first time.

"Boys," he drawled, "what's all this yere fussin about?"

"Ye know durn well what hit's all about," put in the leader.

"Waal, drat my hide! Do ye think thet I would be up yere addressin this yere assembly, when ye know thet speakin ain't my fort, if I knew what all this fussin was about?"

"Waal, hit's hoss stealin, if ye must know," growled the leader.

"Meanin what partikular hoss?"

"Waal, I swan! Did ye ever hear of sich a posky cuss?" gasped the leader, turning to the rest of the crowd. "Durn if I don't think thet he will be wantin ter know if we ever met his grandmother next!"

"Waal, hit seems ter me thet ye might accommodate me jes' thet little bit," whined the prisoner.

"Waal, hit's Lige Bean's hoss, if ye must know," growled the leader.

"Yaas, thet's right; I took the hoss."

This calm announcement of the theft had the effect of throwing the lynchers into a commotion, and after conferring together for a few minutes the leader approached and said:

"See yere! Do ye mean ter say thet ye took the hoss?"

"Thet's right! I took the hoss."

"Git down from there then!" yelled the leader, throwing off the rope from the limb and kicking the barrel over.

"What's the meanin of all this yere?" asked the suspected man as he picked himself up.

"Hit means thet we want you ter git!"

"An thar ain't goin ter be no hangin!"

"Not a hang."

"'Cause why?"

"'Cause we don't believe ye ever stoled the hoss. Hit's a matter of record 'round yere thet ye never toled the truth in yer life, an if ye say thet ye stoled the hoss thet's pretty good evidence thet ye didn't."

Then the late prisoner got mad and wanted to fight the whole crowd for doubting his veracity, but the would be lynchers moved off in disgust and paid no attention to him.

Thirty minutes later the missing horse turned up, thus proving the conclusion that they had arrived at to be the correct one.—Detroit Free Press.

THE ONLY HOPE!

For Victims of Bright's Disease is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Not a day passes on which the newspapers do not record the death of one or more persons from Bright's Disease. Already its victims number hundreds of thousands. Day by day the awful total grows larger. No class is safe from this destroyer.

War and intemperance, with all their miseries and fatalities, are not responsible for as many deaths as have been caused by Bright's Disease. Yet, there is a way of resisting it; of drawing its poisoned fangs, and making it as harmless as a summer breeze. That great medicine, Dodd's Kidney Pills, has cured thousands of the worst cases. It never fails to cure, hopeless as the case may seem.

Would you safely shield your loved ones from the fatal grip of this curse of mankind—Bright's Disease? Then use Dodd's Kidney Pills, the only cure on earth for this disease.

THE DAY THAT SUMMER DIED.

The day that summer died we saw a change
Creep slowly o'er the sunshine of her face—
A fleeting beauty, dim and wholly strange,
Unlike the brightness of her earlier grace.
We felt a chill in every breeze that blew
And saw across the meadows green and wide
A veil of frost that silvered all the dew—
The day that summer died.

The day that summer died a red leaf fell
From out the maple's green and stately crest,
And all the slender fern leaves in the dell
In robes of white and palest gold were dressed.
A late rose shed its petals one by one,
The poplar stirred its trembling leaves and sighed,
A glowing dahlia blossomed in the sun—
The day that summer died.

The day that summer died the forest stream
Crept forth to catch the blueness of the skies,
The hills grew dim and hazy as a dream
Or like a vision viewed by tearful eyes.
A growing shadow, chill and vaguely drear,
Swept o'er the landscape like a rising tide,
And winter's footsteps sounded all too near—
The day that summer died.

Georgie's Raise.

There are several children in the family, and they were talking of their garden.

"I am going to plant the seeds Uncle John gave me," said one, "and raise the most beautiful flowers."

"I am going to raise pinks and violets," said another.

"And I'm going to raise tuberoses," said the third.

But the little boy said nothing.

He had no seeds to plant.

And presently his mother noticed that he took no part in the chatter, and her heart smote her.

"And what is Georgie going to raise?" she asked.

Perhaps Georgie's lip trembled, but his voice didn't.

"Oh," he said stoutly, "I guess I can raise a worm or two!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Story of Hugo.

Once while traveling some distance by rail Victor Hugo fell into conversation with a stranger who entertained the great author with much egotistic talk. "How odd!" remarked the real Hugo. "So am I."—Argonaut.

A Reason.

"I sometimes wonder," said one enthusiast, "why the baseball season doesn't begin earlier."

"It's a wholly impractical idea," replied the other. "They've got to give us a chance to get over our spring colds. Otherwise how could we yell?"—Washington Star.

CANADA LIFE
Assurance Company.

ANOTHER PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Large Increase in Surplus.

The fifty-first annual report of the Canada Life shows this old established Company to be in a most flourishing condition. The annual meeting was held yesterday. Following is a synopsis of the report:—

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

In presenting to the Shareholders their 51st Annual Report, the Directors are gratified in announcing that the Company has fairly shared in the somewhat improved condition of the business of the country, as will be seen by the Statements and Accounts now submitted. By these it will be observed that the Company has transacted a larger business than during the previous year, and has increased its clear surplus by no less than $497,083 05.

NEW BUSINESS

The applications for new assurances during 1897 numbered 3 066, for the sum of $6,185,998, of which, however, 266 for $521,000 were declined, the lives not appearing up to that standard which it is in the interest of the company's other assurers should be maintained, and as 191 applications for $373,360 were not carried out, the issue of the year was for $5 291,636, under 2 609 policies, exceeding 1896 by 573 policies for $798,980.

The total business in force at the close of 1897 was $72,719,555 29 of Assurances, under 33,407 policies, upon 24,469 lives.

POLICY CLAIMS.

The claims by deaths paid during 1897 amounted to $770,168 45, and Endowment policies for $128,846 92, having matured, these sums, as well as $218,481 29 for profits, $145,411.18 for surrenders, and an annuity of $400, making in all $1,263,307.84, were paid to policyholders during the year.

INCREASE IN ASSETS.

The Income receipts of the year were $2,963,272.83, and deducting therefrom all payments to policy-holders for claims by death, for profits, and for matured Endowment policies, as well as other outlay, including expenses of management, there was left the sum of $1,272,486 05, which increased the Company's Assets to $18 678 915 67.

SURPLUS.

As appears by the Abstract of Assets and Liabilities, after providing fully for the necessary reserve for all policies of the Company, and for all its other Liabilities, there is shown a Surplus of $1,564,082 05.

The President, Mr. A. G. Ramsay, in moving the adoption of the report, said:

The Directors' Report and the usual accounts and statements have for some days been in your hands, and have now been taken as read. While the report is brief, it contains, I think, along with the various published accounts, all that is required to enable those interested in the Company to judge of its progress and success in the past year. The addition during 1897 of nearly half a million dollars to the surplus or profits fund is a large and satisfactory one, and without invidiously comparing it with the figures of any other particular Company, I may say that it is more than was attained by all the other Canadian companies combined. The new business of the year was, you will observe, of satisfactory and gratifying amount, and in excess of the previous year, and you will be pleased to know that it is of that desirable class which will result more to the profit of the Company than would a larger amount obtained at heavier expense, or from less desirable regions than the healthful climate of Canada, and the four Northern States to which we have thus far deemed it judicious to confine the operations of the Company. The existing assurances are $72,719,555 or nearly twice as much as they were 12 years ago. The death claims of the year continued of very favourable amount, and being well within what was calculated upon, that fact testifies to the care observed in the selection of the lives, and to the judicious limitation of the business to the healthful climates already alluded to.

The recent lamentable failures of some of the companies doing business on the assessment system, and the anxiety felt as to the others which are based upon the same fallacious principles lead me to point out that these occurrences are only the inevitable results, which were from the first predicted by those whose knowledge and experience enabled them to judge of what the future of companies of the kind must be. At our meeting in 1887, when concerns of the kind were making strenuous efforts to establish themselves in Canada, I alluded to the miserable failures they had been in England and in America, and I said that their "ephemeral existence indicates how useless the assessment system of assurance is as a family provision. It can only offer the uncertain hope of a cheap assurance for a few years, till the company breaks down. It cannot afford any guarantee that a definite amount of assurance will certainly be paid to a widow or children after an assurer's death, whether that occurs at an early day or a distant one, and without such a guarantee as that, which our own and other sound companies offer, life assurance must be a fraud and a delusion." I added that "I was aware that agents and managers of companies of the kind pointed to the names of prominent business and professional men who have joined them, or who act as their directors, but as some of them at all events allow their names to be employed in that way, simply because policies have been gratuitously given to them, one can judge how little weight should attach to the names of the gentlemen thus used to decoy others to join such companies." One cannot envy the feelings of the prominent gentlemen alluded to, who induced persons to take policies in companies of the kind, from which they are now driven out by their failure, or by the levy of such high payments as they are unable to meet

As the accounts show, the year's income was within a trifle of three million dollars, and the assets of the company were increased to the very considerable amount of nearly nineteen million dollars, and yielding, after deducting liabilities of every kind, a net surplus or profit of $1,564,082 for allocation at the end of next year, along with whatever addition there may be made to it between now and that time, and as the management and other expenses by which the profits to policy-holders are very largely influenced continue to be on a more moderate percentage than that of other Canadian or American companies, he prospects for our assurers are of a favourable character.

It is anticipated that legislation will be introduced by the Government, modifying the present 4½ per cent. rate of interest prescribed by law as the basis for Life Assurance Reserves, and adopting the new mortality Tables based upon the observations and large experience of the British Insurance Companies, in course of compilation by the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, and I may say on behalf of the Board in reference to the amendment to the charter, alluded to in the Directors report of last year, that the Directors purpose to avail themselves of the occasion of that legislation to seek such amendments to the law as may meet the Board's requirements.

The motion was seconded by Mr. F. W. Gates, Vice-President, and unanimously carried. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the agents, officers, medical and legal advisers of the company, Mr. Adam Brown speaking in eloquent terms of their services rendered to the Company.

Mr. Leggat moved and Lieut.-Col. McLaren seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Company during the past year. Brief and interesting addresses were also made by Sir George Kirkpatrick and Sir George Barton, the latter of whom was heartily congratulated upon the recent honour conferred upon him by the Queen.

The retiring Directors, Chief Justice Sir George Burton, Col. Sir Casimer Gzowski, K.C.M.G., and Mr. N. Merritt, were re-elected. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. A. G. Ramsay was re-elected President and Mr. F. W. Gates Vice-President

The meeting passed off very harmoniously, every one present being gratified with the progress and continued prosperity of the Canada Life, which, as Sir George Kirkpatrick remarked, was easily leader of all Companies in the Dominion.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES IN ST. ANDREW'S.

SERMONS BY REV. MALCOLM MACGILLIVRAY.

Kingston's Gifted Divine Speaks to the Congregation of the Kirk—Beautiful Floral Decorations.

Anniversary Sunday was commemorated in St. Andrew's yesterday when both the morning and evening sermons were delivered by Rev. Malcolm MacGillivray, M.A., of Chalmers church, Kingston. Special music was rendered by the choir and the base of the pulpit was a mass of flowers and foliage—the result of the work of the Flower Committee of the Christian Endeavour Society of the church.

In the morning Mr. MacGillivray based his sermon on the text "For thus saith the Lord of Hosts; after the glory hath He sent me unto the nations which spoiled you; for he that toucheth you toucheth the apple of His eye," Zechariah, II chapter, 8th verse.

As Anniversary Sunday was one of the institutions of the church, the speaker expressed the hope that his words, which would refer largely to the church itself, would be considered appropriate and timely. The article of the finest workmanship, he stated, was far more liable to injury than that of coarser fabric and in the the most highly organised life needed the greatest care. This was applicable whether it referred to vegetable law or the animal kingdom. As an apt illustration he pointed out the flowers with which the desk was surrounded. They were of hot-house growth and sensitive to the slightest change in the temperature. Moss or lichen, on the contrary, was indifferent to the extremes of cold or warmth.

Applying this prologue to his subject, Mr. MacGillivray went on to state that the Church, in which God's children were trained, was dear to Him. All religious institutions were dear to him, but the Church was more so, because it did the best and most delicate work. She is the most delicate of all organizations. She is dear to him, further, because His son was the founder of it and is not the founder of any other institution. He that harms the church toucheth the apple of God's eye, as stated in the text. No figure of speech could show the sensitiveness and value of the church so much. What is so sensitive as the apple of the eye? Through it everything looks beautiful, and without it all beauty is blotted out forever from the sight. Injure the church and you injure the greatest of institutions, blot out the brightness of life and with it all the joy the world knows. Be as vitally bound up in her and guard her as the apple of your eye. Represent her in yourself. The Church is a

LOVING AND SAVING

Church in so far as you are loving and saving, or she is as faultless and feeble as you are.

Is the Church the moral force she ought to be?

Society will not stand unless it is moral, and it cannot be moral unless it is religious, as both these attributes are bound together.

Is the Church the moral force she ought to be?

The preacher cannot be held responsible for the answer. You have to join and bear the burden equally.

There are those who decry the Church, and say she has seen her best days, and that she has failed to do her work!

The speaker then referred to one who had left the Church, believing that the lesson which the Gospel taught was not being followed correctly. He left the Church to save souls but on returning again to the fold said that he could find many more outside the Church who would work with him.

The church is not perfect. No such pretension is made, but while imperfections which are inseparable from humanity are admitted, it is still claimed for the church that she stands for righteousness above all things.

It is said that at one time in Berlin the heavens suddenly grew dark and people thought the end of the world was near. A number of the most ignorant ran to the police for protection. Finding them, they collected their pence and bought a Bible, so that if the end came, they would be found with the Book amongst them.

NONE COULD BE AFFORDED

Some may smile at these poor ignorant people, but look for a moment at the clever men when death is nigh and the palsy of fear overtakes them; when they they come to the edge of the grave and gaze across the river? Are they any braver?

Recently in going through the Kingston penitentiary, the speaker ascertained that there were 625 inmates altogether—600 men and twenty-five women. He asked if this enormous disproportion was suggestive of anything to the congregation?

Christian influence had kept one department of the penitentiary comparatively empty. He thanked God we had so many women in the church, so many in the Sunday schools and so many in the auxiliaries. So long as we have the women and children on the side of righteousness it will not go very hard with the world.

If there was a larger percentage of the men found in the churches and Sunday schools, as compared to the women, there would be a smaller percentage in the gaols and penitentiaries—a less proportion than 600 to 25. It tells for the Christian nurture of women and against the Christian nurture of men.

But, concluded the speaker, after all is said and done, there is but one test of soundness and morality for man—"He that doeth righteousness is righteous."

The special music in the morning consisetd of the anthem "Repose of the Soul," in which Mr. G. W. Mulligan took the solo parts in splendid voice. A quartette, composed of Miss Faulkner, Kingston, Miss Vida Gladman, and Messrs. Mulligan and Maybee, sang "Come Thou," Miss Faulkner taking the solos perfectly. In the evening Mr. Mulligan sang Gounod's "Jesus of Nazareth," and Miss Florence Hall's beautiful soprano voice was heard to advantage in the solo, "Faith, Hope and Love." The evening anthem was entitled "Awake, My Glory."

CHURCH CHIMES.

Yesterday morning Rev. A. T. Dykeman, pastor of the Murray street Baptist church, took as his subject "The sinners first and second steps towards God," and in the evening spoke on "God's mouthpiece to man." During the evening service Mr. G. K. Martin sang as a solo "The ninety and nine."

ST. LUKES.

Special addresses were given in St. Luke's church yesterday morning and evening, when Mr. A. M. Dymond, of Toronto, spoke at the morning and evening services. The rainfall somewhat affected the congregation in the evening, but an encouraging response to the appeal was made. The total amount asked from St. Luke's for the Mission Fund and Widows and Orphans is about $135. Of this amount $118 has now been raised, of which $78 was contributed yesterday.

Mr. Dymond, the law clerk of the Provincial Legislative Assembly, is well-known as an earnest and effective speaker, and his addresses yesterday were listened to with close attention. He referred to the laymen's work in connection with Missions, and the new interest that was being shown in this department of the work of the Church of England. He asserted that the Church of England had a tendency to become too congregational in its interests. Appeals on behalf of congregational needs met with a cheerful response. This spirit was too narrow. All should take an interest in the wider circle of the Diocese and its needs. In the evening he spoke of the poor salaries paid to the diocesan missionary and his many discouragements. He drew a striking contrast of the way the foreign missionary is sent to his field of labour, with a reception and a purse, with prayers and God speed, and when he comes back, he comes as a hero. All this is good and right, but the diocesan missionary, who field is sometimes no less arduous, goes to his work with no special meeting, no purse and, probably, no prayers.

About $18 is still needed to complete the amount asked for. The response yesterday was very general but those who were not able to be present are asked to contribute next Sunday.

The Men's Chapter of St. Luke's Guild will meet in the School House to-morrow evening when a paper will be read on the Division of the Diocese of Toronto. All men of the congregation are cordially invited. Refreshments at the close of the meeting.

The Deanery of Northumberland will meet at Ashburnam next Monday and Tuesday, May 9th and 10th. In connection with this gathering will be held a most interesting missionary meeting. It is not often an opportunity is afforded us of hearing of missionary work in India from an old resident. Mr. Macconochie, late Deputy-Commissioner in the Indian Civil Service at Gaudaspur in the Punjaub, resided in India for 25 years. He took the deepest interest in mission work in that locality, and is able to speak with authority on the subject. His address will be given in St. Luke's school house on Monday, May 9th, at 8 p.m., and the general public is cordially invited.

Rev. H. Symonds' prayer book class will meet at the rectory on Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. this week instead of Friday.

Next Sunday evening the annual flower service will be held in St. Luke's church. Special music is being prepared and the address to the children will be given by Rural Dean Webb, of Colborne.

SPORTING PASTIMES.

Wheeling and Other Items of Local and General Interest.

WRESTLING.

A great deal of enthusiasm has been worked up over the wrestling match which is to take place Wednesday evening at the opera house between Tom Doyle, of town, and Bob Harrison, of Toronto, the heavyweight wrestling champion of Canada. Those who have seen Doyle at work think that he is a sure winner, although Harrison is much the heavier man and reported to be in the pink of condition.

Suggestions as to a referee may be sent to the sporting editor of the EXAMINER, and will receive due consideration.

Both men will be on the mat at 8.30 p.m. sharp.

LACROSSE.

Orillia and Barrie are starting early in the season to make things unpleasant. Barrie, although not a factor in the championship race this year, does not forget to lead hard at Orillia, while that town is not at all backward in getting back. The Barrie Gazette says:—"No effort has been made to organize the lacrosse club to contest Barrie's interest in the C. L. A. series. It is time the officers were exerting themselves if they wish to open the season with the usual Queen's Birthday celebration. It would be a pity indeed if the Orillia element which spoiled the season last year was powerful enough to kill lacrosse in this town. There are certainly enough stron, clean players in Barrie who can put a good game against any aggregation from the north, and with a good set of officers should be able to give a satisfactory account of themselves. True sportsmen, either among players or public, will not tolerate last year's ruffianism, and if it is only for the sake of repudiating that sort of thing, Barrie owes it to the district to get the best possible team in the field."

The Orillia Times comes out in retort, thus: "Last year the Barrie's defaulted to Beaverton, and although Beaverton strongly protested they were allowed to go and play Orillia on their own grounds, on the officers guaranteeing that the $25 due Beaverton would be paid. The Barrie people got a big gate out of the Orillia match, and losing the game decided to go out of the business, and failed to pay Beaverton their expenses. The matter was referred to the C. L. A. judiciary, and the Beaverton club was suspended. Having still failed to whack up, the matter was brought up at the annual meeting with the result that the suspension was continued with the addition that all the Barrie players are excluded from playing with any other club. The ruling seems hard, but the Barrie players have only themselves to blame. They defaulted to Beaverton without any reasonable excuse, and abused President Craig and the Orillia club because they wanted the matter settled before the Orillia match last fall. And it was only on one of the officers giving his personal pledge, that President Craig allowed the game to go on. And they never paid up, and now they are all suspended, the innocent with the guilty, and lacrosse in Barrie will flourish 'never more.' Poor Barrie!"

APRIL'S BUSINESS WAS GREAT!

It has passed into history as a record breaker.

It wasn't necessary either to shout "Crowds! Crowds!" as some do, when the crowds, so far as they are concerned, are in the street.

We've simply never had a better April in business. It serves to show how firmly imbedded in the hearts of the people the Golden Lion is, and strengthens the conviction that no other house is in a position to underbuy or undersell this one.

Larger than ever before and fuller is his old store, and it would be hard to find any article that is NOT LOWER IN PRICE than it used to be.

SPAIN ADVISED TO SUE FOR PEACE

A Significant Conference at London After the Main Is Battle.

BRITAIN, THE U. S. AND AUSTRIA

Will Advise the Powers to Issue a Collective Note to That Effect to the Haughty Don Now That He Has Shed Blood for His Honor Manila's Turn.

London, May 3.—A special despatch from Madrid says that martial law has been proclaimed there, the customary proclamation having been posted at midnight. The proclamation is due to the attitude of certain political parties since the receipt of the news from Manila. The whole garrison is ready in barracks. Military patrols appeared in Puerto del Sol, the principal square, at midnight.

The Cabinet Council after a late session has decided to proclaim a state of siege immediately. The Ministers deny the existence of a Cabinet crisis.

Dewey's Demands.

London, May 3.—A special despatch from Madrid says that Commodore Dewey gave Commodore Augusti 24 hours to comply with the ultimatum demanding all stores and coal. It is believed that the Government has cabled Augusti to comply.

PEACE AFTER BATTLE.

Two European Powers and the American Combatant Unite in Advising Spain to Sue for Peace.

New York, May 3.—A London special says: As a result of the Spanish defeat at Manila peace is in sight. Lord Salisbury yesterday, after a long conference with Ambassador Hay, sent for Prince Hatzfeldt, the Austrian Ambassador, and advised a collective note by the powers to Spain, urging that her honor should now be satisfied, and that the time had come to sue for peace. Senor Silvela, in Madrid, said Spain only intended to establish her honor.

MANILA'S TURN NOW.

The Bombardment of the Town Expected —Aftermath of the First Naval Battle—400 Killed.

Madrid, May 3.—A despatch yesterday to the Liberal from Manila says: "The population is fleeing from the city. A bombardment of the town is expected to take place to-day."

The conduct of the Spanish admiral in sinking the remnant of his fleet in order to prevent its capture is highly extolled by the press and people.

Queen and Ministers Undaunted.

The organ of the Spanish Premier admits the complete defeat of the Spaniards. The Spanish Ministers are "determined to exhaust their resources in defence of the national honor."

The Queen Regent is said to have declared that her spirit can never be daunted so long as she can rely on the patriotism and courage of the Spaniards.

Died Rather Than Surrender.

Paris, May 3.—Madrid advices say no Spanish warship surrendered, and that the majority perished. Further advices estimate the Spanish loss at four hundred men killed.

Martial Law in Madrid.

New York, May 3.—Martial law is proclaimed in Madrid. News of the destruction of the Spanish fleet is now generally known and the people are [illegible] themselves with anger at the officials. General riots are imminent.

GOVERNMENT IS SLOW.

Newspapers Gave the News Far in Advance of the Officials of Spain.

Madrid, May 3.—The Government's news from Manila is apparently behind that of the newspapers, as the latter's despatches, arriving in Madrid at 12.24 o'clock in the morning, were not delivered until 9 o'clock in the evening.

Squadron Completely Destroyed.

While the Ministers were discussing Governor General Augusti's despatch, rumors reached the Cabinet that the newspaper men had received news of the second engagement. General Correa and Admiral Bermejo immediately communicated with their departments, and found that a fresh despatch was being deciphered. Premier Sagasta ordered the despatch to be brought to the Council for deciphering. The confused wording of the message showed the state of mind of the sender, Admiral Montejo, but finally its contents were elucidated and demonstrated, to the Ministers' horror, the complete destruction of the Spanish squadron.

General Correa and Admiral Bermejo went straight to the Queen Regent, who was terribly distressed.

Sad, But Proud of His Death.

Madrid was not excited this morning, but sad faces were to be seen everywhere.

Captain Cadarso, of the Spanish cruiser Reina Maria Christina, who was killed, and whose vessel was among those destroyed, belongs to a Madrid family, who are proud of the circumstances of his death.

IN THE WORLD'S CAPITAL.

Everybody Was Talking About the Naval Battle and the Victory of Commodore Dewey.

London, May 3.—In the House of Parliament, at the hotels, which are beginning to be full of American tourists; at all the Government offices, and, particularly, at the Admiralty, the brilliant defeat of the Spanish fleet by the Asiatic fleet of the United States at the battle of Manila was the one great subject talked of throughout yesterday.

The United States Embassy was the center of interest for all London. There was a continuous line of callers requesting information, the majority being Americans.

United States Ambassador Hay is overjoyed at the demonstration of the prowess of the American navy, remarking, concerning Commodore Dewey, who is a personal friend of the Ambassador: "It is hard to imagine so quiet and amiable a gentleman controlling a fierce naval battle." Col. Hay added: "It is these quiet, gentlemanly men who may be depended upon to surprise the world when the opportunity of making history comes in the line of duty."

The hotel bulletins are surrounded with enthusiastic Americans, many of them displaying miniature flags at their buttonholes.

Many British naval officers have expressed the warmest admiration for the work of the American fleet. In fact, the preponderance of sentiment in the British Navy seems to be with the Americans throughout, the officers giving many practical proofs of their partiality. International courtesy, however, debarred the high officials from commenting on the result.

Spain's Auxiliary Cruisers.

All the information obtainable here concerning the Spanish force of auxiliary cruisers, in regard to which vague reports have emanated from Madrid, tends to show that it has been over-estimated. The two best ships, the Columbia and Normannia, formerly of the Hamburg-American Line, are yet unarmed, and it is believed they will be unable to secure armament.

The chief factor of the remainder of the Spanish force of auxiliary cruisers consists of the six steamers belonging to the Barcelona Trans-Atlantic Steamship Company. They are fairly armed, but they have been scattered. Two of them are with the Cape Verde squadron as transports; one is convoying the torpedo flotilla; another, it is said, is at Santiago de Cuba, and two are at Cadiz.

The afternoon newspapers yesterday commented at length upon the victory of the United States fleet. The Pall Mall Gazette says: "The earlier Spanish stories left no shadow of doubt that the Spanish fleet has been, to put it roundly, smashed, and the later information this morning places it even beyond the possibility of Spanish denial."

The newspapers all discuss the ultimate fate of the Philippine Islands as a question in which the European powers are vitally interested, and they agree in saying that another element of discord has been introduced into the far Eastern scramble.

In the House of Commons yesterday A. J. Balfour, the Government leader and First Lord of the Treasury, answering a question on the subject, said the Government had received information pointing to a serious battle at Manila, and the destruction of a portion of the Spanish fleet. He added that a British warship was on her way there, explaining that everything the Government could do to preserve British lives and interests would be done.

For Two and a Half Millions.

Ogdensburg, N.Y., May 3.—The Ogdensburg & Champlain Railroad was sold under mortgage foreclosure by W. H. Comstock of Utica, master, in this city yesterday. Only one bid was received, and the road was struck off for $2,500,000 to Charles H. Parsons, receiver of the road; Charles R. Batt, president of the National Security Bank of Boston, and William Lummis of New York, committee representing the first mortgage bondholders. A protest to the sale was filed by W. A. Shepard of Boston, representing the income bondholders, who asked a postponement for 30 days, owing to the present depression.

A STRONG ARGUMENT.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my thanks for your cheque just handed to me, for $3,201.96, in settlement of my $2,500 Fifteen Year Endowment Policy in your Company. Such a result as this, after the risk on my life has been carried for fifteen years, beginning from forty-five years of age, argues one thing strongly, namely, that the managements of the North American Life must be in competent hands. The other options you have offered me, viz: a Paid-up Life policy for $3514.00, or a Life Annuity for $401.92, are, I presume, equally liberal, and it affords me much pleasure to recommend your Company to my friends or any one desiring insurance.

Yours truly,

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE possibility of an Anglo-American rapprochement is now settled. Cecil Rhodes is said to have given his permission.

ONE of the richest gold finds yet discovered in north-western Ontario is reported from Rat Portage. The find was made adjoining the Triumph Mine property, and the location is owned and managed entirely by the two lady owners, Mrs. McDonald of Rat Portage and Mrs. Hall, of Winnipeg. Both hired their own miners, purchased supplies and have managed the mine to suit themselves. At a depth of four feet a mass of ore of almost solid gold was discovered of unknown extent. It is richer than the richest ore taken out of any mine in western Algoma.

THE Cleveland Marine Record says: "The first effect of war on the lake trade is being felt in Chicago. Instead of sending wheat to New York points for European shipment the Chicago operators are shipping to Canadian ports, where the plan is to sell the grain to Canadian commission merchants, who will in turn sell to European buyers, making commission both ways. This is done because the property of Americans, whether in American vessels or not, is coming to be regarded as unsafe. Some eastern vessel owners have begun to put their vessels under the English flag. At present the law makes it impossible for these boats to change their flag again, but efforts are being made in Congress to have this law altered."

HON. MR. TARTE has been charged with being anxious to take advantage of his official position for the sake of aggrandizement. A statement, however, brought down to the House shows that Mr. Tarte has done good work in reducing the expenses of his department in the matter of salaries. From this return it will be seen that Mr. Tarte has done more proportionately than any other Minister in the direction of the reduction of the staff and of the salary bill. He has also secured a material reduction of the salary bill of his staff, which was $52,540 for 38 men when he came in, and is now $45,550 for 31 men. In compassing this end Mr. Tarte changed the hours of his staff, which formerly worked from 10 to 4 o'clock, as in all the other departments. In the Public Works Office they now work from 9.30 to 5, and the result is a distinct gain to the country. It would be well if some of the other Ministers would take a leaf out of the book of the restless Mr. Tarte.

THERE has been a good deal of good-natured chaff blown at the bloodless character of the Spanish-American war in its initial stages. This was quite excusable, but time is bringing enough suffering to satisfy the most blood-thirsty. When we hear the details of the naval battle at Manilla, the chief city of the Phillipine Islands, they will reveal considerable loss of life. But all the suffering and misery of this war will not fall upon the combatants. In Cuba there is great suffering amongst the population. Women and children are starving from lack of food, the Spanish Government having attached all food for the use of the army. It is estimated that 20,000 persons who are not in the army are suffering from this cause. In addition great suffering is likely to arise from the Spaniards plundering and burning the plantations. What with the work of the Spaniards on land and the fears of bombardment from Yankee ships, the people are in a pitiable condition. In other parts many a home will be broken up by the cruel conscription that calls for the service in the army of every male from 15 to 50. Canadian mothers can have some idea of the feelings of Cuban mothers called upon to part with mere children of fifteen years to submit to all the fatigues, hardships and barbarities of war. We have had a bloodless war so far, but there is enough suffering and bloodshed yet to come, and in the near future.

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence. "Black Death" was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than any of these. It is so common that nine tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing constipation. It makes people listless, causes dizziness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath and distress after eating. The little help needed is furnished by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative and two a mild cathartic. Once used, always in favour. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well. Be sure and get Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Send 31 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

HAVELOCK.

From Our Own Correspondent.

There is quite a large addition being added to the C.P.R. freight sheds.

Mr. W. Wilson, fireman, has removed to the house lately occupied by Conductor Fred Haskill, who has moved to Smith's Falls.

There was quarterly communion service in the Methodist church Sunday last. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. H. McQuade.

The Methodist Sunday school held its annual meeting for the election of superintendent, officers and teachers in the basement of the church Monday evening last. Mr. W. J. Wiseman was elected superintendent, and we congratulate the school on the excellent choice, as Mr. Wiseman is a man well worthy and capable of filling that position. His assistant is Mr. Brewster. A committee was appointed to select and purchase a library. We anticipate a good year for the school.

The quarterly board of the Methodist church met Monday last in the basement of the church to wind up the business of the year. They had a very successful meeting as regards finances, etc. The board renewed the invitation to Mr. McQuade of three months ago to remain the fourth year. Mr. McQuade made a very feeling and appropriate reply, stating that if it were the wishes of the stationing committee of the annual conference, he would be very happy to do so.

Havelock lost one of its most respected and influential citizens by the death of Mr. Henry Waymark, on Saturday evening last. Mr. Waymark's remains were conveyed to Maple Grove cemetery on Tuesday, at 2 p.m., and buried amid a large concourse of friends. The late Mr. Waymark was one of Havelock's pioneers, having resided here some sixteen years. He was an Englishman by birth and a stonemason by trade. He leaves a family of eight sons and two daughters to mourn their loss, his wife having died some years ago.

Mr. W. Webb, conductor, has moved into the house lately occupied by Mr. Liscumbe.

Rumors afloat lead us to believe that the house lately occupied by Mr. Webb will be occupied in the near future by Mr. Richard Wilson, our genial storekeeper of the West End.

Great improvements are being made on Mathison street, where the corporation is grading the street from one end to the other. The street promises to be the finest in town as all the buildings that are on it are spacious. Some six or eight new buildings are being put up at the eastern end.

After Mr. Ritchie gets the terracing done, his lawn will without doubt compare favourably with the finest in neighbouring towns.

Mr. Wm. Thorpe, engineer, and family, have removed to Owen Sound, where Mr. Thorpe takes the position of yard engineer. Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe will be both very much missed here, as both always took an active part in all social gatherings. They were faithful workers in the Methodist church and Sunday school. We wish them every success in their new home. They take with them the best wishes of the people of Havelock.

I. O. O. F. CHURCH PARADE.

On Sunday last the members of Havelock Lodge, No. 236, together with many of their brethren from Campbellford and Norwood, assembled in the hall at 2 p.m., and from there walked to the Presbyterian church by way of Front and Oak streets. The service was ably conducted by Rev. Mr. Hamilton, who preached a very suitable sermon for the occasion. There were upwards of 70 members present. After service the brethren walked backed to the hall and then dispersed to their homes, each one well pleased with the sermon and the fine turn-out of visiting brethren.

THE STOMACH RULES.

Cross and Cranky Mortals Who Suffer Untold Misery.

Have Only One Hope of Release and Health—That Hope is in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets, Which Always Cure.

"The stomach is the man—too often," says an eminent medical writer. The assertion is true. As the stomach is, so is the man. If the stomach is out of order weak or over-worked the man is cross fretful, irritable, short-tempered, "cranky" and miserable. He is wretched himself, and he makes all who come in contact with him wretched too. The stomach can't be out of order if the man will use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Many troubles originate in the stomach, though their source is little suspected. We find headaches, giddiness, sleeplessness, palpitation of the heart, flushing of the face, cough, skin diseases and other affections are caused by dyspepsia. Each of these complaints is dangerous to life, inasmuch as it will lead to worse troubles—palpitation developing into heart disease for instance if Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets be not used.

Each of these troubles, being the result of dyspepsia, disappears as soon as the dyspepsia is removed. To remove dyspepsia is very easy if you know how. And nothing is easier than to learn how. If you can remember to take one or two of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal the thing is done.

Dodd's Dyspepsia tablets are immediate in effect, permanent in their cure. They act on and strengthen the stomach and bowels, digest the food and bring health and ease to all who use them.

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodd's Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

SAVED FROM MURDER.

John Twohey Attempts to Kill Magistrate Houston of Chatham—Would-Be Murderer Is Locked Up.

Chatham, Ont., May 3.—An attempt to assassinate Chatham's Police Magistrate was made yesterday afternoon at the municipal buildings. John Twohey, a man who some time ago was convicted of having received fifty dollars from the City Treasurer, when he should only have received a five-dollar bill, was the assailant.

Police Magistrate Houston met Twohey in Harrison Hall at about 3 o'clock and Twohey made a remark about his (Twohey) having had to serve a term in jail. In a flash he had pulled a revolver, and, pointing it at the Magistrate, threatened to kill him. Mr. Houston, while not by any means a young man, is a man of action and not of words in circumstances like these. He bandied no words with his would-be assailant, but clenched with Twohey, and in an instant had his man on the floor and a firm grip on the arm holding the revolver, a murderous-looking weapon.

Civic officials, who were in their offices, hearing the disturbance in the main corridor, rushed to the spot. Chief of Police Young, who happened to be in the building, was early on the scene, and aided the Magistrate. The revolver was taken from Twohey, and he was placed under arrest on the charge of attempted shooting.

A Lindsay Lady

CURED OF DIABETES.

Doan's Kidney Pills the Remedy She Used.

Our representative called at the residence of Mrs. E. Toole, Kent St., Lindsay, and was favoured with an interview. Mrs. Toole stated:—

"For three years I have suffered terribly with pains in my back and limbs, and also with excruciating pains in my head and neck. I felt very dizzy, and when I awoke in the morning seemed to be in a stupid or dazed condition, so much so that I would be a couple of hours before I was able to do anything. Many a time I had to walk the floor for hours at night on account of the pain from which I suffered. I had no appetite, and was also very nervous and easily startled: sometimes feeling that I was about to faint from the fluttering and palpitation of my heart.

"All last summer I was attended by a physician who said I had Diabetes, and I can say that I have taken a great deal of medicine, but received no benefit from the same. In fact, I was in an awful state. No one but myself knows how much I suffered!

"I heard of DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS, and have taken two boxes of them From the first I commenced to improve. They have worked a wonderful change for the better in my health. They have cured all the pain, restored restful sleep, strengthened my nerves and given me a good appetite. In fact, I am sure the pills were exactly the medicine I needed, and I cannot express the joy I feel at this change in my health, which is all caused by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Sold by all druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of price, 50c a box, or 3 for $1.25. The Doan Kidney Pill Co., Toronto, Ont. Remember the name DOAN'S, and refuse all others.

PROMPT ACTION FOR SPAIN'S PEACE

U. S. Believes the Manila Battle the Beginning of the End.

DEWEY'S FLEET AGAIN ENGAGED

While the President Thinks and Talks for Peace Commodore Dewey's Squadron Is Cannonading Spain in the Philippines Following Up Sunday's Victory Aftermath of That Engagement War News.

Washington, May 3.—A strong belief prevails that Commodore Dewey's decisive victory at the Philippines is the beginning of the end, and prompt action now will speedily bring Spain to terms. The battle will prove of incalculable value, as being the first engagement our modern war vessels have had, and the first opportunity to know exactly how they behaved, and what weaknesses they showed.

Peace in Sight.

Washington, May 3.—The President said to a high official yesterday: "The war will soon be over. I do not believe the volunteers will be needed."

FOLLOWING UP THE VICTORY.

Latest Hong Kong Despatch Says Now at Corregido Island—A Spanish Private Telegram Corroborates.

London, May 3.—A despatch from Hong-Kong to the Daily Mail, dated Monday, says:

"Commodore Dewey's fleet is off Corregido Island, hotly engaged with the forts there. Electrical experiments show that the cable has been cut at or near Manilla."

Capt. Concha's Telegram.

Hong-Kong, May 3.—There is no news of the American squadron beyond a private telegram from Captain Concha of the Spanish cruiser Don Juan de Austria to his children at a convent school here, mentioning that the fight is heard in the direction of Corregido Island, and it is assumed from this that the Americans were reconnoitering the entrance and trying the southern side of the island, which is six miles wide and surrounded by rocks and shoals, though not believed to be mined.

There is no news either of the Spanish squadron, but according to the latest advices it could not take the offensive in any case.

The cable to Manilla is now interrupted.

THE FINANCIAL BAROMETER.

How Wall Street Rejoiced Over the Victory at Manila—Canadian Sympathy.

New York, May 3.—That the successful exit of the United States from her present complications with Spain will be followed by a much higher range of prices in the stock market was proven by the effect on Wall street yesterday of the reported American victory at Manila. The triumph sent securities up with a rush, and when the New York Exchange closed its doors the active list showed gains of from 3 to 6 points over Saturday's final figures. Further United States successes will be followed by further appreciation of stocks; while of course any reverses will bring about corresponding declines.

Canadian Financial Sympathy.

Toronto, May 3.—Canadian securities yesterday acted in sympathy with Wall street. Both at Toronto and Montreal, prominent stocks scored advances of 1 to 6 points for the day, C.P.R. Cable, Toronto Railway, Montreal Gas and Montreal Railway leading the way.

THE QUID PRO QUO.

What the Commodore of the American Squadron in the Philippines Wanted to Forego Bombarding Manila.

London, May 3.—After the engagement of two hours, which resulted in the annihilation of the Spanish fleet with one American vessel disabled, Commodore Dewey requested British Consul Rawson-Walker, to convey a message to the Spanish captain-general demanding the surrender of all the torpedoes and guns at Manila, and the possession of the cable offices, saying that unless these terms were complied with he would proceed to bombard the city.

The Colonial Office yesterday received a second dispatch which announced that the Spanish Governor-General had refused to surrender the torpedoes, guns and cable offices, and that he had prevented the agent of the telegraph company from conferring with Commodore Dewey. The message ended with the statement that the British Governor of the Straits Settlements expected that the bombardment of Manila would be begun on Monday morning, when the Spaniards would cut the cable.

No other message on the subject has been received in London, although the Foreign Office had expected news from the British Consul at Manila. Therefore it is supposed that the expectation of the Governor of the Straits Settlements has been fulfilled, and that the Spaniards have cut the cable.

The Bombardment Begun.

New York, May 3.—A Hong-Kong despatch says: "The bombardment of Manila has begun. The inhabitants are fleeing to the country. The operators in the cable station in the midst of the forts have fled to save their lives.

London, May 3.—The British Governor of the Straits Settlements cabled yesterday as follows: The Americans annihilated the Spanish fleet in a two hours' engagement. The bombardment of Manila is supposed to be now proceeding.

THREAT CARRIED OUT.

This News Confirms the Idea That the Spanish Cut the Manila Cable.

Hong-Kong, May 3.—It is announced at the cable office here that the transmission of messages to Manila or from that place is interrupted.

New York, May 3.—The Commercial Cable Company yesterday afternoon sent out the following notice: "We are advised that there is no communication with Manila."

WAR NOTES.

The report of the American victory at Manila was received with incredulity in Berlin.

Madrid newspapers, commenting upon the defeat of the Spanish fleet, agree in saying that Sunday was "a sad and glorious day for Spain," and exhort the people to be calm.

Despatches from Key West state that the blockade of Havana is proceeding quietly. Sunday a gale was blowing and the sea ran very high. The British steamer Strathdee was made to heave to, and after being examined was allowed to proceed.

QUEER BUT TRUE.

Uncle Sam Has Not Yet Received Any Report of the Fight, Except From the Newspapers.

Washington, D.C., May 3.—It is a curious fact that the nation most directly interested of all the great powers in the combat that took place at Manila should be among the last officially to know of the results. Up to the close of office hours yesterday absolutely the only information that this Government had received of the victory of Commodore Dewey came to the Government through the medium of the press despatches. If the report is true that Commodore Dewey has begun a bombardment and blockade of the city of Manila, it is unlikely that he can spare a vessel from his fleet to carry the news to Hong-Kong, the nearest cable station, so it is not known when official advices will come.

The mere cutting of the cable as reported by the Spaniards, is not regarded as particularly serious, since being hemmed in there by the American blockading fleet, the Spaniards would not be able to make the cut far off shore.

The greatest anxiety is felt as to the casualties sustained by the American fleet.

Greens In Demand.

The Rush For Diamond Dye Greens is Marvellous.

Greens in all shades have come to stay for a considerable time. The fact is fully established by statements in the most reliable fashion journals, and the present marvellous rush for the Diamond Dye Fast Greens confirms the belief that greens will be in favour for months to come.

Economical women and girls may now dye over their soiled, dingy and faded dresses that they have laid aside, at a cost of from ten to twenty cents.

The Diamond Dye Fast Greens for wool, silk or cotton give magnificent results in lovely, rich and full colours, equalling the colours produced by the best professional dyers in Europe.

Owing to the fact that there are poor and deceptive package dyes on the market sold by some dealers who prize large profits above the grand purpose of giving their customers satisfaction and value, ladies are warned to beware of all imitation and soap grease dyes that only cause dissatisfaction and destruction of goods. Ask for Diamond Dyes and take no others; every package is warranted.

Send to Wells & Richardson Co., Montreal, P. Q., for book of directions and sample card of 48 colours; sent free to any address.

Toronto, May 3.—Under the provisions of the Ontario Act dealing with child immigration, all children sent from Industrial Homes in the Old Country must undergo a thorough individual inspection as to their physical, mental and moral condition. This is the order of the new regime. About 250 children, mostly boys, between the ages of 10 and 14, came out this spring.

Mr. P. Byrne, the Ottawa agent at Liverpool, in his report says that he found all the children eligible, and their conduct and character satisfactory.

Fire in a Penitentiary.

Stoney Mountain, Man., May 3.—The steam laundry in connection with the penitentiary took fire at noon yesterday, and the entire building and contents were destroyed. Several prisoners worked hard, and the staff of people from the village put up a strong fight to save the main building in which the prisoners were confined. Effective work confined the flames to the laundry. Loss of machinery and convicts' clothing considerable. The fire is supposed to have started from the smokestack.

Another Rate War Conference.

Montreal, May 3.—Traffic Manager McNicoll has received official notification of the meeting of the General Committee of the Central Passenger Association on Friday next, May 6th, in the city of Chicago.

At this meeting the rate situation will be discussed. If the American lines still further decline to arbitrate the differential question there is likely to be a warm time in the railway world.

A SHORT WAR IS EXPECTED.

This is the General Tenor of This Afternoon's Despatches.

THE SPANIARDS WERE EVIDENTLY UNPREPARED.

The Capitulation of Manilla Reported Without Confirmation.

AMERICAN SQUADRON TO GO TO KEY WEST.

The Philippines, if Captured, May be Passed Over to Japan—Ticklish Points for the Powers Arise out of the Philippine Success—British Securities Stiffen—United States on the Alert.

Special 3 p m. dispatch to the Examiner.

Spaniards Taken by Surprise.

London, May 3.—Admiral Montijo was taken by surprise. The Spanish authorities were in a state of unreadiness. The American squadron was not sighted until it had passed the outer and principal forts on every side. In England is heard praise of the skill and daring displayed by Commodore Dewey. It is apparent that the American fleet could have received but little damage. The sending of three German men of war to the Phillippines is much criticised.

The Spanish Mob Unruly.

Madrid, May 3, 2 a.m.—The mob tried to break into the Apollo Theatre last night and hold a manifestation. The police interfered. All the windows in the building were broken before the crowd was dispersed, and martial law has been proclaimed, and the streets are occupied by police and civil guards.

The War to be a Short One.

New York, May 3.—The steamship Yale, formerly the American Liner Paris, has sailed under sealed orders. A special cable to the World from Rome says: Admiral Berin, Minister of Marine, said the Spanish have thus effectively proved their unpreparedness. The conclusion of the war is now in sight.

Capitulation of Manilla Announced.

New York, May 3—World special from London says: An unconfirmed cable has been received that a report was current in the House of Commons at midnight that an official telegraph had been received by the foreign office from the British Consul General at Manilla, announcing the capitulation of Manilla.

The Report Questioned.

London, May 3—The Eastern Telegraph Company announces it is impossible for any word to have come from Manilla since 10 o'clock yesterday morning, London time.

The Manilla Cable Cut.

London, May 3.—Tests from Kong Kong show the cable was cut fifty miles from Manilla. Two weeks may elapse before it is repaired.

Cable Cutting Attributed to the Americans.

Paris, May 3.—Reported here that an American warship cut the Manilla cable and took an end on board for the purpose of communication.

Entire American Squadron off for Key West.

Madrid, May 3.—An official despatch from Havana says the entire American squadron has sailed in the direction of Key West.

Sir Julian's Successor.

London, May 3—Reported that Sir Julian Pauncefote will be succeeded by Sir Thos. H. Sanderson, the permanent Under Secretary of State for foreign affairs.

British Securities Stiffer.

London, May 3—The Stock Exchange interprets the news as meaning the war, will not last long. Consols show improvement and money is plentiful.

Cuban City Evacuated.

Kingston, Jamaica, May 3—The Spaniards have evacuated Bayamo, an important town of Santiago De Cuba. It is now occupied by insurgent forces.

Coal to be Provided.

New York, May 3—Herald's Washington special.—Secretary Long has taken measures to relieve the United States fleet in the Pacific Ocean of any embarassment it might feel from want of coal. Fearing an attack upon upon the seaports of the North Atlantic coast by the Spanish men of war now on their way to western waters, steps have been taken to further improve the sea coast defence. It is stated on excellent authority that the administration believes the Spanish men of war will appear at some port on the coast and attempt to retaliate for the loss of the Phillippine Islands.

England Surprised at Dewey's Victory.

New York, May 3.—World's special from London says: England has been surprised bp Commodore Dewey's overwhelming victory. The splendid seamanship and valor of Commodore Dewey in forcing an entrance to Manila harbour excite interest and admiration. Lord Charles Beresford said to-night: "It was a brilliant stroke. Everything, as I said to you before, depends upon the man in modern naval warfare."

What the Capture of Manilla Means.

Sir Charles Dilke said: "The U, S. possession of the Phillippines raises numerous important and delicate points for the consideration of the Powers. I should not be surprised if eventually the United States secured the valuable good will of Japan by handing over the Phillippines to them."

Sir John Colomb on this point said:—"It is an event of enormous international importance. I should not be surprised if the German Emperor was spurred to some startling action by the prospects of his dream of possession of the Philippines being shattered by the American triumph. He has a large squadron in China Seas, with his brother in command, and we may hear of some significant move on the part of that squadron within a day or two."

AN HEROIC DOG.

He Rescues a Fellow Canine from Drowning—The Circumstances Verified by an Eye Witness.

A Peterborough gentleman who wrote to the Campbellford Herald in regard to a report that appeared in that paper recording the rescue of one dog by another from drowing, has received an affidavit setting forth the facts.

It appears that a dog fell into the open river off of the ice, and could not get out on account of the breaking of the ice following its attempt to reach the shore. The affidavit declares that it would surely have been drowned had not a smaller dog—a collie named "Snap"—belonging to a Campbellford newsboy, crept cautiously to the edge of the ice and, leaning over, seized the drowning dog by the back of the neck and pulled him out upon the solid ice. The manifestations of gratitude by the rescued dog were the prettiest parts of the whole scene. An application is being made to the Royal Canadian Humane Society for its sanction for a recognition of the dog's bravery, and it is the intention to ask the Campbellford council to give the heroic dog the freedom of the town and relief from the taxes that ordinary dogs have to submit to.

Dogs are denied the power of reasoning, but the above rescue displays so close an approach to the exercise of reason that it hardly seems necessary to split hairs over the question of that dog being endowed with a sort of dog reason. If he hadn't reason he showed the possession of the noblest moral quality which St. Paul so eloquently magnifies—charity, love for his kind.

LACROSSE.

The first practice of the season was held last evening, when seventeen players turned out on the P.A.A.A. grounds. After shooting on the sticks for an hour or so, a short run was indulged in before the boys rubbed down and left the field. A turn out of this kind on the first night of practice is most encouraging, and it is hoped that on Wednesday evening there will be enough men out to play two teams.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Lacrosse Club was held yesterday afternoon in the EXAMINER Office, the members present being the secretary, treasurer and Messrs. W. E. Lech, B. Dolan and F. Sullivan.

Mr. Buxton, Physical Director of the Y.M.C.A., was also in attendance, and expressed the desire of the Physical Department to make some arrangements with the Lacrosse Association, whereby the members of the former might have the use of the P.A.A.A. grounds three days in the week.

It was not thought advisable by the Executive to fix a sum for the rental of the grounds, but an offer was made to the effect that the Y.M.C.A. memmembers would be allowed the use of the grounds, in conjunction with the lacrosse club, every morning and afternoon in the week, and the exclusive use of the grounds on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. The lacrosse club reserves the grounds for its own members on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, although on these evenings there would be no objection to the Y.M.C.A. members using a portion of the grounds for such athletic sports as jumping, vaulting, etc.

In return for these privileges the lacrosse club asks that the gymnasium and baths of the Y.M.C.A. be thrown open to its members from May 1st to October 1st.

A condition that the lacrosse club imposes on the offer is that it shall have the right to hold a match on the grounds on any day in the week upon giving notice of the same to the Y.M.C.A., and agreeing to give an evening in exchange for any Tuesday, Thursday or Saturday evening which it desires to use for this purpose.

Mr. Buxton will lay the proposition of the lacrosse club before the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors on Friday evening.

The Executive then took up the matter of a game for the Queen's Birthday, and decided to make the Elms, of Toronto, a specific offer for a match on that day. The Elms are very strong this year, having acquired a large number of the old Tecumseh players who did not desire to play with the Toronto's on account of the old grudge. Amongst other good men the Elms have secured are the goal and point men of last year's champion Orangeville's; Querrie and Pringle, of Markham; Bobby Lattimer, formerly of Perth, and Churchill, of Stouffville. All these players are well known to be fit for the fastest company, and if the Elms decide on coming, Peterborough may rest assured that a grand game will be the result.

The secretary wrote to Marmora this morning accepting an invitation for the the Peterborough Juniors to play in that town on May 24th. All the Juniors are requested to turn out without fail to all practices.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF MANAGEMENT PRESENTED.

The Financial Statement—Progress Reported—Interesting Statistics.

The annual meeting of the members of the Public Library was held last night; the following were present: Dr. Burnham, chairman, Messrs. John Corkery, secretary, H. S. McDonald, R. Robertson, J. S. Knapman, J. English, Wm. Hamilton, jr., and others.

Dr. Burnham, on behalf of the Board, presented the following report.

Your Board of Management have again the pleasure of being able to report the continued progress of the Public Library for the past year. It is near thirty years since the Library, under the name of the Mechanic's Institute, was established in Peterborough, and during all that time it has advanced more or less rapidly, till at present it stands in the front rank, and is only surpassed by the Free Public Libraries of the cities of Guelph, Brantford, London, Hamilton and Toronto. In the number of periodicals taken for use in the reading rooms, we excel all but the last three of the cities mentioned. As all these libraries, and a number of others are supported by their respective municipalities, their means of support are less limited than ours, strangers, from several of these cities, when visiting our rooms have said that our members have advantages greater than they can find at home.

Our reading rooms have become more popular each succeeding year, and are used by a greater number of members. As they are well lighted, comfortably heated and supplied with all the leading periodicals of the day, it would be surprising if they were not popular. A good many persons who are not members make a practice of visiting and using the reading rooms. While we are pleased to have any, especially strangers visiting the town, call and see our Public Library, we think it is only fair to expect citizens to assist an institution which is a credit to the place, with something more substantial than the light of their countenance.

A new catalogue, containing a full list of the books in the library received up to the first of December, 1897, has, at considerable expense, been prepared, and is now for sale. In it the names of the authors have been arranged in alphabetical order and the names of the books of each author in the different classes will be found together.

The class in mechanical drawing in connection with the Library was conducted during the past winter by Mr. W. J. Francis, a graduate of the School of Practical Science. The class was fairly well attended, but a few of the members had to work in the evenings and for that reason were hindered from attending as regularly as they wished. The examination required by the Education Department was held a few days ago, but the results will not be known for some time.

The number of members is 882, an increase of 5 over last year.

The following gives the whole number of volumes in the library in each class, during the year the number added and the number issued to members.

LEANING TOWER OF PISA.

One Cannot Help Being Nervous In Looking From Its Top.

In St. Nicholas, John Ward writes of "The Bell Towers of Italy." Mr. Ward says of the most famous of them all:

Pisa seems like a sleeping city, as she lies so quietly and silently along the two borders of the river Arno. She fell asleep several hundred years ago, after she had struggled valiantly for her independence and had won renown during the fierce contests between the Guelphs (partisans of the pope) and the Ghibellines (partisans of the emperor). Though Pisa has long since forgotten the days of her greatness, the world cannot forget them when it looks upon that wondrously beautiful group of four marble white buildings standing apart in the sacred corner—the cathedral, the baptistery, the campo santo (or burial ground), and, what interests us most of all, the remarkable campanile, so well known as the "leaning tower." This famous tower was built in 1174. Its construction is peculiar. There is in the center a hollow brick tube or cylinder; around this plain round tower the architects built eight stories of open galleries, with beautiful, slender columns of white marble supporting semicircular arches. The general effect is one of great delicacy and lightness, a fairylike tower of wonderful grace. The summit is 179 feet from the ground. As you all know, the tower leans 13 feet out of the perpendicular and looks as if it would surely fall over at any moment, but, as the center of gravity is still within its base, it is as safe as if it were erect. The foundations were probably imperfectly built at the start, for the tower began to lean before it was half finished, and we can see where at one point the builders tried to bring it back as much as possible to the vertical line by making the columns on the low side higher than the others. The walls, too, are strengthened with iron bars. Fancy the consternation of the architects when they saw their beautiful tower leaning over and its foundations sinking in the ground! It requires very steady nerves to carry us to the top, and we find ourselves clinging to the wall when we are on the leaning side.

This is what Charles Dickens says about the tower in his "Pictures From Italy:" "In the course of the ascent to the top the inclination is not very apparent, but at the summit it becomes so and gives one the sensation of being in a ship that has heeled over through the action of an ebb tide. The effect upon the low side, so to speak, looking over from the gallery and seeing the shaft recede to its base, is very startling, and I saw a nervous traveler hold on to the tower involuntarily after glancing down, as if he had some idea of propping it up."

When we reach the summit, we must not forget that this was where the great astronomer Galileo watched the stars, experimented on the fall of bodies and studied the law of gravitation. Here, too, in the upper story, hang the six bells, the largest of which weighs more than 12,000 pounds. The bell founders of Pisa had a wide reputation for casting bells of beautiful tone, sonorous and harmonious. They lavished on them all their art and their talent.

The Pasquareccia (the Paschal bell), the most famous of the Pisan bells, the one which was tolled when criminals were taken to execution, is ornamented with a figure of the Virgin and the devices of Pisa and has a rich, full tone.

A RELIABLE OFFER.

Honest Help Free to Men.

The (Peterborough Examiner) is authorized to state by Mr. D. Graham, Box 133, Hagersville, Ont., that any man who is nervous and debilitated or who is suffering from any of the various troubles resulting from overwork, excesses or abuse, such as nervous debility, exhausted vitality, lost vigor, unnatural drains and losses, lack of development, etc., can write to him in strict confidence and receive free of charge full instructions how to be thoroughly cured.

Mr. Graham himself was for a long time a sufferer from above troubles and after trying in vain many advertised remedies, electric belts, etc., became almost entirely discouraged and hopeless. Finally he confided in an old clergyman, whose kind and honest advice enabled him to speedily obtain a perfect and permanent cure. Knowing to his own sorrow, that so many poor sufferers are being imposed upon by unscrupulous quacks, Mr. Graham considers it his duty as an honest man and a firm believer in Christian sympathy and kindness, to give his fellow-men the benefit of his experience and assist them to a cure. Having nothing to sell, he asks for no money, the proud satisfaction of having done a great service to one in need, he rightly considers an ample reward for his trouble. If you write to Mr. Gradam you can rely upon being cured and upon absolute secrecy as well.

Address as above, enclosing a stamp, and refer to the (PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER). No attention, however, will be given to those writing out of mere curiosity, therefore state that you really need a cure.

ARTIST AND CRITIC.

The Former Owes a Debt to the Latter, Although Seldom Acknowleged.

The debt which the artist owes the critic is not a small one, nor is it any the less actual for being commonly lost sight of. It is a current belief that the public is educated by the mere existence of the good work of art, and not by the elucidation of its commentators. Education by absorption is perhaps the most deep going and farreaching form of education, but it has never been found practicable to rely upon it solely in other branches of mental acquisition. Then why believe that it can be relied upon solely for the proper development of the art sense? In effect it never is and cannot be. How many people care about poetry, let us say—feel it, are reached by it? And can one doubt that if a more loving and careful analysis of such of its products as appear today were undertaken by critics competent to convey to an indifferent public the perennial value of its ministrations, some of the unresponsiveness of the average reader would disappear, and some perception of the eternal significance of the poet's message would extend to the classes now given over to nothing more tonic in the way of reading than the daily newspaper? We say that one is born with the feeling for the enjoyment of poetry and another is not. Not so. At least, to say this is not to say all. The feeling for the highest æsthetic enjoyment and appreciation is cultivable, and cultivable as is any other faculty, by studying the material to be enjoyed, by reverently conning its constituent parts. In short, a vague, dreamy delight in the presence of some beautiful work of the artistic spirit is not enough. It is not enough for intelligence, it is not enough especially to produce the atmosphere of interest which stimulates the painter, the musician, the writer, to sustained effort and keeps him true to the pitch. We love best what we know best. To rest in loving without knowing is often the merest sentimentality—a sentimentality toward which our Germanic forefathers had always a leaning, while it was especially antagonistic to the lucid Greek and Latin spirit.—"The Superfluous Critic," by Aline Gorren, in Century.

The Old Sailor's Yarn.

"Yes," said the old fellow who professed to have been a sailor and who hitched his unmentionables and rolled in his walk that he might look the part, "I was marooned onct.

"It's a solemn fack, gents. Fur ten years I lived alone on a South sea island. I wasn't jest deserted there, but the ship blowed up an I was the only one what ever reached land ag'in. I floated on a spar to that there deserlate island. None of you gents knows what it is to be lonely, to have no feller bein to jaw with, to see nuthin above but the heavens and nuthin 'round you but water. I would a died if I hadn't ketched a sea gull and trained him so he would mind like a dog."

Here a sympathetic listener piped the old fellow up to grog, and he seemed to lose his bearings. "Ten times I writ home," he went on, "and half a dozen times I cabled."

"Why, you old fraud," interrupted a fresh water sailor who had been taking in the narration, "if you could send letters and cablegrams, you weren't marooned. What kind of a game is this you're givin us?"

But the old salt was equal to the occasion. Over he tumbled on the floor, he went through the outward symptoms of a fit, had to be supplied with another dose of restorative and when he came to, looked about him in a dazed way. "What bev I been sayin, gents?" he asked faintly. "Ever since I was marooned I have these here spells and go to unwindin novels. It was fur ten years, gents," and the last word floated back as he made a dash through the front door.—Detroit Free Press.

LOVE'S OWN.

Where Love built his humble nest
Tired and thankful did I rest.
Sweeter rest there could not be,
Though the black night covered me,
And Love whispered, "Art thou blest?"
And I answered, "Love is best."

Where Love built his nest I knew
Thorns beneath the rose leaves grew.
Sweeter roses could not be,
Though the keen thorns crept to me.
And Love whispered, "Art thou blest?"
And I answered, "Love is best."

Where Love built his nest a blight
Blew from lands of Death and Night.
All that life had held of sweet
Lay in ashes at Love's feet.
Yet I—folded to his breast—
Weeping, whispered, "Love is best."

So, with Love abiding still,
I am Love's, to do his will,
So his lips on mine are laid,
So his hand my couch hath made.
Still he whispers, "Art thou blest?"
Still I answer, "Love is best."

Spurious Mummies.

Spurious mummies have from time to time been palmed off upon the public, and a doubt arose in a Vienna museum as to the validity of one daughter of the pharaohs in their collection. It occurred to them, in view of the general hollowness of life, that the young lady might have been manufactured in Birmingham. So they turned the Roentgen rays upon her and saw at once through the many folded wraps the amulets which the Egyptians placed upon the bosoms of their dead, thus proving the genuineness of their specimen.

APPALLING DEATH

From Kidney Disease Prevented by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? It means that the kidneys are either rotten, or rotting; the blood is full of poisonous, death-dealing corruption; that the Kidneys can't do their work; that the victim is a walking charnel-house; that his hours are numbered; that the victim MUST take Dodd's Kidney Pills if he does not want to die.

Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

TWO FOOLS.

"Why, I'd rather marry her myself," said I. Nothing, in truth, was further from my thoughts.

Amanda's mother regarded me curiously. "Of course," said she, "if that were the case, it would make a difference."

"But I don't really mean it," I cried hastily. Why, the idea was absurd! Just when I was in the middle of the book on the "Cerebral Convolutions" too!

"Then," said her mother, closing her hard, thin mouth with a snap, "Amanda will marry Mr. Plutus. There is no one but you who has any right to a voice in the matter."

"There is Amanda," I suggested.

"Amanda! She is far too young to decide. I am the judge for her. Amanda shall do as I bid her and marry Mr. Plutus."

"I shall do my best to stop her."

"She shall not see you." I knew she would try to be as good as her word, and my heart went out in a great pity for poor little Amanda, who was so like her father and had been a pet of mine ever since she was a child.

"If I weren't too old"—I said, half to myself.

"Nonsense! Why, you're no older than I." She is 48.

"I could never make the child happy," I sighed.

"Nonsense! She's devoted to you."

"Very well, I will speak to Amanda about it," I said slowly, "but there must be no drawing back on your part."

I had a sudden inspiration, being a man of quick thought. "I should like to have your consent in writing. To be candid, I do not trust you."

"Very well." She sat down to her escritoire. "What shall I write?"

"I consent to the marriage of my daughter to Mr. Frank Austen," I dictated. She wrote it accordingly and signed it with a flourish.

My name is the same as my nephew's. I'll have him up to town, and if he doesn't fall in love with Amanda he's a fool. That was my idea.

"Well, now I'll talk to Amanda," I said, feeling rather uncomfortable. And I did.

Amanda is 18 and stands 5 feet 2. Amanda has golden brown hair that will get loose and tumble about her cheeks and forehead.

"Oh, Cousin Frank," she cried—cousin is my brevet rank—"you won't let her make me—marry that horrible man!"

"No," said I, "Mandy, my dear, I won't." Then I kissed her. If only I were sure that she wouldn't disarrange my study!

"You kind old Frank!" She took hold of my arm and squeezed it.

"But your mother insists upon your getting engaged to some one, my dear," I said ruefully; "somebody who is fairly well off. Are you in love with anybody, Mandy? Tell me, there's a good little girl."

She opened her eyes wide and looked at me honestly. "Oh, no, Cousin Frank! Only—only—I think perhaps I should like to be—some day

Rescue for Weak Men

We invite weak men to give our remedies and appliances a fair trial. We ask to be judged solely by what we do, not by what others have failed to do. We have supreme confidence in our treatment. We know it has cured thousands of men who were sexually weak, who had lost all ambition, whose lives had been miserable on account of past abuses and indiscretions, overwork, etc. We want the confidence of all weak men. Our business is honorable.

Free Trial

We will send our medicines and appliances for a ten-days' trial to any sufferer who will promise to give them a fair test. No money is to be paid unless our treatment is found to be just what we claim for it. If no relief is found, send the outfit back to us, and that will end the matter. We want no pay in cases which we cannot cure. Write us freely and confidentially. Our advice is valuable. If you have never seen our famous book, "Complete Manhood," send for a free copy. "Well, look here, Mandy," I said sheepishly, "your mother insists that you shall be engaged to some one, and I can only find one person."

"Not Mr. Plutus! I won't!" she cried vehemently.

"No, no! Not any one who will annoy you, dear, or whom you dislike."

"Whoever"— She looked up at me quickly and half let go my arm.

"Just till you find some one you like," I apologized, turning as red as a poppy.

She held on to my arm again and looked down on the ground. Then she laughed. "How very funny!"

"Would you mind, Mandy?"

"No-o," she laughed again. "I think it would be rather—fun. You would have to take me out a lot, wouldn't you? To pretend properly"—

"Yo-es. Oh, yes, of course!" Whatever would become of the "Cerebral Convolutions?"

"But wouldn't it be rather a bother to you?"

"Not more than to you."

"Oh, it wouldn't be any bother to me!" she cried excitedly. "We'd go to the Tower, and the stores, and the Crystal palace, and the zoo, and the exhibition and have tea in the gardens, and the opera, and"—

She saw my face fall. "I only meant to some of them," she explained. "You always do take me to the academy and one or two places, don't you?"

"I shall like to take you to some, my dear," I assured. "I always enjoy myself when I do."

"Ye—es," said she thoughtfully, "but—oh, Cousin Frank, suppose I didn't find any one else?"

"Then I shall have to marry you myself. It would be better than old Plutus, wouldn't it?"

"Oh, yes, but I shouldn't like—I couldn't bear to think that you had sacrificed yourself to me! I should be such a bother, shouldn't I?"

I looked down affectionately on the rumpled hair and inquiring eyes. "I think—I think, Mandy," I said gently, "I could put up with you very well, but we have been so used to look upon one another in a different light that it's rather late to change. You see, dear, I have grown into a fidgety old bachelor."

"You're not really old, and you're never fidgety with me, and I owe you so much."

I'd merely paid for her schooling and pocket money and so on. I promised old Tom—poor old Tom!—that I'd take care of his girl.

"That's nothing to do with it, Mandy," I said slowly. "You see, I've a lot of interests which you could never share." She shook her head doubtfully. "And I like to rush off when I'm not working to men's recreations—to play cricket, to watch football or"—

"I like watching football," she observed eagerly.

"I'm used to having meals when I please and going out when I like and coming in when I like. Of course I couldn't do that if I had a wife. It wouldn't be fair."

"It would be a little lonely for her," said Amanda wistfully.

"So," I continued resolutely, resisting an absurd impulse to kiss her again, "though I think you the nicest little woman in the world, dear"—she smiled just like the sun coming out—"it would be better for you to find some one younger and less crotchety." She tapped the ground rapidly with one little foot. "Meanwhile we're engaged, you know, and we must live up to it. Where shall I take you tomorrow?"

"Oh, no! You must do a lot of your book tomorrow and give me some copying to do—about brains and spines and things."

"Nonsense, child! Don't I always take you out when I come to town? Shall we go to the academy?" She laughed her old childish laugh.

"And lunch at a restaurant?" she inquired delightedly. "And go to the Crystal palace afterward, and have tea in the gardens, and see the variety show, and dine on the terrace like we did last year?" She squeezed my arm in her old way. "Won't it be jolly?"

It was jolly. The next day I took her to the zoo and smiled to see her laugh at the monkeys. The day after I took her to the exhibition and up the big wheel and put my arm round her because she was frightened, or pretended to be. I squeezed twice for good night. Then I began to see that it would be bad for the "Cerebral Convolutions" if this sort of thing went on. So I sent for Nephew Frank to come up to town at once. That light hearted young gentleman held his sides with laughter when I explained the situation.

"So I'm to court your fiancee—she used to be a pretty little girl—and take her off your hands for an allowance of £500 a year?" he said, wiping his eyes; "£500 and £300 make £800—£400 apiece."

"Exactly!" I said approvingly. "You always were smart at figures, Frank."

"But, my dear uncle, suppose she won't have me? Besides, I'm not sure but I think I'm just a little gone on Nellie Marchant. Suppose I don't care for your Amanda?"

"She's awfully nice, Frank. You couldn't help it." I was surprised at my doleful tone.

"Then," said he, "why don't you marry her yourself?"

"I lit a cigar and drummed on the fender with my slipper. "I'm too old—too settled in my bachelor ways, Frank," I said regretfully. "I don't know—I'm not sure—if it would do."

"I believe it would be the best thing in the world for you, old man." Frank leaned over the table earnestly. He's an honest, unselfish lad. That's why I'm so fond of him. And I know he'd be good to her.

"Well," I said slowly, "I'll be honest with you, Frank. I'm fond of the child—very fond indeed. If I thought that she could like me—in that way—I'm hanged if I wouldn't chance it. But she only looks upon me as an elder brother. Some day she"—I paused to blow my handkerchief—"she would find out. It wouldn't do; I'm sure it wouldn't do."

So it was arranged that I should be busy finishing my book and see less of Amanda, and Frank was to see her every day to find out if she would like him better than me, or if he could like her better than Nellie Marchant.

This arrangement lasted for a fortnight, but none of us seemed quite ourselves. Mandy grew staid and silent. I couldn't do anything right with the book, and something seemed wrong with my liver. Even cheerful Frank grew a bit bad tempered. At the end of the fortnight he burst in upon me in the evening when I was busy with the "Cerebral Convolutions."

"Look here, uncle," said he coolly, flinging himself into an armchair and taking one of my cigars, "you're an ass!"

"That," I observed mildly, "is very strong language, Frank."

"Well," said he, "I like Nellie ever so much better than your Amanda—that's flat."

"Then," said I, bringing my hand down on the table with a thump, "you're a fool!"

"Amanda," said he firmly, "is as dull as dishwater."

I took off my reading glasses and glared at him. "She's the brightest little creature in the world," I asserted resolutely.

He took a long draw at the cigar and blew smoke rings, a thing I never could manage. "Amanda," he continued in a matter of fact tone, "is dull because she's in love."

I let my pipe drop on the floor with a crash. "With whom?" My voice sounded strange to me.

"Why, with you, of course. Man alive, you must be blind! You're pretending that you don't care for her and breaking her poor little heart."

I looked at him in silence for a few seconds. Then I got up and fetched my hat. "I'm going out," I told him, and I went.

When I arrived at their drawing room, Amanda was sitting on the rug, with her back against the sofa. She had dropped her book on the floor and was looking into the fire, with her cheek on her hand, and I could see tears in her eyes.

She jumped up to meet me, with an eager little laugh. "What, deserted the 'Convolutions?'"

"Hang the 'Convolutions!'" I said. "The fact is, they're awfully uninteresting compared with you, Mandy."

"Are they? Then they must be stupid."

I put my arm round her waist and drew her close to me. "Mandy," I said passionately, "my dear little girl, we've been playing at sweethearts long enough. Shall we begin in earnest?"

Amanda said nothing, only laid her head down on my shoulder, with a happy little sob.—J. A. Flynn in Madame.

Superintendent—Mr. Hustlejohn, the boy you sent to the broker's with orders to purchase those shares in X. Q. and W. has been run over, and he will probably die.

Proprietor—H'm! Did he get hurt on his way there or when coming back?

Superintendent—On his way there.

Proprietor—Just like that boy! Why in time couldn't he have waited until he had done his errand? It would have made $1,000 difference to me perhaps.

Superintendent—By the way, we have just got news that X. Q. and W. has passed its dividend and may go into receivers' hands.

Proprietor—I'm sorry about that boy. He was a good deal better boy than I thought him to be.—Boston Transcript.

THE SURGEON FOILED.

Wanted to Perform an Operation.

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS RENDERED IT UNNECESSARY.

Too many doctors are too ready to use the knife. Many a one is sacrificed on the altar of a surgeon's ambition to operate who could be saved by the use of Dr. Chase's K.-L. Pills. The case of MRS. W. B. AIKEN, of Zephyr, Ont., is one in point. Her husband says that she had been doctoring with several doctors for Inflammation of the Bladder for over a year.

"The last bottle I got from the doctor he said if that did her no good she would be compelled to have an operation performed. I luckily picked up a sample of Dr. Chase's K.-L. Pills in Mr. Dafoe's store, and my wife took one pill that night and one in the morning, and she has never felt the least sign of pain since. I will always keep Dr. Chase's Pills in my house for all our family complaints."

THE STREAM OF LIFE.

The stream of life is going dry.
Thank God that more and more
I see the golden sands which I
Could never see before.

The banks are dark with graves of friends.
Thank God, for faith sublime
In the eternity that sends
Its shadows into time.

The flowers are gone that with their glow
Of sunshine filled the grass.
Thank God, they were but dim and low
Reflections in a glass.

The autumn winds are blowing chill,
The summer warmth is done.
Thank God, the little dewdrop still
Is drawn into the sun.

Strange stream, to be exhaled so fast
In cloudy cares and tears.
Thank God that it should shine at last
Along the immortal years.

CANADA LIFE

Assurance Company.

ANOTHER PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Large Increase in Surplus.

The fifty-first annual report of the Canada Life shows this old established Company to be in a most flourishing condition. The annual meeting was held yesterday. Following is a synopsis of the report :—

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

In presenting to the Shareholders their 51st Annual Report, the Directors are gratified in announcing that the Company has fairly shared in the somewhat improved condition of the business of the country, as will be seen by the Statements and Accounts now submitted. By these it will be observed that the Company has transacted a larger business than during the previous year, and has increased its clear surplus by no less than $497,093 05.

NEW BUSINESS

The applications for new assurances during 1897 numbered 3 066, for the sum of $6,185,996, of which, however, 266 for $521,000 were declined, the lives not appearing up to that standard which it is in the interest of the company's other assurers should be maintained, and as 191 applications for $373,300 were not carried out, the issue of the year was for $5 291,636, under 2 609 policies, exceeding 1896 by 573 policies for $798,980.

The total business in force at the close of 1897 was $72,719,555 29 of Assurances, under 33,407 policies, upon 24,469 lives.

POLICY CLAIMS.

The claims by deaths paid during 1897 amounted to $770,168 45, and Endowment policies for $128,846 92, having matured, these sums, as well as $218,481 29 for profits, $145,411.18 for surrenders, and an annuity of $400, making in all $1,263,307.84, were paid to policyholders during the year.

INCREASE IN ASSETS.

The Income receipts of the year were $2,953,272.83, and deducting therefrom all payments to policy-holders for claims by death, for profits, and for matured Endowment policies, as well as other outlay, including expenses of management, there was left the sum of $1,272,486 05, which increased the Company's Assets to $18,678 915 67.

SURPLUS.

As appears by the Abstract of Assets and Liabilities, after providing fully for the necessary reserve for all policies of the Company, and for all its other Liabilities, there is shown a Surplus of $1,564,082 05.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, Mr. A. G. Ramsay, in moving the adoption of the report, said :

The Directors' Report and the usual accounts and statements have for some days been in your hands, and have now been taken as read. While the report is brief, it contains, I think, along with the various published accounts, all that is required to enable those interested in the Company to judge of its progress and success in the past year. The addition during 1897 of nearly half a million dollars to the surplus or profits fund is a large and satisfactory one, and without invidiously comparing it with the figures of any other particular Company. I may say that it is more than was attained by all the other Canadian companies combined. The new business of the year was, you will observe, of satisfactory and gratifying amount, and in excess of the previous year, and you will be pleased to know that it is of that desirable class which will result more to the profit of the Company than would a larger amount obtained at heavier expense, or from less desirable regions than the healthful climate of Canada, and the four Northern States to which we have thus far deemed it judicious to confine the operations of the Company. The existing assurances are $72,719,555 or nearly twice as much as they were 12 years ago. The death claims of the year continued of very favourable amount, and being well within what was calculated upon, that fact testifies to the care observed in the selection of the lives, and to the judicious limitation of the business to the healthful climates already alluded to.

The recent lamentable failures of some of the companies doing business on the assessment system, and the anxiety felt as to the others which are based upon the same fallacious principles lead me to point out that these occurrences are only the inevitable results, which were from the first predicted by those whose knowledge and experience enabled them to judge of what the future of companies of the kind must be. At our meeting in 1887, when concerns of the kind were making strenuous efforts to establish themselves in Canada, I alluded to the miserable failures they had been in England and in America, and I said that their "ephemeral existence indicates how useless the assessment system of assurance is as a family provision. It can only offer the uncertain hope of a cheap assurance for a few years, till the company breaks down. It cannot afford any guarantee that a definite amount of assurance will certainly be paid to a widow or children after an assurer's death, whether that occurs at an early day or a distant one, and without such a guarantee as that, which our own and other sound companies offer, life assurance must be a fraud and a delusion." I added that "I was aware that agents and managers of companies of the kind pointed to the names of prominent business and professional men who have joined them, or who act as their directors, but as some of them at all events allow their names to be employed in that way, simply because policies have been gratuitously given to them, one can judge how little weight should attach to the names of the gentlemen thus used to decoy others to join such companies." One cannot envy the feelings of the prominent gentlemen alluded to, who induced persons to take policies in companies of the kind, from which they are now driven out by their failure, or by the levy of such high payments as they are unable to meet

As the accounts show, the year's income was within a trifle of three million dollars, and the assets of the company were increased to the very considerable amount of nearly nineteen million dollars, and yielding, after deducting liabilities of every kind, a net surplus or profit of $1,564,082 for allocation at the end of next year, along with whatever addition there may be made to it between now and that time, and as the management and other expenses by which the profits to policy-holders are very largely influenced continue to be on a more moderate percentage than that of other Canadian or American companies, he prospects for our assurers are of a favourable character.

It is anticipated that legislation will be introduced by the Government, modifying the present 4½ per cent. rate of interest prescribed by law as the basis for Life Assurance Reserves, and adopting the new mortality Tables based upon the observations and large experience of the British Insurance Companies, in course of compilation by the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, and I may say on behalf of the Board in reference to the amendment to the charter, alluded to in the Directors report of last year, that the Directors purpose to avail themselves of the occasion of that legislation to seek such amendments to the law as may meet the Board's requirements.

The motion was seconded by Mr. F. W. Gates, Vice-President, and unanimously carried. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the agents, officers, medical and legal advisers of the company, Mr. Adam Brown speaking in eloquent terms of their services rendered to the Company.

Mr. Leggat moved and Lieut.-Col. McLaren seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Company during the past year. Brief and interesting addresses were also made by Sir George Kirkpatrick and Sir George Burton, the latter of whom was heartily congratulated upon the recent honour conferred upon him by the Queen.

The retiring Directors, Chief Justice Sir George Burton, Col. Sir Casimer Gzowski, K.C.M.G., and Mr. N. Merritt, were re-elected. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. A. G. Ramsay was re-elected President and Mr. F. W. Gates Vice-President

The meeting passed off very harmoniously, every one present being gratified with the progress and continued prosperity of the Canada Life, which, as Sir George Kirkpatrick remarked, was easily leader of all Companies in the Dominion.

THE CROWNED LEADERS OF THE HAT TRADE

Have Outstripped All Previous Records.

* * * * *

We started in with the intention of making the spring season of 1898 one memorable in the Hat Department of our Big Store, and we have succeeded far beyond our expectations. For Elegance, Variety and Style our stock this year is beyond worded description, unapproachable by local competition and unexcellend by the other big stores in the larger cities ; and LOW PRICES are the two words which stand out most prominently on the banner waving over this magnificent stock. Our combination of stores, with their capital combined, together with our Cash System, enables us to buy the best and most stylish shapes from the leading manufacturers, and sell them for less than others charge for what we call our inferior goods. Buy where you like and we can duplicate your purchase or give you a better quality of Hat, and you will have enough from the difference in the prices to purchase something else of half the value. An investigation of this year's handsome stock will convince you that these are unvarnished facts. Come in and see us, is worth your while to view the stock.

A STRONG ARGUMENT.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my thanks for your cheque just handed to me, for $3,901.98, in settlement of my $3,500 Fifteen Year Endowment Policy in your Company. Such a result as this, after the risk on my life has been carried for fifteen years, beginning from forty-five years of age, argues one thing strongly, namely, that the management of the North American Life must be in competent hands. The other options you have offered me, viz: a Paid-up Life policy for $3510.00, or a Life Annuity for $401.90, are, I presume, equally liberal, and it affords me much pleasure to recommend your Company to my friends or any one desiring insurance.

SPAIN VERGING ON REVOLUTION.

Queen Regent and Her Son All Ready for Flight.

EXCITEMENT IN THE COUNTRY.

Rioting and Bloodshed at Seville and Other Spanish Towns—Madrid an Armed Camp—Carlists Active—A Weyler Dictatorship Talked of—Don Carlos Agitated by News Received.

London, May 4.—The Brussels correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "Don Carlos, the Pretender, is much agitated by private telegrams he has received to-day from Madrid. A Spanish diplomatist of high position said to me to day: 'They are practically in a state of revolution and it is the beginning of the end of the Regency. The Queen Regent may make a final effort in favor of her son; but he will never come to the throne.'"

DON CARLOS.

VERGING ON REVOLUTION.

Rioting and Bloodshed at Seville and Other Spanish Towns—Great Excitement Throughout the Country.

New York, May 4.—A Madrid special via Berlin says: There has been fierce rioting and bloodshed at Seville, Barcelona and Valencia, and there is the most intense excitement throughout the kingdom. A revolution is imminent. Madrid is an armed camp and the Queen Regent and boy King have completed all preparations for flight. While the Carlists are active, it is believed, nevertheless, that a dictatorship of Weyler may be the outcome of the crisis.

TO THE BITTER END.

No Idea of Surrender Entertained at the Spanish Capital Because of the Manila Disaster.

London, May 4.—According to special despatches received here from Rome yesterday the Queen Regent of Spain has telegraphed the Pope on the subject of the defeat of the Spanish fleet at Manila, saying: "The Spanish nation is calm, but resolved to resist to the bitter end."

Her Majesty also begs the Pontiff to bless the Spanish arms.

No Idea of Surrender.

It is announced in a special despatch from Madrid that there is no idea of surrender there, either in Ministerial circles or among the populace. On the contrary, it is added, the war is to be pushed with greater vigor.

One Supreme Effort.

Another Madrid special says that it is even stated at Madrid, by those who are responsible for the naval movements, that it has been determined to avoid isolated combats on unequal terms and with a superior enemy, and that they now intend to throw the whole united naval strength of Spain into one supreme effort to crush the American squadron in Cuban waters.

Continuing, the special says: "Until this engagement is fought, no proposal for intervention will be listened to."

Some Positive Information.

New York, May 4.—The Journal has received the following from J. W. Cunningham, its correspondent at Hong-Kong:

"Positive information was received here yesterday that the American forces under Commodore Dewey had captured Manila. The American flag now floats over the capital of the Philippines.

"The last act of Augusti, the Spanish Captain-General, was to cut the cable. Augusti's first act after cutting the cable was to haul down the Spanish flag.

"American officers, in conjunction with the leaders of the Philippine insurgents are now engaged in organizing a provisional government."

Spanish Admiral Taken by Surprise.

London, May 4.—It appears that Admiral Montejo was taken altogether by surprise, and that the Spanish authorities generally were in a state of utter unreadiness. The forts were not completed. The harbors were not mined, there were no searchlights and the American squadron was only sighted after it had already passed the outer and principal forts. On every side in England is heard praise of the skill and daring displayed by Commodore Dewey in a situation where, if anything had miscarried, he would have been caught in a most desperate position. At the same time credit is given Admiral Montejo, who had a wretched fleet and stood no chance except from the assistance he might receive from the forts.

MANILA HAS FALLEN.

The Stars and the Stripes Now Wave Where Spain's Flag Proudly Floated Only the Other Day.

New York, May 4.—A Wall street news agency sends out the following:

"Hong-Kong, May 8. — Manila has fallen. The stars and stripes waves over the Philippines."

Cut About 40 Miles From Manila.

Washington, May 4.—Secretary Long received notice from cable headquarters in Hong-Kong yesterday that accurate tests show the Manila cable to have been cut about forty miles from Manila. No despatches have been received from Manila since Sunday.

TO HOLD THE PHILIPPINES.

The President Will Send 5,000 Californian Troops to Secure Dewey's Victory.

Washington, May 4. — The Cabinet meeting yesterday resulted in a decision to await a report from Commodore Dewey and then to send him the number of troops he deems necessary to enforce control of the Philippines. The whole session was consumed in a general discussion of past events. The Administration has practically decided to occupy the Philippines with a strong military force as soon as possible after Commodore Dewey's report, which is expected by to-morrow, shall have been received. For this purpose Pacific slope troops will be used, and it is expected that at least 5,000 will be en route within the next ten days. There does not seem to be any doubt as to the Government's purpose to hold these islands pending a final settlement with Spain, when they will be used as a collateral to secure the payment to the United States of a war indemnity. High officials are of the opinion that none of the powers will seriously dispute the right of the United States to make such final disposition. In any event the American Government will be prepared to contest any point which may be raised on this score.

Honors for Dewey.

Washington, May 4.—Secretary Long says Commodore Dewey will be made an acting admiral and later nominated to be rear-admiral.

NEGLECT AND WANT

Caused the Death of 800 Spanish Soldiers at Manzanillo.

Mobile, Ala., May 4.—The American barque John R. Stanhope is in port from Honduras. Since she left Mobile last time the vessel has been in Manzanillo, on the southeast coast of Cuba, which port Capt. P. V. Marshall left on March 26, and the master tells a surprising story to the Associated Press representative of the military conditions existing there, being verified by the mate, Thomas Coburn. A cavalryman who could converse in good English told them that there were 40,000 Spanish soldiers in the city and 800 had died during the week the Stanhope was there of neglect and want.

From the best information obtainable, Capt. Marshall is of the opinion that the whole of the 40,000 troops driven into Manzanillo from the Province of Santiago de Cuba by the insurgents are only awaiting a favorable opportunity to openly revolt.

"KIT" AT THE FRONT.

Only Lady War Correspondent to Whom a Pass Has Been Issued.

Washington, May 4.—One hundred and thirty-five passes, giving permission for correspondents of newspapers to accompany the army, have so far been issued by Secretary Alger. One of these was to Mrs. K. B. Watkins, representing a Toronto newspaper, and is the only one issued up to this time to a representative of the gentler sex. Many other applications have been filed with the Secretary.

War Will Not Last Long.

London, May 4.—The Stock Exchange interprets the news as meaning the war will not last long. Consols show improvement and money is plentiful.

Mrs. Sternaman's Trial.

Cayuga, May 4.—Mrs. Sternaman's trial will commence to-day. Detective Murray is here. Mr. Roberts, inspector of the Metropolitan Insurance Company, will give evidence at this trial. He was too ill to go into the box at the last session. Mrs. Sternaman is in good health and spirits, and she desires to go into the witness box to testify in her own behalf.

THE PETERBOROUGH KLONDYKE PARTY.

A RUNNING LETTER FROM ONE OF THE BOYS.

Letters by the Way From Mr. W. T. P. Eyres—Interesting Notes of the Progress of the Journey—Skagway Reached a Fortnight Ago—Now Struggling With the Passes.

NANIMO, B.C. April 16th, 1898, 8.15 a.m. Steamer Annie.

TO ALL AT HOME,—We left Vancouver last night at 12.45, steamed through the Narrows and are now anchored here coaling up for the trip. It takes about 150 tons to make the round trip, and they are loading 200 tons in case of emergency; also 100 tons for Skagway. This is a beautiful bay about sixty miles from Vancouver. The land is heavily timbered and mountainous. The town of Nanimo is three miles distant through the woods. The men working on coaling are mostly Chinamen, and are a hard looking lot. I am writing this on the hurricane deck, the weather being fine but a little chilly. We had breakfast this morning at 7 o'clock, and it reminded me of threshing time in the Northwest—plenty of grub, but rough and ready; beefsteak, boiled potatoes, mush, bread, butter and coffee.

8.15 p.m.—We are steaming along with a good head wind blowing. The boat is steady, and the waves at times are ten feet high. If we had a side wind we would be rolling in good shape. I think I will go to bed. Good night.

9.30 a.m., April 17th—We came through what they call the Narrows last night. They had to anchor for about four hours to wait for the tide. When the tide is running out they have to wait. The current is so strong in the Narrows that they cannot steer the boat. Now we are going along about twelve miles an hour. We are in behind a chain of islands. The water is fairly smooth. We strike the open ocean some time to-day, the wind is quite strong but our boat is riding like a cork. Clark is in bed trying to sleep but we won't let him. We are all well. The coast seems to be much the same all the way, quite mountainous. The islands are the same. We are now about 200 miles from Vancouver.

10.30 a.m. 18th—We are steaming along nicely. Last night about 8.30 we struck Millbank Sound, and had the open ocean on our left; the wind was blowing quite strong, the boat would roll and pitch forward but not very badly. We stood it all right. We went to bed and I soon went to sleep. When I woke up she was running quite smooth, and has ever since. It's just like sailing on a river, with the exception of Charlotte and Millbank Sounds, and there is another ahead, I think they call it Dickson's Inlet, but we can stand it. Why, it's just like a picnic party, three good meals a day and nothing to do but sleep and amuse ourselves. The channel is about five miles wide just now and we are rolling a little. Quite a few of the boys were sick yesterday crossing the Sound. Our party escaped with one exception, and several of us went to bed and thus escaped. I know if I had staid up it would have upset me. H. C. sleeps all night and about half the day; he will be prepared for hard work when it comes. We are all feeling fine.

9.30 p. m., April 18.—We are still bowling along; our good ship is sailing over the sea; everything is lovely. We are all well. A person could not feel lonesome here. There are about one hundred of us all able to eat three good square meals and a jolly lot of fellows. Several are writing letters and we expect to be able to mail them at Wrangel in the morning. They say we will reach there about 2 a. m. and get away about nine. They have some freight and passenger to unload. We saw some whales spouting water this afternoon, but they were too far away to see them. We may see some before we get to Skagway. We will be there Wednesday morning. We are making very good time and are having a good time; it is a pleasure trip so far and we will take care of ourselves and make it as pleasant as we can all the way through. My address for three or four weeks will be Caribou Crossing, Lake Bennett, Yukon District, Care of Mounted Police. This ought to find me if anything will. With best wishes to all I am

W. T. P. EYRES.

Wrangel, Alaska, April 19, 1898.

7 a.m.—My dear friends,—Here we are; got in here about four this morning, and will get away about nine. This is a great town, built on the hill side; most of the houses are new and small. The streets run in all directions and are all widths, the sidewalks run and twist around the rocks and stumps, sometimes the ground being ten feet below. There isn't a horse in town, so we could not take a carriage and drive around. They have a saw mill, two breweries, a church, several hotels and restaurants, and tents galore. We saw three dentists signs, a lawyer, brokers and others too numerous to mention. It is "a right smart town." We are getting along on our journey, and 24 hours from now puts us into Skagway. Then our work begins in earnest, but we are ready for it and able to stand it. We will not overdo ourselves. We are a nice jolly party and time will pass pleasantly. There are six large boats and about fifty small ones in the harbour—they have 27 feet of tide here; the dock is nearly that much above us now. Good bye for the present.

Yours,
JACK.

"Jack" is the name by which Mr. Eyres is known amongst his intimate friends.

Skaguay, April 20th, 1898.

Dear Father,—We arrived here all O.K. at 7 this morning; all well, and don't expect to have any trouble, everything going along alright. We are sending these cards back with our boat, to be mailed when they return to Vancouver. Will write again in a day or so. With best wishes to all, I am,

Your son,
W. J. P. Eyres.

That Tired Feeling

An exceedingly common and dangerously significant condition.

A warning which must be heeded, or, as with the express train which fails to regard the danger signal, disaster must follow.

A sure indication of thin, weak, impoverished blood. A certain admonition that the blood is not properly feeding the nerves, tissues and organs of the body.

An imperative demand for the tonic, vitalizing effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla upon the blood.

Weak, nervous, tired men and women are found everywhere. Men strive too hard to "keep their ends up," women too anxiously work "on their nerves" to meet the demands of home and society, all have too little sleep, and the excessive drain on strength and nervous energy will soon completely ruin health.

The strength must be built up by pure blood, and the nerves must also find in pure blood the proper nerve food. For this purpose nothing equals Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The thousands of wonderful cures it has accomplished, the like of which no other medicine and no combination of medicines can show, prove its curative merit; prove that it has never been equalled as a blood medicine; prove that Hood's Sarsaparilla is indeed the ideal spring medicine, the best nerve and stomach tonic, the one true blood purifier.

"I was feeling tired all the time, as tired in the morning as I was at night. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and it has helped me so that I have no such feelings now. My little girl suffered with pain in her stomach, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured her." JAMES T. MANN, Hubbardston, Mass.

Weakness and Loss of Appetite.

"Last spring my little girl had no appetite and was weak. I gave her one-half bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which cured her. We will now take no other medicine but Hood's Sarsaparilla, and recommend it to everyone for weakness and loss of appetite." WM. F. HANES, Brysonia, Pa.

All Tired Out.

"My husband was all tired out and run down in health. He felt the need of something to build him up, and he began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills and the result was very satisfactory. We regard Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills as excellent medicines." MRS. H. L. MOWRY, Towanda, Pa.

Tired and Worn Out Feeling.

"I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and cannot say too much in its favor. It has done me more good than any medicine I have ever tried. I have advised my friends to use it for a tired and worn out feeling, as I know that it gives relief." WILLIAM T. HURDLE, Hollyville, Del.

"OWE NO MAN ANYTHING."

Mr. Richardson's bill, introduced into the House of Commons with the main object of making civil servants—in the employment of the Dominion Government—liable for the debts they contract, commends itself to every principle of honesty and fair dealing. It would naturally be thought that persons the most directly associated with the administration of our laws and the righteous government of the people should be required to set an example in regard to conformation to the demands of the law as required in the payment of honest debts. St. Paul, who is generally regarded as good authority, enjoins us to "owe no man anything." On what ground, then, is a Christian legislature justified in providing facilities for evasion of honest obligations? It is well enough to have the law protect, to a certain extent, the poor debtor against the tyrannical exactions of financially strong creditors, through certain exemptions. But many men in business consider that the law already provides too many opportunities for the dishonest to evade their obligations. Government employees, as everybody knows, generally get good pay for comparatively light work. Their income is sure and regular, and if any class of workmen is in a position to live within their means, it is civil servants. If they contract debts they should be made to expect to pay them; and exempting them from the conditions of compulsion put upon ordinary persons in regard to payment of debts seems to be placing a premium upon dishonesty. Giving credit is regarded as a favour, and it is unfortunate that business men should be taxed for doing a kindness to civil servants by the inability to collect their bills by process of law in case of refusal to pay. Mr. Quinn of Montreal, in speaking upon the proposal, objected strongly to the bill, "because it would pervert the country from getting good men on the bench. "There were," Mr. Quinn said, "judges who owed money and whose salaries would be seized if the bill passed. There were judges in Montreal who could not maintain the dignity of their position and exist on a miserable $5000 a year." Mr. Quinn's argument proves too much. What greater travesty of justice could be imagined than a judge on the bench compelling a debtor, by process of law, to pay the uttermost farthing, while at the same time he shelters himself under the law and uses its exemption provisions to "beat" his butcher, his milkman and his wife's milliner out of their bills? What can be more exasperating to a debtor, possibly rushing down the inclined plane of business difficulties towards insolvency—from lack of the money, honestly owing, which the law prevents him from collecting—than to see his debtors living in luxury, and figuratively running him down with their stately carriages. In the matter of such exemptions as Mr. Richardson's bill seeks to remove, honesty is made a crime, punishable by the enforced payment by legal process of just debts, and pride and supercilious assumption of superiority, coupled with a desire to be dishonest is rewarded by law in the shape of exemption from legal means of collecting. In a free country all should as a rule be placed on an equal footing, and if there is any favour shown, it should be shown to the poor, who are, as a rule, more honest and punctilious in the matter of paying their debts than the spoiled darlings of society. On business grounds alone it is regarded by those most deeply concerned that the collection of honest debts is otherwise too difficult, without continuing to permit civil servants to legally rob the tradesman who is good natured and foolish enough to give them credit.

WHAT ABOUT THE YUKON?

Under this heading the Mail and Empire with trascendent effrontery says:

"The session of Parliament is to be hurried to a close. This is proper enough; but what about the Yukon? We were told when Mr. Sifton was laying plans for the huge Klondyke company that unless a railway were built we should lose all the trade and the transportation business would go to the United States. The Government must not permit the trade to be taken from us. It must bring in a reasonable scheme or take the responsibility for the loss it said we would suffer if a road were not built."

What "reasonable" scheme would meet the approval of a Senate determined, on gratifying partizan animus, and discrediting the Government at the expense of the most momentous interests of the country. The best and most actively concerned business men the country over, pronounced the Government's Yukon railway scheme not only a "reasonable" one, but one in the interests of the country at large. Any other scheme would have been baulked by the partizan Senate, and any other scheme ten times more unreasonable, proposed by a Conservative Government would have passed the Senate with express speed. The Senate is responsible for the loss the trade of Canada will sustain through the diversion of the Klondyke trade to the United States.

CAPTAIN GIROUARD, the Canadian officer who has done such good service in the Soudan in constructing the Nubian railway, has been authorized to continue the line to the Atbara river, south of Berber, a task he expects to accomplish by the middle of June, giving plenty of time for the beginning of the final advance against Khartoum, which is to take place in July, after the Nile has risen. There is a rocky bar across the Nile near the confluence of the Atbara, which constitutes a considerable obstruction to navigation between Berber and Khartoum. The construction of the railway beyond that obstruction will enable the supplies for the British forces in their march upon Khartoum to be forwarded without danger of interruption at all seasons. The railway also enables troops to be brought to the scene of action rapidly and without fatigue, thus in a measure preserving the strength and energy of the European forces, which is inevitably drained by long, continuous marching over the deserts and under the hot sun of the Soudan. Berber is now within ten days of Cairo, and the latest detachments of British troops sent through did not walk one yard of the way. British occupation of Egypt has had the progressive results invariably attendant in British rule.

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence. "Black Death" was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than any of these. It is so common that nine-tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing constipation. It makes people listless, causes dizziness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath and distress after eating. The little help needed is furnished by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative and two a mild cathartic. Once used, always in favour. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well. The farmers around here are nearly through seeding.

Miss Nellie Clough, of East Seymour, spent last week visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. Brown, of this place.

A new post office has been established at the Vansickle settlement, Methuen. It is to be kept by Mr. David Vansickle, and is to be called Vansickle P.O.

Mrs. Young returned from Toronto on Monday.

Mr. Absolom Brown has been confined to the house for the past two weeks ill of bronchitis and inflammation of the lungs. We are pleased to learn, however, that he is recovering as fast as can be expected. Mrs. Brown is now suffering from an acute attack of quinsy.

Mrs. Reid, of Springbrook, is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Absolom Brown, during their illness.

There is a great religious revival taking place around here now. Evangelist Hill, of Toronto, is holding a series of meetings at Blairton now. Last Sunday he preached to crowded houses at Victoria church and at Rockdale school house, and made a grand impression. He is an excellent singer and plays his own accompaniment upon the guitar.

On Saturday last Mr. David Breckenridge received a telegram from Deer Lake, Haliburton, stating that his father, Jehiel Breckenridge, had his foot cut off. Mr. Areckenridge left at once for his father's residence. As the old gentleman is about eighty years of age, it will likely be hard on him. It is supposed that he lost his foot in his saw mill in some way.

READ A SECOND TIME.

The Prohibition Plebiscite in the House of Commons.

PREMIER SCORES MR. FOSTER.

Hon. Mr. Fisher's Speech in Moving Second Reading of the Bill—Mr. Foster's Criticisms—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Reply—A Brilliant Effort—Bill Stands for Third Reading.

Ottawa, May 4.—Yesterday in the House the second reading was given to the Prohibition Plebiscite bill. The debate was not one that would stand out as a history-making one, though everybody enjoyed the roasting the Premier gave that pseudo-prohibitionist, Hon. G. E. Foster. Before Mr. Fisher moved the second reading of the Plebiscite bill, Mr. Sifton's bills to amend the Northwest Territories Act, in the direction of giving the Legislative Assembly control of education, and to extend the time for the granting of homesteads to veterans of the Northwest Rebellion, were introduced and read a first time.

The Plebiscite Bill.

Mr. Fisher prefaced his speech on the second reading of the Prohibition Plebiscite bill with a modest reference to his own efforts in the cause of prohibition. Twenty years ago the Canada Temperance Act was passed, and it was a significant fact, he thought, that the gentleman whose name had ever since been associated with that Act, the Hon. Senator Scott, was again a member of the Administration. Mr. Fisher said that the straight question of prohibition had never been passed upon by Parliament. While no action had been taken upon the report of the prohibition commission, yet the habits and sentiments of the people of Canada had so far progressed that he now believed a prohibition law possible of enforcement. The submission of the question to a plebiscite of the people was one of the planks of the Liberal platform, adopted at the Ottawa Convention of 1893. However, he would not deliver a prohibition speech, prohibition being a question for the people to decide.

The bill he proposed was a simple measure, made so with the object of facilitating its passage and obtaining a fair expression of popular opinion. While the bill fixed no specific date for the taking of the plebiscite, the Government intended to bring it on as soon as possible, but consistent with the demands of public business and the public convenience.

In conclusion he said an amendment would be made to the bill to simplify the form of the ballot, so as to prevent the spoiling of ballots.

To a question by Mr. Foster, as to the probable cost of the plebiscite, Mr Fisher said the cost would be about the same as that of a Federal general election—about $200,000 or $250,000.

The Bill Includes Cider.

Mr. Bergeron wanted to know why cider had been put in the question. He did not think cider made in Canada was an intoxicating drink.

Mr. Fisher replied that he used to be told the same thing when he was younger, and believed the people who tempted him. He had tasted cider and could say from the effect produced that it was alcoholic. However, the question did not affect pure apple juice, or sweet cider.

Mr. Bergeron thought all the same it would lead many people to vote against it.

Mr. Foster's Criticism.

Mr Foster said that to a certain extent the bill meets the desires of a large and most respectable section of the community—he would not say a majority, because that might be anticipating the result of the vote—but only to a certain extent, for it did not satisfy the temperance people. Whether or not, provided the people approve of the principle of prohibition, will the will of the people be translated into a prohibitory bill, which the Government will introduce to the House. Unless that assurance were given in advance this plebiscite would be both foolish and costly. The country had a right to an answer on that question. The Government knew now that the people of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Ontario and probably the Northwest Territories favored prohibition, and unless the vote on the "No" side of the question in Quebec should be overwhelmingly greater than the vote on the "Yes" side, the Government would be in no better position that they are now. Was it to be considered that a majority of the total vote of the country will be a mandate to the Government sufficiently clear to convince them that the people of Canada want a prohibitory law?

Sir Wilfrid's Brilliant Reply.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke at some length in reply. He rallied Mr. Foster on his record; first, an ardent prohibitionist; next, when in the Ministry, attributing those opinions to moments of weakness; then, for six or seven years, silent on the subject altogether, and now an out-and-out prohibitionist again. In 1891 nothing would do Mr. Foster but a commission to enlighten his soul, at a cost of $200,000. He had criticized this bill; well, if he didn't like the bill he could vote against it, but would he do so? Not a bit of it. He would just make all the party capital he could out of faulting the measure, but then when it came to voting against it, Mr. Foster's courage would ooze out of the tips of his boots.

Continuing, Sir Wilfrid said there had been difficulties in deciding the form of the question. Some people wanted a rider added to the effect that if prohibition carried it should go into force at once. Others wanted a rider setting forth the consequences. But the Government decided to reject both. The loss of $7,000,000 in revenue would have to be made up somehow, probably by additional taxes upon coffee, tea or tobacco. But those taxes must be moderate. It was a question if the tobacco duty was not even now too high, seeing that so much was being smuggled in. All these questions might have formed part of the question, but the Government thought it better to leave the question unhampered, so that every man would be free to give his vote on the simple question, according to his own judgment and conscience.

"And now," continued the Premier, "I come to the other class of rider, which has been suggested by Mr. Foster, namely, that we should provide in this bill that if there was an affirmative majority then, immediately and mechanically, prohibition would come into force."

"My hon. friend," interrupted Mr. Foster, "has a perfect right to state his own views, but he certainly is not stating mine as I stated them. All I ask is that when the Government takes the first step, which involves this expense and requires a contest, the Government will let the people know whether they will follow with the second step if the people tell them to do so."

"My hon. friend," replied Sir Wilfrid, "wants to have a declaration to this effect. I have often said, and I can only here repeat it, that when the will of the people has been affirmed, as it will be affirmed, then the Government—every government—must be prepared to abide by the consequences." (Laughter.)

Sir Wilfrid went on: "My hon. friend stated a moment ago that he would hold us to strict account if there was a majority recorded in favor of prohibition. I accept his challenge and his notice that he will hold us to strict account to bring in immediately a prohibitory liquor law."

But, he continued, if the Government had troubles, the Opposition had little troubles of their own. For, if Mr. Foster attempted to force the hand of the Government in that way, he would have his own friend, Mr. Bergeron, against him. The Government wanted to leave it to the people to determine this question, and to dictate to the Government what its policy should be afterwards. "I have only to say," he added, "that if the Government should be recreant to the duty that will be imposed upon them by the people, my hon. friend will be there to remind the Government of it, and to abide by the will of the people."

Wanted Light Upon the Subject.

Mr. Foster interrupted again. "For the sake of clearness," he said, "we want to know just where we stand. The hon. gentleman has said that whatever the will of the people is, he will carry it out. That is one version. I want to ask my hon. friend if that means that, if there is an affirmative vote for the principle, my hon. friend will straightway—at the next session of Parliament we may say—introduce a bill to carry out the will of the people?"

"It means nothing of the kind," replied Sir Wilfrid quickly, "it means that the Government, when they have the will of the people before them, will have to take such steps as will give effect to the will of the people. There is the question of revenue to be considered; there is also the constitutional question to be considered. There are different questions which will have to be considered."

"The people consider those questions when they vote," observed Mr. Foster.

To this Sir Wilfrid replied that Mr. Foster's game was very plain—he wanted to make capital for his party. The Government, he said, were taking the first practical step to solve the question.

Mr. Foster had talked about a majority in certain provinces, and a minority in others. All that remained to be seen.

"I do not know what the vote will be," he said. "I do not care. I simply claim this for the Government, that they would endeavor to obtain, without fear of any consequences, an honest expression of the opinion of the people on this important question." (Applause.)

Opposed the Bill.

Mr. Osler spoke straight against the bill. It would put the country into a turmoil.

"Prohibition laws have been a failure wherever they have been enacted. Failure is written in broad, plain letters upon prohibition wherever it has been tried," he said. No greater calamity could befall the country, in his opinion, than the attempt to enforce a prohibitory law. He believed anyhow that the bill had been put forward to hoodwink the people to catch their votes.

Dr. Sproule announced his disbelief in the policy of the plebiscite. It was, he contended, against the principles of constitutional government. It was the duty of the Administration to introduce such legislation as they thought to be in the interest of, and demanded by, the people. The inclusion of "cider" in the question would cause many to vote against it.

Mr. Casey supported the bill. Mr. Bergeron opposed it on constitutional grounds.

The second reading was then carried on division.

The entire evening sitting was given up to the consideration of the bill in committee. By 11.30 the measure had been disposed of clause by clause and now stands for the third reading. Several amendments were suggested, and one, simplifying the form of ballot, was adopted.

The House adjourned at 11.30 p.m.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, mis-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE.

A BLESSING TO WEAK, WORN, NERVOUS Women.

MILBURN'S HEART & NERVE PILLS

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills restore color to the pale cheek, regulate the heart, tone the nerves, enrich the blood, and impart strength and vitality to the entire system.

A MONCTON LADY

Cured of Weakness, Nervousness and Heart Trouble.

Several years ago I had an attack of La Grippe, which left me in a very weak condition, my health being much impaired. Ever since then I have suffered from nervous prostration, heart trouble, and pain in the left side, so that at times I was unable to move about.

The least exertion distressed me, and oftentimes I could scarcely breathe, having to sit down after walking up stairs and rest for some minutes. I also had a fluttering sensation around my heart, so much so that I was sometimes unable to attend to my household duties.

Despite the use of many remedies, and of the best medical skill, I obtained no relief until I finally tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I had only taken a few doses when a marked improvement took place in my condition. I began to relish my food, and gained in strength every day.

My restoration to health and vigor followed as naturally as night follows day. I do not suffer now from any of the troubles which formerly made life miserable for me. If sufferers from heart or nerve trouble will only give these wonderful pills a trial they will have a rich reward for so doing in the restored health and vigor which I believe will always result from their use.

MRS. B. BEAUMONT,
Cor Wesley and George Sts., Moncton, N.B.

AN OTTAWA LADY.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have Cured her of Heart Palpitation—Invigorated her Nerves—Enriched her Blood and Brought Color to her Pale Cheeks.

For five years I was very miserable with heart trouble and nervousness. My entire system was run down, and I suffered from impoverishment of the blood, which made me thin, pale and weak. My heart would beat so that I could not walk; and I would smother and have difficulty in catching my breath. I was in a very bad state indeed, and thought that my remaining time on earth would not be very long. Both doctors and medicines failed to give me relief.

Hearing of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, my husband got some for me. From the first I got better and better, and am now like another person. Palpitation of the heart is gone; the color has returned to my cheeks; my system is invigorated and my blood has been enriched. I no longer suffer from the fretful nervousness and smothering feeling, and am in fact better than I have been for years. Needless to say, I heartily recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as the only medicine in the world which I believe could have acted so promptly and well in my case.

A HEAD-ON COLLISION.

Two Intercolonial Railway Employes Killed in the Accident.

Quebec, May 4.—The Intercolonial market train left Levis as usual last night with a heavy load of freight, and arrived at River Ouelle, some 90 miles off, running at an ordinary rate of speed, when, in rounding a sharp curve where a projecting rock shuts out all view of the line, she was crashed into by a lone engine coming in the opposite direction. Driver Jolivet, Levis, of the market train, had time to jump, and escaped with a number of serious bruises, but the stoker, Xavier Le Tellier of Levis was not so fortunate. His dead body was afterwards discovered on the track terribly burned and mangled, while that of Driver Auguste Boisvert of Hadlow, of the lone engine, was found a short distance from the rails in a somewhat similar condition. The road was completely blocked. Both the victims are married men, and have families. An inquest will be held.

THURSDAY HALF HOLIDAY PROPOSAL.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I notice in yesterday's issue of the EXAMINER that the Ministerial Association of the town have arranged to solicit from merchants the granting of Thursday afternoon as a half holiday during the summer months. As far as I am concerned, and I know many other merchants are with me, "they need not come weeping to me."

I am a member of a church congregation in town, and according to my ability pay my share of "tithes of mint, anise and cummin," yet I do not presume to usurp the functions of my minister and dictate as to the way he shall discharge the duties of his position, though there would be no financial sacrifice involved in my so doing. I do not therefore recognize the right of a minister to interfere with my business, and in a manner that is directly injurious to it. I do not object so seriously to the half-holiday to the employees, but the after results seriously demoralize business. Employees go off upon long excursions, and come home at unseasonable hours, and are little or no good for the business of the following day, so that in fact, so far as business is concerned, a day and a half holiday is practically given. I doubt very much if the physical gain supposed to result from such a half holiday is not seriously offset by the dissipation and temptations to immoderate drinking, which accompany in too many cases, the use of a half holiday. I think employees have a large enough number of holidays as it is. When I was a salesman in a shop as a young man, we didn't then have so many holidays as are now considered necessary. I submit that we merchants have hard enough work now to make both ends meet without having our business demoralized by a half holiday on Thursday. If the Ministerial Association had to pass through the daily struggle to keep a bank account even half decently covered, if they were haunted at night by visions of bills payable stalking like ogres through their sleep, they would not be so solicitous for the physical comfort, at our expense, of employees who have nothing on their minds and, in these times, no very great excess of work. I try to mind my own business and respectfully submit that ministers should mind—should permit me to do so without an interference, which, if carried out, will, I firmly believe and know, seriously injure it.

Yourt, etc.,
MERCHANT.

That Poor Mule

that accidentally got knocked over by a flying rock at Matanzas, as was about the only thing Yankees had to blow about during the bombardment. People who blow their own horns don't always furnish high-class music for other folks and generally bite off more than they can chew. If you want a quarter's worth or a box of genuine imported Havana cigars, direct from Cuba, just ask for them at Charlie LeGros. His little privateer can run the blockade into Havana in spite of Yankee gunboats. Come down and see these delicious "contrabands" and be convinced that the brand is O. K. They are the same size and quality of Havanas as you've always been getting and don't you forget it.—C. LEGROS.

REV. SAM P. JONES' STYLE OF ORATORY.

An Example of What Christian Culture Accomplishes.

Toronto is being favored with the presence of Rev. Sam P. Jones, but he is not likely to get a very cordial reception. He tells the goody-good city that is is not as good as it was ten years ago. The following, as a sample of the reverend gentleman's style, will show the people of Peterboroug what they have missed by having Mr. Jones confine his attention to Toronto:

Rev. Sam Jones then took up the matter of whiskey drinking. "Only the commonest kind of a fool would drink whiskey or liquor of any kind, and a tenth rate fool at that," said the preacher. "Why, the people in the lunatic asylums are a higher class of fool than those going round drinking whiskey. If I kept a decent boarding house in this city I would protest calling a damnable hog wallow a hotel. Now, then, get up, you old red nose, and talk back. Tell us what your views on sobriety are. Whiskey has blighted the home and cursed the life of wife and mother in all ages. The difference between Toronto and Buffalo is the difference in the way the town thinks about things, and more and more you are thinking like Buffalo. Ten years ago this town was different, but you are getting modernized. Some day your Parliament will be wanting to introduce an act to amend the Acts of the Apostles, and get things shaped to suit you.

"Twenty-six years ago I was all out of whack myself," remarked the preacher, commencing a new line of argument, "but I put myself together according to the book of instructions given by God, and now I know that God made both the book and myself. You want to be brought into harmony with ourselves and God and right. Some of you boast and say you are educated, that you are philosophers and scientists, and that you have B.A. and LL.B. to your names. If somebody added three more letters, A.S.S., they would have you down fine."

SPORTING PASTIMES.

Wheeling and Other Items of Local and General Interest.

LACROSSE.

The members of both teams are requested to turn out to-night if the evening is fine.

The Elms-Tecumsehs team, of Toronto, has accepted the invitation of the Peterborough's to play here on the 24th. The local club had to hold forth extra inducements to get this team here as on account of the number of fast players they have secured this season it is expected that they will have a very fast aggregation.

The management urges that every man gets out to practice regularly, as the 24th is only two weeks away from next Tuesday.

Lacrosse practice to-night. Every player should turn out.

WRESTLING.

Bob Harrison arrived from Toronto on the noon train to day, and appeared to be in fine condition for his wrestling match with Doyle at the opera house this evening. The match will be the first of the kind ever taking place in Peterborough, and as both men are strictly "on the square," a big crowd should be present to witness the affair.

At a meeting of the two principals and the sporting editors of the EXAMINER and Review this afternoon, Mr. L. B. Felcher was chosen to act as referee for the wrestling match to-night.

THE WHEEL.

Chairman Cairns, of the Membership Committee of the C.W.A., has evolved a prize membership scheme that should prove effective in the getting of members for the association. Several of the best bicycle manufacturers, including the Cleveland, Gendron, Welland Vale and other companies, have most generously placed wheels at his disposal, and he now offers a high grade bicycle to each district of the C.W.A, having a total membership on August 1st, 1898, of 500 or over, such bicycle to be presented to the person sending in the largest list of members from his district before the date above mentioned.

In districts where the membership does not reach the 500 mark, other first class prizes will be given to the men doing the best work.

It is expected furthermore that the Membership Committee will be able to offer second prizes in each district, but this cannot be stated definitely at present.

The only conditions governing the C.W.A. membership contest are:

1. All the names must be in by August 1st, 1898.

2. Names once credited to anyone, cannot under any circumstances be transferred and placed to the credit of anyone else.

3. The competition is open to anyone, but all names must be accompanied by the C.W.A. fee.

4. The allotment of wheels in districts having 500 members, and of other prizes in districts not reaching the 500 mark shall rest wholly with the Executive Board of the C.W.A.

A certain shoe dealer has in his employ a young cleek who is a very enthusiastic wheelman. A young woman called at the shop for a pair of shoes.

"I want a pair of shoes," she remarked demurely.

"What gear?" he inquired, bowing.

"Sir?"

"I meant what size."

"About two and a half."

"What model—eh, what last?"

"A C last, I think."

"Do you like the high sad—the high heels?"

"Just medium."

He got the shoe she seemed to want, and after fitting it carefully, remarked absent mindedly:

"You can wear loose bloomers with that frame and it will never puncture. Keep it well greased and—"

The woman called for another clerk.

THE TURF.

Speaking of the horses in training at the Woodbine, the News says: The trial of the platers was what the crowd desired to see and the last three horses worked were those they were looking for. As Bon Ino, Dalmoor and The Tar filed out many a critical eye looked them over and passed a learned opinion. The filly had the good lpoks and the most perfect action of the trio, and after Wednesday's trial the knowing ones decided that, bar accidents, Bon Ino cannot possibly lose the guineas. The Tar is a fretful looking beast and will hardly be able to make the plate distance with weight up, whereas the filly is full of running and does not tire with a weighty boy in the saddle. Dalmoor looks promising but hardly strong enough to carry weight.

The three horses were to have ran their trial together, but The Tar got his head before the start and ran away with his rider. When the boy failed to pull him up at the eighth pole he gave him his head and he ran the mile in 1 54½. It is doubtful whether he could have done it much better than that had the boy ridden him out. Dalmoor and Bon Ino worked the mile in 1 50 flat, with the filly in front, full of running and fighting for her head. Dalmoor seemed to be tiring but was not running under pressure.

Visit Gough Bros. store to-morrow and see what they mean by Bargain Day.

TENNIS NOTES.

There is some talk of laying out a tennis court on the P.A.A.A. grounds.

This is what Mr. O. S. Campbell, at one time champion tennis player of America, has to say of the game: "To play lawn tennis expertly requires the cool, delicate nerve of the billiard player, combined with the physical strength necessary to sustain the strain of three or four hours active and exhausting exertion."

The University of Toronto Club has been organized for the coming season, and play has been already begun on the club lawns. The senior players are contemplating a tour directly after the spring examinations in which Lindsay, Uxbridge, Peterborough, Millbrook and Oshawa will be included. The 'Varsity team is a very strong one and our players will have to apply themselves very closely to practice in order to cope with them.

A Banker's Experience.

"I tried a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for a troublesome affection of the throat," writes Manager Thomas Dawson of the Standard Bank, now of 14 Melbourne Ave, Toronto. "It proved effective. I regard the remedy as simple, cheap and exceedingly good. It has hitherto been my habit to consult a physician in troubles of this nature. Hereafter, however, I intend to be my own family doctor."

DYING BY INCHES!

But Dodd's Kidney Pills will Yet Renew Life.

Thousands of persons die in the prime of life because doctors think Bright's Disease and Diabetes incurable. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cure them both. They have cured thousands of cases.

These diseases and other Kidney complaints are as common as ordinary colds. But people don't realize that they are afflicted till the disease has eaten deep into the system. Even then, Dodd's Kidney Pills will positively cure.

Thousands of people are dying on their feet, but do not realize it. They notice one or more of these symptoms: shortness of breath, loss of memory, failing sight, ravenous appetite, pale or reddish urine, with brick-colored deposit, scalding when urinating, constipation, nervousness, pains in the loins. Their only hope is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They won't fail. They never do.

JUSTLY MADE.

Were Many of the Grievances Complained of by the Crow's Nest Pass Laborers—Ottawa Notes.

Ottawa, May 3.—The Crow's Nest Pass Railway Labor Commission, appointed by the Government, has reported that many of the complaints of the laborers were well founded. In some instances men worked for the sub-contractors six months, and the deductions left them with scarcely anything. The C.P.R. officials themselves do not appear to have known halt of what was going on. They were the builders of the road, but under them were so many sub-contractors that it was almost impossible to keep separate track of matters of detail between men and bosses. In many cases complaints are exaggerated. Of 1,400 men who went from Ottawa district only 53 have returned. The commissioners make many suggestions as to how a railway camp should be conducted, even to feather beds, etc., for the men.

With the Railway Committee.

The Railway Committee of the Privy Council met yesterday and granted the application of the Massey Harris Company for a siding to their works on Strachan avenue, Toronto.

The St. Thomas Street Railway Company was granted an interim permission to cross the tracks of the St. Thomas & Port Stanley Railway. An officer of the deparment is to visit the crossing and arrange proper safeguards.

Personal and General.

Sir Richard Cartwright was in Kingston over Sunday.

Mr. Mulock returned yesterday from Toronto.

Mr. Forley, Q. C., and Lieut.-Col. Steacy, St. Thomas, waited on the Minister of Militia yesterday and asked for a grant of land for drilling the 25th Battalion.

Mr. John Fraser, M.P., East Lambton, who has been absent from his Parliamentary duties for the past two months, on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Fraser, has returned.

Hon. David Mills, who was attending the funeral of a relative who died suddenly near London, will return to the city to-day.

Yesterday being the anniversary of the battle of Cut Knife Creek, the soldiers' monument on Major's Hill Park was draped with flags.

Lieut.-Col. Evans, commandant of the Yukon contingent, received his final orders on Saturday. The party will muster here to-day and leave on Friday. The Winnipeg detachment will join the contingent as it passes through.

Dr. Guay, M.P., the death of whose nephew, Mr. Oliver, M.P.P. for Levis, was reported yesterday, is ill here.

The motormen and conductors have received a reply from the Ottawa Street Railway Company to their demand for shorter hours, which is not considered satisfactory. The company have offered to reduce the day from 11 to 10 hours, but propose making the men pay for it by reducing their wages.

Justice Steadman, Fredericton, N.B., has resigned and Mr. Wilson has been appointed in his place.

Maurice Cornell, Carleton Place, while hunting Saturday afternoon, fell in the act of climbing over a fence, discharging both barrels of a gun which he carried, the contents entering his left arm near the elbow. Amputation of the arm is necessary.

Rev. Mr. Douglas' bill to regulate transit of grain will be considered by the Railway Committee again to-day. Vice-President Shaughnessy, William White, Superintendent Western Division C.P.R., and Judge Clark, the company's solicitor, are here to oppose the bill.

FEMALE WEAKNESS CURED.

Mrs. Saunders Made Well and Strong by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Brantford, April 25—(Special)—The wives and mothers of Ontario are the most ardent disciples of Dodd's way of curing curing Diseases of Women—i.e. by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This is natural, for no medicine, no earth, no agency known to man has saved women one tithe of the agony that Dodd's Kidney Pills have banished.

Mrs. F. Saunders, of Brantford, tells her suffering sisters what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for her: I have been a martyr to Female Weakness for the past year and suffered terribly. Dodd's Kidney Pills made me strong and well and healthy, though several other remedies I used did me no good whatever."

So the record grows. Cures made every day. Failures—never.

The Private Members Had a Day—The Next Order of Public Business Is the Prohibition Plebiscite Bill—Toronto & Hudson Bay Railway Bill Passed—Sundry Matters.

Ottawa, May 3.—Yesterday was private members' day, and although the business was not of overwhelming public importance it was somewhat interesting. An announcement was made that the prohibition plebiscite bill would be the next public business taken up.

Confidential and Secret.

In response to an order of the House, moved for by Mr. Casgrain, for copies of correspondence between the Imperial and Canadian Governments in reference to the defences of the Dominion, the Minister of Militia laid a document on the table of the House containing the following letter, dated April 13, from Major-General Gascoigne:

"I have the honor to report that the whole of the papers and correspondence on this subject are of a confidential or secret nature, and, while I realize that it is desirable that as many people of importance as possible should be acquainted with the general principles of defence, still I feel that it would be unwise to make any portion of the correspondence a Parliamentary paper, such as would be accessible to the public. Indeed, in more than one case the Imperial Government has definitely requested that special care should be taken that the contents of such papers should not be made generally known."

Questions and Answers.

In answer to Sir C. H. Tupper, Hon. Mr. Sifton said he would make an explanation covering all points concerning free miners' licenses in the Klondike.

In answer to Mr. Foster Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the Government had under consideration the advisability of issuing the writ for Bagot. The prospect of having newer lists than the four-year-old ones now in vogue was the cause of hesitation.

Mr. Davin asked whether the G.T.R. Company has received a contract for carrying militia and police supplies to the Yukon.

The G.T.R. has not received any contract, replied the Minister of Militia, but the Government is sending a portion of its supplies over that road, and a much larger portion over the C.P.R.

The Minister of Militia promised Mr. Foster to give the House to-morrow a statement of the extent of the Klondike military expedition, the necessity for it and the probable expenditure involved.

Mr. Foster next brought up the matter of Mr. McInnes' impending resignation.

Sir Wilfrid could only say that the Government had not received any information on the subject.

Mr. Sifton told Mr. Davin that Dr. Edwards, who has been appointed Medical Health Officer at the jail and Indian Industrial School, Regina, is a brother of Mr. W. C. Edwards, M.P. for Russell.

Mr. Paterson told Col. Hughes that since he took office he had appointed twenty Irish-Catholics to positions in the Customs Department.

Mr. Gillies was informed by Mr. Mulock that 521 postmasters had been dismissed since July 13, 1896.

Mr. Mills was advised by Mr. Sifton that the Government would receive altogether ten thousand copies of the official Klondike Guide from the Hunter, Rose Company; of those received so far ten copies had gone to each member and five to each Senator. Other copies had been supplied as requisitioned from time to time.

Mr. Pouporo pressed consideration of the claims for damages caused to lands in Pontiac County by the construction of the Roche, Fondue and Cabinet dams on the Ottawa River. Mr. Blair said he would have the matter looked into.

Mr. Martin spoke for an hour, urging that the branch railway should be constructed in Prince Edward Island. He claimed that, as compared with other provinces, the Island did not get fair play.

Sir Adolphe Caron asked what business would be taken up at the next sitting, and was informed that the plebiscite was next on the programme.

Consideration of Bills.

Mr. Richardson's bill to provide for the garnishee of civil servants salaries, passed the committee stage by a vote of 50 to 23.

The Toronto & Hudson Bay Railway bill was read a third time and passed without opposition.

The House adjourned at 11 o'clock.

Cayuga, Ont., May 3.—The celebrated Sternaman murder trial will no doubt be given to the grand jury to-day. Chancellor Boyd is expected to arrive in Cayuga this morning. Sixty witnesses have been summoned on the murder trial. Nothing can be learned as to what the defence shall be. Many rumors are afloat, but everything is kept secret. However, it is said a much stronger defence will be put up than at the last trial.

Woman's Wit.

An emperor of Germany besieged a city which belonged to one of his rebellious noblemen. After the siege had lasted for a long time the emperor determined to take it by storm and to destroy all it contained by fire and sword. He did not, however, wish to injure the defenseless women; therefore, he sent a proclamation into the town, saying that all the women might leave the place unhurt and carry with them whatever they held most precious. The nobleman's wife instantly decided to take her husband, and the other women followed her example. They soon issued from the city gate in a long procession, each one with her husband on her shoulders. The emperor was so much struck with the noble conduct of the women that he spared all; even the city itself was left untouched.

The mystery of life and death has puzzled many a wise man. The alchemists of old searched in vain for some combination of drugs that would prolong life indefinitely. Common sense, chemistry and medical science have combined in this age to show man the way to a long and healthy life.

Common sense teaches that a man should not over-work or over-worry; that he should take ample time for his meals, for resting and for recreation and sleep; that he should not neglect the little ills of life, because they are the precursors of serious and fatal maladies. Chemistry has enabled men to make combinations of drugs that were impossible in the days of the alchemists. Medical science has taught when, how and why these combinations of drugs should be used. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the most valuable of all health-restoring medicines, and the most effective. Its first work is upon the fountain-head of life—the stomach. A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished. This medicine makes the stomach strong, facilitates the flow of digestive jnices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgment.

It does not make flabby fat, but solid, muscular flesh, nerve force and vital energy. All medicine dealers sell it.

J. W. Jordan, Esq., of Corbin, Whitley Co., Ky., writes: "About two and a half years ago I was taken with severe pains in the chest, began to spit up blood, was troubled with night-sweats and was so short winded that I could hardly walk half a mile. Tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and have improved both in strength and weight."

The medicine dealer who urges some substitute is thinking of the larger profit he'll make and not of your best good.

WHEAT UNSTEADY.

Bullish and Bearish Influences Are Just About Even—Wheat in Toronto Remains Firm—Quotations.

Monday Evening, May 2.

To-day's Chicago wheat market showed considerable irregularity, due to the antagonistic bull and bear influences at work. The bullish factors were the firm cables, a good decrease in the American visible supply and the heavy buying of one party who was said to be short 3,000,000 bushels. The bearish factors were the excellent growing crop reports and a general belief that the strength of the European markets is due to Liverpool and Paris speculation. July wheat sold up to 75⅝c and closed at 74⅝c, ⅝c below Saturday's closing. May wheat lost ½c, Sept. ⅝c and Dec. 1c for the day. Other United States markets showed strength, May wheat advancing 1½c at New York and 1c at Duluth. At Toronto wheat remains firm at little change in prices.

Visible and Afloat.

As compared with a week ago, the visible supply of wheat in Canada and the United States has decreased 2,951,000 bushels; that of corn has decreased 4,365,000 bushels, and that of oats has decreased 557,000 bushels.

A Wife's Affections Alienated.

Toronto, May 3.—Some time ago Edwin Evans of Claremont brought suit against Robert Graham, the well-known horseman, for alienation of his wife's affections, claiming heavy damages.

The case has now been settled out of court, Graham having signed a judgment acknowledging the allegations contained in the statement of claim to be true and having paid $1 damages and all costs of the suit, amounting to $425.

The erring wife has also signed a statement admitting the truth of the allegations in the statement of claim and that she had persistently denied their truth to her husband.

DOCTORS COULDNT CURE.

But Mrs. Rowe was Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Woodstock, May 2—(Special) Woodstock ladies are among the healthiest and prettiest in Canada. When therefore it became known that one of them, Mrs. W. Rowe, was suffering, and had suffered for twelve years, with that curse of womankind—Female Weakness—aggravated by Kidney and Liver Disease, the sympathy of her sisters was freely given her.

The female population of Woodstock are now overjoyed over Mrs. Rowe's recovery.

Dodd's Kidney Pills did it.

The doctor told Mrs. Rowe she could never be cured.

Different "remedies" failed to help her.

A few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her completely.

DANA AS AN EDITOR.

He Was Very Punctilious as to Typographical Details.

In all matters of detail, in literary manner, in the use of words, in grammar, punctuation and typographical method he was the most careful and exacting of editors. One time an editorial contained two lines of poetry in type of the same size as that of the text, and, as I was the author of it, Mr. Dana sent me an edifying note under the familiar signature, "Reason, Revelation, Science, Philosophy and Esthetics all require that these lines should have been put in small type." Upon another occasion, when he thought a verb had been improperly used in a manuscript, he wrote an admonitory sentence, "To say 'there are' in this passage would be unpoetic and consequently disgusting."

He took the blame whenever an error escaped his eye. "I take shame to myself," he wrote one time when the author of an editorial had confounded Boston brown bread with Graham bread, "for having printed this thing without scrutinizing it. The Sun is ignorant and wrong."

One day a man in California had sent an inquiry to the editor of The Sun, "Will you please tell me how to become a Christian?" and as I often dealt with religious questions at the time this appeal was received Mr. Dana blue penciled the back of the man's note with these words: "Why not give him a ripping answer? Give him the socialist side of Christianity."

When the writer of a book review had italicized eight or ten of his words, Mr. Dana commented thus: "This review is the best in the whole lot and is very good, but why in the world an experienced writer like —— wants to pepper his manuscript with nasty little italics I can't imagine."

When the writer of an editorial paragraph in The Sun wrote of "Govs. Cameron and Crittenden," the ever watchful critic in the sanctum got after him in a note left for me: "The term 'govs.,' 'gens.,' 'capts.,' etc., is disgusting. The titles have no plural as attached to any individual name. They should be repeated, or a circumlocution should be used."

In an editorial article printed in brevier type there had appeared an extract in agate type. The grammatical subject of a sentence was in brevier, while the verb for it was in the subsequent agate line. Mr. Dana wrote for my benefit: "This passage from big type to little is contrary to all sound principles of typographical elegance. Greeley used to make the passage and country newspapers still make it, but it is wicked."

When a writer for The Sun once described a man as "too condemn smart," the phrase was highly offensive to Mr. Dana, who wrote a caustic comment upon it in three words, which need not be here printed.—John Swinton in Chautauquan.

SPAIN'S CROWN JEWELS.

Brought to America by the Secretary of Joseph Bonaparte.

"In 1817 Joseph Bonaparte's secretary, Maillard, left Philadelphia armed with letters which represented him to be a traveling agent for Girard's commercial house and visiting Girard's correspondents in Holland and Switzerland." William Perrine writes of "When the King of Spain Lived on the Banks of the Schuylkill" (in Philadelphia) in The Ladies' Home Journal. "His real destination was the Swiss chateau at Prangins, from which the king had fled two years before, and his real object to secure the treasure which had been buried in the ground of the estate on the eve of his flight. Maillard found the buried packets, and with them he would also have brought to Philadelphia Queen Julie if her physicians had not compelled her to renounce the project of joining her husband.

"The jewels, which were valued at $1,000,000, were stuffed into a belt, which Maillard wore on his person when returning across the Atlantic, and with which he was gladly received by his master in the Lansdowne house, near Philadelphia. It was about this time that wild rumors began to circulate in Philadelphia concerning the exking's riches and of the hoards of specie which he had deposited in the vault of Stephen Girard's Philadelphia bank. Mysterious heavy boxes, sealed with wax, were believed by Girard's clerks to contain the crown jewels of Spain and Naples. One or two old men in recent years, who were then among those clerks, have told how Joseph would sit in the bank talking with them affably while waiting for the great banker."

Health is Better.

"I had no appetite and could not sleep at night, and I was so tired that I could hardly walk. I saw Hood's Sarsaparilla advertised and procured four bottles. My health is now better than it has ever been since I was a child, and I have not been sick for a long time." Miss Jessie Turnbull, Cranbrook, Ont.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla. Easy and yet efficient.

The Laziest People on Earth.

The laziest and dirtiest people in the world have recently been discovered in the Caucasus. They live in an inaccessible mountain range between the Black sea and the Caspian sea, and as they were 2,500 years ago so they are today. Seen from without, there is a certain picturesqueness about a Svanctian village, although it merely consists of miserable stone hovels without any attempt at form or adornment. Within the houses are inconceivably filthy. They are filled with rags, vermin and dirt of every description. They possess no fireplace or chimney. All the cooking, in fact, is done over a hole scooped out in the middle of the floor. In these houses men and women and children are huddled together. During the long winter months they are shut in for days at a time, the cattle often sharing their quarters. Every aperture has to be closed on account of the cold. This long imprisonment is perhaps the cause of the degradation of the people. Horrible diseases result from it, which are aggravated by an abnormal consumption of arrack, the strong distilled drink of the Asiatics. Besides this, it is an invariable rule to make four days a week holidays, with saints' days as extras. Since they have adopted the holidays of every other country with which they have been in contact, it is not surprising that the men find little time for work. Farming, bee culture and cattle breeding are the only industries of these people, while throughout their territory there is not a single manufactured article.—New York Ledger.

Face One Running Sore.

Bad enough to have sores on various parts of the body, but when they disfigure the face, as well as undermine the health, a cure is eagerly sought.

No remedy has the powerful healing, soothing, blood-cleansing properties that Burdock Blood Bitters possess.

Mrs. Bessie Odell, Upham Station, N.B., gives a history of her case as follows:—

"B.B.B. has completely cured me after all else failed. I had scrofula so badly that my face was all one running sore. I consulted two of our most skillful doctors who gave me some acid to apply to the sores, but I regret to say the application only made them worse. I could get no ease. At last I tried Burdock Blood Bitters, and before I had used two bottles I was nearly cured. I kept on until I had used six bottles and am now completely cured. You may use my name as a reference, as I think others should know of the merits of B.B.B."

Rheumatism & Dyspepsia Cured

571 St. Patrick Street,
Ottawa, July 31st, 1896.

To the Phrenoline Medicine Company, Ltd., Ottawa, Ont.

Gentlemen,—On the advice of a friend I tried one bottle of your famous rheumatic remedy, Phrenoline, and to my surprise it cured me of rheumatism, from which I have suffered for many years.

It also cured me of dyspepsia, from which I was suffering at the time, so that I feel now like a new man.

I have tried several remedies for rheumatism, some of which did me a certain amount of good, but nothing that I have taken has done so much for me as your Phrenoline, and I have much pleasure in recommending it to other sufferers.

Yours very truly,

CANADA LIFE
Assurance Company.

ANOTHER PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Large Increase in Surplus.

The fifty-first annual report of the Canada Life shows this old established Company to be in a most flourishing condition. The annual meeting was held yesterday. Following is a synopsis of the report:—

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

In presenting to the Shareholders their 51st Annual Report, the Directors are gratified in announcing that the Company has fairly shared in the somewhat improved condition of the business of the country, as will be seen by the Statements and Accounts now submitted. By these it will be observed that the Company has transacted a larger business than during the previous year, and has increased its clear surplus by no less than $497,093 05.

NEW BUSINESS

The applications for new assurances during 1897 numbered 3 066, for the sum of $6,185,996, of which, however, 266 for $521,000 were declined, the lives not appearing up to that standard which it is in the interest of the company's other assurers should be maintained, and as 191 applications for $373,360 were not carried out, the issue of the year was for $5 291,636, under 2 609 policies, exceeding 1896 by 573 policies for $798,980.

The total business in force at the close of 1897 was $72,719,555 29 of Assurances, under 33,407 policies, upon 24,469 lives.

POLICY CLAIMS.

The claims by deaths paid during 1897 amounted to $770,168 45, and Endowment policies for $128,846 92, having matured, these sums, as well as $218,481 29 for profits, $145 411.18 for surrenders, and an annuity of $400, making in all $1,263,307 84, were paid to policyholders during the year.

INCREASE IN ASSETS.

The Income receipts of the year were $2,963,272.83, and deducting therefrom all payments to policy-holders for claims by death, for profits, and for matured Endowment policies, as well as other outlay, including expenses of management, there was left the sum of $1,272,486 05, which increased the Company's Assets to $18,678 915 67.

SURPLUS.

As appears by the Abstract of Assets and Liabilities, after providing fully for the necessary reserve for all policies of the Company, and for all its other Liabilities, there is shown a Surplus of $1,564,082 05.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, Mr. A. G. Ramsay, in moving the adoption of the report, said:

The Directors' Report and the usual accounts and statements have for some days been in your hands, and have now been taken as read. While the report is brief, it contains, I think, along with the various published accounts, all that is required to enable those interested in the Company to judge of its progress and success in the past year. The addition during 1897 of nearly half a million dollars to the surplus or profits fund is a large and satisfactory one, and without invidiously comparing it with the figures of any other particular Company. I may say that it is more than was attained by all the other Canadian companies combined. The new business of the year was, you will observe, of satisfactory and gratifying amount, and in excess of the previous year, and you will be pleased to know that it is of that desirable class which will result more to the profit of the Company than would a larger amount obtained at heavier expense, or from less desirable regions than the healthful climate of Canada, and the four Northern States to which we have thus far deemed it judicious to confine the operations of the Company. The existing assurances are $72,719,555 or nearly twice as much as they were 12 years ago. The death claims of the year continued of very favourable amount, and being well within what was calculated upon, that fact testifies to the care observed in the selection of the lives, and to the judicious limitation of the business to the healthful climates already alluded to.

The recent lamentable failures of some of the companies doing business on the assessment system, and the anxiety felt as to the others which are based upon the same fallacious principles lead me to point out that these occurrences are only the inevitable results, which were from the first predicted by those whose knowledge and experience enabled them to judge of what the future of companies of the kind must be. At our meeting in 1887, when concerns of the kind were making strenuous efforts to establish themselves in Canada, I alluded to the miserable failures they had been in England and in America, and I said that their "ephemeral existence indicates how useless the assessment system of assurance is as a family provision. It can only offer the uncertain hope of a cheap assurance for a few years, till the company breaks down. It cannot afford any guarantee that a definite amount of assurance will certainly be paid to a widow or children after an assurer's death, whether that occurs at an early day or a distant one, and without such a guarantee as that, which our own and other sound companies offer, life assurance must be a fraud and a delusion." I added that "I was aware that agents and managers of companies of the kind pointed to the names of prominent business and professional men who have joined them, or who act as their directors, but as some of them at all events allow their names to be employed in that way, simply because policies have been gratuitously given to them, one can judge how little weight should attach to the names of the gentlemen thus used to decoy others to join such companies." One cannot envy the feelings of the prominent gentlemen alluded to, who induced persons to take policies in companies of the kind, from which they are now driven out by their failure, or by the levy of such high payments as they are unable to meet.

As the accounts show, the year's income was within a trifle of three million dollars, and the assets of the company were increased to the very considerable amount of nearly nineteen million dollars, and yielding, after deducting liabilities of every kind, a net surplus or profit of $1,564,082 for allocation at the end of next year, along with whatever addition there may be made to it between now and that time, and as the management and other expenses by which the profits to policy-holders are very largely influenced continue to be on a more moderate percentage than that of other Canadian or American companies, the prospects for our assurers are of a favourable character.

It is anticipated that legislation will be introduced by the Government, modifying the present 4½ per cent. rate of interest prescribed by law as the basis for Life Assurance Reserves, and adopting the new mortality Tables based upon the observations and large experience of the British Insurance Companies, in course of compilation by the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, and I may say on behalf of the Board in reference to the amendment to the charter, alluded to in the Directors report of last year, that the Directors purpose to avail themselves of the occasion of that legislation to seek such amendments to the law as may meet the Board's requirements.

The motion was seconded by Mr. F. W. Gates, Vice-President, and unanimously carried. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the agents, officers, medical and legal advisers of the company, Mr. Adam Brown speaking in eloquent terms of their services rendered to the Company.

Mr. Leggat moved and Lieut.-Col. McLaren seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Company during the past year. Brief and interesting addresses were also made by Sir George Kirkpatrick and Sir George Burton, the latter of whom was heartily congratulated upon the recent honour conferred upon him by the Queen.

The retiring Directors, Chief Justice Sir George Burton, Col. Sir Casimer Gzowski, K.C.M.G., and Mr. N. Merritt, were re-elected. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. A. G. Ramsay was re-elected President and Mr. F. W. Gates Vice-President.

The meeting passed off very harmoniously, every one present being gratified with the progress and continued prosperity of the Canada Life, which, as Sir George Kirkpatrick remarked, was easily leader of all Companies in the Dominion.

THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE

appointed to attend the Trustees' convention in Toronto reported through Mr. Jas. Stevenson as follows:

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education:

Your delegates who attended the convention of School Trustees in Toronto, beg leave to submit the following report:

The meeting was held at the Normal School. Mr. Deacon, of Lindsay, President of the Association, acting as chairman.

The proceedings were of a highly interesting character. The general management of schools, the engagement of teachers, modes of discovering their qualifications, and the duties of trustees generally, formed the basis of discussion.

Mrs. Hoodless, of Hamilton, delivered a practical address on the subject of domestic science, and asked the trustees to take into their consideration the question of instructing girls in the new duties appertaining to the home. This system, it appears, now forms a part of the school curriculum in England and Germany and is being rapidly adopted throughout the United States. Mrs. Hoodless explained that the present system of education is adapted solely to mental requirements so that girls on leaving school, as a rule, have no knowledge or experience whatever of the management of a household.

It was suggested that Mrs. Hoodless should be given an opportunity of placing her views before several of the school boards throughout the province.

It was noticeable that, except in a few instances, none of the Boards had adopted the system of yearly engagement of teachers in force in Peterborough. The subject was discussed at considerable length, and the rule adopted by the Peterborough Board of Education seemed to meet with considerable favour and approval, and is likely will be generally adopted by other Boards of Education.

The attendance of delegates was good and great interest was manifested.

The Hon. the Minister of Education was present a portion of the time and heard the debates.

We think it would be well if delegates from this board would annually attend the convention, as no doubt a great many of the suggestions made will be very useful, and probably will to some extent enter into Provincial legislation.

J. STEVENSON,
LOUIS M. HAYES.

The report was received.

Mr. L. M. Hayes also said a few words in praise of the convention and of its importance.

The matter of Miss Spence's resignation was then taken up. Principal Fessenden, of the Collegiate Institute, explained that when in Toronto at Easter Miss Spence had consulted a specialist, who urged her retirement for a few months in order to avoid consequences which might be serious. Miss Spence's sister came down from Toronto and stated the circumstances to him. The classes had been carried on since by Mr. Jeffries taking the French and grammar and being relieved in the Junior English by Mr. McCaig. This plan he thought would be better than bringing in a strange teacher at this season of the year.

On motion of Dr. Burnham and Mr. Hayes, Miss Spence was granted the required leave of absence.

On motion Mr. Fife was appointed to preside at the Departmental Examinations this year.

The inspector's report on the teachers was taken as read and referred to the Committee on Appointments.

The board then adjourned.

Mrs. Appleby has bargains to offer you every day in the week, at the Little Store around the corner. 426 Water Street.

SATISFACTORY HEALTH REPORT.

For Ashburnham Given by the Medical Health Officer.

A meeting of the Ashburnham Board of Health was held Monday, those present being Messrs. J. H. Smith, chairman, Frank Adams, J. F. Wright and A. McCarthy.

Dr. Clarke, Medical Health Officer, presented the following report:

To the Chairman and Members of the Ashburnham Board of Health:

GENTLEMEN,—I have pleasure in recording that the sanitary condition of the village during the year 1897 has been satisfactory, the death rate being a slight fraction above 14 per thousand. This does not include deaths occurring at St Joseph's Hospital in cases where patients are removed there from outside municipalities, although such deaths have to be registered here. The ratio of infectious diseases has been very small, with the exception of measles, of which a large number of cases occurred but with no fatal results. Two cases of diphtheria occurred with one death, and two of typhoid fever, both comparatively mild. There was no scarlet fever, but three deaths occurred from consumption, which is now classed by all medical authorities as an infectious disease. Isolation and disinfection have been carried out as thoroughly as possible in accordance with the requirements of the statute with the same good results as have always been found to follow such measures.

THE REMOVAL OF GARBAGE

and excreta has been very well attended to. The clause of the act relating to the cleaning of privy vaults is better looked after each year, and instructions have been given to use disinfectants where necessary. Manure heaps are sometimes allowed to attain too large proportions, and consequently pollute the air in certain kinds of weather. We have had to be particular about places where refuse matter is dealt in as a business, and considerable improvement has been made. Slaughter houses have been inspected from time to time, and have very seldom been a cause of complaint. A few hog pens were found in outlying parts of the village and these were ordered to be kept in accordance with the clauses of the Public Health Act relating thereto.

In our inspections we came across places, sometimes, too, in the centre of thickly inhabited parts, where people did not appear to understand the first principles of sanitation and where dirt prevailed both in side and outside. Wells were in the worst possible condition, admitting of contamination hourly. This state of affairs is enough to give typhoid fever or diphtheria to a whole community. The end and aim of health work is to teach and have carried out in practice proper ideas as to purity of air, water, food, cleanliness of the person and of the dwelling, etc., thus making the individual and the nation healthier, wealthier and happier. Much of the charity dispensed by municipalities is for the relief of suffering caused by preventible illness.

Inspections have been made several times of St. Joseph's Hospital and the Public School buildings. Every effort is made to keep these places in good sanitary condition. Samples of drinking water have been brought to me frequently for analysis, and when too impure to be safe for use, the proper remedy has been pointed out.

Regarding consumption, a disease which is occupying the attention of boards of health all over the world, three deaths, as I mentioned, occurred here during the year from that cause, and therefore it should be considered in sanitary measures. It appears in families who never had it before. It has been proved beyond a doubt that "it can be caught." Being infectious, it is therefore preventible. I do not know that there is much to recommend to you except increased general sanitary vigilance along the lines already indicated. Judicious street watering to keep down dust is important. Dust in town is far more dangerous than dust on country roads. One eminent investigator found in a cubic yard of air from the top of mountains but one microbe, but in the centre of Paris he found 79,000 in the same space. Of course, many of these are quite harmless, but the figures indicate the difference between town and country air.

I consider the sanitary condition of the village very satisfactory and hope it will be continued during the present year. The chairman and members of the board and council have taken a good deal of interest in the work and repeatedly given valuable suggestions.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

J. CLARKE, M.D.,
Medical Health Officer.

The report was adopted as read.

Mr. Adams moved, seconded by Mr. Wright, that the secretary be instructed to have a book of Board of Health notices printed.—Carried.

Mr. Frank Adams moved, seconded by Mr. J. F. Wright, that the inspector be instructed to see that the provisions of the Act respecting the cleaning of yards, outhouses, vaults, etc., before the 15th of May be strictly enforced.—Carried.

THE I. O. F. WON THE SUIT.

A Judgment of Considerable Importance to Fraternal Societies.

Judge Archibald, of the Superior Court, Saturday rendered a judgment of some importance to fraternal societies. Joseph Godin, a member of the Independent Order of Foresters, sued for $346.55 damages, alleging that on the 6th of October, 1897, he was initiated as a member of Court St. Victoire, that at the first regular meeting he went to the hall, when he was set upon and forcibly ejected from the meeting by some of the officers on the ground that he had not paid his dues and assessments. Godin denied the charge and offered to produce his receipt book, but he claimed the officers would not listen to his plea. He brought suit against the order at Toronto, claiming that they are legally responsible for the good behaviour of its officers.

In a lengthy plea the order recognized Godin as a member duly admitted, but denied his rights to sue them as a body, alleging that there were bylaws in operation governing subordinate courts, and if there had been any grievance they should first have been appealed to. This pretension was upheld by Judge Archibald, who dismissed Godin's action with costs.

THE CROWNED LEADERS OF THE HAT TRADE

Have Outstripped All Previous Records.

* * * * *

We started in with the intention of making the spring season of 1898 one memorable in the Hat Department of our Big Store, and we have succeeded far beyond our expectations. For Elegance, Variety and Style our stock this year is beyond worded description, unapproachable by local competition and unexcellend by the other big stores in the larger cities; and LOW PRICES are the two words which stand out most prominently on the banner waving over this magnificent stock. Our combination of stores, with their capital combined, together with our Cash System, enables us to buy the best and most stylish shapes from the leading manufacturers, and sell them for less than others charge for what we call our inferior goods. Buy where you like and we can duplicate your purchase or give you a better quality of Hat, and you will have enough from the difference in the prices to purchase something else of half the value. An investigation of this year's handsome stock will convince you that these are unvarnished facts. Come in and see us, is worth your while to view the stock.

DON CARLOS IS LOYAL

Pretender Will Not Create Revolution While War Is On.

EFFORTS TO SAVE THE DYNASTY

Alarming Riots in Spain Rioters in Bay of Biscay District Fired On—Sampson May Be Heard From Any Hour—To Land in Cuba by Night.

London, May 5.—According to a despatch to the Daily Mail from Brussels, Don Carlos, in the course of an interview, has declared that he would not provoke a revolutionary movement in Spain, but, on the contrary, would prevent, if need be, any Carlist agitation while the war continues.

To Save the Dynasty.

London, May 5.—The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says:

"The idea of the resignation of the regency by Queen Maria Christina is being seriously considered by the members of the Imperial family of Austria, with a view to averting an anti-dynastic movement and saving the throne. An exchange of ideas on the subject is going on between the Queen Regent and her Austrian family, but its most influential members are decidedly opposed."

ALARMING RIOTS IN SPAIN.

The Country Is Evidently in Very Bad Case—Rioters Fired On.

Madrid, May 5.—The outbreaks in the provinces are assuming alarming proportions. This is especially the case in the Province of Gijon, on the Bay of Biscay, where the troops have been compelled to fire on the rioters "in self-defence." The latest news from Gijon is that the artillery have been ordered out.

At Talavera de la Royna one of the Jesuit religious houses has been burned. It is asserted here that the riots arise from hunger rather than from political motives.

Exports Prohibited.

London, May 5.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing Wednesday night, says:

The Cortes will to-morrow approve the measure prohibiting the exportation of corn, flour, rye, maize and potatoes, and suppressing the duty on the importation of these articles.

Cannot Rely on the Army.

London, May 5.—The Madrid correspondent of the Morning Post says: "The Government is aware that they cannot rely upon the army. It is an open secret that a society has been formed within its ranks to put an end to the humiliations Spain has suffered at the hands of her incompetent Ministers. Judging by what one hears, very terrible things may shortly happen."

BY NIGHT TO CUBA.

Cubans Leave Florida With Provisions, Supplied by the American Government, to Aid the Insurgents.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 5.—A special from Key West says: The Government tug Leyden left Key West at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, carrying a Cuban expedition, under Government auspices, to establish communication with the Cuban forces in Havana Province. The expedition is commanded by Lieut.-Col. Baldemere Acosta. Under him are Laureno Prado and Ambrosia Diaz, veteran officers, and three other Cubans. All are thoroughly familiar with the entire Province of Havana. With yesterday's expedition went two hundred carefully selected horses and a quantity of provisions. A landing will be effected at night at a thoroughly safe place already selected. Acosta and Diaz will ride at once to the interior, where they will join Acosta's old command, and from this camp the important despatches will be carried to all parts of Western Cuba. Other Cubans of the party expect to be able to establish a line of communication from the coast to the interior.

Another expedition, conveying despatches to General Gomez, will land on the north coast of the Province of Puerto Principe in a few days.

U. S. A NAVAL POWER.

Lord Salisbury's Primrose Day Speech on "Dying Countries."

London, May 5.—There can be no doubt that the success of the United States at Manila gives little pleasure to Continental politicians, who recognize that America is now certain to become a first-class naval power and will have to be reckoned with in the world's affairs. The fact that the American papers are looking kindly upon the possibility of a British protectorate in the Philippines gives additional umbrage, as indicating a convergence of America and England toward entente.

Lord Salisbury's speech before the Primrose League yesterday appeared to show that he had a presentiment of the change now working in his vague prophetic forebodings of coming trouble. The Premier spoke of the "living and dying countries of the world," and of how the former were gradually encroaching upon the latter. He spoke also of the "corruption of dying countries, a corruption so deep-seated as to give the smallest hope of reform," and he referred to the partition of these countries as likely to lead nations into war.

"Dying countries," said Lord Salisbury, "are mostly unchristian, but, I regret to say, not exclusively so."

Will Back Up Dewey.

New York, May 5.—The Hong-Kong correspondent of the World says: Chief Aguinaldo has arrived, and has had a conference with Consul Wildman. He has agreed to submit to Commodore Dewey's orders, and he will conduct the land forces, and with the 30,000 so-called insurgents, effectively back up Dewey when he gains control of Manila. He has promised to act in a humane way.

Sampson Going to Porto Rico.

London, May 5.—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Key West, sent by way of Tampa, in order to escape censorship, asserts of positive knowledge that Rear Admiral Sampson's fleet will steam at full speed to Porto Rico, either to destroy or to occupy the coaling station as a naval base, before the Spanish squadron arrives, and then put to sea and try to engage the Cape Verde fleet.

Cable Still Interrupted.

London, May 5.—Enquiries at the office of the Eastern Telegraph Company show that at noon, London time, the Hong-Kong-Manila cable was still interrupted. The reported surrender of Manila, while probably true, is yet conjecture.

The principal Manila merchants in London, who have been interviewed on the subject, agree that their latest letters show the Philippine Islands will be pleased to have the revolt ended, and will view with equanimity America's future action there. They all gladly hail the end of a state of things which, the merchants say, is quite as bad as in Cuba.

Fighting to Be Resumed.

New York, May 5.—A Havana special to the Herald says: Captain-General Blanco has issued a decree declaring the armistice at an end, and intimating that hostilities against the insurgents will be renewed actively.

SOLID SHOTS.

Stray and Ricochet Missles That Were Picked Up as Being Necessary to Preserve the Harmony of the War News.

A British steam yacht, which put into Malaga, was stoned by the Spaniards and had to seek safety at Gibraltar.

Mr. Alfredo T. Triay, the American Consul at Baracoa, Cuba, reached New York, yesterday. He left Baracoa hurriedly and thinks he "narrowly escape with his life."

The Spanish clerks in the City of Mexico were prevented by the police from holding a meeting at which it was intended to raise money and volunteers for Spain.

There was no truth in the report that Marshal Campos, ex-Captain-General of Cuba, and Senor Moret, the Spanish Minister for the Colonies, had been murdered at Madrid.

The situation created by the defeat of the Spanish navy at Manila is regarded as deeply interesting to Japan, as it may presage the downfall of the Spanish power in the east.

The United States despatch boat McCulloch has arrived at Mirs Bay, near Hong-Kong. The McCulloch left Manila before the battle took place; her despatches are expected to reach Washington to-day.

The Secretary of the United States navy has sent a deficiency estimate of $20,975,500 to the House. The estimate covers the remainder of the present fiscal year, and a portion of the account for the ensuing year.

The American warships, the Oregon and Marietta, have been allowed by the Brazilian Government to anchor in Rio de Janeiro harbor, and take coal from aboard the American supply boat Nichtheroy.

The Pacific mail steamship City of Pekin has been chartered by the American Government, and will be put into condition to sail from San Francisco on the 13th with coal, stores and troops for Manila.

Bishop's Joke.

Bishop Short, who held the see of St. Asaph, occasionally put questions to candidates for ordination that apparently had no connection with the discharge of their parochial duties. One such question was, "Which has the greatest number of legs, a cat or no cat?" As might be expected, this created a titter, but the bishop repeated the question and desired some one to solve the problem. At last one of the candidates, smiling, said, "I should think, my lord, a cat." "No," retorted the bishop. "There you are wrong, for a cat has four legs and no cat has five."—Argonaut.

A STRONG ARGUMENT.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my thanks for your cheque just handed to me, for $3,901.98, in settlement of my $3,500 Fifteen Year Endowment Policy in your Company. Such a result as this, after the risk on my life has been carried for fifteen years, beginning from forty-five years of age, argues one thing strongly, namely, that the management of the North American Life must be in competent hands. The other options you have offered me, viz.: a Paid-up Life policy for $2510.00, or a Life Annuity for $401.90, are, I presume, equally liberal, and it affords me much pleasure to recommend your Company to my friends or any one desiring insurance.

NERVED FOR ORDEAL.

Mrs. Sternaman's Calm Demeanor in Court.

BEGINNING OF HER SECOND TRIAL

Six Out of the First Thirty Jurors Rejected—Osler for the Crown and Johnston and Bradford for the Prisoner — The Crown's Case - The Evidence Taken.

Cayuga, Ont, May 5.—It was exactly 22 minutes to 10 o'clock yesterday morning when Mrs. Olive Adele Sternaman stepped into the prisoner's dock at the court house to stand her second trial on the charge of having poisoned her husband, George Sternaman.

The court room was as quiet as the tomb as this woman, who has gained more notoriety in Canada than any other in recent years, was led into court. She walked with a steady step, and though she kept her eyes averted, was not apparently much concerned. She wore a black dress and hat and black fur cape. She looked to be in good health. The court room was filled with spectators.

The prosecution is being conducted by Mr. B. B. Osler, Q.C., and F. B. Osler of Toronto, and Mr. C. W. Colter of Cayuga.

Mr. B. B. Osler did not arrive until the court was in session for some time, as he had been engaged on a case at Sarnia yesterday and could not make railway connections.

Messrs. E. F. B. Johnston, Q.C., and S. H. Bradford of Toronto are attending to Mrs. Sternaman's interests.

A great deal of time was taken up getting a jury. A large number were challenged on both sides. There were all kinds of excuses. One man was deaf, another was a German and couldn't speak English, and another said he couldn't write. All were excused, the Crown challenging the illiterate one. Out of the first thirty called only six were chosen.

Jury at Last Secured.

The jurymen selected are: George Vollic, W. A. Tomlinson, Charles Robins, William A. Stuck, Nelson Derrins, Peter Follick, P. W. Coverdale, Charles Ackland, Joseph M. Buckley, John H. Reid, William Robinson, David Ashbough.

Before the opening of the case Mr. Johnston said he proposed to object to the admission of the evidence taken by a commission in Buffalo.

Mr. Osler said the evidence was not material, and agreed to drop it.

Mr. Osler then proceeded to outline the case to the jury, impressing upon their minds the fact that they must clear their minds of very prejudice in favor of or against the prisoner. Sternaman's illness had extended from June 13 to Aug. 19, 1896, when he died, and during all that time his wife attended him and had charge of his food and medicine. There were symptoms of arsenical poisoning, but whether the poison was administered by accident or design was for the Crown to show. Sternaman had $1,900 of insurance on his life in his wife's favor, and the Crown would attempt to prove that the wife deliberately poisoned her husband for the sake of his insurance.

During all the time Mr. Osler was speaking the woman in the dock sat unmoved. Occasionally her eyes wandered over the court room, but usually she kept them fixed upon Mr. Osler and the jury

The evidence of Mrs. T. J. Sternaman was taken when Mr. Osler concluded, and court adjourned at 1 o'clock for lunch.

The Mother's Evidence.

Mrs. Sternaman, the mother of the dead man, and therefore the mother-in-law of the prisoner, was then called, and told the story of her son's marriage, illness and death, as she told it at the last trial. In her cross-examination by Mr. Johnston she admitted that she had been on friendly terms with her daughter-in law throughout her son's illness, and had not attempted to take him out of her charge, although she had had her suspicions during all this time. She had never observed anything in the prisoner's conduct towards the patient that was not such as that of a wife should be. She had always been faithful and attentive. No other person had attended the patient or given him his food or medicine. She said that before she had laid the information against the prisoner she had written to the prisoner in a friendly spirit, asking for $25.

What Dr. Park Said.

Dr. P. S. Park told of the post mortems which he and Dr. Harrison had made on the body of George Sternaman. At the second post mortem a quantity of fluid had been found in the thorax. On cross-examination by Mr. Johnston he said that his theory of arsenical poisoning would not hold if the poison had not been found in the body after it was exhumed. His theory was based on this fact, together with his diagnosis when attending the patient. The witness did not think that the vomiting of the patient on the last night of his life was caused by the morphine pellets which he had left for him to take, because Sternaman had been in the habit of taking them.

Philip Hartwick testified that he had heard the prisoner tell Mrs. Sternaman, the mother of the dead man, that the insurance on George's life was $770.

The counsel then argued whether the Buffalo evidence, taken before the United States Commissioners, should be admitted. The judge decided that the evidence was admissable.

Toronto Centenarian Dead.

Toronto, May 5.—Mrs. Ann Morrison, probably the oldest resident in the Queen City, is dead, aged 105 years. She lived for some time in Atherley, Simcoe County, but during the past few years has been residing with her granddaughter, Mrs. Robert H. William, wife of Mr. H. H. Cook's gardner.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A correspondent whose curiosity is doubtless sharpened by the atmosphere of war we are breathing these days, asks what the difference is between a fort and a fortress. A fort is a fort, a fortified post. Fort is of the male sex—fortress is female. To elaborate the distinction: A fort is something that can be captured, that can be silenced. A fortress being female, cannot be silenced.

THE Chicago Times-Herald has lost its head over the success of Commodore Dewey's little scrap in the Philippines—his victory over a few antiquated wooden war ships and tumble-down forts, equipped with smooth bore, breech-loading guns. The journal in question proposes to swap the Philippines with Great Britain for British Columbia and the Klondyke. No, no, Mr. Times-Herald. Johnny Bull doesn't do that sort of business, although he may at present rather good naturedly patronize your country in this little tiff with Spain. If Britain had wanted the Philippine Islands very badly she would have taken them. Besides, she has no nations to dispose of, especially, a big slice of such a nation as Canada. Great Britain has recently copyrighted a motto, which she has practised for a long time: "What we have we'll hold."

TOTAL prohibition of stimulating drink is a pretty big jump at once, and the consumer of what Mr. Dick Swiveller, calls "a modest quencher," is naturally down on the proposal. The prohibition of cider as a deadly intoxicant is regarded by persons of temperate views, as carrying the war into Africa. It is questioned whether it is wise for prhohibitionists to insist on including cider in the index expurgatorius. Extreme measures have a tendency to defeat themselves. On the other hand when prohibition is once the law of the land, the name of new drinks will be legion, and legion will be the schemes to evade the law. Under such circumstances, if cider is put on the "free list," it won't be very long before a pretty potent intoxicant will be evolved from it. On these grounds, therefore, it is to be assumed that extremists insist on cider being placed under the ban, along with whiskey, brandy, ale and all the intoxicating tribe of drinks. Prohibition may prove a success, but it is probable that it will not be more successful than laws against theft, murder and other crimes, in preventing their commission, and it may be less successful, for everybody acknowledges that stealing or murder, whether practised in moderation, as in times of peace, or to excess, as in times of war, are crimes. While public sentiment is pretty evenly divided on the drink question, a very large proportion of the people believe that, in moderation and proper use, strong drink is no more an evil than the temperate use of many other admittedly proper articles.

CO-OPERATIVE AGRICULTURE.

Its Material Benefits to Practical Farmers.

Over twenty-eight hundred farmers have received material and instructions for conducting tests upon their own farms durthe present season. These include young men who have attended the Agricultural College, successful and painstaking farmers who have experimented previously, and others who are undertaking the work for the first time.

About two thousand experimenters have conducted satisfactory experimental work within the past ten years. Of this number over two hundred have furnished good reports for at least three different years and some for five, six and even nine years. These little experiment stations form object lessons in nearly every neighbourhood in the province, the influence of which can never be fully estimated. To give some idea of this influence, I quote the following from reports sent in by experimenters:

"I get much benefit from my experiments and my plots are visited by most of my neighbours every year."

"As a result of my experiments I raise more bushels to the acre and make more money on my farm."

"Looking at it from a financial point of view, my neighbours have received benefit from my experimental work to the amount of a good many hundred dollars."

This system of co-operative experimental work in agriculture, which centres at the Agricultural College and operates through the medium of the Experimental Union, is being enlarged and improved from year to year. A study of the fertility of the soil on different farms, and of the relative merits of promising varieties of agricultural crops for different sections, are the main subject under experiment on about twelve thousand plots this year. There are in all nineteen distinct experiments, which embrace the agricultural crops grown on about nine-tenths of the cultivated land of Ontario. The demand has been greatest for experiments with oats, spring wheat, peas, corn and mangels.

We could still furnish a number of applicants with a package of each of six leading varieties of corns, which forms a valuable test for farmers who are anxious to ascertain which varieties of corn are best adapted to the soil of their own particular farms.

"Ossemore Place," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pearce, was the scene of a very pretty, as well as enjoyable, social gathering on Friday evening last, when a number of friends were invited to do honour to Mr. and Mrs. W. A. F. Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Pearce. The first part of the evening took the form of a reception, when the two newly married couples were presented to a host of admiring friends. Next came an hour or so of social intercourse relieved by a few promenades. Supper was served at about 11 o'clock in the pretty dining room, where three nicely decorated and heavily ladened tables were provided for the assembled friends. After these refreshments were disposed of the guests retired to the drawing room which was soon cleared, and the lovers of the dance enjoyed themselves to their full. The merry company broke up at a very reasonable hour, and the guests went home delighted both with the hearty and graceful hospitality dispensed.

FEMALE WEAKNESS CURED.

Mrs. Saunders Made Well and Strong by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Brantford, April 25—(Special)—The wives and mothers of Ontario are the most ardent disciples of Dodd's way of curing curing Diseases of Women—i.e. by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This is natural, for no medicine, no earth, no agency known to man has saved women one tithe of the agony that Dodd's Kidney Pills have banished.

Mrs. F. Saunders, of Brantford, tells her suffering sisters what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for her: I have been a martyr to Female Weakness for the past year and suffered terribly. Dodd's Kidney Pills made me strong and well and healthy, though several other remedies I used did me no good whatever."

So the record grows. Cures made every day. Failures—never.

Many Misplaced Tombs.

The east is full of tombs of saints and patriarchs at places where they were never buried. There are tombs of Jonah, of Abraham, of Noah and of Adam. In the same way the old Egyptians had their tombs of gods, and it does not follow, because M. Amelineau has discovered the holy place at Abydos, which they held sacred to Osiris, that Osiris and Isis and Horus and Set were real, historical characters and that we can reconstruct thereupon the beginnings of Egyptian history. Doubtless M. Amelineau has found what was called by the Egyptians the tomb of Osiris, and doubtless there was in it a granite sarcophagus with the name of Osiris on it, but such a sarcophagus is likely to have been much later than the archaic period long before Menes, when Osiris was said to have lived.—Independent.

FRATERNAL ORDERS.

Discussion of Great Interest to These Organizations.

STARTLING STATEMENTS MADE.

The Bills of the Ancient Order of Foresters and the S. of E. Benefit Society Started the Ball Rolling in a Parliamentary Committee —A General Act Probable.

Ottawa, May 5.—A discussion of great interest to the thousands of members of fraternal organizations throughout Canada took place at the meeting of the Banking and Commerce Committee yesterday morning. It arose on the bill to incorporate the subsidiary High Court of the Ancient Order of Foresters.

Next on the order paper was a kindred measure, to incorporate the Supreme Grand Lodge of the Sons of England Benefit Society.

Superintendent of Insurance Objects.

Objection was taken to the bill by Mr. Fitzgerald, Superintendent of Insurance, on the ground that the society did not desire to put up a deposit of $50,000, as provided by the Insurance Act of 1895, and contrary, also, to the provision of that Act. The Foresters, he said, desired to do sick benefit insurances.

He stated that Parliament had incorporated the I.O.F. with the powers now asked by the A.O.F., but in 1896 Parliament had amended the I.O.F. bill in order to make the best of a bad bargain. Mr. Fitzgerald stated that nearly all these fraternal organizations charged rates which were too low for properly conducting insurance business. He made the announcement, which will probably surprise members of the I.O.F. thoughout Canada, that at the next Supreme Court meeting of that body, it was the intention to increase the rates almost to the extent of doubling them. It might be that the rates would affect existing policies, and certainly they would apply to new policies. The A.O.F. rates, he said, were better than those of most other friendly societies, so far as the members who had joined since 1894 were concerned, but, despite this fact, the rates were 20 per cent. less than would enable the society fairly to meet their liabilities. He concluded by suggesting that the whole question of friendly society legislation should be dealt with by a general bill to be introduced next session.

Mr. Fielding and Sir Louis Davies urged the withdrawal of the two bills, but Mr. Clarke thought the two societies, having gone to the trouble of preparing their legislation, should get their charters, but with a clause inserted in both bills making them subject to the provisions of any legislation which might be enacted by Parliament hereafter.

Status of the I. O. F.

Mr. Haggart asked Mr. Fitzgerald for the present status of the I.O.F.

The superintendent replied that the assets of the society amounted to $2,750,000, while the amount insured was $154,000,000.

Mr. Haggart said it would be a terrible thing if any of these societies were to go to smash, and he quite concurred with the suggestion that Parliament should legislate in the matter of fixing the rates.

The preamble of the bill was adopted.

General and Personal.

Before the Agricultural Committee yesterday Minister Fisher supported Prof. Robertson's scheme in regard to the establishment of illustration stations. The scheme was opposed by Sproule, Cargill, Semple, McMullen and other members.

Sir Louis Davies was 53 years old yesterday. He received many congratulations.

YUKON MILITARY EXPEDITION.

The Minister of Militia Makes His Promised Explanation in the House—Sir Wilfrid Sizes Up Sir Charles.

Ottawa, May 5.—The Minister of Militia according to his promise, gave the details of the Yukon military expedition in the House yesterday. The force is being sent out to assist the civil power in maintaining law and order in the numerous mining camps scattered throughout that territory. It was at first thought to increase by 200 the force of the Mounted Police, of whom there are now 190 in the Yukon, but instead it was determined to send 200 regulars, with fit artificers and boatmen, to assist them on the trip. The United States had now four companies of regulars in Alaska, or about 350 to 400 men in all. It was difficult, in view of the transportation problem, to say just what the expense of the Yukon contingent would be; but he did not think it would be more for the first year than $900,000, over and above the $100,000 it costs to maintain them in the east. After the first year the expenses might be reduced by $50,000. It would have cost more, he said, to have sent police, for the police get a dollar a day in the Yukon. As to the rout the contingent would be sent by the C.P.R. and C. P. Navigation Company's steamer to Vancouver, and thence to Glenora or Stikine River, and from that overland to Teslin Lake, and from there to Fort Selkirk, which would be their objective point for the present. At Selkirk barracks and defensive works would be erected. One detachment would be left at Teslin Lake for the summer. The troops would be under the control of the Administrator and would be armed with Lee-Enfield rifles. They would also have two Maxims and two 7-pounder field guns, and each man would have 300 rounds of rifle cartridges.

Bills.

Mr. Sutherland, who had a bill on the order paper respecting the examination of stationary engineers and the inspection of steam boilers, said he had been advised by the Department of Justice that this legislation came within the provincial jurisdiction. He would therefore not press the bill.

Mr. Flint introduced a bill to amend the Criminal Code for the purpose of correcting a technical error. In certain cases when a fine was imposed and not paid the law was designed to provide hard labor as a punishment, but through some mistake, in these cases, hard labor could be given for the non-payment of the fine itself.

Questions and Answers.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier informed Mr. Bergeron that the writ for Bagot had not yet been issued. The Ministry proposed that the election should take place under the new franchise.

In answer to Col. Hughes, Mr. Sifton said he had given directions to the Canadian Customs officers in the Yukon district to issue free miners' licenses. Major Walsh had reported that difficulties of administration had been encountered when parties had been compelled to go to Dawson or Vancouver to get them. Hence this step.

Mr. Wallace asked whether Major Walsh was returning from Dawson.

The Minister said he had not reached Dawson yet, neither was he returning.

Geological Survey Act.

In committee, on the bill to amend the Geological Survey Act, Mr. Sifton explained that it was designed to allow the Minister, on the recommendation of the director, to appoint men required for special services, irrespective of the Civil Service Act requirements.

The bill was reported without amendment.

An Important Measure.

An important measure was put through committee by the Minister of Marine. The loss of life among fishermen on the Grand Banks is enormous, the greatest source of danger being the separation of the small boats from the schooners during fogs or sudden storms. In such cases the occupants of the boats often perished from hunger and exposure, or if rescued at all, are only found after suffering untold hardships.

The bill compels the masters of the vessels to see that each boat which leaves it shall be provided with a small compass, a few pounds of food and a couple of gallons of water.

After some verbal amendments the bill passed through committee, and stands for a third reading. It will come into operation on Oct. 1 next.

Appointments by the Late Government.

On motion to go into supply Dr. Montague brought up the matter of the appointments made by the late Government after the elections of June, 1896. He pointed out that of the 92 recommendations His Excellency had rejected 47 and approved 45. These latter Sir Wilfrid Laurier promised should be installed in their positions and treated as if they had been appointments of long standing. That promise, reiterated in Parliament, had been totally disregarded. Out of the whole 45 only two had got their positions.

Mr. Fisher justified the dismissal of Dr. Duncan, Quarantine Officer in British Columbia, but spoke briefly.

No Minister rising to reply to the points referred to by Dr. Montague, and the Premier being absent for the time being, Sir Charles Tupper took the floor and denounced the Government in his usual vituperative style.

Sir Louis Davies said the Government did not wish to show any disrespect to the Opposition in not putting up a speaker, but this question had been discussed ad nauseum in Parliament, so much so that the Opposition themselves were sick and tired of it. With regard to the 48 recommendations which His Excellency had expressed his willingness to sign, not one had been signed by the Governor-General at the time he wrote his memorandum; hence the Premier had to take full responsibility for them. With regard to these forty-eight, twenty-three had either been cancelled or confirmed. The others had still to be dealt with.

Sir Charles Tupper here rose and quoted from the letter of the Governor-General's secretary, stating that these 48 appointments had been signed by His Excellency. He had seen the Governor's signature to them.

Sir Louis Davies stated that the Governor-General's signature only appeared on the memorandum which appeared on the face of the 48 recommendations. In not one of the 48 cases had His Excellency signed the recommendations.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier expressed his regret that he was not present earlier in the evening to hear the whole of Sir Charles Tupper's speech. He had heard sufficient, however, to convince him that the Opposition leader possessed the same power of reckless assertion which had always characterized him. He continued: Sir Charles Tupper could not forget the mortification which filled his soul because the Governor-General would not allow him to prostitute his position to make a partisan Senate still more partisan. The hon. gentleman had been Premier simply through the machinations of a nest of traitors; he had never had the sanction of the popular will to his Premiership, and yet he had the audacity to ask the Governor-General to appoint men to office, or to the Senate, who had been defeated at the polls on every possible occasion. The Opposition leader had sought to heap insult on the head of the Governor-General. He could be insulting and impudent to the Queen's representatives, but he had never dared to challenge the action of the Governor-General by a vote of the House. Let the Opposition discuss every case on its merits and adequate explanation would be given. The conduct of the Opposition leader, he claimed, was as outrageous as had ever been heard of in any British Parliament. (Cheers.)

After observations from Mr. Bennett and Mr. Paterson the House went into committee of supply.

The estimates for the Department of Agriculture were passed after the usual discussion and Ministerial explanations.

The House was still in session when the telegraph service closed last night.

Our Trimmed Hats represent the latest fancies from the wide domain of fashion, embracing all the New Shapes tastefully and effectually trimmed with a profusion of Flowers, Feathers, Chiffon, Spray, Dotted Net and Ornaments.

Lindsay's Deliberate Amenities.

Lindsay had a very "scrappy" meeting of the council last Monday night. Personalities were as thick as the heads which some members attributed to others. Nurses on Wheels.

Trained nurses are expensive, although their services become a household necessity in case of sickness, care and trouble. But the best and least expensive nurse for the youngest member of the family is a baby carriage. It is a reliable remedy for most of the ills that baby is heir to. The addition of comfortable upholstery, a sun and wind-shedding silk parasol, and the right kind of springs and gear, help the slumbers of the child and the equally important peace and rest of the mother. MASONIC.

A Heavy Night's Work Successfully Disposed of at the Regular Meeting of Corinthian Lodge A.F. & A.M.

There was an unusually full turnout of the craft at the regular meeting of Corinthian Lodge No. 101, A.F. & A.M., held on Wednesday evening. It was the last meeting of the lodge before its semi-centennial celebration, which takes place on the 17th inst., and this fact no doubt influenced the members in responding in such large numbers to their summonses.

The attendance of visitors was also unusually large. The brethren of the sister lodge turned out almost as strongly, and an enthusiastic delegation of brethren from Clementi Lodge, Lakefield, as well as a number of skilled craftsmen from a distance who happened to be in town, swelled the entries on the register.

The work of the evening was all in the First degree. The officers had an unparalleled experience, and such interest has seldom or ever before been evinced as was displayed throughout the ceremony, of imparting the ancient mysteries to no less than five popular representatives of the Entered Apprentice Degree.

One of the most pleasant incidents of the evening was the presentation of the following fraternal address of congratulation by the officers and members of Peterborough Lodge No. 155, to Corinthian Lodge, on the eve of their approaching semi-centennial:—

To the Worshipful Master, Officers and Members of Corinthian Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 101, G.R.C.:

GREETING.

WORSHIPFUL SIR AND BRETHREN.—We the Worshipful Master and Wardens on behalf of Peterborough Lodge, No. 155, A.F. and A.M., and as citizens of this great Empire, and loyal subjects of our noble Queen, extend to you our heartfelt congratulations on this your semi-centennial anniversary. Your lodge has now, under the providence of God, reached the fiftieth milestone, and our earnest wishes are that your future may be one of continued prosperity.

As Masons we rejoice with you in the blessings you have received, and in the many exhibitions you have made in relief and brotherly love, which are the characteristics of the Craft. We trust that the kindly feeling and good fellowship existing between our two lodges may ever continue. The long line of illustrious brethren, who in the past occupied the Oriental chair have guarded well the landmarks, and we trust their successors will ever thus guard them, knowing as we do, that those ancient landmarks must be preserved, for they are now as they ever were, the firm foundation of the Masonic structure, and the basis of Masonic action.

Allow us again, Worshipful Sir, to express our congratulations on this auspicious occasion, an event which we feel will be long remembered by each of us with gratitude to the Most High for the prosperity that has attended us in all our undertakings.

Our fervent wish and prayer is that whenever you are Masons, you may meet in Unity, work in Harmony and part in Peace. May Fidelity watch your door, Faith prompt your actions, Hope animate your labours, and Charity diffuse your bounty. May Wisdom and Virtue ever distinguish you, so that the sublime Tenets of our Ancient Order may be disseminated and Masonry in our midst may be prospered by the hand of the Great Architect of the Universe.

Signed on behalf of Peterborough Lodge,
A. C. HERRIDGE, W.M.
W. E. CONWAY, S. W.
W. L. ARMITAGE, J. W.

The address was printed in blue ink and handsomely engrossed. In the centre was the square and compass in light blue, surrounding the letter "G" in silver. The whole was surrounded by a pretty border and was richly framed.

When the lodge closed down a very fraternal hour was spent in the refreshment room.

CHURCH INTERESTS AT YOUNG'S POINT.

Progress of the Church of England Mission in the Village—Interest by Foreign and Home Friends in the Work.

The Church of England mission at Young's Point is laying a foundation which should be very encouraging to its numerous foreign friends as well as to those who are directly connected with it.

A sale of work and entertainment were held on Easter Monday towards renovating the church, and the result amply repaid the energetic workers, for the sum realized was sufficient to cover the expense of church improvement. The sale was conducted under the auspices of Mrs. Andrews Allen, whose efficient services are ever at the church command, and the entertainment was ably presided over by Mr. C. R. D. Booth, lay reader of Buckhorn.

Lady Mary Hamond Graeme, Isle of Wight, mother of Rev. A. Hamond Graeme, incumbent, sent a valuable box of useful and fancy articles for the sale, and numerous gifts were also received from Mrs. Hugh Allen, Scotland, and from Mrs. Quinn, Ireland.

The contributions of those kind friends assisted greatly towards attaining the object of the bazaar, and the consequence is that the church is beautified by well-painted seats, China matting on the aisles and various other minor improvements.

Rev. A. Hamond Graeme donated very handsome spring roller blinds for the windows, and Mrs. F. J. Tate, Lakefield, presented a beautiful brass hanging lamp, with shade, and Mrs. Hastings Carter, Peterborough, sent an exquisite hand-painted velvet frontal for the reading desk.

The members of the Mission are deeply grateful to these and all other friends of the cause for the valuable aid thus given, whereby the church is much better fitted for Divine worship.

Whilst playing in the street this morning with a number of companions a young son of Mr. John Hurley, who is employed in Mr. W. H. Meldrum's mill and lives on Charlotte street, fell and broke his left fore arm. The fracture was reduced by Dr. King and the little fellow is doing as well as could be expected.

It's on the Square.

Messrs. Henry & Co. have girdled the mammoth electric pole in front of their store on George street with an attractively painted sign, "On the Square." Each of the four sides bears the firm's name and business in appropriate lettering, and has the advantage of being seen from the four points of the compass. The north window of this firm contains a new feature of display, consisting of a handsome show case of samples of fine silverplated ware, which shoppers are invited to ask all about.

Mrs. Appleby has bargains to offer you every day in the week, at the Little Store around the corner. 426 Water Street.

OBITUARY.

The Late Mrs. Enoch Round—Funeral on Sunday.

Annie Elizabeth Holmes, daughter of the late Mr. John C. Holmes, and wife of Mr. Enoch Round, passed away this morning. The deceased lady, who was a native of Peterborough, was united in marriage to Mr. Round fourteen years ago. Mrs. Round was a Methodist in religion, a member of the congregation of the George street church. She was of a retiring modest disposition and decidedly domestic in her tastes—home was her kingdom over which she ruled by the law of affection and love. She was very highly respected in the circle in which she moved, and in the community generally. The deceased leaves behind her to mourn her death a husband and one daughter, Lizzie, thirteen years of age, two brothers, John and William Holmes, of Buffalo, and three sisters, Mrs. A. G. Mortimer, of Buffalo; Mrs. H. W. Christie, town, and Hattie Holmes, also residing in town, and living with Mrs. Round. The funeral takes place from the family residence, 175 Dublin street, on Sunday, May 8th, at 2 o'clock p.m., to the Little Lake cemetery.

HOME READING UNION.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Will you kindly permit me in a few words to explain the object of the meeting called for to-morrow night in the Y M. C. A. under the auspices and in the interests of the National Home Reading Union.

This organization is of English origin and was created through the instrumentality of Rev. Dr. Paton, a Congregationalist minister, and at present the Hon. Secretary of the Union. It is, however, a strictly undenominational society, the Princess Louise being the President and the Bishop of Hereford the chairman of the Council, which includes the names of distinguished Roman Catholics, peers, members of parliament, clergy of several denominations, as well as many distinguished men of literature.

The object of the N. H. R. U. is to promote systematic reading and to guide those who desire to spend part of their spare time in the study of useful books. At the same time it is designed to meet the needs of those who have other duties and other pleasures, and the course of reading is so arranged as to suit the convenience and opportunity of all.

One very practical arrangement of the constitution is the provision for grouping the members into circles of some ten to twenty members each, under the presidency of a leader who directs the operations of the circle. A circle meets weekly, or fortnightly, as it wishes, and once a quarter a meeting of all the members is held, when papers are read and discussed by the members.

The N.H R U. has had an experimental existence in Peterborough for two years, and it is now felt that it is a very useful and practical association. Accordingly it is desired to extend its membership, which now numbers between sixty and seventy. The committee concluded that their ends could be most successfully accomplished by calling a public meeting to be addressed by representative citizens of Peterborough. At this meeting the working of the N.H. R. U. will be explained whilst Rev. Dr. Torrance, Rev. J. C. Davidson and Sheriff Hall will speak respectively on "Why to Read," "What to Read," and "How to Read." Rev. S. J. Shorey will move, and M. R. M. Dennistoun will second, a resolution favouring the objects of the meeting. The addresses will be short and to the point, and excellent music will be discoursed by Mr. and Mrs. Parker, Miss Dennistoun, Mr. Geo. Dunsford, Mr. McCaig and others.

It is therefore earnestly hoped that there will be a large and representative audience at our meeting to-morrow evening.

Yours, etc.,
HERBERT SYMONDS.

ANOTHER BIG CONTRACT SATISFACTORILY FINISHED

A STERN-WHEEL STEAMER ENGINE TESTED LAST NIGHT.

The Test Perfectly Successful and Satisfactory—She "Started up" Like Clock Work—A Credit to the William Hamilton Company's Establishment.

On March 25th the EXAMINER contained a detailed description of a steam engine manufactured by the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company, for a shallow draught steamer of the fan-tail or stern-wheel variety. The engine was for Mr. Mara, of Yale, B. C., and last night Mr. D. Stephens, marine engineer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was at the Works to witness the test of a similar engine to be used in a similar steamer for the Klondyke trade. There was besides a large number of other spectators, civil and mechanical engineers and others, interested in mechanical work of this description.

The test was a perfect success. When the steam, at even 60 lbs., was turned on through only an inch opening the ponderous engine (with its connecting rods), about fifty feet in length, became alive and worked without a hitch. So well did the engine work that starting it was as simple as putting a wheel-barrow in motion.

Mr. Stevens, though clothed upon with the official reticence suitable to his position, was apparently highly pleased with the test. His laconic, but emphatic, "She's all right," spoke volumes. Mr. Stephens also said that when the engine was in place—which she will be in about a fortnight's time—in the steamer "George M. Dawson," that steamer will be the fastest of the fleet of about a dozen stern-wheel steamers which the C. P. R. Company possesses for shallow water service, which means better than 18 knots an hour.

The design of this engine is quite original and original with the William Hamilton Company. The company's engineer, Mr. A. C. McCallum, prepared the design, it was submitted to the Commodore of the C.P.R. fleet, and on the strength of its excellence and adaptation to the required special work, the order, which has been filled so satisfactorily, was given. The Wm. Hamilton Company is to be congratulated upon possessing, in the way of design and execution, facilities that command the patronage of a progressive company whose aim is always to have the best. The engine will be shipped as soon as it can be loaded.

HARRISON THROWS THE "UNKNOWN" DOYLE.

THE TORONTO MAN AWARDED THE VICTORY.

In the Wrestling Match Which Took Place Last Night in the Opera House—The Men Will Meet Again.

The Opera House was well-filled by a most orderly audience last evening, when the much heralded wrestling match took place between Robt. Harrison, the gate-keeper at the Union Station, Toronto, and Thos. Doyle, an "unknown," who drifted into Peterborough some five weeks ago and made a match with Harrison, through Mr. L. B. Felcher, for $100 a side.

Since the day the match was made Doyle has trained most carefully, and as he has given several exhibitions since then, in which he displayed rare skill, the majority of the local enthusiasts looked upon him as a sure winner.

An impartial committe picked Mr. L. B. Felcher as referee. Messrs. Alex. Gibson, Fred Jones and Lionel Kingacted as timers. Doyle was seconded by young Curtis, of town, whilst "Toady" McMahon, of Toronto, was in Harrison's corner.

When the men were stripped on the mat the great disparity in their size was apparent, Doyle conceding Harrison over seventy pounds in weight.

Harrison is a Graeco-Roman wrestler, whilst Doyle prefers the catch-as-catch-can style, so it was decided that a fall in each way be tried and the third time the men came on the mat, if each had secured a fall, that the one who had scored in the shortest period be allowed the in which the third fall should be attempted.

Doyle won the toss at the start and declared for a catch as-catch-can. The little fellow did all the aggressive work, apparently, and time and again caught Harrison by the leg, but had to release it when the Toronto man put his strength into a strangle hold. It was just 22 minutes after the match began that Doyle finally secured the hold he was after on the leg and got so far under his opponent as to have him at his mercy. Harrison was slowly turned over, but the tussle was taking place so close to the edge of the mat that the referee ofdered them back on it, when work was again resumed as at the start. A minute or so later Doyle again got his man by the leg and went down on his knees with the big fellow on top of him. Retaining hold of his leg with one hand he seized Harrison's wrist with the other and quicker than shot the Toronto man was flipped. In making a roll the referee declared that both shoulders touched the mat at the same time, and awarded Doyle the first fall amidst great applause.

After a fifteen minutes rest the pair went at it again in Greco-Roman style, in which catching below the waist or using the legs to trip is not allowed. Harrison showed that he felt far more at ease now when he had not to guard against those desperate attacks on his legs. He and kept trying for a neck hold until he finally secured it and put the little fellow to the floor having his arm firmly locked around his neck. He finally worked around on Doyle's back, as the latter was on his hands and knees and putting his hands under Doyle's arms from the rear he clasped them behind his neck. Slipping off to the side he began to work the little fellow's head to the floor, but the latter evaded the trick by turning a headspring which made the crowd howl with delight.

Several times again did Harrison get Doyle to the mat, but the little fellow always fell in such a manner that it was little use for his opponent to try and work on him. Doyle began to go down without much persuasion in the hope of catching Harrison napping whilst on the floor, but the Toronto man was wary of making any slips, and finally took advantage of an opening, and with the assistance of his great weight, forced Doyle slowly over and down until his shoulders touched the mat simultaneously, giving Harrison the fall to his credit in 17 minutes, just eight less than it had taken Doyle to win the former fall.

As Harrison had won his fall in the least time, he was in choice as to how the concluding bout should be wrestled, and naturally choose the Graeco Roman.

After 11 minutes' careful fencing Harrison got Doyle down, but the latter squirmed around on top and had Harrison lying full length on the floor. Doyle had a firm hold of Harrison's left wrist and did his best to work the arm around over the big fellow's back, when a fall would have been assured. Harrison, however, was sufficiently strong to keep the wrist beneath him, and all Doyle's efforts failed to bring it forth. Suddenly Harrison reached around with his free arm and, geting a neck hold on Doyle, turned him over, and was again on top himself. For about five minutes more the men tussled on the floor and then both rose.

Doyle began to make things go fast now, and kept charging in on Harrison in a way that made him puff. In one of his rushes Doyle caught his opponent by the legs, and the referee's warning voice was heard, "Don't do that again, Doyle," but hardly were the words before two more fouls of the same nature were committed, when the referee called time and awarded the match to Harrison.

The scene in the opera house was a wild one for a minute or two, as Doyle's admirers appeared to be in the majority. The referee, however, stuck firmly to his decision.

Harrison came to the front and declared that he had been fouled at least ten times. He further claimed that Doyle was not Doyle at all, but the celebrated "Farmer Burns," who is probably the best man on the continent to day, with the possible exception of Evan Lewis.

Doyle stated that it didn't matter whether he was Farmer Burns or Farmer White. He was willing to meet Harrison again for any amount of money which he wanted to put up.

When Doyle asked for another match later on in the Oriental Hotel, Harrison asked for eight weeks in which to get into shape. He stated that he came to Peterborough expecting to meet some local man and had instead run up against one who gave him the hardest match he had ever wrestled. If his backers were willing he offered to wrestle Doyle in Toronto for $200 a side in a couple of months time.

The Sporting Editor of the EXAMINER received a telegram from Mr. Harrison stating that he was willing to meet Doyle again at any time.

A RELIABLE OFFER.

Honest Help Free to Men.

The (Peterborough Examiner) is authorized to state by Mr. D. Graham, Box 133, Hagersville, Ont., that any man who is nervous and debilitated or who is suffering from any of the various troubles resulting from overwork, excesses or abuse, such as nervous debility, exhausted vitality, lost vigor, unnatural drains and losses, lack of development, etc., can write to him in strict confidence and receive free of charge full instructions how to be thoroughly cured.

Mr. Graham himself was for a long time a sufferer from above troubles and after trying in vain many advertised remedies, electric belts, etc., became almost entirely discouraged and hopeless. Finally he confided in an old clergyman, whose kind and honest advice enabled him to speedily obtain a perfect and permanent cure. Knowing to his own sorrow, that so many poor sufferers are being imposed upon by unscrupulous quacks, Mr. Graham considers it his duty as an honest man and a firm believer in Christian sympathy and kindness, to give his fellow-men the benefit of his experience and assist them to a cure. Having nothing to sell, he asks for no money, the proud satisfaction of having done a great service to one in need, he rightly considers an ample reward for his trouble. If you write to Mr. Gradam you can rely upon being cured and upon absolute secrecy as well.

Address as above, enclosing a stamp, and refer to the (PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER). No attention, however, will be given to those writing out of mere curiosity, therefore state that you really need a cure.

THE BIRTH OF THE ROSE.

A thistle once grew near a lily,
A stately lily and fair,
And the wind swayed the one to the other,
And the spirit of love was there.

And unto the lily and thistle
A sweet little flower was born,
And the lily bent down to caress it,
And her finger was pricked by a thorn.

The blood that the pale, pure lily,
In the joy of her motherhood, shed
Gave the sweet little stranger its color,
Gave the rose its beautiful red.

The rose that unto the lily
And unto the thistle was born,
By the lily was given its beauty,
By the thistle was given its thorn.
—Cleveland Leader.

AN UNCLE'S CHOICE.

Mr. Theophilus Templeton leaned back very comfortably in his crimson leather, brass nail studded library chair, rested his elbows on the arms, brought his finger tips together and looked very benign and important.

"A rich man, eh? Well, yes, I am a rich man—what some people would call a very rich man—and the beauty of it is I made my fortune myself. When I started out for myself, a lad of 10—that's 50 years ago or more—I had all my worldly goods in a red handkerchief, slung on a stick over my shoulders. Today—I say it without boasting—there's not a finer line of steamships afloat than the Clyties, and I own 'em all—every blessed baker's dozen of 'em."

Fred Warrington listened respectfully—a handsome young fellow, with a wide awake, frank look in his blue eyes, and a general manly bearing about him that recommended him wherever he went, very especially to ladies.

"And yet, with all your wealth, your beautiful home, your kindly, affectionate nature, you have used all your life in accumulating riches. You have never married—never had a real, true home," he observed.

"That's the rankest kind of nonsense, my boy. I never married because I never yet saw the woman I wanted. But it's a good thing for a young fellow to settle down. I believe that, if I didn't practice it. I hope you'll marry early, Fred."

A little twinkle was in Warrington's handsome face.

"I agree with you there, sir, to a T. I think I shall marry early."

Mr. Templeton bestowed a satisfied look on him.

"All right, my dear boy. Marry early and marry to please me, and I'll remember you handsomely. I'll give you a country house to live in in summer time and the town residence for winter. I'll give you ten thousand a year income, and your wife shall have the handsomest diamonds Street's can collect."

Any one in the world would have thought Fred Warrington was transported to the seventh heaven of rapture at the bewildering prospect held out to him, but he merely looked a little graver as he bowed courteously.

"I know you are just as good and generous as it is possible for man to be, Uncle Phil, but"—

Fred hesitated in his speech, and a thoughtful frown gathered on his forehead.

Mr. Templeton looked the surprise he felt.

"'But!' Where can the 'but' be to such an offer as that? You've only to marry to please me. By Jupiter! Frederick, it isn't possible you're already in love!"

"Already and engaged to the sweetest and dearest little dar"—

Mr. Templeton remorselessly cut short the loverlike enthusiasm.

"Oh, of course, of course! But who is she? What is her name?"

"She is Miss Rossie Fleming, and she is a music teacher, and her eyes are"—

Mr. Templeton looked sternly across the library table.

"I don't care whether they are black or green, you can't marry her. I've picked out a wife for you, and the quicker you get clear of your music teacher the better."

Fred colored; then the look of wild eyed defiance Uncle Phil was acquainted with came into his eyes, making them deep and darkly blue.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he said quietly, "but a fellow prefers to pick out his own wife. I have chosen Miss Fleming."

"The deuce you have! Well, then, let's hear what you have to say when I tell you the lady I have in my eye for my future niece is the most beautiful, cultured, refined girl who ever flashed into west end society. She's rich, too, and just the very daisy for you. A music teacher, indeed, when Beatrice Lovett is to be had for the asking!"

"Which doesn't raise her in my estimation," Fred avowed serenely.

"What!" Mr. Templeton said sternly. "Fred, you're a—a fool!"

And then Fred laughed, which had a most exasperating effect upon the old gentleman.

"I say you shall marry her, and I want you to put on your hat and go with me at once and be introduced to her. She's staying at Mrs. Saxony's. Come along, sir!"

Fred rose promptly.

"Certainly. I'll go and be presented to her, and I dare say there will be no reason why I shall not admire her immensely, but as for falling in love with Miss Lovett"—

He laughed and shrugged his broad shoulders, then put on his hat and went out with Mr. Templeton to meet the charming young lady intended for his destiny.

It was a beautiful little villa not far from Mr. Templeton's stately mansion, a little back from the parade, and it made a very pretty picture, with its white lace draperies floating in the stiff sea breeze, and the spray from the fountains blowing in a rainbow shower, and the gay striped awnings fluttering their scalloped borders in the July sunshine.

The liveried footman bowed his best and regretted to be obliged to inform the gentlemen that Mrs. Saxony was not in. A swift look of dismay on Mr. Templeton's face perhaps touched that functionary's tender heart, for he hastened to assure them that Miss Lovett was in the drawing room. Would they walk in?

But that Mr. Templeton declined doing, as he was not personally acquainted with Miss Lovett, at least not sufficiently acquainted with her to present himself. He had known her when she was a girl of 10 and had always been her father's most cherished friend, and had been in correspondence with Mr. Lovett when that gentleman died so suddenly in India, but all the same, with an old bachelor's characteristic shrinking from pretty young girls, he declined the invitation until Mrs. Saxony should be present.

"It's too bad—too bad!" he said as they went through the beautiful little park into which carriages were not admitted, and, impelled by an impulse he recognized afterward as fate. Mr. Templeton paused midway down the path and turned to look back at Mrs. Saxony's house.

"By Jove! There she is at the window—Miss Lovett! Isn't she a beauty? Isn't she sweet enough to turn any fellow topsy turvy? Look, Fred—there's the wife I picked out for you! Can your music teacher beat that?"

And Mr. Templeton seized his unoffending nephew by the sleeve and gesticulated emphatically toward the open window where a girl sat, beautiful indeed—marvelously beautiful, fair and dainty, with dark, lustrous hair braided on a proud little head, and straight, heavy dark brows that made the purity of her complexion still more dazzling. A rosebud of a mouth, a round, handsomely chiseled chin, a white dress, with creamy lace and a pink rose at her throat, made a picture fair enough to indeed have turned any man's senses "topsy turvy."

She did not raise her eyes from her book, and she was unconscious of their espionage or of Fred Warrington's transfixed gaze.

"So you're struck, eh? So you'll give the old man credit for having good taste, will you? You wouldn't mind having her for your wife after all, I suppose."

Fred drew a long breath, then quickly linked his arm in Mr. Templeton's and drew that gentleman away.

"She is the sweetest, most beautifulif ever saw. I'll marry her tomorrow I she'll have me," he said.

And how the old gentleman laughed.

"Music teacher notwithstanding, eh!" he said.

And then Fred laughed, and Mr. Templeton generously decided not to be too sarcastic on the poor boy.

Almost at the same moment a tall, lovely girl, several years older than the fairy in white by the window in Mrs. Saxony's drawing room, entered and went up to her.

"Absorbed in your book still, Rossie? It is time for my lesson, isn't it?"

And Rossie Fleming laid down her book, and for an hour she and Miss Beatrix Lovett devoted themselves to the music lesson, to be interrupted by a gentleman who had bribed the footman to permit him to enter the music room unannounced and to whom Rossie flew with a little shriek of delight.

"Fred, oh, Fred! How did you know I was in Brighton? I only came yesterday to assist Miss Lovett with her music. This is Miss Lovett, Fred—Mr. Warrington, Miss Lovett."

And before he had finished his very delightful call Mr. Warrington related to the ladies the mistake his uncle had made.

"And I am sure Miss Lovett will not blame me if I insist that I shall marry you, little Rossie, and the sooner the better, before Uncle Phil discovers his mistake."

And the next week there was a quiet wedding at the local registrar's office while Mr. Templeton was taking his snooze in his chair, with his handkerchief over his face, dreaming of the days when beautiful Miss Lovett would reign royally in his nephew's home.

At 8 o'clock the same night he was electrified by the receipt of a note from Fred.

"I have been and gone and done it, Uncle Phil," it said. "I promised you I would marry the lady you selected for me, and I shall present her to you in an hour. There's nothing like striking when the iron's hot, is there?"

And punctually on time Fred appeared, his bride on his arm, lovely as the morning, blushing like a rose, her blue eyes shining like stars, her sweet red mouth quivering as she looked wistfully up into Mr. Templeton's face when Fred presented her.

"We've quite stolen a march upon you, but this is my wife, Uncle Theophilus—Mrs. Fred Warrington, fast and sure."

"I'm astonished and dumfounded and delighted, my dear. However did you do it, Fred?"

But before Fred could make the explanation he deemed incombent a servant announced a lady, who came sweeping in in garments of deep purple velvet—a girl with starry eyes and hair as golden as sunshine.

"Miss Beatrice Lovett!" said the servant.

And then—well, the scene is indescribable, but with two lovely women beseeching him to forgive, and the pansy purple eyes making him feel the queerest around his heart he ever had felt, somehow—he never knew how—Theophilus Templeton simmered quietly down and accepted the situation with the best grace at his command until six months afterward, when he triumphantly announced to his nephew that the luckiest day of his life had been when he mistook Rossie for Miss Lovett.

"For since you wouldn't have her for your wife you shall have her for your aunt and help yourself if you can!"

But as no one was at all anxious to help it Mr. Templeton married his beautiful young wife, and it is a question who of the quartet is the happiest.—Pauline Montague in Spare Moments.

Dr. Williams Pink Pills

READ THE STATEMENTS OF GRATEFUL GIRLS MADE WELL.

A TEACHER CURED OF ANAEMIA.

Mis Ada Smith, Pubnico Head, N. S., says:—"I take great pleasure in certifying to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of anæmia. I scarcely know how my illness began, it came so gradually. My first symptom was a tired feeling, followed by a loss of appetite and palpitation of the heart I continued to grow weaker, and finally could not go up stairs without resting on the way up, and the slightest exertion would cause a pain in the chest. The colour left my face, and I became deathly white. As I continued getting weaker a doctor was called in. He told me my blood was all turned to water, and that had I delayed two months longer there would have been no hope for me. He prescribed for me but failed to improve my condition. I was at this time teaching school at Reynardton, and at the Christmas holidays when I returned home I was advised by my friends to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they feared I was going into a decline. I began their use, and on returning to my school I carried a half dozen boxes with me. By the time I had used these I found my health fully restored. I can truly say that I owe my life to your valuable medicine, and am so grateful for what it has done for me that I freely give you permission to use this statement in the hope that it may bring relief to some similar sufferer."

HEADACHE AND DIZZINESS.

Miss Mary Dowser, Grimsby, Ont., says:—"Some months ago I was troubled with severe headaches, accompanied by pains in the stomach. These grew worse until finally I was confined to my bed. If I moved about I would grow dizzy and I was also subject to spells of vomiting. A doctor was called in but aches and pains refused to disappear. Then I decided to try Dr. William's Pink Pills, and after taking them for a week or two there was a decided improvement in my condition, and after using the pills for a few weeks longer my health was fully restored, and I have not since had any return of the trouble."

PALE AND EMACIATED.

Miss Mary E. Wilson, Alton, Ont., says:—"About three years ago I was taken sick. A doctor was called in and he said my blood was turning to water. He gave me medicine, but I found no benefit from it. I then tried another doctor, but with no better results. For two years I suffered terribly. I got so weak I could scarcely stand alone, and was so thin and pale that my friends thought I was dying of consumption. Then my limbs began to swell and my body to bloat. At this stage the doctors held out no hope of recovery. It was while in this desperate condition that I was urged to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so, and to the surprise of all I had not been taking them long when there was a perceptible improvement in my condition. I continued taking the pills and continued improving, and in the course of a few months felt better than I had ever done before. I believe that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life and I heartily recommend them to all suffering from poverty of the blood."

WEAK AND RUN DOWN.

Miss. Jessie Lowry, Marathon, Ont., writes:—"It gives me pleasure to acknowledge the benefit I have derived from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for I believe but for their use I would now be in my grave. My health was completely broken down. The least exertion would fatigue me, and I was subject to headaches, dizziness and palpitation of the heart. I was pale and my appetite fickle. I had read so much concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I decided to try them—and after using five or six boxes I was once more as strong as ever I had been. I now regularly use a box of the pills every spring as a tonic medicine, and always find myself the better of them."

A MISSIONARY'S WORK.

Rev. David Fobes, whose missionary work in Algoma has been productive of much good, writes:—"Mrs. McPhail, who resides at Marksville, wishes me to thank you for the great benefit her daughter has derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For some months she was very much run down, and looked like death, but as a result of using the pills she is better and stronger than she has been all her life. I have often recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills while on my mission visitations, and can attest the good effects which follow their use."

PALPITATION OF THE HEART.

Miss Emma Miller, Upper Southampton, N.B., says:—"My illness came on almost imperceptibly and as my mother was unable to work most of the duties of a large household devolved upon me, so that I felt that I must keep up, but I kept getting worse and worse. My appetite failed, my complexion became sallow, and my eyes sunken. I was troubled with dizziness, shortness of breath and palpitation of the heart, until I would almost suffocate. I was also troubled with a terrible pain in my side. I could not go up stairs without resting, and was so afflicted with headache that my life became almost unbearable. At last I was forced to give up and keep my bed. My friends feared I was going into consumption, but recommended one remedy after another, which, however did not help me. Finally I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in less than three weeks I was able to leave my bed, and after using the pills a few weeks longer I feel that I am as well as ever I was. My appetite has returned as well, and my strength and general health is in every way restored. I feel that in bringing this subject before the public I am only doing justice to suffering humanity, and hope that all afflicted as I was will give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

SAVED FROM CONSUMPTION.

Miss Maria Drolet, Quebec, says:—"From a strong and robust girl I gradually grew weak and languid. I lost all colour, was troubled with a pain in my back, my appetite was poor and temper fitful. Without any apparent reason I would burst out crying and it seemed to me that I would die. An excellent doctor was called in, but I did not improve under his treatment. Finally the doctor told my mother that I was in consumption and that it was impossible to save me. One day a little later, one of my friends from the convent came to see me and told me of an aunt of hers who had been cured of a severe illness by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and urged me to try them. My mother sent for some and I began the treatment. It was sometime before any improvement was noticeable, but when the improvement set in it was steady, and at the end of three months I was fully restored to health. To any who may be in a similar condition I can heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a means of cure."

A Modern Scourge.

Anæmia—in other words poverty of the blood—is one of the most prevalent troubles of the present day. It affects the young of both sexes, but more especially girls between the ages of 13 and 20 years. Frequently older people are affected by it.

Are YOU anæmic?

Are you pale or sallow? Are your lips and gums bloodless instead of pink? Is your appetite variable and feeble? Are you tired and breathless after slight exertion? Do you suffer from dizziness and headaches? Does your heart palpitate violently if you walk briskly? Are you low spirited, despondent, weak?

These are the signs of anæmia.

Neglected it means consumption and consumption means death.

Dr. Williams Pink Pills

cure anæmia by making rich, red, energy-giving blood. They restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks; invigorate the whole system and make life a blessing instead of a burden.

BUT YOU MUST GET THE GENUINE.

Sold only in boxes the wrapper around which bears the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People." Do not let any dealer persuade you to take a substitute which he may say is "just the same," or "just as good." You can't afford to trifle with your health and life and all substitutes are worthless. If your dealer does not keep the genuine pills they will be sent post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

PUMPING COAL.

The Modern Way of Taking Out the Cargo of a Sunken Canalboat.

The old way of recovering coal from a sunken canalboat was to raise the boat, with the coal in it, to a point where the coal could be reached. Chains were worked under the sunken boat from pontoons moored alongside of it. At low tide the chains were made fast on the pontoons, which, rising with the tide, lifted the sunken boat clear of the bottom. At high water it was taken inshore as far as possible, until it again grounded. This operation was repeated until the boat was brought to the surface. The new way, or, rather, the modern way, is to pump the coal up from the boat, wherever it may lie, and then raise the boat, if it does not raise itself. By this method the work is all done in very much less time and at very much less expense.

The pump used has no pump valves. It is a centrifugal pump, the suction being produced by means of a disk, with wings attached, turning at high speed within the pump shell, a circular chamber, to which the suction pipe is attached. An eight inch pump of this kind will pump grate or broken coal easily, and pump up a load of 300 tons in a day. It will raise coal from a boat sunk at any depth from 5 feet to 200 feet.

The pump and engine are installed on a wrecking boat, which is moored near the sunken boat. In this use the pump has a long flexible section of suction pipe attached to it, and to that are attached the various additional lengths of pipe that may be required to reach down to the coal. This pipe is made of wrought iron, and it is made in sections of different lengths, so that it may be joined to make a pipe of any length desired. At each end of each length of iron pipe is a flanger. As lengths of pipe are joined, the flangers are bolted together, with a rubber gasket between, to make the joint tight. The flexible suction pipe is held out over the water and over the sunken boat from the wrecking boat by a gaff, and iron pipe is added to the needed depth. By means of the gaff the pipe may be raised and lowered as occasion may require, as, for instance, to raise the lower end of the suction pipe from one part of the canalboat up and over a crossbeam connecting the sides, to be lowered into the coal in another part of the boat.

When the pipe is all joined on, it is not at once lowered into the coal. The pump is first charged with water, which is done in an exceedingly brief time, and in a very simple manner by means of a siphon attached to the shell of the pump. When it has been charged, the pump is started and the lower end of the suction pipe is then lowered into the coal, and coal and water are pumped up together and thrown out through the pump's discharge pipe in a continuous stream. A boat to receive the coal is made fast alongside the wrecking boat, and the coal from the pump is discharged upon a screen set at an incline between the two boats. The water runs through the screen and the coal runs on into the other boat.

The suction pipe can be handled for the most part from the wrecking boat. If any handling under water is necessary, a diver goes down for that purpose, and it may be that the diver brings within the power of the pump's suction remnants of coal left in nooks and crannies which it might otherwise not have reached. When the boat has been emptied, if it is not too much damaged or water soaked or too firmly bedded in the mud, it will float of itself. If suction holds it to the bottom, it will rise when it has been started clear.

Pumps of this kind are made of from 2 to 60 inches in diameter.—New York Sun.

THE FOOLISH CLUBMAN.

Folks wonder why his leisure hours
Are spent apart
From her, the lovely woman who
Has won his heart.
Ere they were wed he used to scoff
At men who stole away
To clubs and got enjoyment there.
He said that they
Were fools or worse to thus desert
Their hapless wives.
Poor women, left alone to lead
Such lonely lives!

She cannot stand tobacco smoke—
Foul smelling stuff.
It scents the curtains, she declares.
Why must men puff?
Why can't a man sit decently
Upon a chair
And not destroy the tidies she
Has fastened there?
Why must her sofa pillows be
Crushed out of shape
Whenever he's around the house,
The awkward ape?

Why must a man sit down at night
And read the news?
Why, when he does things, should he want
Her to enthuse?
Why can't he leave his work behind
And talk about
Her dresses and the "bud" that she's
To help bring out?
I wonder why his leisure hours
Are spent apart
From her, the lovely woman who
Has won his heart?

She Drew the Line.

"When I was first married," says the Rev. Dr. Lorimer, pastor of Tremont temple, Boston, "I had my strict ideas about Sunday observance. Mrs. Lorimer had a colored 'aunty' for cook, and on the first Saturday after she came I went into the kitchen and told her I did not want any Sunday work, so she could prepare all meals for that day beforehand. She didn't say one word while I was talking, then she looked up, and, pointing to the door, exclaimed, 'Now, look hyar, Marse George, you jest go in dar and 'tend to your Christianity and leave me tend to mah kitchen.' I went, and as near as I can remember she had hot dinners Sundays as long as she stayed with us."

It is said that on board an American liner a boastful Australian asserted loudly and over and over again that "the men who settled Australia were a remarkably sensible lot."

The woman who is weak, nervous, tired and exhausted; who has a poor and variable appetite and no strength or nerve; who suffers from pains and aches, dragging down and burning sensations; and who recognizes herself, that she has become irritable, cross, blue and despondent, is in almost every case suffering from weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs that bear the burdens of maternity.

Thousands of women suffer in this way and do not recognize the cause, or if they do understand their condition, neglect it rather than submit to the obnoxious examinations and local treatment insisted upon by the average physician. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a wonderful medicine for women who suffer in this way. It does away with the necessity for these trying ordeals, and may be used in the privacy of the home. It acts directly on the delicate organs concerned, and makes them strong, vigorous and healthy. It banishes the discomforts of the expectant period and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It transforms weak, nervous, petulant invalids into happy wives and mothers. Thousands of women have testified, over their own signatures, to this fact. The "Favorite Prescription" may be procured from any good medicine dealer. Any woman who will write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y., may have the advice of an eminent and skillful specialist without charge.

Mrs. Cora M. McLaurin, of Rockport, Copiah Co., Miss., writes: "I had displacement and inflammation of the uterus. I was under the treatment of our family physician for a long time, but received no benefit. I had falling of internal organs with ulceration and enlargement. I commenced using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, 'Golden Medical Discovery,' Pleasant Pellets' and 'Extract of Smart-Weed.' From the first day I began to improve, and in a short time I was able to do all my housework. If it had not been for your medicines I would have been dead long ago."

Stomach and liver troubles with sluggish action of the bowels are cured by Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

MILLS ON THE WAR.

Our Minister of Justice Talks to a Chicago Correspondent.

CANADA'S SYMPATHY WITH U. S.

Feeling of Canadians Is That Cuba Has Been Misgoverned—Cubans Goaded Into Rebellion—Effect of the War Will Be Closer Union of the Anglo-Saxon Family.

Ottawa, May 4.—The Canadian correspondent of the Chicago Times-Herald has telegraphed the following interview on the war with the Canadian Minister of Justice, Hon. David Mills:

The Sympathy of Canadians.

"The people of Canada," said Mr. Mills, "sympathize with their neighbors across the boundary. They are in a large measure of the same race, speaking the same language and having their minds molded in a large degree by the same literature. It is not surprising then that the people of Canada should be disposed to sympathize with the United States in any contest they might have with Spain."

"But for what purpose is the war undertaken on the part of the United States?"

"That is a question not very easy to answer. The general impression made on the minds of the people of this country is that Cuba has been misgoverned and that the Cubans have been goaded into rebellion, and that in fighting against Spanish oppression they have been very cruelly treated by the Spanish authorities wherever they have fallen into the hands of Spanish officers and soldiers.

"If this impression is true, then the position of the United States toward Spain is not unlike that of the great powers of Europe toward Turkey when she was fighting Greece. I do not know really what are the facts, nor do I feel sure that the people of the United States are very much better informed on this question than I am."

Seeking After Proof.

"Do you think that the position taken by the Senate in favor of Cuban independence was justified by the facts?"

"I say again I do not know enough about the facts to express an opinion, but there are certain things that ought to be proved before such a course is taken. Cuba ought to have a regularly constituted government, under whose direction law was being administered among non-combatants and under whose direction and control the insurgent army is maintained. Now I have never seen anything to satisfy me that there is an insurgent government at all, that there is a chief executive officer, that there is an assembly of any sort, that there are regularly constituted courts for the protection of life and property and by the assistance of which law was being administered. Unless this is so there is nothing to recognize.

"A mere army or a mere navy does not constitute alone a government. I think you will find that both English and American authorities have held that an admiral in command of a fleet without any civil authority to which he is responsible or territory in his possession, without any population under his jurisdiction and control, is not the ruler of a state, and if he makes war he is a pirate. This was the view taken in the case of Artigas, and I do not know any Cuban who could be said to be a ruler of a state or the head of a politically organized community. Unless this is so there is nothing to recognize. There are a number of Cuban adventurers, promoters of revolution, actively engaged in resistance to the Spanish authorities, but they are in the United States, not in Cuba.

Distinctions Drawn.

"There is nothing to prevent the people of the United States sympathizing with Cuba, but taking sides with Cuba to assist in resisting the Spanish authority and giving the inhabitants aid, which will eventually secure their independence, is a very different thing from the recognition of Cuban independence. The people who do this are not neutrals; they are active participants in the contest; they are allies of the party on whose side they throw their influence.

"I notice that the American consul in Montreal has given notice to officers of the Canadian militia force that if they join the American army they can do so with the rank they hold in the Canadian service. Is he violating any rights of neutrality in doing so?

"I cannot say that he is, as no war was then declared; there were no belligerents, and up to that time there were no neutrals; but if there had been actual war then this would have been an improper proceeding on his part. I dare say you remember the case of Sir John Crampton, who was the British Minister at Washington during the Crimean war. He notified British subjects in the United States that if they would go to Halifax they could there enlist in the British service, and the American Government for his having done so gave him his passport and dismissed him from Washington. Now he did not ask American citizens to enlist in the British service, but only those British subjects who were residents of the United States, and the American Government regarded that as a violation of neutrality, as war actually existed at the time between the British and Russia, and the United States contended that the action of Sir John Crampton was a violation of the neutrality of the republic. The same thing perhaps could not be said of the action of the American consul at Montreal, as peace between the United States and Spain had not been broken at the time."

Draw Closer Anglo-Saxonites.

"What do you think will be the effect of the war as between the British Empire and the United States?"

"I think that one effect will be the drawing of the two sections of the Anglo-Saxon family more closely together than they have been since 1776. It is to the interest of the world that a cordial alliance should exist between the British Empire and the American republic. If they are united that union will go a long way to settle the affairs of mankind by peaceful means in conformity with the principles of natural justice. If they were to stand in antagonism to each other that antagonism would invite oppression on the part of the great powers of Europe, especially on the part of Russia. If Russia were in possession of China, as she certainly will be within a generation if the United States and England do not form an alliance, the power of Russia will menace the independence of both. with China in her possession she will long before the middle of the next century control the commerce of the Pacific to the gates of San Francisco. The United Kingdom will diminish in population, it will cease to be the market for the surplus products of the American republic, emigration to North America from England and the continent of Europe will be no more than Spanish emigration is at this time to South America. The United States would only grow by the natural increase of its population

"Every man in his senses must see that the great question of the immediate future is 'shall Saxon or Slav predominate?' And if the United States were to cast in her fortunes with a country on the continent of Europe she would be taking a most effectual step to secure for herself in all time to come a position of subordination. There is therefore for the people of Canada a far more important question than simply the effect the war will have on the United States and Spain, and that is, 'Shall there be henceforth a lasting alliance between the British Empire and the republic of the United States?' To this end there must be no modern Munroe doctrine applied to us. On this continent there must be real equality."

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence. "Black Death" was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than any of these. It is so common that nine-tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing constipation. It makes people listless, causes dizziness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath and distress after eating. The little help needed is furnished by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative and two a mild catharic. Once used, always in favour. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well. Be sure and get Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Why He Wants War.

"War? Of course we want war, and lots of it. None of your petty three months' campaigns for me. Gimme gore, and don't stint the supply."

"What makes you so bloodthirsty?"

"Well, I've got the finest substitute for hard tack you ever laid eyes on, and if our congressman can work the commissary general into ordering 100 tons of it—well, I'm no prophet, that's all. And they can't fire on the old flag too soon to suit me."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Price of Verses.

CURE CONSTIPATION

GRAIN IN TRANSIT.

Compromise That Will Relieve the Farmers and Satisfy the C.P.R.

Ottawa, May 4.—There was a big attendance at the Railway Committee yesterday when the Rev. Mr. Douglas' bill to facilitate the handling of grain was again up for consideration. It was announced that a compromise had been reached between the promoter and the Canadian Pacific Railway, which to a large extent would remove the grievances complained of.

One of the changes provides that instead of loading from the platform the grain would have to be loaded from flat warehouses. If the farmers did not build the warehouses the company would build for them. Two hours were to be allowed for loading and after that time 50 cents an hour demurrage would be charged. If the car was kept 12 hours no more than $5 could be charged, while it costs about $10 for a car load at the elevators.

Judge Clarke said that the bill, as amended, was satisfactory to the Canadian Pacific.

A Petition Seven Miles Long.

Last night enthusiastic temperance workers presented the polyglot petition to the Dominion Government. Sir Wilfrid, Senator Scott and the Hon. Mr. Fisher represented the Ministry. The petition is seven miles long, and has been signed by seven million women in all parts of the world. It has been presented to Queen Victoria and the President of the States. From Canada it will peregrinate to other countries. Sir Wilfrid and the two Ministers spoke congratulating the ladies of the W.C.T.U. on what they had done.

A MOTHER SPEAKS.

Tells how Dr. Chase Saved her Boy.

His Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine a Precious Boon.

MRS. A. T. STEWART, Folgar, Ont., says: "From the 7th of January to the 30th, we were up night and day with our two little boys, employing doctors and trying every kind of patent medicine we ever heard of. At this time we did not know of Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine until after the 30th, when our youngest darling died in spite of all we could do. Sometime in February the doctor told us our other boy couldn't live till spring. We were about discouraged, when I got my eye on an advertisement of Dr. Chase's Syrup.

"I tried at once to get some, but none of the dealers here had it. A neighbor who was in Kingston managed to purchase two bottles which he brought straight to us, and I believe it was the means of saving our only boy.

"One tea-spoonful of the Syrup stopped the cough so he could sleep till morning. Our boy is perfectly well now, and I would not be without Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in the house."

CANADA LIFE

Assurance Company.

ANOTHER PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Large Increase in Surplus.

The fifty-first annual report of the Canada Life shows this old established Company to be in a most flourishing condition. The annual meeting was held yesterday. Following is a synopsis of the report:—

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

In presenting to the Shareholders their 51st Annual Report, the Directors are gratified in announcing that the Company has fairly shared in the somewhat improved condition of the business of the country, as will be seen by the Statements and Accounts now submitted. By these it will be observed that the Company has transacted a larger business than during the previous year, and has increased its clear surplus by no less than $497,093 05.

NEW BUSINESS

The applications for new assurances during 1897 numbered 3 066, for the sum of $6,185 996, of which, however, 266 for $521,000 were declined, the lives not appearing up to that standard which it is in the interest of the company's other assurers should be maintained, and as 191 applications for $373,300 were not carried out, the issue of the year was for $5 291,636, under 2 609 policies, exceeding 1896 by 573 policies for $798,980.

The total business in force at the close of 1897 was $72,710,555 29 of Assurances, under 33 407 policies, upon 24 460 lives.

POLICY CLAIMS.

The claims by deaths paid during 1897 amounted to $770,168 45, and Endowment policies for $128,846 92, having matured, these sums, as well as $218,481 29 for profits, $145 411.18 for surrenders, and an annuity of $400, making in all $1,263,307.84, were paid to policyholders during the year.

INCREASE IN ASSETS.

The Income receipts of the year were $2,953,272.83, and deducting therefrom all payments to policy-holders for claims by death, for profits, and for matured Endowment policies, as well as other outlay, including expenses of management, there was left the sum of $1 272,486 05, which increased the Company's Assets to $18,678 915 67.

SURPLUS.

As appears by the Abstract of Assets and Liabilities, after providing fully for the necessary reserve for all policies of the Company, and for all its other Liabilities, there is shown a Surplus of $1,564,082 05.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, Mr. A. G. Ramsay, in moving the adoption of the report, said:

The Directors' Report and the usual accounts and statements have for some days been in your hands, and have now been taken as read. While the report is brief, it contains, I think, along with the various published accounts, all that is required to enable those interested in the Company to judge of its progress and success in the past year. The addition during 1897 of nearly half a million dollars to the surplus or profits fund is a large and satisfactory one, and without invidiously comparing it with the figures of any other particular Company, I may say that it is more than was attained by all the other Canadian companies combined. The new business of the year was, you will observe, of satisfactory and gratifying amount, and in excess of the previous year, and you will be pleased to know that it is of that desirable class which will result more to the profit of the Company than would a larger amount obtained at heavier expense, or from less desirable regions than the healthful climate of Canada, and the four Northern States to which we have thus far deemed it judicious to confine the operations of the Company. The existing assurances are $72,719,555 or nearly twice as much as they were 12 years ago. The death claims of the year continued of very favourable amount, and being well within what was calculated upon, that fact testifies to the care observed in the selection of the lives, and to the judicious limitation of the business to the healthful climates already alluded to.

The recent lamentable failures of some of the companies doing business on the assessment system, and the anxiety felt as to the others which are based upon the same fallacious principles lead me to point out that these occurrences are only the inevitable results, which were from the first predicted by those whose knowledge and experience enabled them to judge of what the future of companies of the kind must be. At our meeting in 1887, when concerns of the kind were making strenuous efforts to establish themselves in Canada, I alluded to the miserable failures they had been in England and in America, and I said that their "ephemeral existence indicates how useless the assessment system of assurance is as a family provision. It can only offer the uncertain hope of a cheap assurance for a few years, till the company breaks down. It cannot afford any guarantee that a definite amount of assurance will certainly be paid to a widow or children after an assurer's death, whether that occurs at an early day or a distant one, and without such a guarantee as that, which our own and other sound companies offer, life assurance must be a fraud and a delusion." I added that "I was aware that agents and managers of companies of the kind pointed to the names of prominent business and professional men who have joined them, or who act as their directors, but as some of them at all events allow their names to be employed in that way, simply because policies have been gratuitously given to them, one can judge how little weight should attach to the names of the gentlemen thus used to decoy others to join such companies." One cannot envy the feelings of the prominent gentlemen alluded to, who induced persons to take policies in companies of the kind, from which they are now driven out by their failure, or by the levy of such high payments as they are unable to meet

As the accounts show, the year's income was within a trifle of three million dollars, and the assets of the company were increased to the very considerable amount of nearly nineteen million dollars, and yielding, after deducting liabilities of every kind, a net surplus or profit of $1,564,082 for allocation at the end of next year, along with whatever addition there may be made to it between now and that time, and as the management and other expenses by which the profits to policy-holders are very largely influenced continue to be on a more moderate percentage than that of other Canadian or American companies, he prospects for our assurers are of a favourable character.

It is anticipated that legislation will be introduced by the Government, modifying the present 4½ per cent. rate of interest prescribed by law as the basis for Life Assurance Reserves, and adopting the new mortality Tables based upon the observations and large experience of the British Insurance Companies, in course of compilation by the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, and I may say on behalf of the Board in reference to the amendment to the charter, alluded to in the Directors report of last year, that the Directors purpose to avail themselves of the occasion of that legislation to seek such amendments to the law as may meet the Board's requirements.

The motion was seconded by Mr. F. W. Gates, Vice-President, and unanimously carried. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the agents, officers, medical and legal advisers of the company, Mr. Adam Brown speaking in eloquent terms of their services rendered to the Company.

Mr. Leggat moved and Lieut.-Col. McLaren seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Company during the past year. Brief and interesting addresses were also made by Sir George Kirkpatrick and Sir George Barton, the latter of whom was heartily congratulated upon the recent honour conferred upon him by the Queen.

The retiring Directors, Chief Justice Sir George Burton, Col. Sir Casimer Gzowski, K.C.M.G., and Mr. N. Merritt, were re-elected. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. A. G. Ramsay was re-elected President and Mr. F. W. Gates Vice-President

The meeting passed off very harmoniously, every one present being gratified with the progress and continued prosperity of the Canada Life, which, as Sir George Kirkpatrick remarked, was easily leader of all Companies in the Dominion.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOURERS MEET IN LAKEFIELD.

INTERESTING PAPERS READ BEFORE THE CONVENTION.

Mr. Fred Stubbs Explains the Requisites for a Model C. E. Meeting—Address by Mrs. Evans and Miss Cora Macdonald.

The local Union of C. E., Lakefield, held a rally in the Baptist church on Friday evening, April 15th, the president, Rev. S. H. Erb occupying the chair.

Miss Myrtle Hendren presided at the organ and a song service preceded the regular service.

After prayer by the Rev. A. C. Reeves, the chairman placed before the meeting the prime motive of a C. E. union. (1) We get stimulus and help to do more for Christ; (2) we should be pleased to rejoice in the success of God's work by whatever name that work may be known.

Reports from each of the societies in the Union were then called for.

A carefully prepared and practical paper on

"A MODEL C. E. MEETING" was then presented by Mr. Fred. Stubbs, vice-president of Lakefield Association:—

A model meeting, that is, a meeting used as a pattern or example after which to conduct other meetings. Notice the difference between a model meeting and an ideal meeting. The former may be a reality; the latter exists only in the imagination.

In discussing this topic we have taken as our model a combined business and literary meeting, and hope by means of this model to include as far as possible the main features of all C. E. meetings. We will discuss our subject under the following heads:—The commencement of the meeting, the devotional part and literary part, and will close our paper with a few suggestions on how to have a model meeting.

Every model C. E. meeting will commence sharp on time, with officers and members in their places. The leader will be in the chair, with a full programme before him. The organist will be in her place at the organ. The pastor will be present ready to do what he can toward making the meeting a success. All the members will be in their places, occupying the seats nearest the front. Each member will feel that the chief object of the meeting is to glorify God, and will be ready to do his or her part toward making the meeting a success. Only with these conditions can we expect to commence a model C. E. meeting.

The meeting having opened successfully we will pass on to the devotional service. This is opened with one or two carefully selected hymns. Every member joins heartily, and yet earnestly, in the singing. All remember the object of the meeting. The singing over, the leader asks for a few short prayers asking God's blessing on the meeting.

Without calling the names, the members take part immediately. No pauses, so deadening to the spiritual life of a meeting, take place. You ask the reason? Simply because the members are interested in the meeting; they have been praying for its success during the previous week and now their prayers are being answered. Next the topic for the evening is taken up by some member of the society. Its presentation shows signs of careful preparation and the subject is forcibly dealt with. Each member gives earnest attention to what is being said, and there is no whispering or laughing on the part of members. A hymn having special bearing on the subject is then sung, afterwards a number of short prayers asking that the truths presented may be impressed upon the minds of those present, are offered.

Next we enter upon the business portion of the meeting. The different items are presented by the secretary. The items are taken up one at a time. The members express themselves freely, always rising and addressing the chair before beginning to speak. Each member pays attention to what is being said, and again we notice the absence of whispering and laughing. The members recognise the fact that they can serve God just as faithfully in the transaction of business as in the devotional service. After the discussion is over and every member understands the items thoroughly the vote is taken. All members vote intelligently and independently. In this way the business is properly disposed of, and without the loss of much valuable time.

The singing of a hymn brings us to the literary part. The papers given and the selections read again show careful preparation, and have the undivided attention of all present.

The programme over the meeting is closed. The members exchange greetings with each other, also speak a kind word and shake hands with any strangers who may be present, and depart quietly, each member feeling that the meeting was a good one, and that each one helped to make it good. A meeting to be a model one must have each member recognise the fact that he has something to do in making the meeting a success, and then by doing it. Mark each member, not the officers and some willing active members, but each member. You have a work to do which no one else can do. If you neglect your duty you are helping to make the meeting a failure. Let us see to it that each one performs his duty in the matter, and then the time will not be far distant when we shall all have model C.E. meetings.

Miss Mina Sherin presented a helpful paper on

A MODEL LOOKOUT COMMITTEE.

The principal points made were:

1. A committee on Lookout should be a live, energetic, consecrated committee. Such a committee will make a strong, vigourous society.

2. An earnest, devoted, Christian committee, chosen because of their special fitness for the work.

3. Upon the activity and earnestness of this committee depends, to a great extent, the success or failure of the society.

4. Appoint a good convener. Choose one most alive to the importance of the work and one who is deeply interested in the spiritual life of the young people. Do not have one who will do the work of ten, but one who will set ten to work. Never appoint unwilling workers for this committee.

5. The characteristics of a model Lookout Committee will be vigilance, earnestness, energetic enterprise, ready to give advice and encouragement to timid members.

7. They should form a front seat brigade.

7. They should attend to the hymn books. In fact the model committee should be on the lookout for all the interests of the meeting.

A COMMITTEE ACROSTIC.

Lovingly the Lookout Committee urges you to be
On time; to bring
Others, too.
Keep in mind the consecration meeting and send a word
Of testimony—if absent, to
Use much thought and preparation
To make the meeting profitable.
A paper on

WHAT OUR SOCIETY STANDS FOR

was presented by Mrs Evans.

The aim and object of C. E. work was the first division of the paper.

Main duty—The saving of souls.

1 Win to Christ.
2 Train for Christ.
3 Build up a strong Christian character.
4 The Society is an auxiliary in the church, not a separate body.
5 The first thing is to keep ourselves in touch and in communion with Jesus.
6 We should cultivate heart and brain for Christ.
7 We should feel our individual responsibility.
8 We should cultivate a missionary spirit, that spirit that includes all men as brothers.
9 We should keep Christ the centre in all our C. E. Work.
10 We should feel our individual responsibility. The society will partake of the spirit of its members. If we live the individual life, the mottoes we so proudly display will have a meaning.

Miss Cora McDonald gave a full and comprehensive report of the C. E. Convention held in Peterborough, April 11th.

Miss Myrtle Hendren, in her usual charming manner, delighted the audience with a solo.

Praise and prayer were offered, and an interesting rally was brought to a close.

A Banker's Experience.

"I tried a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for a troublesome affection of the throat," writes Manager Thomas Dawson of the Standard Bank, now of 14 Melbourne Ave, Toronto. "It proved effective. I regard the remedy as simple, cheap and exceedingly good. It has hitherto been my habit to consult a physician in troubles of this nature. Hereafter, however, I intend to be my own family doctor."

That Poor Mule

that accidentally got knocked over by a flying rock at Matanzas, as was about the only thing Yankees had to blow about during the bombardment. People who blow their own horns don't always furnish high-class music for other folks and generally bite off more than they can chew. If you want a quarter's worth or a box of genuine imported Havana cigars, direct from Cuba, just ask for them at Charlie LeGros. His little privateer can run the blockade into Havana in spite of Yankee gunboats. Come down and see these delicious "contrabands" and be convinced that the brand is O. K. They are the same size and quality of Havanas as you've always been getting and don't you forget it.—C. LEGROS.

THE SMOKERS WILL SUFFER.

Cultivated Tastes Will Have to Practise on Common Cigars.

If the Spanish-American war continues a few weeks longer and Cuba is made a stage for belligerent operations the cultivated tastes of smokers of cigars will in likelihood suffer severely, and the men who have accustomed themselves to imported cigars will have to take their choice of plebeian smokes or a greatly increased tobacco account. Havana fillers, which sold 25 to 27c per pound, are now quoted at $1 to $1.07, and wrappers have jumped from $2 to $6. It is not probable, however, that the prices will go much higher, since prices do not rise where there are no goods on the market. The fact is that the supply of Cuban tobacco, which makes up about 25 per cent. of the cigars consumed in Canada, is very short and no more is obtainable. Some brands are already sold out and cannot be replaced.

The general result will be that while cigars may be bought at the old prices, or nearly so, the quality will become inferior. One large retail dealer states that that he has secured a very large stock of Havana cigars that will last him for some months, and one or two others have laid in supplies more or less extensive. One London factory that was making Cuban goods exclusively has already shut down for want of supplies. Plug and cut tobacco will not affected.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? IN DEATH. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

THE CROWNED LEADERS OF THE HAT TRADE

Have Outstripped All Previous Records.

* * * * *

We started in with the intention of making the spring season of 1898 one memorable in the Hat Department of our Big Store, and we have succeeded far beyond our expectations. For Elegance, Variety and Style our stock this year is beyond worded description, unapproachable by local competition and unexcellend by the other big stores in the larger cities; and LOW PRICES are the two words which stand out most prominently on the banner waving over this magnificent stock. Our combination of stores, with their capital combined, together with our Cash System, enables us to buy the best and most stylish shapes from the leading manufacturers, and sell them for less than others charge for what we call our inferior goods. Buy where you like and we can duplicate your purchase or give you a better quality of Hat, and you will have enough from the difference in the prices to purchase something else of half the value. An investigation of this year's handsome stock will convince you that these are unvarnished facts. Come in and see us, is worth your while to view the stock.

DEWEY SILENT STILL AT MANILA

U. S. Secretary Long Without Advices From the Commodore.

CAPTAIN-GEN. BLANCO'S SPEECH

At the Opening of Cuba's New Autonomous Parliament His Words Are Certainly Positive Enough for the Most Enthusiastic Spaniard —The U. S. All in the Wrong—War News.

Washington, D.C., May 6.—Secretary Long said at the close of office hours yesterday that up to that time he had received no word from Commodore Dewey. He added, however, that he felt no apprehension over this lack of good news, because, in the first place, reports were not expected with the cable from Manila cut and, furthermore, no fears were entertained as to Commodore Dewey's ability to maintain his position. There was no doubt, the Secretary said, that Commodore Dewey's fleet had annihilated the Spanish fleet, and with this much accomplished Dewey was master of the situation at Manila. It was suggested to Mr. Long that the shore batteries at Cavite and on the Corregido Island might be a serious menace to the American fleet, but the Secretary did not share this view, holding that the strength of the Olympia and other ships in Dewey's command were ample to make him master of Manila Bay and its surroundings.

RELIEF FOR DEWEY.

City of Pekin to Be Equipped to Succor the Victors at Manila.

Washington, May 6.—The Secretary of the Navy yesterday ordered Naval Constructor William L. Capps, now at the Union Iron Works, San Francisco, to proceed at the earliest moment on the steamer City of Pekin, just chartered by the Navy Department, to meet Commodore Dewey's squadron at Manila. Mr. Capps will select from the Mare Island navy yard force a number of the most experienced and intelligent workmen to take with him. In addition, he will place on the Pekin a full supply of machine tools, steel plate, and all of the materials that are likely to be needed to make temporary repairs to a ship in distress. The purpose of the department in making this order is to put Commodore Dewey's fleet at the earliest possible moment into first-class condition, repairing all the damages sustained in the engagement, and in addition to this to raise and repair any of the Spanish ships, either surrendered or sunk in the engagement, that are capable of navigation again.

THE CUBAN INSURGENTS.

They Attacked the Spanish Troops That Fired Upon the U. S. Despatch Boat Leyden.

New York, May 6.—A special from Key West says: The World's despatch boat Triton, the United States cruiser Wilmington and the Government tug Leyden were all under the fire of Spanish guns at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at a point five miles east of Mariel and fifteen miles west of Havana.

There were 300 Cubans on the beach to receive the arms. The pop of Spanish muskets was heard suddenly and the splash of bullets came from the sea and around the vessels.

The Wilmington at once shelled the hills that sheltered the Spaniards, using her six-inch guns, and also sending some rapid-fire shells from her fighting tops.

At the first Spanish shot the insurgents went into the bushes after the soldiers and probably what were left took flight, for they were not heard from again.

The Wilmington shelled a small Spanish fort in a nearby plantation, driving away its occupants. She then sent a few shots in the direction taken by the fleeing Spaniards.

The tug Leyden, at the time of the battle, lay about 100 yards from the shore. Her boat was engaged in transferring supplies. It kept right on with its work as if nothing had happened, and a man on the tug's bridge, who was sending wig-wag signals to the Wilmington, paid no attention whatever to the shots.

The landing party included Brigadier-General Baldomera Acosta, a well-known Cuban leader, who has been many times wounded in the war, and is only just out of a hospital. In his party was Lieut. Caytaya, and they were escorted to the coast by Captain Dorst, United States cavalry.

The landing of the party with arms was carried out as successfully as could have been desired. The insurgents seem to have entire control of the coast at the spot where the landing was made.

ALFONSO XIII. AT PORTO RICO.

Queen Regent Present When Sagasta Explained the War Situation.

Madrid, May 6.—At a Cabinet Council yesterday, over which the Queen Regent presided, the Premier, Senor Sagasta, explained the war situation, and announced the safe arrival at Porto Rico of the Spanish Trans-Atlantic Company's steamer Alfonso XIII., having on board, it is said, reinforcements of troops and a very valuable cargo, including ammunition and supplies. The Premier also announced the opening of the Cuban Parliament, and the Queen Regent signed the war resources bill.

The Cabinet afterwards held another meeting and deliberated upon the financial situation and the measures taken and contemplated to preserve public order in the localities where disturbances have occurred. Rioting continues at the seaport town of Gijon, Province of Oviedo, where, yesterday, the fisherwomen and the tobacco girls sacked several bakeries and burned all the octroi offices. Admiral Camara, who is to take command to-day of the Spanish reserve squadron at Cadiz, will hoist his flag on board the battleship Pelayo. His appointment has caused much satisfaction among the naval men of Spain.

Last Boat From Havana.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 6.—The British steamer Luciline arrived here yesterday from Havana, having on board 112 refugees. The Luciline left Havana April 25, being the last boat to leave Havana harbor after the port was blockaded by United States warships.

CUBA'S CONGRESS.

Captain-General's Speech at the Opening of the New Autonomous Parliament —U. S. All to Blame.

Havana, May 4.—(Delayed in transmission.)—The speech of Captain-General Blanco at the opening to-day of the first Congress of Cuba, elected under the autonomous form of Government, in substance was as follows:

"I take great pleasure in seeing the representatives of this island united here for the first time. In spite of the fact that the United States has tried to impede the re-establishment of peace, Spain has fulfilled her promise of introducing reforms in Cuba, and was approaching a reconciliation and the ending of the war. But the United States, though speaking of peace and autonomy, tried to prevent us from bringing them about.

"If the declarations of the United States had been sincere, its guns ought to be saluting to-day the first Cuban Parliament, instead of threatening the lives of its members and proving herself so false to their policy, ambitions and plans.

"Spain has given the island all she is authorized to do for the purpose of restoring peace, and without any conditions. The autonomist form of Government established is as ample as that of the British colonies, and Spain has declared that it will be made more ample still if such a course is judged to be necessary by the members of this Congress.

Help for the Reconcentrados.

"Rigid customs and other rules were abolished in order to help the reconcentrados, the victims of the fight, sustained by the United States. We admitted free of duties the 'help' sent from America, sent for the purpose of increasing the existing discord. In short, nothing has been left undone which might satisfy the aspirations of the people, if compatible with the national honor.

"On the petition of His Holiness the Pope and the European powers, hostilities were suspended in order to treat for peace, when, ignoring all this, the President of the United States declared that the autonomous form of Government had turned out to be a failure, when Parliament had even assembled, and the patriots of the United States were excited by the declaration that Spaniards caused the Maine catastrophe, forgetting the generous hospitality her sailors received here; and now the United States is taking up arms to impose its domination.

"Before such an outrage, Spaniards and Cubans must unite to defend the Fatherland, and the reconciliation will be all the more sacred in view of the actual circumstances in the case. The defenders of Spain and of the autonomy of Cuba all have Spanish blood in their veins, or were born on this soil."

Enforcement of New Laws.

Continuing, the Captain-General said: "All the new laws must be put in force on July 1. Preference should be given to the measures providing for public security, and the maintenance of the national honor of Spain, the only country which can protect the development of this colony and bring about the formation of a great country, united to the old Castilian nation, and at the same time be the mediator in the new world between both continents."

When he had finished reading his speech, Captain-General Blanco shouted: "Viva Espana!" which was responded to with enthusiasm. The Captain-General then declared the Cuban Congress open, and administered the oath to the deputies. He asked all of them if they swore to always defend Spain and was answered with a spontaneous "Yes."

Later, at the Palace, the Captain-General, from a balcony, witnessed a march past of the troops.

The Captain-General was cheered all the way to and from the Hall of Congress.

SPANISH WAR NOTES.

The Spanish Government has purchased 20,000 tons of coal in Sardinia.

Admiral Camara takes command of the Spanish fleet at Cadiz on Friday.

A Portuguese gunboat has arrived at the Azore Islands to enforce the neutrality decree.

The Emperor of Austria has asked the Pope once more to take the initiative to secure mediation between the United States and Spain.

An Evening Post despatch from Key West says: Four Spanish warships are reported to be off Barbadoes, prepared to intercept the battleship Oregon. A naval battle is expected.

The U. S. torpedo boat Winslow was cruising about eight miles east of Saguala Grand when a field battery shot was fired from the shore and struck her just above the water line. She turned and is making for Key West, which she will reach if no heavy sea is encountered.

The interest which the Germans take in the Spanish-American war is strongly evinced in the newspapers. The calamity which befel the Spaniards at Manila affects Germany in eastern waters. The Monroe doctrine is cited to prove that America should not interfere in the territories of the eastern hemisphere.

U. S. WAR NOTES.

The Spanish fishing smack De Septembre was brought by a prize crew from the Helena. She was taken eight days ago in Yucatan Channel by the gunboat.

The prize court is sitting at Key West and District Attorney Stripping has stated that there is no doubt but that the Buea Ventura and the Cataline will be returned to their owners.

The German steamer Schleswig has arrived at Philadelphia from Hayti. Captain Arhuns of the Schleswig claims his boat was pursued and fired upon by a Spanish man-of-war off Tortugas on April 28.

The United States warships New York, Iowa and Puritan of the Key West squadron, and the Brooklyn, the Massachusetts and the Texas of the Hampton Roads squadron have been furnished with full supplies of coal, ammunition and provisions sufficient for a prolonged sea voyage. Four colliers have been loaded to their fullest capacity and are attached to these boats at their respective stations. The supposition is that the combined squadrons are preparing to engage the Spanish fleet upon the Atlantic.

MEDICAL TESTIMONY.

The Late Mr. Sternaman Was Poisoned by Arsenic.

FORMER EVIDENCE REPEATED.

Continuation of the Sternaman Murder Trial at Cayuga Before Chancellor Boyd—Deceased Had "Spells"—Buffalo Depositions Finally Read Despite Mr. Johnston's Protest Against Admission.

Cayuga, Ont., May 6.—Yesterday the court room was again crowded on the second day of the Sternaman murder trial. Chancellor Boyd presided.

The first witness called was Dr. Harrison, who, with the assistance of Dr. Park, made the two post-mortem examinations. Dr. Harrison gave the same evidence which he had given at the last trial, and corroborated the testimony of Dr. Park. The carefully formed opinion of the witness was that death was caused by arsenical poisoning, and, as arsenic was found in the stomach by Prof. Ellis, it must have been administered shortly before death.

In cross-examination by Mr. Johnston, Dr. Harrison said that as a result of the first post-mortem, and from the history of the case, he had come to the conclusion that the arsenic had been administered outside of the country. That view had been changed by the result of the analysis made by Prof. Ellis. Dr. Harrison said he had not preserved the contents of the stomach which he had taken away to make his analysis.

The Buffalo Depositions.

The Buffalo depositions were next produced by Mr. Osler, and Mr. Johnston gave notice of his objection to their admission. The evidence of Dr. Frost of Buffalo, who attended Sternaman at Buffalo, was in progress when court adjourned for lunch.

In cross-examination by Mr. Johnston the witness said that during the four weeks of his attendance on George Sternaman his wife seemed devoted to him, and she was evidently astonished when the witness spoke of the possibility of arsenic. In saying to her that it looked like a case of arsenical poisoning, he also told her that the symptoms might come from some disease.

Sternaman Had "Spells."

He understood that Sternaman was subject to some peculiar illness or spells. In regard to these spells, he had been consulted about them before the marriage by the prisoner, and by her mother, Mrs Sevenpiper. These spells were not preceded by any spasmodic convulsions, but he understood that this sufferer became unconscious during them. He regarded Sternaman as of an emotional and nervous temperament. He had never seen any of his writings that he was surprised at. They were all such as he would expect from a man of that temperament.

Chancellor Boyd—Have you ever seen any of his letters or writings?

Dr. Frost—Yes, sir. I have seen this letter spoken of, "To whom it may concern," since his death.

Chancellor Boyd—Is that the only one?

Dr. Frost—Yes, sir.

OMNIPRESENCE OF BRITISH POWER.

With admirable promptitude the officials and rioters of Santiago de Cuba were brought to a sense of their duty by a British gunboat. This is a good illustration, the Montreal Witness thinks, of the omnipresence of British power, and the certainty with which it is exercised in the protection and defence of British interests in all parts of the Globe. The British fleet may be said practically to police the oceans and the coasts of all continents and islands. The knowledge that there is an arm long and a hand strong enough to compel respect, redress wrongs and punish crime, is potent for the preservation of peace, especially in those regions which lie on the confines of civilization. Of course, redress is not to be claimed at the cannon's mouth of communities which are under the control of civilized powers. It was only the fact that Santiago had ceased to be under the control of Spain that made it possible for Britain to use such shorthand means for the protection of her subjects. If outrages on British shipping lying in Spanish ports are repeated it will not long be a question whether Spain should not, like Cuba, be treated as a disorganized country. It is an immeasurable privilege for Canadians to know that wherever they go in the world they are under the ever alert protection of this omnipresent power.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THESE cruel warriors seem determined to rob a poor man of his cigar. At one end they cut off his Havana, and at the other end they stop his Manilla.

JAPAN hasn't yet arrived at the full measure of western civilization. In her simplicity, when the Land of the Rising Sun summons parliament the time limit is fixed—in the last case, the parliament to meet May 14th—the time is restricted to 21 days. This leads to the inference that Japan has no Hansard, and there are consequently no back-bench legislators anxious to have their tedious oratory handed down to prosperity.

THE Buffalo Express, a United States journal with very little yellow in its colours, has the following to say: Of course, there are people who argue that the United States should take advantage of the opportunity to annex Hawaii, Cuba, the Philippines and anything else we get our hands on. But the vast majority of Americans are decidedly sane on this subsubject. They think and say that we have all the territory we can care for at present and that we should never extend our ambitions beyond our own continent. Hawaii we do not want. Cuba we are pledged not to hold. But we could fairly retain possession of the Philippines as security for war indemnity from Spain until such necessary indemnity is paid.

LADIES are prominent in all good works, but their zeal sometimes outfoots their discretion. This is probably the case in Woodstock, where the Ladies' Aid Society of the Central Methodist Church, has disbanded because the Board of Trustees would not co-operate with them in the matter of building a parsonage. The ladies would doubtless have delighted to squabble over plans, and discuss furnishings ad infinitum, but the hard-hearted and hard-headed trustees, doubtless, took a more practical view of the subject and took into account such prosaic and sordid matters as ways and means, the resources of the congregation, and also the important fact to them that the brunt would fall upon their shoulders in case the zealous ladies did not achieve the financial success their dear, ardent souls pictured as possible. Bricks cannot be made without mud, parsonages cannot be built without bricks, and bricks cost money. It is plain that the trustees referred to had not full faith in sewing circles and socials as financial factors.

THE new contract for the fast line changes none of the essential conditions or terms as set forth in the old one, except that the two vessels which were to have begun sailing in May, 1899, are to begin the service along with the other two in May, 1900. It seems probable that the Petersen-Tate Company have met with so many difficulties and with so much delay in organizing their company that they found, when the organization was complete, that it would be impossible to have their ships built within the time set for the first sailing. The government has consented to an extension of one year of the period for sailing of two vessels, and the company is to be incorporated by the last day of the present month, and to have two vessels substantially under construction by that date. It is not improbable that the demand for war vessels, if not the engineers' strike, has made it more difficult to secure the early as well as economical construction of commercial steamships at the present time.

SPAIN'S FAILURE AS A COLONIZER.

Government is not Her Strong Point.

As a founder of colonies Spain has had a phenomenal career, but as a retainer of them she is conspicuous for failures. There was a time when Spain claimed and the Pope recognized her claim to half the world outside of Europe and Western Asia. Within the century her territory was more extensive than that of any contemporary nation, Russia perhaps excepted. Her flag waved over portions of all the continents except Australia. In America her dominions began at the Atlantic coast of Florida and swept across the continent to the Pacific, reaching northward an undefined distance on the latter ocean and southward to Cape Horn. They extended up the Atlantic coast of South America to the southern border of Brazil. About the year 1820 her empire began to go to pieces until at present its dominions is as follows:

	Square miles.
Spain, including a small area in North western Africa	197,670
Cuba	41,655
Porto Rico	3,550
Philippine Islands	114,326
Sulu Islands	950
Caroline Islands and Palaos	560
Marianne Islands	429
Rio de Oro and Adar	243,000
Hui	27
Fernando Po and other African ports	350
Total	603,121

The population of the Spanish dominion is as follows:

Spain, including, the Canaries and a small part of Northwestern Africa	17,565,673
American Colonies	2,426,326
Asiatic Colonies	7,121,173
African possessions	126 000
Total	27,261,199

The great region described as Rio de Oro and Adrar forms the western portion of the Sahara and borders on the Atlantic. It is not of very great value, and its occupation by Spain is a subject to a claim by France. The only outlying parts of the Spanish Dominions which would be worth attack from a hostile power are Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippine Islands and the Canaries, with possibly Fernando Po. The Philippines under a strong and progressive government are capable of being converted into one of the most prosperous regions of the world. Japan is said to look upon them with envious eyes. They would form a very nice addition to the British Empire in the event of a general partition of Spanish territory taking place after the war.

A STONY LAKE EPISODE.

(From Another Correspondent.)

A select few of our boys report a recent very eventful trip up the lakes. The yacht was perfect in luxurious comfort, but as human nature is never quite satisfied, its cosy quarters were deserted for the dreary cottage of the summer tourist. A night spent with mattresses in place of eider-down comforters, and "eerie" ghosts floating around (even if arrayed in rather human looking garments) may sound quite exciting and enjoyable in a novel, but the "creepy" practical facts are not so desirable. However, owing to the extreme youth of our tourists and the promising literary tendencies of at least one of the party, we trust no serious effects will follow—in fact we felt quite reassured when our valued "News" appeared in proper form and on good time, last week. One extreme always follows another, one swing into elation of joy means a falling back into gloom and shadow of mind, and certainly it must be a step from the poetical to the prosaic to discard the white, airy garments of a ghost for the more practical outfit peculiar to the editorial chair of a village printing office. To be continued in case of further developments.

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my thanks for your cheque just handed to me, for $3,901.98, in settlement of my $2,500 Fifteen Year Endowment Policy in your Company. Such a result as this, after the risk on my life has been carried for fifteen years, beginning from forty-five years of age, argues one thing strongly, namely, that the management of the North American Life must be in competent hands. The other options you have offered me, viz: a Paid up Life policy for $6510.00, or a Life Annuity for $401.97, are, I presume, equally liberal, and it affords me much pleasure to recommend your Company to my friends or any one desiring insurance.

To the Phrenoline Medicine Company, Ltd., Ottawa, Ont.

GENTLEMEN,—On the advice of a friend I tried one bottle of your famous rheumatic remedy, Phrenoline, and to my surprise it cured me of rheumatism, from which I have suffered for many years.

It also cured me of dyspepsia, from which I was suffering at the time, so that I feel now like a new man.

I have tried several remedies for rheumatism, some of which did me a certain amount of good, but nothing that I have taken has done so much for me as your Phrenoline, and I have much pleasure in recommending it to other sufferers.

CANADA'S YUKON FORCE IS DINED

By Hon. Dr. Borden, the Genial Minister of Militia.

GEN. GASCOIGNE WAS PRESENT.

The Officers of the Far North Military Contingent Sent Off From the Capital With a Night of Good Cheer--Those Present at the Banquet—Commons Proceedings.

Ottawa, May 6.—If the Yukon military contingent does not start upon their travels in good cheer it is no fault of the the Minister of Militia. Last evening Dr. Borden entertained the officers of the contingent at dinner in the Senate restaurant, and included among his guests the Major-General commanding the militia, the officers at headquarters and the military men of Parliament irrespective of politics. The guests were: Col. the Hon. M. Aylmer, Surgeon McLennan, Lieut.-Col. McMillan, Captain Leduc, Col. Macdonald, Major Young, Sir Louis Davies, Major Cartwright, Col. Boulton, Major Pease, Col. Bethune, Captain Maclean, A.S.C., Col. McLennan, Dr. Neilson, Col. Kaulbach, Col. Maunsell, Hon. Sidney Fisher, Hon. Clifford Sifton, Col. Evans (in command of the Yukon force), Lieut.-Col. Tisdale, Captain Burstall, Col. Sam Hughes, Captain Talbot, Major Bliss, Major Beattie. In the course of his speech the Minister gave the officers every encouragement to understand that the faithful performance of their duty would not be unrecognized.

The Yukon military contingent leave for the coast to-day. Major Bliss, recently Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General, has been appointed supply and transport officer.

A VILE ATTACK

Made Upon a Defenceless Man by the Leader of the Opposition—Proceedings in the Commons.

Sir Louis Davies introduced two bills. One authorizes the Government to lease to municipalities public wharves on which small tolls are collected. The other prohibits the dumping of ballast, ashes or other refuse in navigable waters of 12 fathoms or less in depth.

Mr. McDougall (Conservative, B.C.) asked his question regarding Mr. Charles Russell's letter to Cardinal Rampolla, in which he said he had returned to Rome "at the urgent request of Catholic members of the Government and Parliament of Canada," in connection with the school question.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied: "The Government never had any knowledge of this letter and does not know of its existence or of its genuineness."

The Prime Minister, in reply to Sir Charles Tupper, promised to announce on Monday when the writ would be issued for Bagot.

Mr. McNeill's Imperial preferential trade resolution is fixed for debate on the 18th of May.

Attack on the Major-General.

The House went into committee on the resolution providing that in addition to $4,000, the salary for the Major-General commanding the militia, the sum of $3,000 may be allowed for expenses.

Dr. Borden said this proposition was the outcome of correspondence with the Imperial Government.

The authorities in England had pointed out that a salary of $4,000, with no allowances, to an Imperial officer in Canada was inadequate, and compared unfavorably with the pay and allowances of commanding officers in the other colonies. The officer in Victoria received £1,400 sterling, with only 5,000 troops under his command. The commander of the colonial force in New South Wales received £1,350, and in Queensland £1,200, with about one-seventh or one-eighth the number of troops under his command than in Canada. A major-general on duty in England received £1,587 per annum, a brigadier-general £1,240 and a lieutenant-colonel over £1,000 sterling.

Sir Charles Tupper asked if General Gascoigne would receive any portion of the proposed increase.

Dr. Borden replied that the Act would not come into force until July 1 next, and, as General Gascoigne had resigned his position and was simply continuing until his successor was appointed, it was not likely that he will receive any portion of the pay. In justice to General Gascoigne, he ought to state that this change was not suggested by the major-general.

Sir Charles Tupper said he would give this resolution his most strenuous opposition, if it were contemplated that General Gascoigne was to receive a single dollar of the increase, but he would give it his most hearty support if it were to apply only to his successor. If it were necessary to vote a larger amount to get rid of General Gascoigne, he would cheerfully agree to vote it. Never in his experience had any officer disgraced the position of commander of the Canadian forces as had the present officer. General Gascoigne's action had repeatedly brought the Government and the department into contempt.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the House must have heard with astonishment and regret the observations which had fallen from the Opposition leader. There was no occasion for the exhibition of temper just witnessed. It was quite unworthy of Sir Charles Tupper to use such language towards an able officer.

General Gascoigne wore the uniform of an officer of the British army, and this should have been sufficient to protect him from attack. The House and the country could only conclude that Sir Charles Tupper was indulging in personal spite against the General. When a man was striving to serve the public to the best of his ability there was no reason for the use of insulting language against him. General Gascoigne would leave the Canadian service at an early day, and the resolution would be passed on its merits, not on the understanding that no portion of the money was to go to him. If a successor to the General had not been appointed before July 1, and the General was still here, he would certainly receive what he was entitled to.

Col. Tisdale cordially supported the resolution, as also did Sir A. P. Caron.

Col. Hughes thought if there had been friction in the past it was not altogether due to the officers who had been sent to Canada. There had been a great difficulty owing to the irregularity of drills, and he was glad to see a change lately in this respect.

The Minister of Militia said it was exceedingly unfair on the part of Sir Charles Tupper to attack General Gascoigne when he was not in a position to reply.

Personally his (Dr. Borden's) relations with the General had been of the pleasantest character. He had found him well qualified to perform the duties of commanding officer. He had worked hard and brought about reforms in the militia greater than had been accomplished in any equal number of years. His resignation was entirely due to personal reasons of his own. The General had honestly endeavored to do his duty and had done it well. With reference to the case of Colonel Strathy, he (the Minister) could not but conclude that that officer had adopted what was certainly an unsoldierly-like course. The Halifax dispute had been settled satisfactorily. There was not the slightest doubt that General Gascoigne was right in the letter of his contention that there were men enlisted in the 66th of Halifax who, in view of their contract with the Imperial Government, had no right to enlist in that battalion.

Sir Charles Tupper said that he had every reason to know that the Minister had found in General Gascoigne a most complacent officer. He would report one thing to the late Government and then take entirely the opposite view with this Government simply because he was so desired. Hence he was not surprised to hear Dr. Borden defend him. Why, if the General had no means of defending himself, did he give his interviews to the Montreal newspapers? Col. Strathy only followed the pernicious example set him by the General. "The Minister," Sir Charles remarked, "says we should respect a red coat, but I have no respect for a cad simply because a red coat is on his back. Because a man wears a red coat is that any reason why we should bow down to him like the Chinese, and hold his person as sacred?" In conclusion he said he could only express his satisfaction that the country was so soon to be rid of an officer who had been the most signal failure of any officer ever sent to Canada.

The resolution was reported and the House then went into committee of supply on the ocean and river appropriations.

Canada to Have a Training Ship.

Sir Louis Davies, in reply to Mr. Clarke, said the fishery cruisers had been armed with Gatling guns simply because it was desirable to get rid of the obsolete armament. They would serve as a deterrent of lawlessness. Answering further questions, the Minister said it had been decided to establish a training ship for youths, who would be given a course in seamanship and train for service upon the fishery and revenue cutters of Canada. A full statement would be made later.

Sir Louis Davies outlined his scheme for the establishment of the naval militia on the seaboard. He said that this having been started, no appointment to the Government cruisers will be made except from those who have availed themselves of this naval training.

Steady progress was made on the appropriations for the Marine and Fisheries Department.

The House adjourned at 11.25.

MAY WHEAT $1.50.

The Market Makes Wilder Advances Than Ever—The European Shortage's Influence—Latest Quotations.

Thursday Evening, May 5.

To-day was another record-breaker for wheat. Many thought that with Wednesday's sensational advances coming on top of the steady upward movement which has characterised the world's markets for some weeks the cereal had reached the high mark and that a reaction would follow to-day. Nothing of the kind happened, however, but on the contrary prices burst all bonds and went up at a terrific rate. At Chicago May wheat opened up with a gain of 1c over night and closed at $1.50, while July rose to $1.03⅜ and closed at $1.02½. These figures represent an advance in May of 20c for the day, 28c for two days and 47c for the past six weeks and an advance in July of 3⅝c for the day, 7⅝c for two days and 17⅝c for the longer period. The chief bullish factors were further proofs of a real shortage of the cereal in Europe. The abolition of the Italian import duties on wheat was confirmed, Spain was reported to be about to follow suit, a movement in the Austrian Reichsrath towards a similar end was mooted, while a section of the German Reichstag was spoken of as leaning towards similar action. On the receipt of these advices on the Chicago board there was a rush to cover by shorts, who are said to represent a heavy interest. These shorts are the men who have been shy of the recent advances, believing them to be due to the war scare and therefore only temporary, and to be reversed as soon as Spain's defeat was in sight. The total lack of any effect of Dewey's victory at Manila on the market seemed to kill this sentiment, and on the buoyant cable advices the rush to cover took place. At St. Louis May wheat in sympathy rose 7½c per bushel, at Toledo 18c, at Detroit 9c, at Duluth 10c.

At Liverpool spot wheat advanced 3d, May 5½d, July 4⅝d, and the remoter options 1¾d to 2¾d. At Paris the cereal closes at an advance of 70 to 90 centimes, equal to a gain of 3⅜c to 5c per bushel. At Antwerp the gain for the day was 75 centimes.

APPALLING DEATH

From Kidney Disease Prevented by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

"Kidney Disease." Do you know what it means? It means that the kidneys are either rotten, or rotting; the blood is full of poisonous, death-dealing corruption; that the Kidneys can't do their work; that the victim is a walking charnel-house; that his hours are numbered; that the victim MUST take Dodd's Kidney Pills if he does not want to die.

Have you Kidney Disease? Is your skin hot and dry; memory failing; breath short; urine, reddish, or pale colored; does it scald when passing; is your appetite changeable; do your ankles swell; have you bitter taste in the mouth on getting up mornings; is there a brick-dust deposit in your urine?

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

MORE NEWS OF OUR KLONDYKE PARTY.

THEY LANDED IN SKAGAWAY ON APRIL 20TH.

Provisions are Very Cheap—Some Quotations Given—Telephone and Electric Light Service—A Population Already of 5,000.

Mr. W. Eyres yesterday received the following letter from his son, who is with the Peterborough Klondyke party, which arrived in Skagaway on April 20th:

Pacific Hotel, Skagaway, Alaska,
April 20th, 1898.

W. Eyres, Esq., Peterborough, Ont.

DEAR FATHER.—We arrived here this morning all O. K. I sent a card back on the boat we came up on. They sailed this afternoon.

Well, this is a great town. Nine months ago there was no such place. Now there must be at least 5,000 people and business houses of all kinds. There is one store as good as any we saw in Vancouver, and others by the hundred, almost, large and small. It beats anything I ever saw in western towns. The town must cover over one hundred acres, streets running both ways laid out. Some of them have a few stumps but they can drive around them. There are three or four streets nearly half a mile long and there must be a dozen or more running the other way, east and west.

You can buy any delicacy of the season—green onions, radishes, fresh and nice oranges, 40c. a dozen.

We had a very good dinner for twenty-five cents. We went to another restaurant for a six o'clock dinner and had a fine one for fifty cents. Prices are very low for almost anything—scarcely any higher than in Vancouver. The restaurants are better here than they are there, and just as cheap. It is surprising. A person can hardly realize we are so far from any place. There was a man on the street this afternoon, selling papers and crying "latest news." His papers were dated the 14th—only six days old. This town has electric light, telephone connection with Dyea, Sheep's Camp and Lake Lindeman, and they claim they are going to have a railroad over the Pass in a short time. Then I suppose that they will have a street railway next, but if the Yukon mining played out the town would die quicker than it has grown.

Some of the boys have gone to bed. It is 8.30, and I am a little tired, so will turn in pretty soon. We have been busy all day, trying to make arrangements to get across the pass. This is a lot of red tape about the customs. I expect to be appointed our convoy, which will save us six dollars a day for an officer.

Your son,
W. T. P. EYRES.

Children's Mass Meeting.

Evangelist H. D. Kennedy will commence a series of special meetings for children on Monday afternoon at 4.15 in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, to be continued each afternoon during the week. The meetings will consist of a brief talk and good live singing. Mr. Kennedy, during the past winter months, has held a number of children's meetings at different outside points. He has been very successful and he deserves the hearty support of the parents of Peterborough in his present voluntary effort to help the children.

SAVE THE ORCHARDS.

Crush the Caterpillars while they are Small and Inactive.

The tent caterpillars that were not nipped in the egg, have now hatched out, and this is the last chance to destroy them. The cool weather has kept them in their tents, and orchards need to be closely watched. A man armed with a cloth to protect the hand can crush the young caterpillars against the fork of the limb where they collect, and thus destroy them. Now is the time to commit this destruction. In a few days, with warm weather, the caterpillars will be scattered, and at their work of destroying the trees. Don't delay. Watch every tree. Without close attention many clusters of worms will escape you. Act now and save your orchards.

MINING NOTES.

Mr. W. A. Beerman, a mining expert, who has just come from Cripple Creek, Colorado, thinks the Marmora district bids fair to become famous. He was sent out by the Detroit-Hastings Mining and Milling Company to inspect their mine. In company with Mr. J. Bush, the local manager, and Mr. D. Mitchell, Mr. Beerman rode out to investigate the progress being made and his highly pleased. He returned to Detroit on Tuesday to make his report to the company. The local manager says that a steam drill will soon be placed at the mine.

Several samples of ore taken from lot 3, in the 4th concession, and from lot 1, in the 2nd concession of Methuen, have been left at our office, amongst which are free-milling and white gold bearing quartz and two fine samples of asbestos. The owner of the property, Mr. John Vansickle, informed the Herald that from assays made by a Mr. Bennett, an expert mining man of London, England, the ore was found to be very rich in gold. The option held by Mr. Bennett expired and he is now in the Old Country, where, it is rumoured, he is engaged in forming a company, after which he will return to purchase the property. There are various veins on the property and some can be traced for a distance of from two to three hundred feet. —Marmora Herald.

MUCH IN LITTLE.

Business men in business hours attend only to business matters. Social calls are best adapted to the social circle. Make your business known in a few words, without loss of time. Let your dealings a stranger be most carefully considered, and tried friendship duly appreciated. A mean act will soon recoil, and a man of honour will be esteemed. Leave "tricks of trade" to those whose education was never completed. Treat all with respect, confide in few, wrong no man. Be never afraid to say no, says Blaine's manual, and always prompt to acknowledge and rectify a wrong. Leave nothing for to-morrow that should be done to-day. Because a friend is polite do not think that his time is valueless. Have a place for everything and everything in its place. To preserve long friendship, keep short credit; the way to get credit is to be punctual; the way to preserve it is not to use it much. Settle often; have short accounts. Trust no man's appearances; they are often deceptive, and assumed for the purpose of obtaining credit. Rogues generally dress well. The rich are generally plain men. Be well satisfied before you give a credit that those to whom you give it are men to be trusted. Attend strictly to your own business.

THE ORATORIO, THE "HOLY CITY."

WELL PRESENTED IN THE OPERA HOUSE.

A Very Creditable Production of a Sterling Composition—A Large and Appreciative Audience—Excellent Choruses and Well Sung Soli—A Very Satisfactory Musical Evening.

Last night there was a large audience composed of the best musical elements of the town, to listen to, and, as the result proved, to be delighted with a most satisfactory production of the oratorio. "The Holy City," by Alfred R. Gaul. This composition is a beautiful one, and rather an ambitious undertaking, but Mr. P. W. Owens, organist and choirmaster, and the choir of St. John's under whose leadership and auspices the work was given, are to be credited with achieving a very pleasing success, and with enlisting the co-operation of members of other choirs and other musicians, who largely contributed to the success accomplished.

The Oratorio opened with a prelude by the orchestra, and then followed the first chorus, "No Shadows Yonder" a most spirited and vivacious part, well interpreted by the chorus, which consisted of about seventy-five well-balanced voices. It formed a fitting prelude to the musical enjoyment that followed. Miss Lily Jackson's solo was admirably sung, in good voice and method, and the quartette went through charmingly, being well sung by Mrs. Hamilton, Miss Montgomery, Mr. G. K. Martin and Rev. Mr. Stevenson. The soprano solo, "My Soul is Athirst," was sung with delightful effect by Mr. Parker. Then came an unaccompanied trio—Mrs. Parker, Miss Cooper and Miss Montgomery. The full chorus, "They that Sow in Tears," was excellently given, the attack was good and the general result was effective. Mrs. Seward was very successful in her contralto aria, "Eye hath not Seen." She sang correctly and expressively. The chorus, "For thee, O, Dear Dear Country," received a very spirited and pleasing treatment. The included trio was worthy of special mention and also the ending of the chorus which, in a grand burst of melody, merged into the concluding chorus of the first part—a magnificent finale sung with great power and spirit. The second part opened with a finely sung solo, "A New Heaven and a New Earth," by Rev. E. V. Stevenson, who treated his number with a musical skill and just appreciation of its expressive requirements, worthy of especial commendation. The concealed choral sanctus that accompanied had a most charming effect.

The chorus and double chorus, "Let the Heaven's rejoice," was a most exacting and difficult number, but with one or two exceptions, was well given. The antiphonal passages were splendidly done, and the rather trying fugue movement was very creditably performed. The conclusion worked up to a grand climax which was well given, though the chorus on the whole in this part was not so effective as in the excellently sung chorus in the first part—"They that sow in tears." Mr. G. K. Martin gave a very creditable performance of the aria, "To the Lord our God," especially in view of the fact that he took, at a short notice, the place of Mr. Jas. Brown, whose indisposition prevented his appearing. Miss Cooper, of Campbellford, won a great success in her beautiful singing of the aria for contralto, "Come ye Blessed." She gave great delight to the audience who expressed their gratification by giving Miss Cooper a most decided recall. The semi chorus "The Fining Pot is for Silver," was a beautiful number, very well sung. Miss Clara Belleghem's singing of the soprano air, "These are They Which Came," was greatly appreciated and was favourably received. The duet, "They Shall Hunger no More," sung by Mrs. W. A. Sanderson and Miss Katie Phillips, was beautifully done. The ladies, quartette "List the Cherubic Host," was well given, and the obligato solos by Mrs. Parker and Rev. Mr. Stevenson were quite effectively presented. Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Seward, Miss Phillips and Mrs. Spence sang the ladies' quartette incident to the concluding chorus, "Great and Marvellous are Thy Works," and it was beautifully sung. The chorus was given with great spirit and excellence, though the assistance rendered from the semi-chorus in the "Te Deum," was not as great as could be desired.

Many features of the Oratorio, as presented last night, were of great merit, and regarding it as a whole it was a most creditable production; and much credit is due to Mr. Owens for the success he accomplished in bringing the excellent musical material of the chorus to the point of proficiency it reached.

ORATORIO NOTES.

In evidence of the friendly feelings existing between Mr. Owens and the chorus, it may be mentioned that at the conclusion of the final rehearsal yesterday afternoon, Mr. Owens was treated to a genuine surprise. Rev. Mr. Stevenson, on behalf of the chorus, presented Mr. Owens with a beautiful baton, as a recognition of his faithful and efficient services in connection with the preparation of the oratorio. The baton was of ebony, tipped with ivory, the handle ferruled with ivory and inlaid with pearl ornaments. On a silver shield applied to the handle was the following inscription: "Presented to P. W. Owens, by the Chorus (Holy City) 1898."

At the conclusion of the oratorio last night, Rev. Mr. Stevenson, at the request of the Rector, gave expression to the high appreciation by St. John's church of the kind and valuable assistance given by the choirs of other churches and by local and Lindsay musicians in preparing and presenting the oratorio. In the appreciation are included the accompanying pianiste, Miss Stephens, and the orchestra, whose valued services added much to the effectiveness of the presentation. The orchestra was composed of Miss Lottie Bell and Mr. J. McCaig, violins, Messrs. J. Butcher and E. Hodgson, flutes, and Mr. W. E. Lech double bass.

Miss Cooper, who sang with so much success, is a pupil of Mr. Owens, and as last night was her first appearance in public, her future will be watched with great interest.

THE MERIT SYSTEM IN THE CIVIL SERVICE.

This incorrigible Government at Ottawa continues to worry the Opposition press by doing things that ought to be done and failing to do things that would furnish material for criticism. The latest disappointment has to do with the payment of civil servants. In the good times when a considerate Conservative Government found places for all the workers of the party, it became a part of the understanding that a man must work so hard to get an office that he was not expected to work very much after obtaining it. He was given the best salary the circumstances would permit, and if sometimes it was not so large as he might wish he was cheered by the knowledge that at the end of a year at farthest he would receive an addition to it, and at the end of another year another addition and so on. At the rate of fifty dollars increase per year the increases continued until in the course of time a careful man might be receiving $1,000 for practically the same work—or the same absence of work, as the case might be—for which formerly he was paid $900. And as showing how effectually and automatically the system worked Sir Richard Cartwright challenged the Opposition to show, when the matter came up in the House, that in all their long term of office half a dozen clerks had been denied the statutory increase.

The Ministers who are now in charge of the departments have announced their intention of making promotions and granting increases of salary only when it shall be represented to them that the assiduity and and ability of the clerks have been such as to entitle them better treatment. This departure was so novel in its nature that Sir Charles Tupper and his friends of the Opposition chose to regard it as a blow at the civil service. The question, of course, is simply whether the civil service exists for the benefit of Canada or whether Canada exists for the benefit of the civil servants. Sir Charles Tupper inclines to act upon the latter assumption, the Liberal Government upon the former. And as the people will take the Government's view the Conservative press not unnaturally feel that the Liberals have taken an unfair advantage in having thus taken up a position that is not open to attack at any point. The merit system encourages merit; the mechanical increase system rewards the drones at the expense of the deserving. Sir Charles Tupper has elected to throw in his lot with the drones but the Opposition newspapers have not the temerity to actively support him.—Montreal Herald.

SAVE THE MOTHERS

Dodd's Kidney Pills Their Only Safety in Female Diseases.

You have seen a flower nipped by frost, fade and die in the flush of its beauty. That is how women die when attacked by any of the diseases peculiar to their sex.

Woman's burdens are woefully heavy. Her sufferings are agonizing. Her patience is grand. Disease preys upon her. The light dies out of her eyes, her steps become slow and dragging; she loses flesh; grows sallow, listless, droops like a flower. Then she dies. Her family is left to the cold mercy of the world.

"Mother's dead!" What a piteous phrase. What sufferings have been endured before it was used. Why should mothers, wives, sisters suffer so? They need not. Dodd's Kidney Pills will quickly and thoroughly cure all cases of Female Weakness. They never fail. They give health, strength, courage: a new lease of life.

OFF TO YUKON.

The Toronto and Other Ontario Contingents Have Gone Via the Capital.

Toronto, May 4.—Unusual excitement prevailed at the Union Station yesterday morning, owing to the departure of the Klondike detachment from Stanley Barracks. The men were marched from the fort to the station, Major Young in command. Cheerful good-byes were bidden them as they trod through the muddy streets, and on their arrival at the station a large crowd of citizens and soldiers greeted them. There were many affecting farewell scenes, and the young women were so overcome at losing their sweethearts that they fainted. Among the crowd were many members of the local volunteer corps, and as the Canadian Pacific Railway train for Ottawa steamed out at 9 o'clock, with the soldiers aboard, hearty cheers were given.

The London detachment passed through the city on their way to Ottawa at noon.

The contingent from Kingston also went to Ottawa yesterday morning.

The men will be fitted out at once at the Capital, and will probably leave on Friday for the Yukon.

The female population of Woodstock are now overjoyed over Mrs. Rowe's recovery.

Dodd's Kidney Pills did it.

The doctor told Mrs. Rowe she could never be cured.

Different "remedies" failed to help her.

A few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her completely.

THE GRAND OLD MAN.

The Strength of Mr. Gladstone Is Steadily Declining, But the End May Not Be Near.

London, May 5.—The Daily Chronicle says this morning:

"Mr. Gladstone's strength steadily declines, though there is, we believe, no prospect of an immediate end. The disease has not gained force enough to overcome the powerful strength of his constitution, but a natural weakness now supervenes and gains upon him, encouraged by Mr. Gladstone's fervent desire for the rest which he has so rightly earned.

"He is now confined to his room. Now and again his mind reverts to critical periods in his career, and to the legislation which cost him the most anxiety, but the main thing that fills his thought is religion and he speaks of death as his call."

REFUSED TO BE KING.

MORE THAN ONE MAN HAS SPURNED ROYAL HONORS.

Some of Those Who Have Declined to Wear a Monarch's Crown—The Golden Wreath That Was Offered to and Refused by Beaconsfield.

It is no mean distinction to have refused a crown. There is probably not one man in a million who would decline a kingdom if it were offered him, in spite of the restless nights and fearful days that are commonly supposed to be the lot of a king. Even Cromwell is said to have refused the crown of England more from fear of others than from any other motive.

But there have been many men since Cromwell who have refused to wear a monarch's crown. Thirty-five years ago, when the throne of Greece was vacant, more than one great English statesman might have ruled over the destinies of that classic country, but the difficulties in the way were formidable. Mr. Gladstone's name was freely mentioned in connection with the crown of Greece, though, as Mr. Gladstone was a member of the government at the time, the proposal never took definite shape.

The late Lord Derby, however, who had strong sympathies with Greece, was offered the crown and refused it, throwing away £50,000 a year and a kingdom. It was not the first time a man had declined to sit on the throne of Greece, Prince Leopold, the father of the present king of the Belgians, having refused the crown when Greece was declared a kingdom in 1830. Prince Leopold's reason for refusing the crown was that the proposed boundaries of the country were insufficient, the exclusion of Crete especially influencing his decision.

One of Queen Victoria's sons, the Duke of Edinburgh, has also been offered the Grecian crown. He was appealed to in the sixties at the time Lord Derby declined the crown, but was compelled to refuse the offer owing to the attitude of the powers, who strongly declared their opposition to Prince Alfred being crowned king of Greece. The throne was then offered to the present king, on whose behalf it was accepted by his father, the king of Denmark.

The crown of Austria-Hungary was refused in the middle of the century by the Archduke Franz Karl, the father of the present emperor. King Ferdinand I abdicated in December, 1848, the throne then descending in the ordinary course to Archduke Franz Karl. The archduke, however, declined the crown, which he handed over to his son, who still wears it.

Another crown which has been more than once refused is the crown of Roumania. When Roumania was declared a kingdom, it was settled that the throne should descend to Prince Leopold, the eldest brother of the then reigning king. The prince, however, voluntarily yielded his rights to the crown in favor of his son, Prince Wilhelm, the renunciation being registered in the senate in October, 1880. Prince Wilhelm remained heir apparent for eight years, but toward the end of 1888 he formally refused to accept the crown and his brother became heir apparent, being now Prince of Roumania. The prince has since married Princess Marie, a granddaughter of Queen Victoria.

Not many years ago a nephew of the great Napoleon died in exile, after refusing a crown. Prince Napoleon, nicknamed "Plon-Plon," son of a brother of Napoleon Bonaparte, was invited to sit on the throne of Roumania as the first king of that country, but he declined the offer, believing at the time that he might ascend the throne of France. So the bird in the hand flew away and the bird in the bush was never caught. The man who had hoped to be crowned king of France died out of that country in solitary exile. He had sacrificed one crown in the hope of receiving another and lost both.

Early in the present century Ferdinand VII renounced the crown of Spain in favor of his father, who again refused it in favor of Napoleon. The great conqueror had to face a nation in arms, however, and never took the throne.

The story of Lord Beaconsfield's golden crown provides us with another instance, though there was no throne with this strange crown. The man in whose brain the idea of crowning Lord Beaconsfield originated is now dead, but as long as he lived he never recovered from the blow of Lord Beaconsfield's refusal of his tribute. Tracy Turnerelli received subscriptions from 50,000 people toward his gold laurel wreath, but in June, 1879, when he formally offered the crown to his idol, it was refused.—Philadelphia Times.

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence. "Black Death" was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than any of these. It is so common that nine-tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing constipation. It makes people listless, causes dizziness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath and distress after eating. The little help needed is furnished by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative and two a mild cathartic. Once used, always in favour. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well. Be sure and get Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

READY, AYE READY.

British Government Despatch Three War Vessels to Quiet Affairs at Santiago de Cuba.

Kingston, Jamaica, May 5.—Trouble of a most serious nature is threatening British interests at Santiago de Cuba. The British third-class cruiser Pearl is now there, and within twenty-four hours the British third-class cruiser Pallas and the British sloop Alert will probably be at Santiago de Cuba. The Alert, it now appears, was accompanied to Santiago de Cuba by the Pearl, and the Alert was sent back with despatches regarded by the British Consul as being too important to trust to the censored cable. These despatches were cabled to London by the colonial authorities here. The Alert will return to Santiago de Cuba with the Pallas, now at Port Antonio.

The colonial authorities are absolutely reticent as to the contents of the despatches and the reasons for the movements of the warships. But the story told the Associated Press correspondent at the Jamaica Club yesterday was that the British Consul, Mr. R. W. Ramsden, had been attacked in the Consulate by a mob, whereupon he fell on the crowd and killed a Spaniard. He has been imprisoned. These statements, however, are not verified. Mr. Ramsden is a partner in the firm of Brooks Bros. and is regarded as a man of vigorous and even violent character.

The British warship Pearl has arrived at Port Royal, and it is now believed the Santiago trouble has been settled.

Some of the Principal Things Happening in the Queen City Paragraphed.

The Canadian Military Tournament and Horse Show is now on at the Armouries. The combination is looked upon as a good one, and the public show by their attendance their appreciation. Yesterday an address of welcome was presented to the Governor-General and Countess Aberdeen, and His Excellency made an appropriate reply. The Countess and Miss Mowat were presented with bouquets, the former one of roses, the latter of violets and lilies. The horse awards were made, and the display of horse flesh was one of the grandest ever seen in this city. The military competitions were with sword, lance and bayonet and were exciting and interesting.

The J. D. King Co. is negotiating to leave here for Point Levis, Quebec, on account of the prevalence of labor troubles in this city. Although they would rather stay here, they have almost concluded that the absence of such complications in Quebec will, with the lower wages which there obtain, more than make up for the change of residence.

Broadway Tabernacle authorities are looking for a hall, as the mortgaged property is likely to be taken from them.

The cases against nine shoemakers, who are charged with attempted intimidation in connection with the J. D. King Co. strike, were adjourned for a week.

Toronto is indeed in hot water. Dr. Bryce, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, by virtue of the power vested in him by statute, will issue an order requiring the city of Toronto to furnish accommodation for at least 2,500 more public school pupils. One of the investigating committee says: "In some of the schools we had to actually swallow our breath, to keep from vomiting." The order will go forth in a few days.

Figures Don't Lie.

It doesn't take much knowledge of mathematics to figure out the facts about that dread disease—consumption. Statisticians long ago demonstrated that one-seventh of all the deaths in Christendom each year may be safely attributed to consumption and allied diseases.

There is an almost certain cure and a positive preventive for this fatal disease if taken in time. The story of what it will do is told in the following letter:

"About two and a half years ago, when I was at Flat Lick, Ky.," writes J. W. Jordan, Esq., of Corbin, Whitley Co., Ky., "I was taken with severe pains in the chest, after which I began to spit up blood and was also troubled with night-sweats. I was so short winded that I could hardly walk half a mile at once, and if I got the least bit wearied, I would have an attack of phthisic (asthma) and almost die for about two or three days. I concluded to try Dr. R. V. Pierce, and I related my case to him. He wrote me that I should take his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I began using it and used about six bottles. I began to see that it was helping me, so concluded to continue its use. I did so and have improved both in strength and in weight. I have not had the phthisic, nor spit up any blood since last spring."

This great remedy—Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—cures 98 per cent. of all laryngial, bronchial, throat and kindred affections which, if neglected lead up to consumption. It strengthens the stomach and makes the appetite keen and hearty. It invigorates the liver and aids the natural processes of secretion and excretion. It makes the assimilation of the food perfect. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. Honest dealers will not urge you to take a substitute said to be "just as good."

Send for Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. FREE. Enclose 21 one-cent stamps to cover customs and mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., for a paper-covered copy. Cloth binding 50 stamps. It is a thousand page book with over seven hundred illustrations; formerly sold for $1.50. TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

The Heaviest Run of the Season—114 Carloads, Composed of 4,000 Animals—The Wheat Market—Prices.

Tuesday Evening, May 3.

On lower cables the Chicago wheat market opened up weak this morning, the bears being encouraged in their aggressive attitude by the large primary receipts, which were about three times as large as last week. July sold down to 92¼c, but at this figure Letter and others were reported large buyers, and the price quickly turned upwards. The recovery was sustained by Bradstreet's estimated that the week's decrease in the world's visible supply was about 6,000,000 bushels, and also by a cable to the effect that during May and June the import duty will be taken off all wheat entering France. Heretofore only a reduction of the impost had been counted on, and so on the advice of its entire abolition for the present, the market gained further strength and closed firm, with May 1c and July ¾c above Monday's close. In Liverpool spot wheat closed unchanged with May 2s6d and July 1¾d lower for the day. At Paris wheat closed 10 to 35 centimes lower, with flour 25c higher to 25c lower. At Antwerp wheat closed 25c lower.

Wheat Made Another Phenomenal Jump Removal of French, Italian and German Import Duties Chief Factors.

Wednesday Evening, May 4.

At Chicago to-day May wheat sold up 10c, reaching $1.01 or 27c above the price of six weeks ago, while the July line advanced 4c to 97¾c, which represents a gain of 14c for the same period. It was another great day for Letter and his crowd, who control all the May wheat, and in fact most of the contract wheat in America. Early in the day the Chicago market, which had opened weak, came under the influence of bullish foreign advices, and values became excited and, to use a colloquialism, soared away up out of sight. The bullish reports were numerous. In the first place came news of the French Cabinet's approval of the removal of the import duty on wheat entering France, and this was followed up by a cable from Rome to the effect that the Italian Government, instigated by bread riots, has gazetted a royal decree suspending the duties on cereals until June 30. Berlin sent word that the Reichstag would temporarily suspend the German wheat duties, and on top of all this Odessa holders of wheat under orders of the Russian Government refused to part with their stocks, leaving a large number of British ships in port vainly waiting for cargoes. These cable despatches convinced Chicago of a real shortage throughout Europe, and seemed to justify recent advances in the European markets. With these cables came large orders from abroad, 500,000 bushels having been sold for export, with reported freight contracts for nearly 2,000,000 bushels more. These orders absorbed all offerings, and with shorts trying to cover, July moved up 4c per bushel and closed at that much off, an advance over Tuesday's final figures. May wheat scored a gain of 9c, and the remoter options 1¾c to 1¾c for the day. In sympathy May rose 9½c at St. Louis, 6¼c at Toledo, 9c at Detroit and 8½c at Duluth.

The American visible wheat supply is now less than at any time since 1891. It is 11,000,000 bushels less than a year ago, 32,000,000 bushels less than two years ago, 39,800,000 bushels less than at this date in 1895, 40,600,000 bushels less than 1894, 40,100,000 bushels less than 1893.

FEMALE WEAKNESS CURED.

Mrs. Saunders Made Well and Strong by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Brantford, April 25—(Special)—The wives and mothers of Ontario are the most ardent disciples of Dodd's way of curing curing Diseases of Women—i.e. by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This is natural, for no medicine, no earth, no agency known to man has saved women one tithe of the agony that Dodd's Kidney Pills have banished.

Mrs. F. Saunders, of Brantford, tells her suffering sisters what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for her: I have been a martyr to Female Weakness for the past year and suffered terribly. Dodd's Kidney Pills made me strong and well and healthy, though several other remedies I used did me no good whatever."

So the record grows. Cures made every day. Failures—never.

The Judge's Reputation.

"I reckon he has sand," said the Texan as he pointed out the big and venerable judge of the county who happened to be passing.

"Don't you know?" asked the traveling man addressed.

"Just among ourselves, I'll be durned of I do, and I've lived here all my life. The jedge dropped down 'mongst us right follow'in the wah. He was oveh 6 feet, straight as a gun bar'l and in the prime of life. Somehow it got whisp'd round that he was mighty handy with a gun, and they made him she'ff. Jest afteh he was swo' in a gang of cowboys raided the town while he was oveh to the cap'tal and smashed things gene'ly. When he come back, we looked fo' him to o'ganize a posse and go after 'em.

"But he sits down and writes a note tellin the boys to come in and answeh to the cou't. He put big fancy col'd seals on this note and a ribbon and sent it by a deputy. Durned ef them cowboys didn't worry oveh that theh papeh and talk 'bout it and get nervous till they jest mounted theh ponies and rode in heah and paid they fines. The she'ff jest stood round's though nuthin had took place, and not one of them cusses eveh opened his yawp. Afteh two tehms as she'ff he was made jedge, and jedge he's been eveh since. And I'll bet you, suh, they hain't man, woman eh calle in Texas knows whetheh he could put a bullet in the side of a ba'n. A Dyspeptic's Gratitude.

Anyone who has suffered from Dyspepsia or Indigestion will know what joy it would give to be able to eat three good meals a day and not be punished for it.

Mrs. J. F. Westfall, of Trenton, Ont., was for five years a dyspeptic and thanks Burdock Blood Bitters for curing her after everything else failed. Here's her story in her own words:—

"For five years I have suffered from dyspepsia, and having tried every thing I could hear of without avail until I became almost discouraged I tried Burdock Blood Bitters at last, and I feel it my duty to let the results be known, as it may help some other poor sufferer. B. B. B. completely cured me, and my gratitude to this wonderful medicine is more than I can express."

War Was Preferable.

"I have about decided," said Dowling, "to go to Cuba and join the insurgent army."

"Oh, you take my breath away!" exclaimed Mrs. Dowling. "Going down there where you will have to sleep out on the ground and be eaten up by snakes and mosquitoes!"

"Yes."

"Don't you know you are likely to starve to death?"

"I do."

"And take yellow fever or cholera?"

"I know."

"Or may be captured or shot or something?"

"I know that, Maria, but they won't bang on the piano after I have gone to bed, nor make me get up after midnight to look for burglars."—Atlanta Journal.

The Reporter's Blunder.

"Here!" said the city editor to the new reporter. "There's something wrong about this story of the murder."

"What is it?" the new man asked.

"I don't know what it is, but there's something the matter with it. I've read it through twice and can't make it out."

"I said 'the murderer struck the deadly blow with some blunt instrument,' didn't I?"

"Yes; that's here all right."

"Did I say there were evidences of a deadly struggle?"

"Yes, you've got that in three times."

"Well, I can't imagine what it is that I've omitted. I remember saying that the 'murderer stole upon his victim like a cat approaches a mouse,' so that can't be what you've missed."

The city editor scratched his head and took another hasty glance at the copy.

"By Jove!" he exclaimed. "I've got it! You didn't say 'he was felled like an ox!'"

Then the new reporter slunk away, knowing that he had committed a blunder which could be offset only by years of good work.—Cleveland Leader.

CANADA LIFE

Assurance Company.

ANOTHER PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Large Increase in Surplus.

The fifty-first annual report of the Canada Life shows this old established Company to be in a most flourishing condition. The annual meeting was held yesterday. Following is a synopsis of the report:—

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

In presenting to the Shareholders their 51st Annual Report, the Directors are gratified in announcing that the Company has fairly shared in the somewhat improved condition of the business of the country, as will be seen by the Statements and Accounts now submitted. By these it will be observed that the Company has transacted a larger business than during the previous year, and has increased its clear surplus by no less than $497,093 05.

NEW BUSINESS.

The applications for new assurances during 1897 numbered 3 066, for the sum of $6,185,996, of which, however, 266 for $521,000 were declined, the lives not appearing up to that standard which it is in the interest of the company's other assurers should be maintained, and as 191 applications for $373,368 were not carried out, the issue of the year was for $5 291,636, under 2,609 policies, exceeding 1896 by 573 policies for $798,980.

The total business in force at the close of 1897 was $72,719,555 29 of Assurances, under 33,407 policies, upon 24,469 lives.

POLICY CLAIMS.

The claims by deaths paid during 1897 amounted to $770,108 45, and Endowment policies for $128,846 92, having matured, these sums, as well as $218,481 29 for profits, $145 411.18 for surrenders, and an annuity of $400, making in all $1,263,307.84, were paid to policyholders during the year.

INCREASE IN ASSETS.

The Income receipts of the year were $[illegible]53,272.83, and deducting therefrom all payments to policy-holders for claims by death, for profits, and for matured Endowment policies, as well as other outlay, including expenses of management, there was left the sum of $1,272,486.05, which increased the Company's Assets to $18,678 915 67.

SURPLUS.

As appears by the Abstract of Assets and Liabilities, after providing fully for the necessary reserve for all policies of the Company, and for all its other Liabilities, there is shown a Surplus of $1,564,082 05.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, Mr. A. G. Ramsay, in moving the adoption of the report, said:

The Directors' Report and the usual accounts and statements have for some days been in your hands, and have now been taken as read. While the report is brief, it contains, I think, along with the various published accounts, all that is required to enable those interested in the Company to judge of its progress and success in the past year. The addition during 1897 of nearly half a million dollars to the surplus or profits fund is a large and satisfactory one, and without invidiously comparing it with the figures of any other particular Company. I may say that it is more than was attained by all the other Canadian companies combined. The new business of the year was, you will observe, of satisfactory and gratifying amount, and in excess of the previous year, and you will be pleased to know that it is of that desirable class which will result more to the profit of the Company than would a larger amount obtained at heavier expense, or from less desirable regions than the healthful climate of Canada, and the four Northern States to which we have thus far deemed it judicious to confine the operations of the Company. The existing assurances are $72,719,555 or nearly twice as much as they were 12 years ago. The death claims of the year continued of very favourable amount, and being well within what was calculated upon, that fact testifies to the care observed in the selection of the lives, and to the judicious limitation of the business to the healthful climates already alluded to.

The recent lamentable failures of some of the companies doing business on the assessment system, and the anxiety felt as to the others which are based upon the same fallacious principles lead me to point out that these occurrences are only the inevitable results, which were from the first predicted by those whose knowledge and experience enabled them to judge of what the future of companies of the kind must be. At our meeting in 1887, when concerns of the kind were making strenuous efforts to establish themselves in Canada, I alluded to the miserable failures they had been in England and in America, and I said that their "ephemeral existence indicates how useless the assessment system of assurance is as a family provision. It can only offer the uncertain hope of a cheap assurance for a few years, till the company breaks down. It cannot afford any guarantee that a definite amount of assurance will certainly be paid to a widow or children after an assurer's death, whether that occurs at an early day or a distant one, and without such a guarantee as that, which our own and other sound companies offer, life assurance must be a fraud and a delusion." I added that "I was aware that agents and managers of companies of the kind pointed to the names of prominent business and professional men who have joined them, or who act as their directors, but as some of them at all events allow their names to be employed in that way, simply because policies have been gratuitously given to them, one can judge how little weight should attach to the names of the gentlemen thus used to decoy others to join such companies" One cannot envy the feelings of the prominent gentlemen alluded to, who induced persons to take policies in companies of the kind, from which they are now driven out by their failure, or by the levy of such high payments as they are unable to meet.

As the accounts show, the year's income was within a trifle of three million dollars, and the assets of the company were increased to the very considerable amount of nearly nineteen million dollars, and yielding, after deducting liabilities of every kind, a net surplus or profit of $1,564,082 for allocation at the end of next year, along with whatever addition there may be made to it between now and that time, and as the management and other expenses by which the profits to policy-holders are very largely influenced continue to be on a more moderate percentage than that of other Canadian or American companies, he prospects for our assurers are of a favourable character.

It is anticipated that legislation will be introduced by the Government, modifying the present 4½ per cent. rate of interest prescribed by law as the basis for Life Assurance Reserves, and adopting the new mortality Tables based upon the observations and large experience of the British Insurance Companies, in course of compliation by the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, and I may say on behalf of the Board in reference to the amendment to the charter, alluded to in the Directors report of last year, that the Directors purpose to avail themselves of the occasion of that legislation to seek such amendments to the law as may meet the Board's requirements.

The motion was seconded by Mr. F. W. Gates, Vice-President, and unanimously carried. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the agents, officers, medical and legal advisers of the company, Mr. Adam Brown speaking in eloquent terms of their services rendered to the Company.

Mr. Leggat moved and Lieut.-Col. McLaren seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Company during the past year. Brief and interesting addresses were also made by Sir George Kirkpatrick and Sir George Burton, the latter of whom was heartily congratulated upon the recent honour conferred upon him by the Queen.

The retiring Directors, Chief Justice Sir George Burton, Col. Sir Casimer Gzowski, K.C.M.G., and Mr. N. Merritt, were re-elected. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. A. G. Ramsay was re-elected President and Mr. F. W. Gates Vice-President.

The meeting passed off very harmoniously, every one present being gratified with the progress and continued prosperity of the Canada Life, which, as Sir George Kirkpatrick remarked, was easily leader of all Companies in the Dominion.

NORTHWEST WHEAT CROP.

Last Year's Great Crop Brings a Big Acreage This Year.

This year's wheat acreage will be unprecedented in the North-West. The satisfactory experience of last year, the supposed shortage and the present war prices are naturally inducing farmers to venture largely on this crop. To devote the whole prairie region to wheat has in these latitudes some of the elements of a great gamble, but the outlook is certainly hopeful. Every year our western farm lands are extending, and these are our true gold fields, which will do more than those of the Klondike to place our country on a solid basis of prosperity.

ROCKDALE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The farmers around here are nearly through seeding.

Miss Nellie Clough, of East Seymour, spent last week visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. Brown, of this place.

A new post office has been established at the Vansickle settlement, Methuen. It is to be kept by Mr. David Vansickle, and is to be called Vansickle P.O.

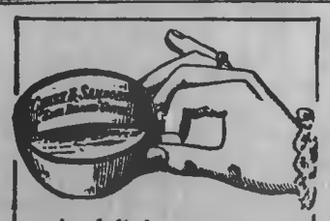
Mrs. Young returned from Toronto on Monday.

Mr. Absolom Brown has been confined to the house for the past two weeks ill of bronchitis and inflammation of the lungs. We are pleased to learn, however, that he is recovering as fast as can be expected. Mrs. Brown is now suffering from an acute attack of quinsy.

Mrs. Reid, of Springbrook, is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Absolom Brown, during their illness.

There is a great religious revival taking place around here now. Evangelist Hill, of Toronto, is holding a series of meetings at Blairton now. Last Sunday he preached to crowded houses at Victoria church and at Rockdale school house, and made a grand impression. He is an excellent singer and plays his own accompaniment upon the guitar.

On Saturday last Mr. David Breckenridge received a telegram from Deer Lake, Haliburton, stating that his father, Jehiel Breckenridge, had his foot cut off. Mr. Areckenridge left at once for his father's residence. As the old gentleman is about eighty years of age, it will likely be hard on him. It is supposed that he lost his foot in his saw mill in some way.



A delight to contemplate is a cup of coffee, clear, pure, and harmlessly invigorating.

Are you one of the millions who use

Chase & Sanborn's Seal Brand Coffee?

If so, you know its unquestionable excellence.

The manner in which you buy it, in pound and two-pound cans, insures its purity and freshness. The Chase & Sanborn seal guarantees that it is a perfect coffee. If you have failed to use this famous brand of the best blend of Java and Mocha, you have yet to experience tasting the most delicious coffee imported into or sold in any country.

THE DRAGON OF THE SEAS.

They say the Spanish ships are out
To seize the Spanish main;
Reach down the volume, boy and read
The story o'er again.

How when the Spaniard had the might,
He drenched the earth, like rain,
With human blood, and made it death
To sail the Spanish main,

With torch and steel, with stake and rack,
He trampled out all truce,
Until Queen Bess her leashes slipt,
And let her sea-dogs loose.

God! how they sprang! And how they tore!
The Grenvilles, Hawkins, Drake!
Remember, boy, they were your sires!
They made the Spaniard quake.

They sprang, like lions, for their prey,
Straight for the throat, amain!
By twos, by scores, where'er they caught
They fought the ships of Spain.

When Spain, in dark Ulloa's bay,
Broke double plighted faith,
Bold Hawkins fought his way through fire
For great Elisabeth.

A bitter malt Spain brewed that day!
She drained it to the lees;
Her faithless guns that morn awoke
The Dragon of the Seas.

From sea to sea he ravaged far,
A scourge with flaming breath—
Where'er the Spaniard sailed his ships,
Sailed Francis Drake and Death.

No port was safe against his ire,
Secure no furthest shore;
The fairest day oft sank in fire
Before the Dragon's roar.

He made the Atlantic surges red,
Round every Spanish keel;
Piled Spanish decks with Spanish dead,
The noblest of Castile.

From Del Fuego's beetling coast
To sleety Hebrides
He bounded down the Spanish host,
And swept the flaming seas.

And well he wrought his mighty work.
Till on that fatal day
He met his only conqueror,
In Nombre Dios bay.

There, in his shotted hammock swung,
Amid the surges' sweep,
Across the quiet deep.

And dreams of dark Ulloa's bay
And Spanish treachery;
And how he tracked Magellan far
He waits the look outlook's signal
Across the unknown sea.

But if Spain fires a single shot
Upon the Spanish main,
She'll come to deem the Dragon dead
Has walked to life again

RAILWAY TO THE YUKON.

What the British Columbia Legislature Has Done and Will Do in This Connection.

Victoria, B.C., May 6.—The promised measure of the British Columbia Government dealing with the problem of all-Canadian railway connection with the gold fields of Northern British Columbia and the Yukon territory, as well as with the Kootenay Mining Company, has been presented to the Legislature. It provides for a loan of $5,000,000. Half of this amount was already authorized by the Legislature, so that the contemplated increase in the public debt over and above that already provided for is $2,500,000. Last year the House authorized a loan of $2,500,000, out of which the proposed railways from English Bluff to Boundary Creek via Penticton, and from Bute Inlet to Quesnelle, were to be subsidized. The present Act continues these subsidies, and adds to them $4,000 for a railway from Boundary Creek to Robson, 80 miles, and a like amount for a railway from the coast of British Columbia to Teslin Lake, 400 miles. Tabulated, the mileage provided for is as follows: Penticton to Boundary, 100 miles; Robson to Boundary, 80; English Bluff to Penticton, 230; Bute Inlet to Quesnelle, 283; coast to Teslin, 400; total, 1,040 miles. The company undertaking the construction of the Coast-Teslin road shall construct a wagon road from Glenora to Teslin Lake, within three months; also shall pay the Government 4 per cent. of the gross earnings of the railway.

BREAD RIOTS IN ITALY.

At Molfet Seven Persons Were Killed and 60 Wounded.

Rome, May 6.—Bread riots have broken out at Molfet and seven persons have been killed and 60 wounded. Owing to the Government stopping the news, it is impossible to ascertain the exact number of the killed in the riots in the different provinces, but it is believed the number already reaches 80. General Pelloux, the Minister of War, has permission to proclaim a state of siege if necessary. Forty thousand men were called under arms yesterday to reinforce the garrisons.

A Banker's Experience.

"I tried a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for a troublesome affection of the throat," writes Manager Thomas Dewson of the Standard Bank, now of 14 Melbourne Ave, Toronto. "It proved effective. I regard the remedy as simple, cheap and exceedingly good. It has hitherto been my habit to consult a physician in troubles of this nature. Hereafter, however, I intend to be my own family doctor."

MEDICAL TESTIMONY.

In regard to Sternaman's objection to going to the hospital, Dr. Frost said he regarded it as natural in such a man.

After the witness had reasoned and argued with him for three-quarters of an hour, Sternaman consented to go, and his wife said he could go, but she would not go. He expected opposition to the hospital suggestion, and more particularly in such cases as this, where the wife had a considerable walk to reach the hospital, and had small children to look after.

The witness considered that chronic arsenical poisoning might be produced by one large dose.

It was from the prisoner herself that the witness had heard the rumors of the suspicious death of her first husband, Chipman.

Dr. William C. Phelps of Buffalo, who was called in by Dr. Frost in consultation on the Sternaman case, was next placed in the box. He corroborated the testimony of Dr. Frost with regard to diagnosing the case as one of arsenical poisoning.

When cross-examined by Mr. Johnston, he said that he would not like to say that arsenic had been administered in any case until a chemical analysis had made it evident that arsenic has been discovered in the body.

Dr. Saltsman of Buffalo, who had been summoned to attend Sternaman after Dr. Frost's services had been dispensed with, testified that he had treated the patient for multiple neuritis and atrophy of the liver. He had advised that he should be sent to the hospital, and opposed taking him to Canada in his weak condition, fearing that it might cost him his life.

Mrs. Annie Franklin, a sister of the deceased man, who was present the night he died, testified that the prisoner had given him medicine after 12 o'clock.

In answer to Mr. Johnston she said she was not certain whether this medicine had been administered between 9 o'clock and 12 o'clock, as she had stated at the magistrate's trial, or after 12 o clock. She was inclined to think her evidence at the magistrate's trial was right.

Drs. Rich and Parmenter, who had examined Ezra E. Chipman, the prisoner's first husband, during his last illness, deposed that death had resulted from multiple neuritis.

Dr. Sayles, who is also a druggist of Buffalo, testified to the ease with which poisons could be procured in that city.

Dr. Langley, who had examined Sternaman for life insurance in April, 1896, testified that at the time he was perfectly healthy. His examination, however, did not cover the "spells" which he was supposed to suffer from.

An Insurance Man.

Henry C. Carshan, manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in Buffalo, deposed that that company had not paid to Mrs. Sternaman the value of the policy held in that company.

William C. Foster, secretary of the Carpenter's Union, stated that Sternaman was insured in that benefit society for $200, which would be paid to his heirs at his death, and during sickness he received $8 per week.

The evening session of the court was occupied with the reading of the depositions of Mrs. Sternaman, taken in Buffalo.

DEFENCE EVIDENCE.

Third Day in Second Trial of Mrs. Olive Adele Sternaman.

THE TESTIMONY IN HER FAVOR.

The Insurance Men, for the Crown, Stuck Well to Their Stories and Couldn't Be Shaken on Cross-Examination—The Evidence of the Undertakers Shaken—Prosecution Closed.

Cayuga, May 7.—The first witness called yesterday morning in the Sternaman case was Charles Roberts, inspector of the Metropolitan Company, who was not present. Mr. Osler called several other names, but none that he called were on hand.

"These witnesses seem to be the only people who don't know a trial is going on," remarked Chancellor Boyd.

William R. Martin of Buffalo, a fellow-workman of the deceased Ezra Chipman and George Sternaman, gave evidence. He said neither Chipman nor Sternaman was addicted to the drink habit largely.

Terrence McDode, who was Sternaman's foreman for a time in Buffalo, corroborated the former witness' statement. He said Sternaman quit work at 3.30 the day he took ill, an hour earlier than usual, complaining that he felt ill. Several other fellow-workmen of Chipman and Sternaman were called. Chipman, one of them said, ate some pie for lunch one day and immediately after was taken ill and vomited. These witnesses scouted the theory of suicide.

A brakeman named Cox, who was employed on the train on which Sternaman was brought to Canada, in answer to Mr. Johnston, said that Sternaman looked very ill and ready to die at any moment.

Avery Sternaman, a brother of the deceased, was called next. Mr. Osler asked him no questions. He said when his brother was brought from Buffalo he looked very ill and had great difficulty in swallowing his food, and had to be fed by means of a quill. The prisoner ordered the coroner's inquest.

What George Dewey Testified.

George Dewey, agent of the Metropolitan of Buffalo, said that shortly after Sternaman's death he met Mrs. Sternaman in Buffalo. She asked him as a favor not to mention the fact to anyone that her husband had $1,000 life insurance in the Metropolitan.

Mr. Johnston severely cross-examined the witness, but Dewey stuck to his story.

"What reason did Mrs. Sternaman give for telling you to keep the insurance a secret?" was asked.

"She said if her friends heard of it they would try to get some of it away from her, just as they had done before."

The evidence of the Metropolitan Life Inspector, Charles R. Roberts, was next taken. He said that in applying for the insurance on Sternaman's life the prisoner had remarked the decided symptoms between Chipman's and Sternaman's illness. According to Roberts' statement Mrs. Sternaman had offered to drop her claims to the $1,000 life insurance if the money she had paid in was paid.

"This woman," said Mr. Johnston, "who, according to the Crown, had murdered two husbands, offered to let her $1,000 go if the small amount of the policy she had paid was returned to her?"

"Yes; but we had to stop all proceedings, though."

"She was sick and tired of the whole thing, I suppose?" added Mr. Johnston.

Mr. Medlicott, local claim adjuster of the Metropolitan, also told of receiving Mrs. Sternaman's application for her husband's insurance. His evidence was somewhat similar to that of Mr. Roberts'.

Snider's Evidence Was Shattered.

The evidence of young Snider, the undertaker's son, was next taken, and Mr. Johnston succeeded in breaking it down entirely. The Crown relied upon the boy to prove that no embalming fluid had been used, whereas he practically admitted to Mr. Johnston that he did not know.

When the court re-assembled after luncheon, John Snider was placed in the witness box and his evidence taken. To Mr. Osler he said that there had been no embalming of this body, as his books would show it if there had been. He had not charged for embalming. He was certain that none of the fluid had been taken to the house.

He was then taken in hand by Mr. Johnston, who put him through such an examination that when it was finished his evidence was worthless for any purposes of the Crown. He finally admitted that there had been nothing particular in the case to fix his attention, and that in the time which had elapsed since he had forgotten all about the matter. He was then allowed to leave the witness box.

Coroner Thompson's Testimony.

Dr. David Thompson, the coroner in the case, was then sworn. It was on the strength of his affidavit that there was a quantity of fluid in the thoracic cavity when the body was exhumed that a new trial was granted. He testified to having seen the fluid, and did not think it was bloody serum from the arteries, although some of this might have entered the chest.

To Mr. Jonhston, the witness said that there might be 10 ounces of the fluid in the cavity.

To the judge, the witness said that to find fluid in a body when it was exhumed after having lain some months in the earth was so ordinary a matter that he had paid no attention to it. His reason for bringing the matter up and signing the affidavit was because Rev. J. G. Foote thought it was important.

Dr. Ellis Found Arsenic.

Dr. Ellis, the Provincial Analyst, testified that he had made a test for arsenic in the organs of George H. Sternaman, and had discovered 7½ grains. He had also made a test for other metals, such as lead and zinc, but had found none. Miss Curzon, Dr. Ellis' assistant, had also tested a portion of the stomach, and had found 9½ grains of arsenic, but no zinc.

Dr. Arthur Jukes Johnson.

Dr. Arthur Jukes Johnson of Toronto, the medical expert for the Crown, testified that he had listened to the case throughout its progress, and had concluded that it was one of arsenical poisoning. It was evident, too, from the fact that the poison was found in the stomach and intestines, that it had been administered by the mouth. This evidence was not shaken in cross-examination. This closed the case for the Crown.

Mr. Johnston made a motion before the court rose that the case be not given to the jury. He did so on the ground that, if there had been any crime committed, it had been committed in Buffalo, and the trial should be held there. His Lordship, however, decided "that the case should go to the jury, and the court rose for supper.

Defence Entered Upon.

At the evening sesion of the court the hearing of the witnesses for the defence was begun. Miss Alice Sevenpiper, the prisoner's sister; Mrs. Chipman, the mother of her first husband, and Mrs. Dora Bonestead testified that the prisoner was an attentive and loving wife and had watched her husband with every attention during his illness.

Albert Hadden, a mail-carrier, swore that he had heard Snider say that he had embalmed the body. Two residents of Selkirk, where Snider lives—John Chevalier and I. W. Holmes—swore that Snider had claimed that the whole case rested on his testimony, and that he would insist on being paid for giving it. They also swore that he had embalmed the body.

Mrs. Olive Walker of Rainham, aunt of the prisoner, swore that she and Mrs. Sevenpiper had visited the undertaker and asked him if he had embalmed the body, and he said he had not gone through a regular process, but had punctured the intestines and injected some fluid. To Mr. Osler she admitted, however, that Snider had simply shown them his books to let them see he had made no charge for embalming and therefore had not done so.

Fred. Worster and George Ward of Buffalo testified that Sternaman had been afflicted with stomach trouble in 1895 and 1896 prior to his last illness, and Worster claimed that Sternaman told him that he feared he had cancer of the stomach, because his father had died of that disease. R. W. Kasson, also of Buffalo, gave evidence as to Mrs. Sternaman's loving attributes.

Mrs. Sevenpiper, the prisoner's mother, was to have given evidence, but was too ill and will be heard to-day.

British Columbia Railway Subsidies.

Victoria, B.C., May 7.—The Government yesterday introduced a railway aid bill, which provides $4,000 per mile for the following railways: From Penticton to Boundary Creek, 100 miles; Robson to Boundary Creek, 80 miles; Pacific Coast to Penticton, 230 miles; Bute Inlet to Quesnelle, 230 miles; Teslin Lake to a British Columbia seaport, not exceeding 400 miles.

The Act provides for the commencement of the Penticton-Boundary and Robson-Boundary lines on or before Aug. 8, 1898, and on the Coast to Penticton, and Bute Inlet to Quesnelle on or before May 8, 1899. Work to commence on the Yukon line on or before June 1, 1898. The bill further stipulates in the case of the line from Robson to Boundary being built by a company entitled to a land grant, that such company shall relinquish its claim to the land grant for such portion of its line on accepting the cash subsidy.

A Peculiar Shooting Case.

Vancouver, B C., May 7.—The peculiar Blaine shooting case, where a man named Atkinson, standing in Canada, wounded a man on the other side of the international boundary line, will again attract attention. Billy Patterson, the man who was shot and who it is said was the aggressor, has just died, and the man who fired the fatal shot, J. C. Atkinson, and who had been on bail of the United States Court of Washington since the tragedy, has been taken to Whitcomb, charged with murder, and will stand his trial on this charge.

BIG BATTLE IN SIGHT.

Engagement Between Spaniards and Sampson Likely Sunday.

SPANISH WARSHIPS SIGHTED.

Persistent Rumors That the Queen Regent Has Fled the Country to Vienna—Minister Moret Makes the Speech of His Life in the Spanish Cortes—War News.

New York, May 7.—A Washington special to the Press says: The four warships seen off Barbadoes on Wednesday are the Vizcaya, Almirante Oquendo, Cristobal Colon and Infanta Maria Teresa. Somewhat confirmatory of this is the report that five warships were sighted about daylight to-day off Martinique, which is 125 miles from Barbadoes. Martinique is about four hundred miles from Porto Rico, which is undoubtedly the destination of the Spanish fleet. This indicates that an engagement between Sampson and the Spaniards is likely to occur by Sunday.

THE QUEEN FLEES.

Persistent Rumors That She Has Taken the Boy King to Vienna.

New York, May 7.—A London special says: There are persistent rumors here that the Queen Regent and King have left Madrid secretly for the frontier, their destination being Vienna. No verification is obtainable.

Porto Rico to Be Taken Monday.

A Washington special says: A Cabinet officer says to the Journal correspondent that Porto Rico will be taken by Monday and General Wasley Merritt will be the first military governor.

Havana Defences Strengthened.

A Washington special says: The Navy Department has received advices from Havana that the defences about the city have been so strengthened that any attacking force by sea or land will have desperate work to overcome them.

A STRAIGHT CHALLENGE.

The Minister of the Colonies Arouses Great Enthusiasm in the Spanish Cortes.

Madrid, May 7.—In the Cortes yesterday Senor Moret, Minister for the Colonies, in a speech universally regarded as the best in his political career, and repeatedly interrupted by enthusiastic cheering, insisted that the throne, "occupied briefly by a young and promising monarch and afterwards by his widow and child, must not be blamed for the policy of different Governments." The responsibility existed, he declared, as the burden of all, and each should bear his share, instead of trying to shift the blame to a neighbor. He defended autonomy "as granted to Cuba" generously under the friendly advice of the powers in order to deprive the Americans of a pretext to foment discontent and rebellion.

With regard to the question of unpreparedness, Senor Moret candidly confessed that he had not believed until the very last that war would come, as he considered the Americans were "incapable of attacking Spain without the slightest cause," but "when convinced that the United States was bent on despoiling Spain," then, with the entire Cabinet he "seriously prepared to repel an unjust attack, purchasing and fitting out warships and procuring war material irrespective of cost," resolving to "make a strong stand and converting a peace-loving into a war-like Cabinet."

Senor Moret challenged a direct vote of confidence, declaring that the Government would resign if it were not carried.

SENOR POLO'S LEAVETAKING

From Toronto May Have Been Brought About by Pressure From Lord Salisbury.

London, May 7.—According to a despatch to the Standard from Toronto it is believed that Senor Polo y Bernabe's departure was due to representations from Lord Salisbury based upon a report by the British Ambassador at Washington, Sir Julian Pauncefote, that American opinion was opposed to Senor Polo remaining in Canada.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, writes to the committee arranging the Anglo-Saxon dinner that he is "deeply interested in any effort to promote the good feeling which should exist between the United States and this country."

Newspaper Man Shot.

New York, May 7.—The Journal says Halstead, the correspondent of the London Graphic and New York Herald, has been shot at San Juan, Porto Rico, as a spy. He was arrested several weeks ago for taking photographs of the fortifications.

The Murdered Missionaries.

London, May 7.—The Colonial Office yesterday received the names of the American missionaries who were murdered during the rebellion at Haingay, in the Sherboro district of Sierra Leone, west coast of Africa. They are Mr. and Mrs. Cain and the Misses Archer, Hatfield and Schenck. The other missionaries, Mr. and Mrs. Burtner, Mr. and Mrs. Minshall and the Misses Mullen and Ward, are safe at Freetown.

Jeffries Beats Sharkey.

San Francisco, Cal., May 7.—James J. Jeffries got the decision over Thomas J. Sharkey in their fight here last night at the end of the 20th round.

Mr. Gladstone Just the Same.

London, May 7.—The bulletin issued at Hawarden last evening says that Mr. Gladstone's condition is unchanged.

A strong anti-English feeling is said to be developing in Cuba.

That Tired Feeling

An exceedingly common and dangerously significant condition.

A warning which must be heeded, or, as with the express train which fails to regard the danger signal, disaster must follow.

A sure indication of thin, weak, impoverished blood. A certain admonition that the blood is not properly feeding the nerves, tissues and organs of the body.

An imperative demand for the tonic, vitalizing effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla upon the blood.

Weak, nervous, tired men and women are found everywhere. Men strive too hard to "keep their ends up," women too anxiously work "on their nerves" to meet the demands of home and society, all have too little sleep, and the excessive drain on strength and nervous energy will soon completely ruin health.

The strength must be built up by pure blood, and the nerves must also find in pure blood the proper nerve food. For this purpose nothing equals Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The thousands of wonderful cures it has accomplished, the like of which no other medicine and no combination of medicines can show, prove its curative merit; prove that it has never been equalled as a blood medicine; prove that Hood's Sarsaparilla is indeed the ideal spring medicine, the best nerve and stomach tonic, the one true blood purifier.

"I was feeling tired all the time, as tired in the morning as I was at night. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and it has helped me so that I have no such feelings now. My little girl suffered with pain in her stomach, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured her." JAMES T. MANN, Hubbardston, Mass.

Weakness and Loss of Appetite.

"Last spring my little girl had no appetite and was weak. I gave her one-half bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which cured her. We will now take no other medicine but Hood's Sarsaparilla, and recommend it to everyone for weakness and loss of appetite." WM. F. HANES, Brysonia, Pa.

All Tired Out.

"My husband was all tired out and run down in health. He felt the need of something to build him up, and he began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills and the result was very satisfactory. We regard Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills as excellent medicines." MRS. H. L. MOWRY, Towanda, Pa.

Tired and Worn Out Feeling.

"I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and cannot say too much in its favor. It has done me more good than any medicine I have ever tried. I have advised my friends to use it for a tired and worn out feeling, as I know that it gives relief." WILLIAM T. HURDLE, Hollyville, Del.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE Yankee war despatches corrupt accepted spelling. All respectable authorities spell the name of the capital of Philippine Island, in the China Sea, thus—Manilla. If the despatches can't give us straight news they might certainly give us straight spelling.

THE Mail and Empire "jumps upon" the Globe for printing a report of the loss of life at the Philippine performance, between the Spaniards and Americans, that may be unfounded. The Globe's "fake" Philippine report should be filed as an off-set against the Mail and Empire's fake report of the mule-murdering bombardment of Matanzas.

THE big dailies are squabbling over the question of which supplies the best war news. So far there has been little war news worth a rush supplied by any of them. We had the bombardment of Manilla reported in letters of fire, with gore plentifully thrown in, and the story resolved itself finally into a slaughtered mule. We have some reports of a fight at the Philippines, but there has not as yet been received any reliable details, though there have been columns of speculative intelligence printed. Though the rubbish of little details of the war have taken enough newspaper space to cover the Island of Cuba, the record of events of importance sufficient to find their way into history could be printed on a postal card, with space to spare.

IT doesn't seem exactly good form for Sir Charles Tupper to take advantage of his parliamentary position to assail a man whose hands are tied and who has no chance to reply. In the House on Thursday Sir Charles made a vicious attack on General Gascoigne, an Imperial officer in charge of the Canadian forces, whose only crime lies in the fact that General Gascoigne considered it in the interests of the service that a relative of Sir Charles Tupper should be removed from a position of military responsibility, which events showed that he was not filling in the interests of the service. Governor-General, Commander-in-Chief or even the Queen herself, if she should cross his path, is not safe from Sir Charles Tupper's vindictive spirit and vituperative tongue.

THE PUBLIC EXPENDITURE.

The indications are that the Laurier Government is making a strong stand against extravagance in the expenditure of public money, and every patriotic Canadian will join in the hope that it may be successful. The struggle has been severe, and it may be protracted, but it has been made absolutely necessary by the Conservative saturnalia of flagitious corruption of the latter regime.

Some additional outlay on capital account will be necessary to complete the public works taken over from the late Government, especially the St. Lawrence Canals, which have been kept dawdling along as if for the purpose of spreading them over as many general elections as possible. No new work of any great importance has been undertaken by the party in power, and if the ministry are wise, they will see that none of any account is projected. The country needs a reduction of the public debt, much more than it needs an extension of railways.

Much of the annual expenditure is fixed, and some of it is stationary. The country's credit must be maintained, but the rate of interest should be lowered as rapidly as possible. The cost of civil government and legislation should be cut down in every direction with relentless determination. A good beginning has been made by stopping the statutory increases of civil service salaries this year, but that should be regarded as only the beginning. The service itself is outrageously over-manned, and widespread reduction should be effected. There is no reason why the hours of labour for civil servants should not be increased. Their work is easy, and their burden is light. They can well afford to stick at the former and bear the latter from 8 to 5, which would amount to a twenty-five per cent. addition to the staff.

By maintaining the present admirable revenue tariff, and greatly reducing the annual expenditure, the way would be opened up for a rapid reduction of the public debt through accruing annual surpluses. This movement will be aided by the present war between the United States and Spain, which, whatever else may be the result, is sure to induce a long period of high taxation, and a consequent unfavourable contrast with Canada from the standpoint of both capital and labour. This will be our opportunity of securing an extensive addition to our population, and fortunately we have had a progressive government in power long enough to perfect the machinery for securing immigrants.—Brantford Expositor.

CANADIAN GOODS IN JAPAN.

Mr. George Anderson, the Dominion Trade Commissioner to Japan, in his report to the Minister of Trade and Commerce, mentions a number of lines in which the prospect of developing a lucrative trade between Canada and the land of the Mikado is good. The following item is of special interest:

"British and United States manufacturers are represented, and the sales are quite large, with the sure prospect of a large growth. Japan is certainly an inviting field for our makers, as bicycles are becoming very popular among the Japanese. Wheels to sell at 100 yen, equal to $50 gold, would find a ready sale. High Grade wheels to retail at 150 to 175 yen, would also sell freely, as better qualities are much appreciated by the well-to-do Japanese, as well as by foreigners. All bicycles should be light, strong and handsomely decorated. The Japanese being of small stature, the frames would require to be 22 to 23 inches; of course for foreigners, the ordinary sizes of frames in use in Canada would be suitable. There is absolutely no demand for ladies' wheels, except a few for the use of foreigners. The Japanese ladies have not yet adopted the European costume, and it would be impossible for them to ride a wheel wearing their native style of dress. The bicycles manufactured in Japan are are considered inferior.

As a matter of fact many of the missionaries in China, of both sexes, have already provided themselves with wheels, and find that they answer their purposes much better than the native or jinkrikisha method of travelling. Nor is it likely the women of Japan will long rest content with a costume that debars their use of the exhilarating, healthful and useful wheel. Before its onward march even Dame Fashion, with centuries of usage to back up her sway, will be compelled to yield.

POLICY AND PRACTICE OF THE GOVERNMENT.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT'S REPLY TO OPPOSITION CRITICISM.

How the Liberal Government is Trying to Lift the Mortgage which Conservative Rule has Placed upon the Country.

The closing sentences of Sir Richard Cartwright's speech on the budget are given below, as worthy of careful perusal:

I grant that we have not done all that some of us had hoped to do. It is not possible—the hon. gentleman (Mr. Foster) to the contrary, notwithstanding—to undo in one single year, or even in two years, all that the Conservatives succeeded in doing during a period of eighteen years. If in a corresponding period we have no better record to show than they, I would be willing, for one, to submit to the severest censure and punishment which can be inflicted upon us, though probably by that time, it will not much concern either myself or my hon. friend (Sir Charles Tupper) opposite. The truth is that we have found ourselves in the position of being heirs to a deeply mortgaged estate. There are two ways in which we can get out of that awkward position. We can reduce the rate of interest, and we are doing it in spite of the remonstrances of hon. gentlemen opposite, or we can do the other thing: we can improve and develop the productiveness of our estate. We can—and I think we will be able to in a short period of time—we can increase the population of Canada to such an extent that the same results will be attained as if we had been able to

CUT DOWN THE EXPENDITURE

by even as many millions as we had hoped in our fondest expectations. We may not be able to reduce the expenses of the service, but we can get a better service. In all these ways we can increase and improve the efficiency of the Government of Canada. This we desire to do; this we hope to do. I think, Sir, that in that way, in all probability the real safety and the real advantage which Canada is likely to derive from the present period of prosperity is likely to remain with us. I cannot forbear saying one thing—and I think I am justified in saying it—I verily believe that if, eighteen years ago, the people of Canada had been content to go on under the reasonable revenue tariff they then enjoyed, the manufacturers of Canada as a whole, for whose benefit these enormous additional taxes were imposed, would have been infinitely better off than they are to-day. Their progress I believe would have been as great; I am certain it would have been infinitely solider and more permanent, and it would not have been attended with the disadvantages and inconveniences which have flowed from the system then adopted. I do not want to dwell upon these themes too long, but I do say—and I think I would obtain a

PRETTY UNIVERSAL VERDICT

from these gentlemen when I say it—that on the whole and all things considered a very grave error was committed when Canada turned her back on the well-known fiscal policy of Great Britain and took up with a system of protection, which was after all but cast-off rags of Americanism. It may be that we have been to blame in some respects; it may be that we have not been able to live up in all respects to the expectations our friends formed, but I repeat that if it can be shown that in the estimates we submit there is any undue extravagance, any undue expenditure that cannot be reasonably defended, we will not be afraid or ashamed to retrace our steps if good cause be shown. But I do protest that it is not right or fair or reasonable for gentlemen opposite, who laid burdens upon us which we are now endeavouring to liquidate, to complain of our course. With respect to the charge that we have increased the capital account, I may say that with one exception all the increased charges on capital account have accrued from obligations contracted by the late Government. All we have done has been as business men to hurry forward such enterprises as the completion of the canals, in order that they might become within the lifetime of the present generation of some little use to the people of Canada. The

which the hon. gentleman complains of, I am quite willing to stand by, and abide the judgment of the people of Canada. But I may remind the House of one fact, which they very well know, that during last session, when we were proposing the policy of giving a large subsidy to the Canadian Pacific Railway for the construction of the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, there was no man in this House who was so anxious as the hon. member for York—unless perhaps it was his hon. friend beside him (Sir Charles Tupper)—that that measure should be brought forward and pushed through with all speed. If I remember rightly, the hon. gentleman approved of that measure, urged it, did not divide the House upon it, or vote against it in any way; and now, after having urged and approved of and agreed to it as a necessary measure, he turns round and reproaches us with broken promises and violated pledges, because we did the very thing he urged us to do. Sir, there should be some little reasonable fairplay in these matters. I do not object, it would ill become me to object, to any amount of criticism which hon gentlemen opposite please to level against us. I am an old parliamentarian, and I am aware that official hides acquire an extraordinary toughness and thickness under the strokes that come, sometimes from supporters and sometimes from opponents;—I say I do not object to any amount of criticism; but hon. gentlemen of their standing and ability, knowing the weight which properly belongs to their words, should be a little fair and reasonable, and not endeavour as the hon. member for York did, to argue on totally false premises, and endeavour to bind us down by comparisons which do not fairly apply to the condition of things as they exist to-day. I thank the House for the extreme courtesy with which they have listened to me, and, as I promised not to be unduly long on this occasion, I now take my seat.

An alarming fact—almost an incredible one, were it not borne out by statistics, that over ninety per cent. of all post mortem examinations have proved the existence of kidney disease. If you experience straining, cutting pain, scalding, or if there is bricky dust, or chalky sediment, they go to prove that the kidneys are not performing their functions; that there are foreign substances there that sooner or later will clog up and stop the whole machinery of the human anatomy. South American Kidney Cure dissolves and dispels all these pirates of good health quickly and surely. Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my thanks for your cheque just handed to me, for $3,991.80, in settlement of my $2,500 Fifteen Year Endowment Policy in your Company. Such a result as this, after the risk on my life has been carried for fifteen years, beginning from forty-five years of age, argues one thing strongly, namely, that the management of the North American Life must be in competent hands. The other options you have offered me, viz: a Paid up Life policy for $3510.00, or a Life Annuity for $461.30, are, I presume, equally liberal, and it affords me much pleasure to recommend your Company to my friends as any one desiring insurance.

THE DIVIDED TORIES.

Sir Charles Tupper and Mr. Wallace Do Not Agree.

LATTER THROWS LEADER'S YOKE

Mr. George Johnson, the Dominion Statistician, Who, Mr. Charlton Says, Is Now Doing Useful Work for the Country, the Subject of the Difference—The Paris Exposition.

Ottawa, May 7.—A divided Opposition was in evidence yesterday. Sir Charles Tupper, who so vilely scored the day before General Gascoigne, an officer and a gentleman in Her Majesty's service who "was well known, not only in Canada, but abroad as well," stood sponsor for Mr. Johnson, the Dominion statistician, whom he so described. It all, apparently, with the vigorous-languaged leader of the Opposition depends upon whose ox is gored. Mr. Wallace, who would if he could be, even as Sir Charles, a self-appointed leader of the Opposition, boldly declared that he did not share the nominal Conservative leader's opinion of Mr. Johnson. The incident is only of moment in showing how the Tory house is divided.

After routine Mr. Bennett drew attention to the hindrance to administration of justice in the Rat Portage district, as a result of the recent division of the Thunder Bay and Rat Portage district. He asked if the Government would take steps to have this state of affairs remedied by the appointment of a judge or some judicial officer.

The Premier replied that it would not be an unpleasant duty for the Government to do so, and if the papers were given to him he would refer them to the Minister of Justice.

Mr. Clarke asked if any one had been appointed to enforce the alien labor law in Toronto

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that he had been informed that all the men imported from the United States had been sent back, so that there was no need now to appoint an inspector.

Mr. Clarke observed that he would send the First Minister papers which would convince him he had been misinformed. The Premier promised the matter would be looked into.

The Government will take Mondays, by arrangement, after next Monday, for the remainder of the session.

A discussion ensued upon the report of the Standing Orders Committee, the result of which was an understanding that next session the rule would be rigidly enforced which prohibits the reception of petitions for private bills after a fixed date.

Canadian Year Book.

The House then went into committee on the estimates. On the item of $4,000 for the statistical year book, Dr. Sproule urged that a larger and wider distribution of the year book should be made as an educational work.

Mr. McMullen vigorously attacked the year book and Mr. Johnson, who, he said was not an official of long standing, having put in most of his time as a newspaper man.

Sir Charles Tupper's Certification.

Sir Charles Tupper disagreed with Mr. McMullen, whose attack was most unwarranted, inasmuch as Mr. Johnson's ability was well known, not only in Canada, but abroad as well.

Mr. Charlton quite agreed with the Opposition as to the value of the statistician's service. Doubtless, he said, they in the past may have been colored by political sympathies, but at present he was doing useful work. Mr. Charlton, however, thought that greater economy might be practiced and political pulls disregarded by the Government.

Mr. McMullen wanted to know what was being done in the way of economy in this branch.

Mr. Fisher replied that the branch consisted of Mr. Johnson and five assistants, with four temporary clerks, a total of ten. As to the work Mr. Johnson was doing, he was continually preparing statistics, keeping up the statistics for the yearly report. Then there were the criminal statistics. Just now, in addition to this work, he was compiling a report on the pulp industry, one of the most promising in the country. Besides, there was a continual demand upon the Minister for information and these letters were handed over to Mr. Johnson for reply.

To Mr. McMullen the Minister replied that he had reduced Mr. Johnson's staff by three employes.

Mr. McNeill expressed his satisfaction with the reply of the Minister and paid a tribute to Mr. Johnson's public usefulness.

Mr. Wallace asked if Mr. McMullen was satisfied with the Minister's explanation, at which Mr. McMullen nodded, whereupon Mr. Wallace observed that the honorable gentleman must be easily satisfied. For himself, he did not share the high opinion of Mr. Johnson and his work entertained by other members of the Opposition. The item passed.

Canada at the Paris Exposition.

On the item of $30,000 for the Paris Exposition of 1900, the Minister explained that, after consultation with Dr. Saunders, Dr. G. M. Dawson and Prof. Robertson, he decided that a few dollars spent early in preparations would save hundreds of dollars when the rush began. He had determined that Canada should be fittingly represented at the great exhibition, but so far he had no definite plans. He proposed to go over to Paris this summer to look over the ground, but regretted that the space allotted to Canada was not as great as he thought she was entitled to. Canada has asked for 60,000 square feet, but the total allotted for all the British colonies was but 54,000, of which India would get 23,000, Canada, Australia and South Africa 12,000 feet each.

Mr. Clarke considered that Canada would benefit by an exhibit of Northwest products at the Mid-States Fair at Omaha this summer. Did the Minister, he asked, purpose doing anything at Omaha?

Mr. Fisher said the supplementary estimates would contain an item for the Omaha Exhibition.

Replying to Mr. McMullen, the Minister said he was not in a position to say whether Canadian live stock would be represented at Paris.

The item carried.

At the evening sitting the Public Works appropriations were taken up.

Funds to Ship Canal.

On the item of $250,000 for the St. Lawrence Ship Canal, Mr. Tarte explained that four dredges would be at work on the channel this year at a cost of $20,000 each. He contemplated building two new steel dredges, costing $75,000; two tugs, costing $12,000; two scows, costing $12,000; one stone lifter, $10,000; one testing scow, $6,000. These new boats would cost $115,000. There was also the question of the department acquiring either a shipyard at Sorel, or a steel steamer, which was greatly needed for the services of the department.

On the vote of $50,000, in addition to the $100,000 voted last year, towards the reconstruction of the Western Block roof, Mr. Tarte explained the delay in the progress of the work, and said the expenditure would be about $200,000 in all. The end of September would, he thought, see the work through. The item passed.

The House adjourned at midnight.

A BROKER BROKEN.

Stomach Troubles, Indigestion and its Distressing Accompaniments Were Snapping the Life Strings—South American Nervine Proved "Better Than Gold."

Mr. John Boyer, money broker, Kincardine, Ont., writes:—"Three years ago I was very much troubled with indigestion. I was a great sufferer. I procured and tried South American Nervine; a few doses wonderfully helped me, and two or three bottles cured me. I have no hesitation in recommending it heartily to all sufferers from stomach trouble."—Sold by H. S. Macdonald.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

Mans Bros.' and Wolf Bros.' shoe factories at Cincinnati, O., each seven stories, were completely gutted by fire. Loss estimated at $200,000.

John A. Knox, a well-to-do Irishman, for several years resident of Victoria, B.C., has suicided by shooting himself through the mouth. No cause for the suicide is known.

Corporal Cleary of the New Orleans police force was shot and killed by a negro. Later the same negro shot and killed Police Officer Trump. A crowd chased the negro into a barn and burned him.

Chief Justice Meredith has granted the Star Life Insurance Company an order empowering them to at once demand the possession of Broadway Tabernacle, Toronto. The trustees have been served with a notice to this effect.

There was a serious blaze in the stables of W. H. Muckle, cartage agent, Toronto. Two horses were burned to death and one was so badly injured that it will probably have to be killed. The damage is about $800 to the building and $300 to contents. A boys' bonfire was the cause.

The officials of the Grand Trunk Railway are busy with the heavy freight traffic. The export trade in cattle also shows a marked increase. The Canadian Pacific Railway has anticipated an increase in freight traffic and are rushing to completion the 250 flat cars now being built at Perth.

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease—rheumatism—consumption—skin disease, the "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

Send 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, and receive free a copy of Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y.

A Prominent School Teacher's Experience.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND DOES A MARVELLOUS WORK FOR HIM.

HIS LONG YEARS OF SUFFERING ARE ENDED.

Neuralgia is Banished, and a Shattered Nervous System Made Strong and Vigorous.

All who have made use of Paine's Celery Compound have experienced its wondrous strengthening effects upon the nervous system. This disease-curing medicine acts directly and promptly on the blood, taking away every trace of poison from the clogged and vitiated life stream. Thus, when the blood is pure and flowing freshly and freely, and the nerves braced and in good condition, neuralgia and all kindred diseases take their flight never to return.

This is the month to banish nervousness, headache, insomnia, kidney and liver troubles. This is the time when the neuralgic and rheumatic should get rid of their misery and pains, so that they may fit themselves for work and enjoyment during the summer season. Paine's Celery Compound is the only medicine that can effectually rid the system of all unhealthy conditions; it is beyond all question the surest and best medicine that ailing people can use. Mr. Leverett A. Belyea, Hamstead, N.B., writes as follows: WELLS & RICHARDSON CO.,

GENTLEMEN,—In the winter of 1884 I was taken with a severe attack of neuralgia in the head and shoulders. Since then it became seated, and I gave up the idea of ever being cured. Have taken medicine prescribed by different physicians, but all to no avail.

Some three months ago I was induced to try a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound. Before I had taken half of it I began to feel better. Sleep, which in my early days appeared so refreshing, has in these years of affliction been made up of frightful dreams; but not so now, as the medicine began to have a telling effect on my nerves.

I have taken three bottles of the glorious medicine, and to-day I can say that it is the first time in eleven years that I have felt none of these piercing pains to which I had once been a victim. Let me say to any person who may read this testimonial in this province or elsewhere, that if you discredit this statement, just write me and I will only be too glad to inform you of what has cured me of neuralgia and a shattered nervous system.

Yours respectfully,
LEVERETT A. BELYEA.

The War News Compiled and Condensed Into Small Space as Befits Stuff That Is Chiefly Theory and Rumor.

The storm of civil war is fast approaching in Spain.

Firing heard off Charleston, but no vessels sighted.

Spanish torpedo boat Temevario sailed from Buenos Ayres, going northward.

Two little Spanish fishing schooners were captured and taken to Key West.

Martial law has been proclaimed in Carthagena, but the authorities cannot enforce it.

Riot is still rampant in Spain. The mob are shouting "Give us Weyler or Don Carlos."

The Pope is said to have telegraphed the Queen Regent of Spain advising her to sue for mediation of the powers.

Hong-Kong advices received at Madrid say the Americans are reported to have landed at Cavite after a fresh bombardment.

Spanish authorities are circulating a report that Dewey has been entrapped at Manila and cannot send out news as to his doings.

A despatch from Singapore to a Boston man says Commodore Dewey is not executing the duties of Governor-General at Manila.

PHYSIC TO THE DOGS.

And Rely on Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets to Cure Dyspepsia.

This is a Prominent Doctor's Advice—He has Proved the Value of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"'Throw physic to the dogs,' is good advice to sufferers from dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, heartburn, catarrh of the stomach, waterbrash, or any other stomach trouble. But it does not go far enough. To be complete it should be: 'Throw physic to the dogs, and use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.' Act on this advice, and you'll go through life without pain from any of the complaints I have named."

Such was the remark of an eminent Toronto physician, to a dyspeptic patient recently.

"But, doctor," said the patient, "how can Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cure all these diseases?"

"They are not diseases," was the answer. "They are the indications of disease. They all spring from one cause. I don't claim that Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure a host of diseases, but they do cure dyspepsia and indigestion, and these cause all the troubles I have named. So, you see, that by removing the cause of unnatural conditions they banish the conditions also, which are looked upon as separate diseases."

"I don't believe in 'patent medicines,'" went on the doctor. "But Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are not a patent medicine. They are made of the only product that can digest human food. Now as dyspepsia and indigestion are caused by food lying undigested in the stomach, Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are the only cure for these diseases. Remove the disease, and its attendant evils disappear, just as the branches fall with the tree when it is cut down.

"Try a box, and see if I am not right."

Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cents a box, six boxes, for $2.50, or sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

FEMALE WEAKNESS CURED.

Mrs. Saunders Made Well and Strong by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Brantford, April 25—(Special)—The wives and mothers of Ontario are the most ardent disciples of Dodd's way of curing curing Diseases of Women—i.e. by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This is natural, for no medicine, no earth, no agency known to man has saved women one tithe of the agony that Dodd's Kidney Pills have banished.

Mrs. F. Saunders, of Brantford, tells her suffering sisters what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for her: I have been a martyr to Female Weakness for the past year and suffered terribly. Dodd's Kidney Pills made me strong and well and healthy, though several other remedies I used did me no good whatever."

So the record grows. Cures made every day. Failures—never.

Liver troubles, biliousness, sallow complexion, yellow eyes, jaundice, etc., yield to the curative powers of Laxa-Liver Pills. They are sure to cure.

DYING BY INCHES!

But Dodd's Kidney Pills will Yet Renew Life.

Thousands of persons die in the prime of life because doctors think Bright's Disease and Diabetes incurable. But Dodd's Kidney Pills cure them both. They have cured thousands of cases.

These diseases and other Kidney complaints are as common as ordinary colds. But people don't realize that they are afflicted till the disease has eaten deep into the system. Even then, Dodd's Kidney Pills will positively cure.

Thousands of people are dying on their feet, but do not realize it. They notice one or more of these symptoms: shortness of breath, loss of memory, failing sight, ravenous appetite, pale or reddish urine, with brick-colored deposit, scalding when urinating, constipation, nervousness, pains in the loins. Their only hope is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They won't fail. They never do.

DEWEY'S DESPATCH

Reports His One Sided Victory at Manilla Last Sunday Morning.

The Commodore Says he Cut the Manilla Cable Himself.

NO AMERICANS KILLED—VERY FEW INJURED.

Another Despatch States Eleven Spanish Vessels Destroyed and 700 Spaniards Killed and Wounded—Manilla Batteries Silenced—Dewey Hasn't Force Enough to Land, but he Commands the Situation.

Special 3 p.m. dispatch to the Examiner.

Reported Report From Manilla.

New York, May 7, 6 a.m.—The World in an extra edition just published has the following copyright despatch from Hong Kong: "I have just arrived here on the United States revenue cutter, McCulloch, with a report of the American triumph at Manilla. The entire Spanish fleet of eleven vessels was destroyed, three hundred Spanish were killed and four hundred wounded. The American loss was none killed, but six were slightly wounded. Not one of the American ships were injured."

Commodore Dewey's Report on the Way.

Washington, May 7.—The Navy Department has received a cablegram from Hong Kong, announcing the arrival there of the revenue cutter McCulloch. It will be some hours before Commodore Dewey's report can be made public.

Deciphering the Despatch.

Washington, May 7.—At 9.30 a. m. Navy Department received the long expected cablegram from Dewey. It is now being deciphered and will be made public as soon as translated.

Supposed Spanish Fleet off Martinique.

London, May 7—Special from Fort De France, capital of the Island of Martinique, French West Indian Islands, says: Five war ships, supposed to be Spanish, were sighted this morning, heading for Porto Rico.

U. S. Cruiser Fired Upon.

Havana, May 7—U. S. Cruiser was fired upon in front of Elmarro at 5 o'clock today. The cruiser returned without being touched.

What Dewey's Despatch Says.

Washington, May 7—In brief Dewey states that he has silenced the batteries completely, but he cut the cable himself, and he has the bay and everything else completely at his mercy. Has been unable to take possession of the town of Manilla for lack of men.

Washington, May 7.—Dewey's report longer than expected. The text will be given out soon as completely translated.

No Americans Killed at Manilla.

Washington, May 7.—Dewey's report says none of his men were killed and few were injured. The American warships were uninjured. Dewey's forces were not sufficient to make a landing, but this in no way interfered with complete control, he exercises of city and fortifications.

Englishman Arrested as a Spy at Cadiz.

Cadiz, May 7.—Englishman arrested while sending a message, giving details of movements of Spanish warships. Suspected of being a spy.

PERSONAL.

Rev. J. C. Davidson is in Colborne for Sunday, taking the services of the incumbent, Rev. Geo. Webb, who takes the services in St. Luke's to-morrow.

Rev. S. J. Shorey goes to Cobourg to-morrow to preach Sunday school anniversary sermons, occupying the pulpit of the Rev. H. T. Lewis, who will conduct the services in the George street church.

The Orillia Times contains the following complimentary reference to Mr. G. E. Whiten, of town: Mr. Geo. E. Whiten, of Peterborough, spent a couple of days in town this week. He has a very thrifty look about him, and is putting on weight in his advancing years. Peterborough evidently agrees with him. His many friends in Orillia were pleased to see him, and his hand was well shaken, whenever he appeared on the street. Mr. Whiten has leased his handsome residence to Mr. W. H. Tudhope, and was in town to arrange details.

In the EXAMINER'S report of the adjourned Vestry meeting of St. John's there was recorded the appointment of a deputation to ask Rev. E. V. Stevenson to re-consider his resignation as Curate of the Parish, presented at that meeting. It is a pleasure to note that the committee was successful in inducing Mr. Stevenson to withdraw his resignation. This is a decision which will be heard with pleasure by not only the members of the congregation of St. John's, but by many outside of it among our citizens, to whom Mr. Stevenson's geniality, frank character and fine, manly qualities have very strongly appealed. Mr. Stevenson is a preacher of unusual ability and a faithful and energetic parish worker, whose absence would have been greatly felt in case of his leaving Peterborough.

KILLED BY THE KLONDYKE FLYER.

Mrs. May Struck by a C. P. R. Express Train.

FOOT CAUGHT IN THE TRACK.

And Held Her Until She Was Thrown into the Ditch by the Engine—Her Neck was Probably Broken She Never Moved after as the Train Passed.

Mrs. Mary May of Ashburnham, was struck and instantly killed by the 1.18 o'clock C.P.R. Klondyke Flyer, this afternoon, at the Stewart Street crossing, Ashburnham.

Mrs. May lives just south of the new C. P. R. bridge over the canal, and was on her way to town when the accident occurred. She was walking northward on Stewart street and was hastening to cross the track in front of the west bound express train, when her foot caught between the rail and the sidewalk, which is roughly laid down for the present. Being unable to extricate her foot, she was held in this position until the engine struck her, throwing her across the street and into a deep ditch on the opposite side of the roadway, where her blood liberally besprinkled the stones over which she rolled. Eye witnesses state that Mrs. May never moved after being thrown into the ditch and it is probable that her neck was broken by the blow. Only one external wound is visible and that is on her forehead and was caused, doubtless, by coming in contact with the stones.

Dr. Clarke was on the scene a few minutes later and found Mrs. May quite dead. Coroner Bell was present at the time the body was removed to the home of the deceased.

It was evidentlyy the heel of Mrs. May's boot which caught in the track, as it was torn off.

Engineer McGuire was driving locomotive, No. 553, which struck Mrs. May. He states that he did not see her until when he was within about 200 yards of the crossing. She was then approaching it hastily and he whistled to warn her of the proximity of the train. He states that she did not appear to hear him and kept on across the track, just reaching the other side when she was struck.

The deceased was a native of Ireland, where she was born in 1829. At the age of ten years she came to Canada and has since then been a resident of this section. The death of her husband occured some 15 years ago, when she took up residence with her son James, in Ashburnham, with whom she lived until last August. At this date she again took up housekeeping for herself.

Out of a family of fifteen children, those surviving are Michael and Timothy of Chicago; James, of Ashburnham; John, of Peterborough and Mrs. Henderson, of Chicago.

LACROSSE.

There were eighteen players out getting into shape last night on the P.A.A.A. grounds.

It is evident that the Juniors are going to put on a very strong team this year. There is a lot of new blood turning out.

The next practice is on Monday evening. As there is only two weeks in which to get into shape before the 24th, all who wish to play on either team on that day will have to turn out regularly.

The Toronto News says:—The entering of Orillia in the senior series along with Peterborough will give the C. L. A. senior series a representative character, clubs in both Western and Eastern Ontario having jumped into championship race.

THE RING.

Quite a number of sports witnessed a spirited boxing contest last evening between "Tom, the Glommer," and "Maggie Sheppard."

"Margaret L." was the stronger and had the longer reach, but "The Glommer" had the wind and it was difficult to say how the event would have turned out if the "go" had been been finished. It was called a draw in the sixth round, as "The Glommer" was doing too much clinching and "Maggie" was striking in the break away.

Both lads displayed great pluck and went at it hammer-and-tongs from the start. In the third round "Maggie" scored two knock downs, but "The Glommer" came up fresh after each.

This is "The Glommer's" fifth contest.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.

A NON-JURY SITTING WILL BE HELD NEXT WEEK.

Five Cases in the Civil Docket to Come up Before Mr. Justice Ferguson on Monday.

The High Court of Justice opens on Monday afternoon next at one o'clock before Mr. Justice Ferguson. The docket will be on as follows:

J. C. Kells and W. T. Wood vs. W. H. Coombe, W. A. Coombe, N. F. Coombe and Mary Richards—a case in which the plaintiffs ask that the court shall decree probate of the last will and testament of the late Wm. Coombs, of Millbrook. The defendants object to the probating of the will in which the plaintiffs are named as executors and ask that the late Wm. Coombe be declared to have died intestate; on the ground that the will was obtained by fraud and that the plaintiffs are not fit and proper persons to act as executors.

A. A. Smith for plaintiffs; R. Ruddy for defendants.

Miles vs. Campbell—The plaintiff is a farmer residing in Dummer, and the defendant is a Keene merchant.

In September, 1894, plaintiff purchased from defendant, through his agent, John Burnham, the east half of lot No. 6, in the 4th concession of Dummer for $2,200, of which he paid $1,110 00 cash, the balance being left on mortgage. Plaintiff claims that he paid the balance of the purchase money from time to time to the agent of the defendant, and is now entitled to a discharge of the mortgage.

The defendant denies receiving the balance due on the property, and states that the late John Burnham had no authority, expressed or implied, to collect the money.

Dumble & Johnston for plaintiff; Dennistoun, Peck & Stevenson for defendant.

Stethem vs. Consolidating Gold Mining Co.—In this case George Stethem asks that his claim on the lands of the defendants for tools, etc., purchased, be liquidated before such properties are disposed of.

Laidlaw, Kappelle & Bicknell, Toronto for plaintiff; McCarthy, Osler, Hoskin & Creelman, for defendants.

Knox vs. McNeilly—The plaintiff, John Knox, is a farmer residing in Asphodel and the defendant, who is the wife of Robert McNeilly and widow of the late Thos. Scott, lives in the same township.

The plaintiff, who is sole surviving executor of the will of the late Thos. Scott, asks that the estate now be divided up amongst his children, the youngest of whom is now of age and claims that Mrs. McNeilly refuses to give an account of her trusteeship, which he desires the court to compel.

The defendant states that she has already divided the estate.

Hall & Hayes for plaintiff; G. J. Sherry, of Norwood, for defendant.

Edmund Johns vs. Jas. McNeilly et al.—In this case the plaintiff is suing to recover land given to his daughter on the understanding that she was to pay to him a certain sum annually.

The defendants deny that there was any agreement to pay such sum.

The parties are all of Belmont.

G. J. Sherry, Norwood, for plaintiff; W. A. F. Campbell, Norwood, for defendants.

PREPARATIONS FOR THE BIG C.W.A. MEET.

WHICH IS TO BE HELD HERE ON DOMINION DAY.

Local Bicyclists Hard at Work Perfecting the Programme and Arranging the Various Details Which Have to be Considered.

Commercial travellers state that every town in Ontario is going to send a big delegation to the big Provincial meet here on July 1st. Everyone is talking of it in Toronto and the crowd which comes from that city will run up into the thousands. Peterborough is so handy that every wheelman from the city is apparently coming down to have a hand in the day's sport.

The local committee in charge of the affair is pushing things along. The Driving Park has been rented and a good deal of work has been done on the track, which has been broken up, levelled, rolled and got down to a pretty fair state. One week before July 1st the club takes possession of the track and will then put on the finishing touches. As far as care and attention and careful work will go the track will be in capital shape, for none but the best will answer.

The arrangement of the grounds will be somewhat altered. The present entrance gates will be closed and re-opened further to the east, quite at the corner of the grounds. The carriage entrance will be fenced off. The space enclosed by the track will be available for vehicles, and to cross the track a driveway will be laid down on the south side of the ground. Plans are being prepared for additional grand stand accommodation, bringing the space for this purpose up to a seating capacity for 4,000. The stand will be very strongly constructed, and while high enough to afford a good view of the track will be kept down as much as possible. It is probable that this stand will be built in two sections, one on each side of the present stand. Checking stands for bicycles will be provided. Large refreshment booths will be built along the fence to the right of the present entrance and inside grounds. The press will have special quarters in front of the grand stand, in fact better facilities than they have yet had at any meet.

The general public has no idea of the expense which is entailed by holding the meet here. When it is figured out that 16 gold medals for the amateur riders are required, and $650 for the professionals, and three gorgeous banners for the cooks' parade, as well as $1,800 for incidentals, an estimate can be formed of the work which those looking after the financial end, have before them.

While the arrangements in general are in the hands of the local committee, the C.W.A. has rights that must be deferred to. Consequently a great deal of the preliminary work has to be submitted to the officers of the C. W. A. for approval, and as fast as arrangements are made the details are submitted. The entry sheets for the races, a very important paper, has been got out and sent to the chairman of the Racing Board for approval. As soon as passed upon a large number will be printed and copies mailed to the secretary of each club, to professional riders and prominent amateurs and to all manufacturers. It is interesting to note the conditions attached to the form of entry and the text shows how careful the officers of the C. W.A. are in this matter, that the amateur standing shall be strictly maintained. Professionals, of course, enter in a class by themselves.

Mr. C. H. Riggs, secretary Entertainment Committee of the Athenæum Bicycle Club, was in town a few days ago arranging for the appearance here on July 1st of the great Athenæum's band. This is one of the finest musical organizations in Toronto. They play good music and a fine ad libitum performance as well.

The Wanderers' famous band will also be here. They made more than half the fun at Chatham last year. The cook's parade put up by these rival bands is a brilliant spectacle and no end of fun. Those who have seen it says it is the best thing outside of the Wild West Show.

As arranged for with the Athenæum and Wanderers bands, two platforms will be built, one on each side of the judges' stand on the grounds. On these platforms the bands give a capital performance during the afternoon of July 1st. In addition to a programme of high class band music they put on a variety performance, embracing a lot of popular features. There will not be a dull minute all afternoon.

Toronto wants to send one of the Island League teams down for a game of baseball, to take place in the morning.

No doubt hundreds of visitors will desire to spend Sunday up the lakes. The secretary has had enquiries already from those who want to do so. If any having cottages up the lakes can find room for a visitor or two, the secretary will be glad to be so informed.

A number of photographs—small ones—are wanted of views in and about Peterborough, from which to make plates to illustrate the advance programme. Photos of buildings not needed, but pretty little scenes, glimpses in the parks and on the river, etc., will be appreciated. The committee will be glad to have the use of such and the photos will be carefully used and returned.

The programme, which is issued in advance, will be a handsome book, well illustrated with views of Peterborough and vicinity. It will give fullest particulars of all details and tell in enticing language of the good time cyclists can have by coming to Peterborough. Everything will be planned out and particularized so that the visitor can, from the time of leaving home, determine exactly how he will put in his time and how he can select the particular form of diversion he prefers. The programme of races will be given, the attractions of the town enumerated, the trips one may make and take, including "up the lakes and down the rive." A large number of coloured hangers will be issued and distributed all over the province, and page advertisements will appear in all the wheeling papers. Peterborough will be well advertised.

A Banker's Experience.

"I tried a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for a troublesome affection of the throat," writes Manager Thomas Dewson of the Standard Bank, now of 14 Melbourne Ave, Toronto. "It proved effective. I regard the remedy as simple, cheap and exceedingly good. It has hitherto been my habit to consult a physician in troubles of this nature. Hereafter, however, I intend to be my own family doctor."

THE NATIONAL HOME READING CIRCLE MEETS

AND IS INTRODUCED TO THE GENERAL PUBLIC.

It is of English Origin and Entirely Undenominational—Its Object is to Promote Systematic Reading of Good Books.

The lecture room of the Y.M.C.A. was well filled last night, and the committee of the National Home Reading Union have every reason to be satisfied that their efforts to bring that association to the notice of the public was a success.

All the speeches were interesting and to the point, whilst the music, both vocal and instrumental, was of a very high order.

The first piece on the programme was a well executed violin solo—one of Mendelsohnn's "Liede"—by Mr. McCaig, who was accompanied on the pianoforte by Miss Grant, after which the chairman explained that two of their speakers could not be present, viz. Rev. Mr. Davidson and Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, the latter owing to an important Masonic meeting, whilst the former was out of town. Mr. Davidson had, however, expressed his sympathy with the movement and his best wishes for its success. The N. H. R. U. was a society of English origin, of entirely undenominational character, having in England 8,000 members. Its object was the promotion of systematic reading of good books. The multiplication of books and readers was one of the remarkable features of our time, but much of the reading was of an inferior order. But even those who wished to study good books found it difficult by themselves to choose their reading or to pursue it systematically. To all such the N. H. R. U. was of the utmost assistance. After explaining its constitution the chairman expressed the hope that the Peterborough membership would be largely increased.

Quite a feature of the evening were the harp solos given by Mrs. Geo. Dunsford, which were loudly applauded. Then Dr. Torrance, in a carefully prepared address, spoke of the "Value of good reading." In good books we consult great minds. The man who chooses bad books instead of good is like one who should prefer bad food when good is offered him. There is not enough good reading. We read for information and for the cultivation of the mind. Of these objects the latter was more important.

Mrs. A. Parker followed with vocal music in excellent voice, gracefully responding to a hearty recall.

The chairman in introducing Sheriff Hall, said that in the Sheriff the N.H.R.U. had a friend upon whom they could always rely. The Sheriff's address was full of humour and good sense and was greatly enjoyed. His subject was "What to Read." After some witty remarks on the difficulty of giving advice, the speaker proceeded to urge the reading of history, especially Canadian and English history. Something of the origin of the English people, something of English institutions all ought to know. Then biography has a most stimulating and useful study. Poetry was not always appreciated, so much the worse for the despisers. Of the English poets something should be read and known. Shakspere, Spenser, Milton, Wordsworth, Tennyon and Browning. In fiction, English authors were the first in the world. The names of many of the best authors in this class of literature were enumerated, whose works are wholesome, entertaining and pure.

Miss Dennistoun then gave excellent instrumental music, after which Rev. S. J. Shorey in a capital speech moved the following resolution:

"That this meeting of the citizens of Peterborough, having heard the explanation of the constitution and working of the National Home Reading Union, hereby expresses its hearty approval of its objects which it believes to be of a practical character, and this meeting further promises to give its encouragement and support to the work of extending the membership and influence of the N. H. R. U. in Peterborough."

Mr. Dumble, who kindly took Mr. Davidson's place at the eleventh hour, seconded the motion in an appropriate address, which was then unanimously carried.

The chairman expressed the thanks of the N. H. R. U. to all who had taken part in the programme. They had had a very pleasant evening, and if they would only give their hearty support to the N. H. R. U. they might have many similar meetings.

The meeting was terminated in a pleasing manner, by the rendering of "Auld Lang Syne" on the harp by Mr. Dunsford.

STORMS AND WATERSPOUTS.

Heavy Losses in Arkansas—Traffic Disturbed and Houses Blown Down.

Little Rock, Ark., May 7.—A special from Van Buren, Ark., says waterspouts and tornadoes have played havoc there and done hundreds of thousands of dollars damage. Three houses were blown down at Sudy, eight miles east of here last night, and it is reported that Winslow, a summer resort on the top of the Boston Mountain, is entirely gone. Two bridges on the Frisco road over Clear Creek have been swept away and the road abandoned. Their trains have run for two days around via Claremore, I.T., and then down the Kansas & Arkansas Valley road, but the latter had a two-mile washout and 300-yard landslide, and Van Buren is now entirely cut off save by way of Little Rock. The Arkansas River is 25 miles wide in places, and is now four inches higher than it was in 1892, which was the highest on record. All last night boats were busy in the bottoms, rescuing the inhabitants. Thousands were rescued and it is feared that many have been drowned. Two houses were seen going down the river, but boatmen could not reach them. Rain is falling in torrents and the end is not in sight.

A RELIABLE OFFER.

Honest Help Free to Men.

The (Peterborough Examiner) is authorized to state by Mr. D. Graham, Box 133, Hagersville, Ont., that any man who is nervous and debilitated or who is suffering from any of the various troubles resulting from overwork, excesses or abuse, such as nervous debility, exhausted vitality, lost vigor, unnatural drains and losses, lack of development, etc., can write to him in strict confidence and receive free of charge full instructions how to be thoroughly cured.

Mr. Graham himself was for a long time a sufferer from above troubles and after trying in vain many advertised remedies, electric belts, etc., became almost entirely discouraged and hopeless. Finally he confided in an old clergyman, whose kind and honest advice enabled him to speedily obtain a perfect and permanent cure. Knowing to his own sorrow, that so many poor sufferers are being imposed upon by unscrupulous quacks, Mr. Graham considers it his duty as an honest man and a firm believer in Christian sympathy and kindness, to give his fellow-men the benefit of his experience and assist them to a cure. Having nothing to sell, he asks for no money, the proud satisfaction of having done a great service to one in need, he rightly considers an ample reward for his trouble. If you write to Mr. Graham you can rely upon being cured and upon absolute secrecy as well.

Address as above, enclosing a stamp, and refer to the (PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER). No attention, however, will be given to those writing out of mere curiosity, therefore state that you really need a cure.

GAMES WITH CARDS.

SOURCES OF UNTOLD MERRIMENT AND SORROW, SMILES AND TEARS.

Gambling In the Olden Times—Women Were as Deeply Infatuated as Men—Everything Made Subservient to Play For Stakes—Some of the Old Games.

Possibly no other invention has ever given rise to so much merriment and sorrow, has called forth so many smiles, frowns and tears and has been the agent in so many tragedies as a pack of cards. The actual source of this invention still remains a mystery, the generally accepted story of origin being that in 1393 cards were introduced at the French court as a diversion for King Charles VI during his temporary attacks of insanity. From this date they spread rapidly through every country in Europe and received such a warm welcome from all classes that laws had to be made for the better regulations of dice throwing and card playing.

During the commonwealth card playing shared the banishment of every other amusement, but with the restored monarchy a reaction set in, and heavy play became the fashion. Basset and ombre were the games in favor at court, and in the graphic picture given by Evelyn of the last Sunday spent by King Charles II at Whitehall he speaks of "at least £2,000 in gold" on the basset table round which "about 20 of the great courtiers" were sitting. Ombre was also a court game. Waller has a poem "on a card torn at ombre by the queen." Pope also, in "The Rape of the Lock," gives such a faithful description of Belinda's game that the Hon. Daines Barrington, writing in The Universal Magazine for December, 1788, says, "When ombre is forgotten (and it is almost so already), it may be revived with posterity from that most admirable poem." In its turn ombre was deposed for quadrille, and for a time no one who aspired to be counted among the beau monde condescended to play any other game. Mr. Urban, in The Gentleman's Magazine for 1736, gives "Cautions Against Quadrille" and warns "the young and unwary of both sexes" against a most growing vice which if not timely prevented will end in their ruin. "I mean," he says, "the great Increase of Play in private Houses, and more particulary that artful and cheating game of Quadrille." Quadrille was equally popular in Paris, and a pamphlet is extant dated 1760 of "The game of Quadrille by Four as it is now played at the French Court," in which it says, "It is allowed by all players that Quadrille is more amusing and entertaining than Ombre or any other game on the cards, either because every Deal is play'd out or that it better suits the genius of the Ladies, to whom complaisance and good manners must Prejudice the Gentlemen in its favor." Such a prejudicial hold had this fascinating game taken on women that a writer of the day declares that "women now spend all their time in gambling. Their husbands, children, the duties of society, are, without Quadrille, wearisome encumbrances. Quadrille is the joy that gives life, spirit and brightness. For this they hurry over their meals and abridge their most agreeable Refreshments. For this alone they visit and are visited."

In the autobiography of Mr. Frederick Reynolds he tells us that one of the most noted card playing places near London was Twickenham, and that there, in Montpelier row, lived four maiden ladies who were known in the neighborhood as Manille, Spadille, Basto and Punto. Mrs. Harris, writing to her son, the first Lord Malmesbury, says: "Mme. de Walderen would fain have tempted me to her loo table, but I needed little fortitude to withstand it, as one stake lost would ruin a whole assembly. I preferred a sober game of quadrille with Miss Chudleigh." The Annual Register for 1766 informs us that "a lady at the West End lost at a sitting one night last week 3,000 guineas at loo." As early as the reign of Henry VII a prohibitory statute forbade any persons save those of noble rank to play at cards except during Christmas, and for generations this custom was strictly adhered to, so that many who objected to touch a card at any other time relaxed their prejudices and played a few games at this festive season. As late as the year 1783 The European Magazine for December says: "This being the season when and when only card playing is permitted in sober families for the recreation of men, women and children," etc., "it may not be out of place to give a few observations on games which at no distant time were the most popular." Among these games brag is spoken of as "peculiarly adapted to the fair and softer sex, and therefore so much in vogue among the ladies of distinction that hereby they acquire a decent assurance and competency of countenance so absolutely necessary in life, and remedy that shamefacedness, which is a defect of nature, by the assistance of her handmaid art."

The passion for gaming which was prevalent in the days of Queen Anne went on steadily increasing during the reigns of the three Georges. The Gentleman's Magazine for 1753 tells us that "his majesty played at St. James' palace on Twelfth Night for the benefit of the groom porter. Fortune favored the royal family—the Duke of Cumberland won £3,000." The spirit of gambling was by this time no longer confined to the court, it had broken loose over the whole land, the taste was universal and alike indulged in by both men and women.—Pall Mall Magazine.

Woman's Wit.

An emperor of Germany besieged a city which belonged to one of his rebellious noblemen. After the siege had lasted for a long time the emperor determined to take it by storm and to destroy all it contained by fire and sword. He did not, however, wish to injure the defenseless women; therefore, he sent a proclamation into the town, saying that all the women might leave the place unhurt and carry with them whatever they held most precious. The nobleman's wife instantly decided to take her husband, and the other women followed her example. They soon issued from the city gate in a long procession, each one with her husband on her shoulders. The emperor was so much struck with the noble conduct of the women that he spared all; even the city itself was left untouched.

Rheumatism & Dyspepsia Cured

571 ST. PATRICK STREET,
OTTAWA, July 31st, 1896.

To the Phrenoline Medicine Company, Ltd., Ottawa, Ont.

GENTLEMEN,—On the advice of a friend I tried one bottle of your famous rheumatic remedy, Phrenoline, and to my surprise it cured me of rheumatism, from which I have suffered for many years.

It also cured me of dyspepsia, from which I was suffering at the time, so that I feel now like a new man.

I have tried several remedies for rheumatism, some of which did me a certain amount of good, but nothing that I have taken has done so much for me as your Phrenoline, and I have much pleasure in recommending it to other sufferers.

Yours very truly,

Think of living a year or two after one is dead; dead to all practical intents and purposes,—dead, with the autograph of death inscribed on brow and cheek and lip.

Thousands of women live for a year or two after all helpfulness and happiness have gone out of their lives. When a woman becomes hopelessly helpless and unhappy she is practically dead. The young woman to whom the future is a dreary waste, the young wife who is a helpless, nervous invalid, the mother whose babes are a burden instead of a blessing,—all these, unless they take the right measures to recover their health, are better dead than living. In the majority of cases these ghosts of women owe their condition to weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism. Frequently they have been deceived by the incorrect diagnosis of some obscure physician and do not understand the true nature of their trouble. It only costs a two-cent postage stamp for a woman to write and describe her condition to Dr. R. V. Pierce, an eminent and skilful specialist, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y. He will answer letters from ailing women without charge. He is the discoverer of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the greatest of all known medicines for women. It acts directly on the delicate organs concerned in maternity and makes them strong, healthy and vigorous. It banishes the indispositions of the anxious period and makes baby's coming easy and almost painless. It cures all disorders and displacements and checks exhausting drains.

"Previous to motherhood my wife was very sick," writes Dennis H Connelly, Esq., of Clear Water, Wright Co., Minn. "Two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription made her well and strong."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and constipation. One a dose. They never gripe.

POPULAR WRITERS.

Personal Notoriety Has Little to Do With an Author's Success.

Personal publicity, the sort that comes from the distribution of biographical details and the publication of likenesses, may be commercially useful to some purveyors of public entertainment, but it seems probable that there has been an overestimation of its value to the makers of books. One of the most popular books ever written was "Alice in Wonderland." Its distribution must have been enormous and doubtless it still goes vigorously on, but who had ever seen a likeness of the man who wrote it? When Dr. Dodgson died the other day and the newspapers told who he was and what title he had to be held in grateful memory, thousands of his debtors identified him for the first time as Lewis Carroll, the author of the inimitable stories that are almost as familiar to contemporary children as "Mother Goose." Dr. Dodgson liked peace and a quiet life and very cordially disliked notoriety. Like many wise people, he found great pleasure and recreation in the companionship of nice children, and for their amusement he concocted two of the queerest and most original and delightful books that ever were written. But he never considered that merely because his books became famous there was any need that he should become famous too.

No modest author need hesitate to produce a masterpiece or even a popular novel (which need not be a masterpiece and usually isn't one) for fear that his success will involve the sacrifice of a reasonable privacy. His book must be published if its worth is to be fairly tested, but that he should be published, too, is not at all indispensable. If he chooses not to have his likeness run in the advertising columns of the newspapers, he can keep it out, and his book won't suffer; if he prefers that his personal idiosyncrasies and circumstances should not be discussed, that, too, can be accomplished in great measure without much trouble. The only things the public absolutely requires from writers in exchange for its favors are ideas and good writing. Everything else is thrown in and may in most cases be easily and safely withheld.—"The Point of View" in Scribner's.

ENGLISH OFFICE SEEKERS.

A Parliamentary Candidate Is Allowed a Certain Latitude of Independence.

Let us suppose that the Birmingham Liberal association, for instance, is anxious to secure a candidate to contest one of the parliamentary divisions of the city. The members of the committee, most of them solid business men, who are in politics "for their health," and who neither ask for nor desire any reward, meet to discuss the situation. If it happens that any local Liberal of prominence and good standing is available, an invitation is sent to him to stand for the constituency. If not, a conference is held with the central association in London, on whose books are the names of most of the aspiring Liberals in the country. The candidate arrives in Birmingham and issues his address to the electors. Here, again, one notices a contrast with the cast iron rigidity of the American system. A candidate for congress or a state governorship is supposed to have no private opinions whatever. He is put forward as the party's representative and has to swallow the party's programme, whether he likes or not. An English candidate is not called upon to sacrifice so much to his country's welfare. He is allowed a certain latitude of independence. Our Birmingham candidate, for instance, knows, of course, what are the main tenets of the Liberal faith, but he need not necessarily subscribe to all its articles. With the gregarious instinct of politicians, the odds are that he will not differ from them on any material point. But he may, and still be the party candidate. He makes his own little platform and runs on it to suit himself.—Chautauquan.

THE FLETCHER CASE.

A Petrolea Lady Vanquishes a Stubborn and Persistent Enemy.

She Was for Months a Martyr to Inflammatory Rheumatism—Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Her.

PETROLEA, May 6.—No lady resident in this town is more widely known and more highly esteemed for her many good qualities, than is Mrs. A. Fletcher, of the Fletcher House. Throughout the adjacent country district also, she has a very wide acquaintance.

All who know this estimable lady know that for months past she has been a ceaseless sufferer from Inflammatory Rheumatism. So severe did the disease become that her finger joints and fingers were so terribly swollen that she could not bend them. She was unable to get downstairs without assistance, and every impending change of weather brought her the most indescribable agony.

Many remedies were used, in efforts to effect a cure. Different medical men were called in to attend her, but all failed dismally.

At length Mrs. Fletcher, having read of Dodd's Kidney Pills, decided to give them a trial—as a final effort. She did so, and the only possible result followed. The first dose soothed her awful pain. Every succeeding one did more and more good, and five boxes left her a sound and healthy woman. Not a vestige of her old disease remains.

Rheumatism has no terrors, when Dodd's Kidney Pills are used. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Rheumatism (and all other Kidney Diseases) just as certainly, easily, quickly and naturally as a drink of water cures thirst.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are sold by all druggists at fifty cents a box, six boxes $2.50, or are sent, on receipt of price, by The Dodds Medicine Co., Limited, Toronto.

An airy tattoo.

Oh, now the omnivorous billy
The lily
Ingulfs with an appetite keen,
And while we cast eyes on the shad pole
The tadpole
Is flaunting his gay tambourine,
And while the rug's shaker
From Bath to Bagdad,
A nimbus of bacon
Encircles the shad!

The market straw-ber-ry is smiling
And piling
On style, for warm weather is nigh,
And thus the ball player it matches
And catches
The vagrant snowflake on the fly
The bumblebee bumbles
The pansy about,
The snow shovel crumbles;
The coal's up the spout.

The stovepipe
Now empties its soot in your face.
The borax and whitewash are sighing
And flying
With merry, melodious grace.

And spring in her spangles
Skips out on the deck.

TWIN TORTURERS!

Lumbago and Rheumatism made Harmless by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lumbago and Rheumatism cause endless pain and suffering. Every man and woman who runs chances of getting wet, or catching cold, is liable to suffer from one or both. Our hospitals are full of sufferers from these diseases; none are more painful. Every nerve is on fire; every joint is a centre of agony; every muscle an area of torture. To move hand or foot makes the victim shriek with agony.

Rheumatism makes more cripples than all the railroad accidents that ever happened. Twisted, hideous-shapen caricatures of humanity, who cannot walk without misery, are to be seen every day. The kidneys are to blame. If they are healthy you needn't fear Rheumatism or Lumbago. Dodd's Kidney Pills keep the kidneys healthy and cure Rheumatism and Lumbago.

Dodd's Kidney Pills ALWAYS CURE.

And he aimed at men and sparrows,
Ever singing, ever gay.

"Gammer, gammer, answer true,
Which of us may sup with you?"
Some chose Love, that laughing fled
Ere the morning clouds were red,
While whoso had Friendship bidden
Oftimes found young Cupid hidden,
Peeping that same mantle through.
—Blanche Lindsay in Athenæum.

A Virginian Country Store.

A glance at the walls and the showcases made it plain that one store was enough for the village, writes Bradford Torrey in The Atlantic. You had only to ask for what you wanted—a shotgun, a revolver, a violin case, a shovel, a plug of tobacco, a pound of sugar, a coffeepot, a dress pattern, a ribbon, a necktie, a pair of trousers, or what not.

The place was like a beehive; customers of both sexes and both colors going and coming with a ceaseless buzz of gossip and bargaining, while the proprietor and his clerks—two of them smoking cigarettes—bustled to and fro behind the counters, improving the shining hour. One strapping young colored man standing near me inquired for suspenders, and, on being shown them, selected without hesitation (it is a good customer who knows his own mind) a brilliant yellow pair embroidered or edged with equally brilliant red. And having bought them at an outlay of 12 cents, he proceeded to the piazza, where he took off his coat and put them on. That was what he had bought them for. His taste was impressionistic, I thought. He believed in the primary colors.

The need of a good Spring Medicine is almost universal and Hood's Sarsaparilla exactly meet this need. Be sure to get Hood's.

An English Diplomatist.

Sir Claude Macdonald, the British minister to China, is 46 years old and holds rank in the army as a major. He served with the Seventy-fourth highlanders and was in the Egyptian campaign of 1882 and the Suakim expedition before he was appointed consul general at Zanzibar in 1887. After leaving east Africa he was sent to the Niger, where he proved a very successful consul general in the Niger Coast Protectorate, as the district, which was once known as the "Oil Rivers Protectorate," is now designated. Sir Claude's career in west Africa was cut short in 1896 by his selection for the embassy at Peking.

LOVE.

I love thee not alone for what thou art,
But for a glory which is shed on thee;
Not only for thy body packed with sweet
Of all this world, that cup of violet wine,
That mortal rose sweet in the night of life,
That blossom by the early rain brought on,
Nor for that stirring bosom, all besieged
By drowsing lovers, nor thy perilous hair,
Nor for that face that might indeed provoke
Invasion of high cities, nor thy brow,
Pale as a moon that on the summer steals,
Nor for thy freshness breathing like strange sleep;
Not for this only do I love thee, but
Because infinity upon thee broods,
And thou art full of whispers and of shadows.
Thy voice is like to music heard are birth,
Some spirit lute touched on a spirit sea;
Thy face remembered is from other stars.
It has been sung of, though I know not when;
It has been died for, though I know not where;
It has the strangeness of the luring west
And of sad sea horizons. Beside thee
I am aware of many times and lands,
Of birth far back, of lives in many orbs.
Oh, beauty, lone and like a candle clear
In this dim country of the world! Oh, light,
Oh, sudden taper lit in faroff dark,
A silent beam to the uncertain soul!
Thou meanest what the sea has striven to say
So long and yearned up the cliffs to tell.
Thou art what all the winds have uttered not—
The lovely secret of the swooning breeze.
—Stephen Phillips in Spectator.

To clarify vinegar and even muddy wine pour into a bottle of it half a teacupful of fresh, sweet milk and let the whole stand for 24 hours. As the sediment will settle to the bottom with the curdled milk the clear liquid may then be poured off into another bottle.

Coughs and colds need not be endured; they can be cured, and that quickly.

Many mixtures are temporary in effect, but Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites is a permanent remedy.

The oil feeds the blood and warms the body; the hypophosphites tone up the nerves; the glycerine soothes the inflamed throat and lungs.

The combination cures. This may prevent serious lung troubles.

CANADA LIFE
Assurance Company.

ANOTHER PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Large Increase in Surplus.

The fifty-first annual report of the Canada Life shows this old established Company to be in a most flourishing condition. The annual meeting was held yesterday. Following is a synopsis of the report:—

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

In presenting to the Shareholders their 51st Annual Report, the Directors are gratified in announcing that the Company has fairly shared in the somewhat improved condition of the business of the country, as will be seen by the Statements and Accounts now submitted. By these it will be observed that the Company has transacted a larger business than during the previous year, and has increased its clear surplus by no less than $497,098.05.

NEW BUSINESS

The applications for new assurances during 1897 numbered 3 006, for the sum of $6,185,996, of which, however, 266 for $521,000 were declined, the lives not appearing up to that standard which it is in the interest of the company's other assurers should be maintained, and as 191 applications for $373,366 were not carried out, the issue of the year was for $5,291,636, under 2 609 policies, exceeding 1896 by 573 policies for $798,980.

The total business in force at the close of 1897 was $72,719,555 29 of Assurances, under 33,407 policies, upon 24,469 lives.

POLICY CLAIMS.

The claims by deaths paid during 1897 amounted to $770,168 45, and Endowment policies for $128,846 92, having matured, these sums, as well as $218,481 29 for profits, $145,411.18 for surrenders, and an annuity of $400, making in all $1,263,307.84, were paid to policyholders during the year.

INCREASE IN ASSETS.

The Income receipts of the year were $2,953,272.83, and deducting therefrom all payments to policy-holders for claims by death, for profits, and for matured Endowment policies, as well as other outlay, including expenses of management, there was left the sum of $1,272,486 05, which increased the Company's Assets to $18,678,915 67.

SURPLUS.

As appears by the Abstract of Assets and Liabilities, after providing fully for the necessary reserve for all policies of the Company, and for all its other Liabilities, there is shown a Surplus of $1,564,082 05.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, Mr. A. G. Ramsay, in moving the adoption of the report, said:

The Directors' Report and the usual accounts and statements have for some days been in your hands, and have now been taken as read. While the report is brief, it contains, I think, along with the various published accounts, all that is required to enable those interested in the Company to judge of its progress and success in the past year. The addition during 1897 of nearly half a million dollars to the surplus or profits fund is a large and satisfactory one, and without invidiously comparing it with the figures of any other particular Company, I may say that it is more than was attained by all the other Canadian companies combined. The new business of the year was, you will observe, of satisfactory and gratifying amount, and in excess of the previous year, and you will be pleased to know that it is of that desirable class which will result more to the profit of the Company than would a larger amount obtained at heavier expense, or from less desirable regions than the healthful climate of Canada, and the four Northern States to which we have thus far deemed it judicious to confine the operations of the Company. The existing assurances are $72,719,555 or nearly twice as much as they were 12 years ago. The death claims of the year continued of very favourable amount, and being well within what was calculated upon, that fact testifies to the care observed in the selection of the lives, and to the judicious limitation of the business to the healthful climates already alluded to.

The recent lamentable failures of some of the companies doing business on the assessment system, and the anxiety felt as to the others which are based upon the same fallacious principles lead me to point out that these occurrences are only the inevitable results, which were from the first predicted by those whose knowledge and experience enabled them to judge of what the future of companies of the kind must be. At our meeting in 1887, when concerns of the kind were making strenuous efforts to establish themselves in Canada, I alluded to the miserable failures they had been in England and in America, and I said that their "ephemeral existence indicates how useless the assessment system of assurance is as a family provision. It can only offer the uncertain hope of a cheap assurance for a few years, till the company breaks down. It cannot afford any guarantee that a definite amount of assurance will certainly be paid to a widow or children after an assurer's death, whether that occurs at an early day or a distant one, and without such a guarantee as that, which our own and other sound companies offer, life assurance must be a fraud and a delusion." I added that "I was aware that agents and managers of companies of the kind pointed to the names of prominent business and professional men who have joined them, or who act as their directors, but as some of them at all events allow their names to be employed in that way, simply because policies have been gratuitously given to them, one can judge how little weight should attach to the names of the gentlemen thus used to decoy others to join such companies." One cannot envy the feelings of the prominent gentlemen alluded to, who induced persons to take policies in companies of the kind, from which they are now driven out by their failure, or by the levy of such high payments as they are unable to meet

As the accounts show, the year's income was within a trifle of three million dollars, and the assets of the company were increased to the very considerable amount of nearly nineteen million dollars, and yielding, after deducting liabilities of every kind, a net surplus or profit of $1,564,082 for allocation at the end of next year, along with whatever addition there may be made to it between now and that time, and as the management and other expenses by which the profits to policy-holders are very largely influenced continue to be on a more moderate percentage than that of other Canadian or American companies, he prospects for our assurers are of a favourable character.

It is anticipated that legislation will be introduced by the Government, modifying the present 4½ per cent. rate of interest prescribed by law as the basis for Life Assurance Reserves, and adopting the new mortality Tables based upon the observations and large experience of the British Insurance Companies, in course of compilation by the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, and I may say on behalf of the Board in reference to the amendment to the charter, alluded to in the Directors report of last year, that the Directors purpose to avail themselves of the occasion of that legislation to seek such amendments to the law as may meet the Board's requirements.

The motion was seconded by Mr. F. W. Gates, Vice-President, and unanimously carried. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the agents, officers, medical and legal advisers of the company, Mr. Adam Brown speaking in eloquent terms of their services rendered to the Company.

Mr. Leggat moved and Lieut.-Col. McLaren seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Company during the past year. Brief and interesting addresses were also made by Sir George Kirkpatrick and Sir George Burton, the latter of whom was heartily congratulated upon the recent honour conferred upon him by the Queen.

The retiring Directors, Chief Justice Sir George Burton, Col. Sir Casimer Gzowski, K.C.M.G., and Mr. N. Merritt, were re-elected. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. A. G. Ramsay was re-elected President and Mr. F. W. Gates Vice-President

The meeting passed off very harmoniously, every one present being gratified with the progress and continued prosperity of the Canada Life, which, as Sir George Kirkpatrick remarked, was easily leader of all Companies in the Dominion.

OBITUARY.

The Late Fred. R. Rutherford.

THE EXAMINER records with very great regret the death of Fred. R., second son of Wm. Rutherford, Esq., "Maple Valley Farm," South Monaghan, which sad event took place on Friday, May 6th. The deceased young man was only 24 years of age, and had a very promising future. His illness dates from a year ago last winter, when he was attacked by la grippe, which principally affected the lungs. He never recovered from the effects of the attack, though in September last he returned to Toronto University, where he was studying for his degree examination and at the same time taking the theological course in Knox College. But last Thanksgiving he was compelled to suspend his studies and return home. His condition failed to improve and death resulted as stated yesterday. The deceased was a young man of fine ability and sterling character. He had a bright future, and the closing of his promising career on the threshold of his usefulness is a severe blow to Mr. Rutherford and family, who have the deepest sympathy of a very wide circle of friends in their great bereavement. The funeral takes place to morrow at 3 o'clock, from the family residence to the Centreville cemetery.

DEATH OF CHARLES THOMPSON.

His Demise Occurred Last Evening—Funeral on Monday.

The death occurred last night of Charles Thompson, aged 83 years 6 months, at the family residence, lot 25, con. 8, Otonabee.

The deceased was one of the pioneer settlers of the township, having taken up residence there 54 years ago, coming to Canada from Melrose, Roxboroughshire, Scotland.

The cause of death was paralysis, the deceased having suffered a severe stroke last September, and never having fully recovered from the effects.

Of his children there are seven sons now surviving—viz., Thomas, of Hiawatha; Walter, of Otonabee; Andrew of Thornbury, County Grey; Charles, George and John, of Santa Clara County, California; and Adam, who resides at the homestead.

The deceased was a consistent and faithful member of St. Andrew's congregation.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

WOMAN'S WAY

Gert's Timely Talk on Local Topics

Petticoat Government! The men sneer at the words with a contemptuous curl of their tobacco tainted lips, as much as to say that women don't amount to much where business aptitude is concerned. I don't go in for petticoat government, myself except within proper bounds. I believe that the swing of the petticoat shouldn't go beyond the domestic circle. A woman who looks after her household and family has enough to do without duplicating Mrs. Jellaby in her missionary activity in the interests of the Boorighoola-gha heathen at the expense of her family.

* * *

But women at the worst couldn't do much worse than our authorities, managed by the men. We have intense zeal in one direction and criminal laxity in another.

The other day a man was fined $5 for taking a little patch of sod off a town lot, doubtless for the sake of beautifying some other part of the town.

On Friday morning a poor widow was fined $5 for pasturing her cow on the street. Why, just the other day a cow (owned by a wealthy man), that is pastured on the streets—a pauper cow—living on town charity—broke through the slender wire fence around my garden, after it had been planted, and tramped it out of shape, browsing the shoots of little fruit trees that I had watched and tended for years in the hopes of seeing the fruit. Where were the zealous police that spotted the poor widow's cow? Shame on such wickedly uneven justice. Where are the zealous administrators of the law that select as victims poor men and widows, and let a man of means empty his cess-pool on the streets, polluting the air so that passers by have to hold their noses?

Why is fish made of one and flesh of another? Look how the health bylaw is broken in spirit! After the recent rain, Hunter street was two inches deep in mud. This mud dries rapidly, and turns to two inches of dust. The street sprinkler passes over it, and the water forms a thin crust, while the under layers of dust are left to be beaten into blinding clouds by the next passing team. Even the fall of the water raises a stifling dust. This street hasn't been cleaned this year and it needs it badly. Isn't the microbe-laden filth of this street breathed into our lungs a little worse than the removal of a patch of sod from a vacant town lot, which will grow over in a year or so? Isn't it as bad to breathe the dust of a street as foul as the pulverized surface of a farm yard, as for a widow's cow to trim the grass of a street? Bah! out on such peddling jug-handled administration. Could petticoat government do worse?

Then there's the law against discharging firearms inside the corporation, disregarded. Idle men and boys go about peppering away at and killing, for the mere love of slaughter, our dear birds—the sweet birds that are the most beautiful visitants the merciful Creator sends. Isn't that worse than a poor widow letting her cow, properly tethered, graze on a back street? I love the birds and welcome their visits. When I sit outside after my day's work is partially done, the robins, the blackbirds and even the sparrows are delightful company, and I think it a cruel shame that the laws to protect our birds are utterly ignored. Every day I see boys, not the bad boys—the little "toughs"—but the sons of otherwise respectable persons, climbing trees and robbing robins' nests. Why isn't the law carried out? The more we protect our bird life the brighter the world will be and the less the crop of insect pests.

How dearly I love the beautiful birds that come to me every day for their little banquet of crumbs! What real woman doesn't love her finch or her canary almost like her baby? When my canary died I felt as if I had lost a member of the family, and I had his little body fixed up by the taxidermist and I preserve it under glass amongst my treasures.

How we prize the mementos of our lost darlings. I put my birdie on a stand under the picture of my little Johnnie, who strayed off among the angels a year and a half ago. Don't mothers bless the science that has made pictures so cheap and easily obtained? Why photography has cheered more mothers' hearts than many a platitudinous sermon. Mother, your little boy or girl is the picture of health to-day; to-morrow he may be stricken with disease. Get his picture taken while the bloom of health is on his cheek, and the strength of lusty babyhood in his limbs. You will find, as I have found, how great a comfort it is to have the little cherub smiling back at you, from his picture, if death should claim him.

* * *

You'll regret it if you let these days go by without getting those photographs taken which you have in mind. Time brings changes, and many things happen we least expect. No excuse exists in Peterborough for lack of opportunity. I may be pardoned for mentioning here what may seem to partake of the nature of a business notice, that Peterborough possesses one of the most enthusiastic artists in photography that I know of, and one who shows by his fine artistic work how beautifully and how life-like these reproductions can be made. Mr. Roy would make a mint of money if he were in the city of Montreal, where good photography is so highly appreciated; and I wonder at him being satisfied to remain in a place the size of Peterborough. Mr. Roy gives great care to obtain the most artistic and natural poses, and the ones most becoming to the subject. Besides this his pictures have a reputation for fine retouching and superb mechanical finish. He is particularly successful with children's pictures, and during the month of May no better time could be chosen for obtaining the best effects, before the sun and wind have tanned the complexion. There is a class of people to whom it comes as an astonishing idea that they should have their pictures taken. It would be worth while for some of these people to fall into the hands of Mr. Roy.

It is a pleasure to me to give credit to a good thing when I see it, and not to be grumbling all the time.

BRAVE MANILA DONS.

Nailed the Colors to the Msst and Went Down With the Ship

BEFORE DEWEY'S FIERCE FIRE.

Almost a Dozen Spanish Ships, With 600 Men, Fall Victims to the Hail of Shot and Shell From the American Squadron - Dewey's Most Complete Victory.

Hong Kong, May 9.—The United States gunboat Hugh McCulloch, which arrived here on Friday with despatches from Admiral Dewey, left here at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Greenwich time, on her return to Manila, after, it is understood, receiving many urgent despatches from Washington. But it is believed the McCulloch will first go to Mirs Bay, to await final instructions from Admiral Dewey as to how he is to deal with the Philippine Islands.

A GRAPHIC ACCOUNT

Of the Battle Fought at Manila by the Victorious Commodore Dewey of the American Squadron.

Hong Kong, May 8.—Among naval men, military men and civilians, Europeans and natives here to day there is one subject of discussion, the annihilating victory of the American fleet under Commodore Dewey over the Spanish fleet, commanded by Admiral Montejo in Manila Bay on Sunday last. Owing to the fact that the cable between this port and the Philippines had been cut, there has been delay in obtaining a detailed account of the battle, and facts in the case were only available when the United States gunboat Hugh McCulloch arrived here yesterday.

Dewey's Orders.

Commodore Dewey's orders were to capture or destroy the Spanish fleet, and never were instructions executed in so complete a fashion. At the end of seven hours there was absolutely nothing left of the Spanish fleet but a few relics.

The American commander has most skilfully arranged every detail of the action and apparently even the most insignificant features were carried out with perfect punctuality and in railroad time-table order. At the end of the action Commodore Dewey anchored his fleet in the bay, before Manila, and sent a message to the Governor-General, General Augusti, announcing the inauguration of the blockade, and adding that if a shot was fired against his ships he would destroy every battery about Manila.

A Wonderful Naval Achievement.

The position occupied by the Spanish, the support which their ships received from the land batteries and the big guns they had ashore gave them an enormous advantage. Therefore, when it is considered that the Spaniards lost over 600 men in killed and wounded, that all their ships, amounting to about 14, were destroyed and that their naval arsenal at Cavite was also destroyed with its defences, it will become apparent that the victory of the American Commodore is one of the most complete and wonderful achievements in the history of naval warfare.

Not a man on board the American fleet was killed, not a ship was damaged to any extent, and only six men were injured slightly on board the Baltimore.

The Spanish Position.

The order of battle taken up by the Spaniards was with all the small craft inside the stone and the timber breakwaters of Cavite harbor. The larger ships of Spain cruised off Cavite and Manila. The American fleet entered Manila Bay on Saturday night with the greatest ease. The Spaniards had not established a patrol and there were no searchlights at the entrance of the bay. In fact the American ships would probably have passed inside the bay without any challenge, had it not been that some sparks flew up from the McCulloch's funnel, whereupon a few shots were exchanged with the batteries on Corregidor Island, but the fleet did not slow down and soon took up a position near Cavite, awaiting dawn in order to commence hostilities.

The Order of Battle.

The early hour of the morning revealed the opposing ships to each other, and the Spanish flagship opened fire. Her action was followed by some of the larger warships, then the Cavite forts opened up and the smaller Spanish vessels brought their guns into play.

The American squadron, which had been led into the bay and through the channel by the flagship Olympia, did not reply, though the shots of the Spaniards began to strike the water around them, but moved onward. When nearing Baker Bay a sudden upheaval of water a short distance ahead of the Olympia showed that the Spaniards had exploded a mine, or a torpedo. This was followed by a second and similar explosion. They were both unsuccessful.

The American fleet was then drawing nearer and nearer to the Spaniards, whose gunnery was very poor, the shots from the Cavite batteries and from the Spanish ships being equally badly aimed, either falling short or going wide of the mark.

Order of Dewey's Fleet.

When the American fleet entered the bay, coming through the southern channel, between Caballo and Frile islets, the following was their order:

The flagship Olympia, the Baltimore, the Raleigh, Concord, Boston, Petrel and McCulloch, with two storeships, the Nanahan and Zafiro bringing up the rear. And in that order they swept before the city and faced the enemy in column line.

Though the Spaniards had opened fire at 6,000 yards, the Americans reserved their fire until within 4,000 yards of the enemy, when the real battle began.

The Reina Christina, Castilla, Don Antonio de Ulloa, Isla de Cuba, Isla de Luzon and the Mindanao were in line of battle outside of Cavite at that time, with the four gunboats and the torpedo boats inside the harbor.

Tempting the Enemy.

The American ships then passed backwards and forwards six times across the front of the Spaniards, pouring in upon the latter a perfect hail of shot and shell. Every American shot seemed to tell, while almost every Spanish shot missed the mark.

After having thus scattered death and demoralization among the Spanish fleet and in the Spanish batteries, the American fleet retired for breakfast, and, incidentally a council of war was held on board the Olympia.

By this time the Spanish ships were in a desperate condition. The flagship Reina Chistina was riddled with shot and shell, one of her steam pipes had burst and she was believed to be on fire. The Castilla was certainly on fire, and soon afterwards their condition became worse and worse, until they were eventually burned to the water's edge.

Spanish Bravery.

The Don Antonio de Ulloa made a most magnificent show of desperate bravery. When her commander found she was so torn by the American shells that he could not keep her afloat, he nailed her colors to the mast, and she sank with all hands fighting to the last. Her hull was completely riddled, and her upper deck had been swept clean by the awful fire of the American guns, but the Spaniards, though their vessel was sinking beneath them, continued working the guns on her lower deck until she sank beneath the water. During the engagement a Spanish torpedo boat crept along the shore and round the offing, in an attempt to attack the American storeships, but she was promptly discovered, was driven ashore and was actually shot to pieces.

More Brave Deeds.

It is said that the Spanish ships did not get under steam until after the alarm was given. It is said also that the Spanish commander informed the Governor-General that it was advisable to surrender in the interests of humanity, as it was impossible to repel successfully, but that he and his men were willing enough to fight and die.

Even when the Spanish flagship was half shot away, her commander, though wounded, refused to leave the bridge till the ship was burning and sinking, her stern shattered by a common shell and her steam pipe burst.

The Mindanao had in the meantime been run ashore to save her from sinking, and the Spanish small craft had sought shelter from the steel storm behind the breakwater.

The Second Battle.

The battle, which was started at about 5.30 a.m. and adjourned at 8.30 a.m., was resumed about noon, when Commodore Dewey started in to put the finishing touches upon his work. There was not much fight left in the Spaniards by that time, and at 2 p.m. the Petrel and the Concord had shot the Cavite batteries into silence, leaving them heaps of ruins and floating the white flag. The Spanish gunboats were then scuttled, the arsenal was on fire, and the explosion of a Spanish magazine caused further mortality among the defenders of Spain on shore.

On the water the burning, sunken or destroyed Spanish vessel could be seen, while only the cruiser Baltimore had suffered in any way from the fire of the enemy. A shot which struck her exploded some ammunition near one of her guns and slightly injured half a dozen of her crew. Several shots passed dangerously close to Commodore Dewey, but little or no damage was done on board the flagship.

On the other hand, about 150 men are said to have been killed on board the Spanish flagship, which was totally destroyed. Admiral Montejo, the Spanish commander, transferred his flag to the Isla de Cuba when his ship caught fire, but the latter was also destroyed in due course of time.

The Losses.

The Reina Castilla lost her captain, a lieutenant, her chaplain and a midshipman, by one shot, which struck her bridge. About 100 men were killed and about 40 wounded on board the Castilla. Indeed, some estimates place the number of Spanish wounded during the engagement at over 1,000 men.

The Olympia was struck five times about her upper works, and a whaleboat of the Raleigh was smashed.

Although the Krupp guns on the Esplanade of Manila were fired continuously during the engagement, Commodore Dewey did not reply to them, and the battery afterwards hoisted a white flag in token of surrender.

The terms of the capitulation were still unsettled when the McCulloch left Manila, and it was said Commodore Dewey feared rioting upon the part of the insurgents if he attempted a bombardment of the remaining fortifications of Manila.

The forts at the entrance of the bay were dismantled on Wednesday, after they had capitulated.

It is said the American commodore ordered the cable to be cut because the Spaniards refused to permit him to use it pending the complete surrender of the city.

The Ships Destroyed.

The Reina Christina, cruiser, a single screw, barque-rigged ship with one funnel, displacement 3,090 tons, length 230 feet, beam 43, mean draught 15 feet, armament, 19 Hontonia 6 and 4-inch guns, 2 machine guns and five torpedo tubes; complement 370 men.

MRS. STERNAMAN FREE

The Jury at Cayuga Brings in a Verdict of "Not Guilty."

JUDGE'S CHARGE AGAINST HER.

The Addresses of Counsel Were Very Brilliant—The Scene, When the Verdict Was Rendered, Unparalleled in a Canadian Court of Justice—Acquitted Will Live in Buffalo.

Cayuga, Ont., May 9.—Mrs. Sternaman was on Saturday night declared to be guiltless of the death of her husband and was released from custody. The scene in court when the verdict of the jury was given was an unusual one. The room, which had been crowded all day, was packed to suffocation with an expectant mass of humanity at the hour the judge had fixed for receiving the decision of the jury. For three hours they remained without showing signs of impatience at the protracted session which the jurors were holding, and when finally it was announced that a conclusion had been reached a death like stillness pervaded the court. The prisoner was sent for and placed in the dock the judge resumed his seat on the bench and the members of the jury were brought in between the usual files of constables. After they had been polled, the clerk asked the foreman if they had arrived at a verdict. He replied in the affirmative, and when he pronounced the words a shout such as is rarely heard in a Canadian court room rent the air. Hundreds of voices swelled the chorus of hurrahs which went up, and the court officials were utterly powerless to stop the noisy but heartfelt exultation of the crowd. When the cheers had ceased, His Lordship Chancellor Boyd dismissed the jury and, then turning to the prisoner, told her to stand up. When she did so and came in full view of the spectators it was seen that she was smiling, while the tears were streaming down her cheeks. Her face had become flushed and her limbs seemed hardly able to support her. The judge told her that a jury of her countrymen had tried and found her not guilty of the crime charged to her, and the law now had no further claim on her, so she could go at liberty.

"Not Guilty."

At this another shout went up from the spectators and many of them crowded about her to extend their congratulations. She was taken into the jail, where her relatives had assembled, and from there she was driven out to her mother's home in Rainham. She will remain there for some days, and then return to Buffalo.

The Concluding Proceedings.

When the court met Saturday morning Mrs. Sevenpiper, the mother of the prisoner, was placed on the witness stand and testified that she had visited Undertaker Snider, who had stated to her that he did not know whether he had or had not injected some embalming fluid into the stomach when he used the needle to let out the gas.

The addresses of counsel were then made. Mr. Johnston occupied 4 hours and 20 minutes and Mr. Osler 2 hours. Both addresses were splendid efforts and were characteristic of the men who are the ablest criminal lawyers in Canada.

The judge's charge to the jury was an impartial summing up of the evidence, but was against the prisoner. He brought out very fully, however, the strong points in Mr. Johnston's address, and especially that in reference to the doubt as to whether embalming fluid had been employed.

The jury retired at 5.30 and at 7 reported that they could not agree. The judge, however, sent them back to reconsider the matter, and two and a half hours later they returned their finding of acquittal.

Mrs. Sternaman will return to Buffalo to live.

THE FAST LINE.

The extension of time which has been given to the contractors tor the fast Atlantic steamship service has been rendered necessary by the character of the opposition which has met them in England in their exertions to float the scheme. That this opposition has come from interested parties, has, unhappily, not made it altogether ineffective.

But Messrs, Peterson, Tate & Co. have fought their battle with splendid vigour and persistence, and the successful outcome is said to be no longer in doubt.

They have earned, the Montreal Herald thinks, the indulgence of the Government and people of Canada. And the year's delay is a small matter if by reason of it the country gets a fast service at a price $250,000 a year less than the late Government had contracted to give. This saving of a quarter of a million dollars a year for ten years, or a total sum of $2,500,000, not to speak of interest, will be something for which the taxpayer may thank the Liberal Government.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

An English visitor to Winnipeg claims that the prairie-fed beef is tough and patriotic prairieites claim that the beef is all right, but the cook is at fault. Perhaps there is a little of both, but the Winnipeggers will find it less dangerous to quarrel with a visitor than to quarrel with the cook.

War has its uses. The writers of patent medicine advertisements were getting to the end of their originating resources but the war despatches have given them pointers in the way of samples of inventive stories that will restore many a sufferer who was trembling on the crumbling verge of the grave to life and health almost as robust as the lies the war correspondents daily load down the telegraph wires with.

The venerable Senate forgot its rheumatics in a spurt of activity that killed the Yukon Railway bill and the Klondyke trade of Canada. Now they are after cider. It is said to be probable that they wil eliminate cider from the question to be submitted to the people in regard to the plebiscite on prohibition. The people should be competent to judge what they want or don't want; but, bless you, the Senate doesn't care anything for the people. The Senate is machine-made, and has nothing to do with the people except to muddle and make mischief.

The Ottawa Journal Indepndent, has the following in reference to Montreal Star's desire of a definite pledge of government action in consequent upon a favourable popular answer to the plebiscite question: "The Star seems unreasonably troubled. There seems very little ground for misunderstanding. The people generally know fully that the loss of revenue must be made up in some way; if their prohibition feelings are strong enough they will vote to allow the government to take the money out of their pockets; if their principles are not strong enough to warrant the sacrifice they will vote the other way and that is all there will be about it."

HOLDS HER OWN.

Facts Presented in the Recent Budget Speech of the Chancellor of the Exchequer.

The greatness of the British Empire, and its enviable standing among the nations at the present time, was well set forth by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in his recent budget speech. For years past, he proudly pointed out, trade and commerce have been active, the masses have enjoyed high spending power, the national profits have been greater, there has been a steady accumulation of wealth, and there are no signs that the limit has been reached. Business is yet brisk. Agriculturists benefitted by a good season and higher prices for grain, manufacturers gained by the cheapness of cotton and wool, and the great body of consumers by the low prices of such commodities as tea and sugar. The revenue, the Chancellor of the Exchequer pointed out, showed that all classes in Great Britain are prosperous, and that the wage-earner, in particular, are not feeling any diminuation of employment of falling away from the standard of comfort which has been vouchsafed to them in recent years. The income of the country was sufficiently large to enable the government to make substantial reductions in taxation where it pressed hardest, and at the same time to provide for the very large expenditure of the country of £33,000,000, over one-half was caused by the additions to the defences of the Empire. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, however, makes a good defence of this branch of the national development. His contrast of Great Britain's size and needs with those of her rivals in Europe was most convincing. Taking the naval and military estimates for the empire, and comparing them with those of France, Germany and Russia, he denies that the contrast warrants any charge of extravagance against Great Britain. The British Empire spends £26,000,000 on the navy and and £37,500,000 on the army—a total of £63,500,000. France spends £11,485,000 on her navy and £24,902,000 on her army—a total of £36,387,000; Germany, £6,083,000 on her navy, and £29,143,000 on her army—a total of £35,226,000; and Russia, £799,000 on her navy, and £30,579,000 on her army—a total of £38,509,000. The British Empire contains a population of 365,000,000 persons—scattered all over the globe; 80,000,000 more than the combined populations of the dominions of France, Germany and Russia put together. The British Empire measures 11¼ million square miles; their territory together only 2¼ millions more. For every 1,000 square miles of Empire, Britain spends £5,664 on naval end military service; France, £9,523; Germany, £28,654; Russia, £4,454. For every 1,000 inhabitants Britain spends £174; France, £599, Germany, £560; Russia, £298 on these services.

The British Chancellor of the Exchequer, in making these interesting comparisons, points out the great advantage derived by the British Empire from the insular position of the United Kingdom, the comparative freedom of her colonial system, and of subject races under the Queen's rule, together with the immunity from European attack, which Canadians and Australasians enjoy. A similar comparison shows that the naval expenditure of Great Britain for the year is £25,528,000, while the similar expenditure of France, Russia and Germany combined is almost the same, namely, $25,55£,000.

As the first duty of the navy is to defend the commerce of the mother country, the British expenditure is warranted by the necessities of the situation. The net tonnage of the British mercantile marine is three times as great as the tonnage of the mercantile marines of France, Germany and Russia combined, and the value of the British sea-borne trade is 50 per cent. more than that of their combined sea-borne trade.

There is a feeling in some quarters that the British naval and military expenditures, though warranted by similar expenditures on the part of the continental rivals of the empire, are too great—that the people will not be able to stand the strain should a period of dullness of trade set in. To those who think so, the Chancellor of the Exchequer makes the optimistic remark that there is nothing to fear, as cycles of good times invariably follow those that are bad, and that as time passes the more prosperous years become more numerous in proportion than those of depression. The prospects are certainly most reassuring. They show that it is a libel to say, as some Canadian politicians (Conservatives) have done that the Empire is in a state of decadence, or that there are any indictaions that it will reach that condition in our time.

SERIOUSLY INJURED.

D'Alton McCarthy Rendered Unconscious Through a Runaway Accident at Toronto on Sunday—The Particulars.

Toronto, May 9.—D'Alton McCarthy, M.P., the eminent Q.C. and famous exleador of the third party, was the victim of a distressing accident last evening and is now at his home suffering from serious injuries. Mr. McCarthy had made arrangements to leave for Ottawa by the 9 p.m. train, and he climbed into his dogcart at the door of his Beverley street residence some 15 minutes earlier to go to the railway station. The horse, a high-spirited bay, was restive, and Mr. McCarthy took the lines in his own hands, and Thomas Taylor, the coachman, sat behind. At the corner of Beverley and Sullivan streets the Baptist Church was emptying out its congregation and the horse shied as it passed.

The animal swerved right across the street, and the left wheel of the high cart struck the curbing violently. The coachman was thrown out and the cart, with Mr. McCarthy sawing with all his strength at the lines, swept madly down Beverley street. On reaching Queen the runaway turned eastwards and the cart was dashed against the curbstone in front of the Queen Street Fire Hall, where it upset. The driver, with his usual bulldog courage, still hung on to the reins, but the cart turned over upon him and he was dragged along the street for about 100 feet before the harness broke and the totally-wrecked dogcart came to a standstill.

Mr. McCarthy Picked Up Unconscious.

From under the debris Mr. McCarthy was carried unconscious, bleeding and covered with filth, into the neighboring store of Druggist E. G. Lemaitre, 356 Queen street west. The wounded statesman, who was breathing heavily, was gently laid on the floor, with pillows under his head, and pieces of ice were applied to his right hand, the little finger of which was dislocated. Dr. Pepler, the family physician, was telephoned for, but, though he was quickly on the spot, the news that D'Alton McCarthy was the victim of the accident traveled much quicker and the doctor on his arrival had hard work to push through the crowds that had congregated.

Dr. Popler summoned to his aid Drs. Grasett and Burnham, who examined Mr. McCarthy's injuries, which consisted of some dreadful cuts and bruises on the body and head, and a serious injury to his right side.

Taylor, the coachman, was also badly bruised and sustained an injury to his back that may prove serious.

The cart was entirely demolished when the horse was stopped a few feet from where Mr. McCarthy was injured.

It is hard to say, said one of the doctors, whether the accident will lead to serious complications, but such a severe nervous shock to a man so far advanced in years, though withal vigorous, may produce conditions of serious moment. His case will be better diagnosed to-day.

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease—rheumatism—consumption—skin disease, the "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

WELSH COLLIERS WIN.

Great Coal Strike Likely to Be Settled on Terms Suitable to the Men.

London, May 9.—There is reason to believe that the great coal strike in South Wales will end next week in a compromise or a complete victory for the men. The masters have lost big profits which the existing war would enable them to make, but there is still plenty of money waiting for them to pick up, and they are not disposed to lose it. The fight is the first of any importance in the South Wales trade since the tremendous strike of 1875, and the men were ill prepared then.

Just as their present struggle began the war between America and Spain developed, which caused most people to forget the existence of the Welsh colliers. Consequently the men have received comparatively little monetary assistance. They and their wives and children might starve for all the world would care, as long as a more exciting war continues. The present indications point to a general resumption of work on Monday week, and the subsequent elaboration of a new sliding scale scheme for regulating wages on the lines which have worked fairly satisfactorily for 23 years.

THE ONLY HOPE!

For Victims of Bright's Disease is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Not a day passes on which the newspapers do not record the death of one or more persons from Bright's Disease. Already its victims number hundreds of thousands. Day by day the awful total grows larger. No class is safe from this destroyer.

War and intemperance, with all their miseries and fatalities, are not responsible for as many deaths as have been caused by Bright's Disease. Yet, there is a way of resisting it; of drawing its poisoned fangs, and making it as harmless as a summer breeze. That great medicine, Dodd's Kidney Pills, has cured thousands of the worst cases. It never fails to cure, hopeless as the case may seem.

Would you safely shield your loved ones from the fatal grip of this curse of mankind—Bright's Disease? Then use Dodd's Kidney Pills, the only cure on earth for this disease.

A STRONG ARGUMENT.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my thanks for your cheque just handed to me, for $3,901.98, in settlement of my $2,500 Fifteen Year Endowment Policy in your Company. Such a result as this, after the risk on my life has been carried for fifteen years, beginning from forty-five years of age, argues one thing strongly, namely, that the management of the North American Life must be in competent hands. The other options you have offered me, viz: a Paid up Life policy for $6510.00, or a Life Annuity for $401.90, are, I presume, equally liberal, and it affords me much pleasure to recommend your Company to my friends or any one desiring insurance.

CARLISTS IN SPAIN.

Their Leader's Patriotic Conduct Illy Rewarded.

A CARLIST DEPUTY EXPELLED.

Spanish Report 618 Killed at Manila in the Dewey Engagement—Yankee Ships Fired On—Late News From Havana — Some Excellent Gunners Now Pointing Spanish Guns.

Madrid, May 9.—The Marquis Cervalbo, the representative of Don Carlos, said on Saturday to an Associated Press correspondent that Don Carlos had strictly instructed his leaders to do nothing to weaken Spain's efforts to defend her honor and possessions, nor to give the Government a pretext to blame the Carlists for the peninsular troubles, which were provoked by the misgovernment of others.

The Carlists, he said, intend to adhere to the programme, but they are not allowed liberty of speech, and will withdraw from the Cortes under protest and issue a manifesto. The Marquis further said that the Government welcomes opportunities to blame national calamities upon the Carlists, who intend to maintain a peaceful attitude and await developments.

The Chamber has just witnessed the most uproarious scenes in the annals of the Cortes, Senor Mella, a Carlist deputy, in a speech made use of a scriptural quotation referring to "an unfortunate nation whose kings are boys," adding that women were always the cause of the fall of thrones.

Senor Sagasta, the Premier, supported by a majority of the Chamber, protested, amid the greatest confusion, against Senor Mella's language. The Republicans sided with the Carlists. The Speaker requested Senor Mella to withdraw his words, but this the deputy refused to do, saying that they were scriptural.

The President named Senor Mella thrice, declaring that his refusal to withdraw the language he had used was disrespectful to the reigning dynasty; and then submitted the question of the expulsion from the Chamber of the offending member. A division was taken, amid a terrible uproar, resulting in the expulsion of Senor Mella by a vote of 199 to 19, the Republicans voting with the Carlists. Upon the announcement of the result, both the Republicans and Carlists walked from the Chamber. The Carlists declare they will not return unless Senor Mella be readmitted.

The President of the Chamber explains that the expulsion applies only to Saturday's sitting. This is the first expulsion in pursuance of the new rules. The incident created intense excitement both inside and outside the Chamber.

618 KILLED AT MANILA.

This Is the Number Stated by Gov.-General Augusti of the Philippines.

Madrid, May 9.—An official despatch from General Augusti, Governor-General of the Philippines, sent by way of the Island of Labuan, says:

"The enemy seized Cavite and the arsenal owing to the destruction of the Spanish squadron, and established a close blockade. It is said that, at the request of the consuls, the enemy will not bombard Manila for the present, provided I do not open fire upon the enemy's squadron, which is out of range of our guns. Therefore, I cannot fire until they come nearer.

"A thousand sailors arrived here yesterday evening from our destroyed squadron, the losses of which number 618."

Fight Rather Than Surrender.

Those Gunners Could Shoot.

New York, May 9.—A Key West special says: The marksmanship of the Santa Clara batteries at Havana, while firing on the Vicksburg and Morrell Saturday, was so good as to make many navy officers believe the big guns are manned by French artillerymen. They think the French gunners went there on the Lafayette. Shells flew all around the Vicksburg, carrying away part of her rigging. All the windows in the Morrell's pilot house were shattered. They were three and a half miles from shore when the firing began. The vessels hurried out of range after firing ten shots each at the batteries.

Spanish Fleet for Philippines.

Paris, May 9.—Advices received here from Madrid say preparations are under way to despatch a fleet and large body of troops at once to the Philippines. It is said the war vessels now in the Mediterranean will be utilized for this purpose, going by the Suez Canal.

Seventeen Spanish Vessels.

Port au Prince, Hayti, May 9.—The arrival is rumored late last evening of 17 Spanish vessels, warships and others, at Porto Rico, and a battle is expected on Tuesday.

It is also reported from Cape Haytian that Rear-Admiral Sampson's squadron has been sighted to the north.

YANKEE SHIPS FIRED ON.

Two Cruisers Pursuing a Spanish Schooner Attacked by Vedado Batteries.

Havana, May 9.—At 8.30 o'clock Saturday morning two American cruisers, which were pursuing the Spanish schooner Santiago, bound from Yucatan with salted fish, approached the Vedado batteries, which fired at them when about five miles off shore. Six shots were discharged at the Americans. A local paper says that one projectile carried off the smokestack and one of the members of the American crew, which was in the load, and a projectile fell upon the deck of the other cruiser. The Americans replied with 12 shots, but the projectiles fell two miles off the batteries and the cruisers then retreated under a full head of steam.

At 11.30 the Santiago entered the harbor in tow of the Susie. One of the American shots carried off a boat from the schooner's stern. It is reported that one of the cruisers was so damaged that she will be towed to Key West.

Late News From Havana.

General Blanco has ordered that, on account of the state of war, flags shall be hoisted on the forts and batteries at sunrise and lowered at sunset.

The war material brought by the Spanish steamer Montzerrat to Cienfuegos has arrived at Havana, having been brought by special train, consisting of 15 cars.

The Lower House of the Colonial Parliament was definitely organized on Saturday. The ceremony was a solemn one. The Senate will be organized to-day.

Captain-General Blanco has wired Madrid as follows: "One of the enemy's ships ventured within the range of one of our batteries, which inflicted slight damage and compelled the ship to retire at full speed. Another vessel bombarded the batteries at the entrance to Matanzas, firing 65 projectiles at the beacon light and blockhouse, which were struck 19 times and damaged. Only one soldier was wounded."

MATANZAS AGAIN.

The Torpedo Boat Dupont and the Cruiser Hornet Destroy Three Blockhouses in Reply to Cavalry Bullets.

Key West, Fla., May 9.—Matanzas was bombarded Friday afternoon and Saturday morning. The work was done by the torpedo boat Dupont and the auxiliary cruiser Hornet, of the mosquito fleet. Three blockhouses were destroyed, and it is almost certain that a number of Spanish soldiers were killed. The bombardment was brought on by the temerity of the Matanzas Spaniards, who, apparently, were not content with the fearful execution wrought last week by the greater ships of the fleet.

The Dupont had just been joined by the Hornet, and both were scouting about Matanzas, not more than 600 yards from the shore, when suddenly a storm of rifle bullets came whizzing towards them. The attack was made by a body of Spanish cavalry spread along the shore on the watch for filibusters.

A Storm of Bullets.

The little boats lost no time in answering the challenge. From their few and small guns they poured a storm of ammunition into the body of cavalry, which promptly retired. Not long afterwards a wagon was seen upon the shore gathering up the dead or wounded soldiers, but an estimate of the number of the Spaniards killed or wounded could not be made. The wagon made repeated trips. The two boats continued firing for some time afterwards, directing their missiles at the three blockhouses, which were quickly reduced. While this firing was in progress an eight-inch shell from one of the Matanzas batteries was sent toward the Dupont, but fell short. This was the only firing from the fortifications.

The firing by one of the ships lasted from 4 o'clock to 5.30 Friday afternoon, and from 7 to 8 o'clock Saturday morning, and it is estimated that over 300 shells were fired. Not a man on either boat was touched by the Spanish bullets.

Spaniards Seize an Island.

Madrid, May 9.—An official despatch received here by way of Labuan, an island and British colony six miles from the coast of Borneo, says the Spaniards have captured the Island of Panaya, one of the Philippine group, which is said to have been the headquarters of the insurrection against the Government of Spain. Panaya, it is alleged, was defended by 4,000 insurgents, and it is said 179 of them were killed on the spot, while 500 others are reported to have been killed while retreating. The Spanish official despatch asserts that only two Spanish officers and 72 soldiers were wounded, while Panaya is said to have been practically destroyed.

Another Million for Spain.

Buenos Ayres, May 9.—The Spaniards of Argentina, it is announced, will cable to Madrid this week another million francs, as a further subscription to the national fund being raised to strengthen the Spanish fleet.

FEMALE WEAKNESS CURED.

Mrs. Saunders Made Well and Strong by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Brantford, April 25—(Special)—The wives and mothers of Ontario are the most ardent disciples of Dodd's way of curing curing Diseases of Women—i.e. by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This is natural, for no medicine, no earth, no agency known to man has saved women one tithe of the agony that Dodd's Kidney Pills have banished.

Mrs. F. Saunders, of Brantford, tells her suffering sisters what Dodd's Kidney Pills did for her: I have been a martyr to Female Weakness for the past year and suffered terribly. Dodd's Kidney Pills made me strong and well and healthy, though several other remedies I used did me no good whatever."

So the record grows. Cures made every day. Failures—never.

Appreciated Abroad.

We clip the following from the Newcastle Times:—Among the many lectures and lecturers, with which the people of Newtonville have been so favoured during the past months, few were more appreciated or better received than that given by Rev. J. E. Moore, Ph., B., of Mark street church, Ashburnham. Mr. Moore's subject was 'Mother, Home and Heaven.' Many very excellent things were said bearing on personal responsibility and practical life, very timely and helpful. The speaker's manner and delivery is very pleasing to his hearers, who seemed quite willing to listen while he was willing to address them. His lecture is popular and possessed of enough "funnyisms" to keep his audience in good humour from beginning to close. The lecturer would be gladly received again.

BIG FIRE AT DELORO.

THE PLANT AT THE MINES ENTIRELY DESTROYED.

Loss Estimated at About $150,000—The Mines Owned by an English Syndicate.

Mr. Gladney, of Mervora, was in town this morning and reported the entire loss of the plant of the Daloro Mining Company by fire Sunday morning.

The plant was valued at about $150,000, and was composed of the most modern mining machinery.

The mines are owned by an English syndicate, and operations have been conducted very quietly, but it is understood that the product was from one to two gold bricks per week.

As between fifty and a hundred men were constantly employed, the even temporary, shutting down of the mines will be a heavy loss to the district.

The cause of the fire has not been ascertained as yet.

CHURCH CHIMES.

The Board of Managers of St. Paul's church will meet Tuesday evening.

Mr. Thos. Cornish, of McMaster University, assisted in both services at the Park street church yesterday.

The annual members' roll call of the Park street Baptist church will be held to-morrow evening.

Last evening's anthem in St. Paul's was entitled "Hear me, O Lord," in which the solos were taken by Miss Sophie Cameron.

Mr. Thos. Rogers, of the Toronto Bible Training School, conducted the service in the Park street Baptist church last evening.

At the close of the evening service in the Park street Baptist church yesterday, Rev. O. C. Elliott, the pastor, administered the ordinance of baptism to four candidates.

In St. Paul's church yesterday morning the choir sang, as an anthem, "Look with Favour on Thy people," from Weber's Mass in G. The solos were taken by Mrs. Mein and Mr. James Dawson.

In previous years St. Paul's church choir has always held an anniversary concert, but in compliment to the numerous other affairs of the kind which were on the tapis Mr. Crane decided, this season, to postpone his concert until the fall. The announcement will cause universal regret, as St. Paul's choir concerts have come to be events such as all looked forward to anticipation by those who take pleasure in the higher class of music.

The Seniors have been trying for several months to get on a game with a crack western team and to-day it was decided that the fastest team possible to secure would be the Excelsiors of Brampton, and a deal was made over the telephone with President Irving, whereby that club will send a team to Peterborough for the 24th. For three consecutive years the Excelsiors held the championship of the C.L.A., and therefore there can be no doubt of their ability to give the Peterborough's a fast game.

THE SILVER WEDDING

Of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Colville—Nuptial Anniversary of a Former Y.M.C.A. Secretary Celebrated.

On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. R. J. The rooms were beautifully decorated with plants and cut flowers from Mr. J. H. Dunlop's conservateries. A delightful evening was spent in social chat, games, etc., in which all joined heartily. A recherche lunch was served during the evening. Vocal and instrumental music was rendered by Miss Belleghem, Peterborough, the Misses Jewett, Messrs. Jewett and W. J. Colville. Mr. A. E. Calcutt, with his customary generosity, has again offered prizes in writing to the pupils in the two senior rooms. In each room he will give two prizes, one of $1.00, and a second prize of fifty cents. The writing will be judged by a disinterested outside person.

Mark street Methodist Sunday school picnic will be held on Tuesday, July 5th. The objective point is not yet settled.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

REV. ROBERT JOHNSTON, OF LINDSAY, SPEAKS.

Two Powerful and Impressive Sermons Delivered During the Day by That Eloquent Divine.

Two of the most powerful sermons ever delivered in St. Paul's church were preached yesterday by Rev. Robt. Johnston, of London, on the occasion of the celebration of Anniversary Sunday.

Mr. Johnston is a clear and concise reasoner and possessed of the powers of oratory to such a degree, as to easily hold the attention of large congregations for two hours at both the morning and evening services.

In the evening his text was taken from St. John, xix ch., 13th ver: "When Pilate therefore heard that saying, he brought Jesus forth, and sat down in a judgment seat in a place that is called the Pavement."

In opening the speaker referred to Dante's wonderful picture of "Christ before Pilate," stating that probably all had seen copies of it, and a few the grand original. Having seen it, the picture could be more vividly recalled by a mind's eye presentation than by any words of his. In it two figures stood out in strong relief.

There was a great crowd on the outskirts—the jeering, malicious sneering Jews, kept back of the Roman soldiers, who were apparently perfectly indifferent to what was going on. Then there was the figure in the white robe in the centre. It is intended to be the most conspicuous figure in the picture. But of far greater interest is the picture at the other end of the hall. There on the judgment seat sits Pilate—undecided and perplexed. In his ears the words are being whispered, "If thou let this man go, thou art not Cæsar's friend." And Pilate sits there perplexed with the eyes of Jesus fastened on him. Pilate will not answer the look. His eyes are on the ground deep in study. Around the perplexity of that man circles history.

BY THE SPEARS

Pilate was not popular with those over whom he ruled. He had insulted Jewish sentiment in a thousand ways. His relations with the Jews, however, are not of especial interest now, except as that relationship connects him with Jesus Christ.

The Jews could not pass the death sentence, although they could try a man and condemn him. The procurator sent from Rome was the only one who was invested with the power of imposing the death sentence, and hence the reason of Pilate's presence. Jesus had been

CONDEMNED BY THE JEWS,

and they had brought Him before Pilate for sentence. Pilate objects at first—perhaps on account of his hatred of the Jewish priests and scribes. He lashes them with sarcasm when he asks them why they do not try the man by their own laws, reminding them of their submission to Gentile power. Three times he tries to take Jesus out of their power. He says he will examine him himself. He does so, and Jesus enters into argument with him. He tells the populace that, as it is the custom to liberate one prisoner on the occasion of each Passover, he has decided to liberate Jesus. But in so saying he places Jesus in the position of a criminal, when if he could find no fault, there was but the one thing to do—declare His innocence. Instead of this he tries to conciliate the crowd. He will assume that he is a criminal, and then release him. There is where the mistake was made. The Jews now insist on having the life of Jesus. Again Pilate asserts his belief in His innocence. He then says, "I will take Him and scourge Him." May be he thought that under the scourge Jesus would be incited to confession. But as the taste of blood is to the wolf, so it was to the people, and they demanded that

HE BE CRUCIFIED.

And Pilate pondered. He believed in the innocence of Jesus, but there was that insinuation whispered into his ear. Cæsar would hear of it. Cæsar would hear more. He would hear of how Pilate had wrongfully extorted money and of his past record. What would be the result? Cæsar would brook no such actions. The death penalty or banishment at the least would await Pilate. This was what he considered, so he went through the empty farce of washing his hands of the blood of an innocent man and, endeavouring to put the sin of His death on the Jews, turned Jesus over to them.

The path of right, under the circumstances, was difficult to follow and that of wrong was easy. One cannot help pitying that man who, by his own past, is so controlled that he cannot do right, much as he may wish to.

As a man is going through life he builds a figure which grows and grows until it gets complete control over him. This is called "the past." It may be such a one as will have an influence for wickedness and dogs our footsteps day after day. This is the thing that all are building by their every-day actions. A thing that does us continually, and at the very hour when we and act according to our judgment, this "Past" will rise up and force our hands.

You cannot help pitying a man who, by his own foolish actions in the past, is forced to do what he knows is wrong against his will. The man may be blamed for weakness, but are not weakness and wickedness much the same? Who is the wicked and weak man? Is he not the man of double purpose? Is not the man you are the most unsure of, the man who is insure of himself? You know where to find a single-minded wicked man and can thwart him, but who can tell what the double-minded man will do? Whether he can be counted for or against you? In politics who is the last man seen? He is the man you are never sure of. The last one who sees him will get his vote. That is the weakling.

As the very foundation of for life cultivate, my brethern, strength of character. Aim at decision, firmness and fidelity. If you find yourself burdened by weakness through heredity, if you find your heart prompting you to indecision and weakness rather than strength, then take that nature to Christ and lay it and ask Him what the grace of God can do for such a nature and give Him the opportunity to pour the strength of His grace into your heart. Then by God's grace you will find yourself able to do as you will and as He wills.

Christ was the model of strength. He came and stood alone against all the world. It is in Christ that you will find character, and contemplation of it will give you strength in the hour when you will sit as did Pilate. It is in Jesus Christ only that you will find the inspiration to give you the requisite strength.

There was, however, another element in Pilate which influenced his decision as well as character. This was his conduct—his past conduct. It was his own bad past which came up before him. In the very crisis of his life his past came up before him and tunned the balance against Jesus. If he gave Him freedom it meant exposure. It meant the carrying to Rome of all tales of his ill-doing. He could not afford to let his past be looked into and have all the records of his procuratorship laid before Cæsar.

IN CONDEMNING CHRIST

it meant the death of just one more man and he would be able to hold his power.

As in the case of a fever, the crisis came. It was the turn that meant life or death. At such a time it is not the doctor's treatment that tells so much as a man's past.

At the crossroads all a man's past comes up to drag the same down to one more deed that will doom it to destruction forever.

Sometime in life we must all stand at the crossroads when our past must be faced, and in view of that moment our present actions should be guided.

Keep your record clean, my brother, so your past may be a power of strength and you may say to your foes at a critical moment, as Pilate should have, "unfold it to the world, do thy dirty, damning work thyself, but as for me, I stand for the Christ."

WEIGH YOURSELF BEFORE TAKING THEM.

A MARKED GAIN.

GENTLEMEN,—I have been a great sufferer from nervous dyspepsia, with the usual symptoms of stomach weakness, loss of appetite and flesh, accumulation of gas, sour risings, and heartburn. I used various patent medicines and other remedies without any favorable results. They would give temporary relief sometimes until the effects of the medicine wore off, but Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills overcame all these obstacles. I am better in every way now and have gained several pounds in weight.

HIGH WHEAT YET.

Chicago and European Markets Have Again Risen—The Cereal Also Remains Firm at Toronto Local Prices.

Friday Evening, May 6.

To-day saw no abatement in the phenomenal strength of the world's wheat markets. Insignificant reactions occurred on some of the American boards, but at other United States centres and in Europe prices continued their upward trend. At Chicago the bulls on May wheat were a little less confident of their position at the opening and during the morning that line sold as low as $1.40 per bushel, large exports from Argentina being a bearish factor. In view of the reported European shortage prices soon rallied, and this month's article closed at $1.40¾, only ¼c below yesterday's final figure ($1.50), which was the highest since 1898. The July future held strong, selling up to $1.02½ and closing at $1.01, which represents a decline of 1¼c for the day. The remoter options lost from ⅛c to 1⅛c. The Minneapolis and Duluth markets were strong, running 3c and 4c higher than yesterday. At Liverpool spot wheat scored an advance for the day of ½d to 4d. May 1½d, July 2⅜d and Sept. ⅝d. May wheat rose 55 centimes at Paris, being quoted at 31 francs, equal to $1.6"¾ per bushel. The market rose 25 centimes at Antwerp.

Wheat is firm at Toronto with little change in prices.

A FRENCH LINER CAPTURED.

U. S. Gunboat Annapolis Captures the French Mail Liner Lafayette While Trying to Run the Havana Blockade.

On board the Associated Press despatch boat Kate Spencer (via Key West, May 6.)—The Lafayette of the French General Trans-Atlantic Company's line, a vessel of 3,394 tons gross register, bound from Corunna, Spain, on April 23, for Havana, was captured yesterday evening off the latter port by the United States gunboat Annapolis, Commander J. J. Hunker, while trying to run the blockade, after having previously been warned off. She has on board a large number of passengers and a valuable general cargo.

The Lafayette, which hails from St. Nazaire, France, is a fine vessel, of the old type. She is over 344 feet long, has 44 feet beam, and is over 28 feet deep. She was built in 1864 at Greenock, of iron.

The Lafayette was heading for Havana and was boarded by an officer of the Annapolis and warned not to enter the port. She afterwards made an attempt to do so and was taken after an exciting chase by the Annapolis and other gunboats.

INSTANT RELEASE ORDERED.

The Capture of the Lafayette Was an "Unfortunate Incident."

Key West, Fla., May 7.—Commodore Watson yesterday afternoon received orders from Washington instantly to release the French mail steamer Lafayette and to send her to Havana under escort.

The capture of the Frenchman by the gunboat Annapolis turns out to have been an unfortunate incident, resulting from a mistake, but no protest has been made to the representatives of the French Government in the United States. The officials here declare that this will close the affair. It appears that before the Lafayette sailed for Havana the French Legation in Washington was instructed to communicate with the State Department.

This was done, and permission granted to the steamer to enter and discharge her passengers and cargo, with the understanding that she would take on nothing there. Instructions for the fulfillment of this agreement were sent from Washington to Admiral Sampson's squadron, and it was only learned yesterday, after the capture was made, that they were never delivered.

France Don't Like It.

London, May 7.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says:

"The effect upon Paris of the seizure of the steamer Lafayette is clear enough. Already a rather bitter feeling against the United States had existed and this incident will certainly not tend to diminish it. Some angry expressions are to be heard."

UNHAPPY SPAIN.

Rioters Set Fire to Public Buildings and Cut Telegraph Lines.

Madrid, May 7.—Further disorders are reported from different parts of the provinces, especially from Murcia, capital of the province of that name, 30 miles from Carthagena, where a mob, composed mainly of striking miners, has cut the telegraph lines, set fire to the town hall and the law courts, burning the archives. The rioters also made an attack upon the local jail, beat in the doors, and released the prisoners. Finally, the rioting strikers have interrupted railroad communication with Murcia and have destroyed a store by the use of dynamite, distributing the provisions which it contained. The situation is regarded as being very serious. Quite recently 6,000 striking miners of Murcia attempted to march upon Carthagena and were only prevented from so doing by a strong force of troops.

NOT A WORD FROM DEWEY.

He May Have Been Delayed in Carrying Out His Plans About Manila.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—After another day of waiting in the Navy and State Departments, the doors again were closed last evening without a word from Commodore Dewey, or any other reliable source as to what happened at Manila after the cable broke. If the delay means anything, it is believed not to be more serious than that Commodore Dewey has been delayed in carrying out fully his plans for the occupation of Manila.

A Dry Bath.

A Scotchman was once advised to take shower baths. A friend explained to him how to fit up one by the use of a cistern and colander, and Sandy accordingly set to work and had the thing done at once. Subsequently he was met by the friend who had given him the advice, and, being asked how he enjoyed the bath, "Man," said he, "it was fine! I liked it rale weel, and kept mysel' quite dry too." Being asked how he managed to take the shower and yet remain quite dry, he replied, "Dod, ye dinna surely think I was sae daft as stand below the water without an umbrella!"—London Answers.

Cause and Effect.

"Say, I haven't seen you at the club for a fortnight. What's the matter?"

"Just now I'm staying at home a good deal."

"Really?"

"Yes. My wife is visiting her parents."—Gaulois.

SHADOWS.

See how the shifting lights and shadows fall
Athwart the path where young leaves take the sun!
Blent in a wavering, tangled maze they run,
As blows the wind across the orchard wall,
So fleet, so faint, that careless play seems all.
Yet perfect law imprints them, every one,
And tides might sooner seek the moon to shun
Than leaves this instant limning to forestall.
Thus do the lights and shadows of the soul
Unerringly portray its good and ill.
Each aim, each longing, fraught with joy or dole,
Traces an image on life's pathway still,
And the swift pictures are our judgment scroll
Whether with shine or shade the hours we fill.

—Edna Dean Proctor.

Worse Yet.

A story about the odd names of the colored people of the south comes from the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

An up town housekeeper has a washerwoman with the queer Christian name of Damsel, and it once occurred to the lady to ask this madonna of the tubs for whom or what she had been called. In reply to the question the washerlady replied:

"'Twas a frien of meh maw gimme that entitle—an a mighty ugly one it is, I mus' say. But I've got worse names than that," she added gloomily. "Meh full name's Queen Victoria Damsel Jones."

A Woman's Wit.

They were talking of the civil war the other day, and the older members of the company had compared reminiscences.

"Which side were you on during the war, Mrs. B.?" asked the kittenish young girl of the party, turning to a pretty little woman who had been born in 1862.

"I was in arms on the southern side," was the quick reply.—New York Tribune.

"Talking of office boys," said the man in the checks, "what a nuisance they are!"

"Right," said the man in the stripes. "A new one isn't well enough acquainted with the business, and an experienced one is always too well acquainted with his boss."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The public schools teach almost every known branch of study but the one most important branch of all. What does it profit your son if he has an intellect like a Newton, and is mentally an Admiral Crichton, if he has a weak and puny body and not the remotest idea of how to care for his health? A boy should be taught from the start that his health is his most precious endowment. Without health, all the talent, all the genius, and all the ambition in the world are worthless. A boy should be taught that success in any walk of life, that happiness, and life itself, are dependent upon his care of his health.

When a man feels that he is losing his health and vigor, when his cheeks no longer glow, his step is no longer elastic and the sparkle of health is no longer in his eyes, he should work less, rest more and resort to the right remedy to restore his bodily vigor. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a natural medicine—a scientific medicine. It does no violence to nature. It works with and not against nature. It promotes the natural processes of secretion and excretion. It imparts vitality and power to the whole system. It gives plumpness and color to the cheeks, sparkle to the eyes, steadiness to the nerves, strength to the muscles and the animation of health to the whole body. It makes the appetite keen and hearty. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and nerve-tonic and restorative. Medicine dealers sell it and have absolutely nothing else "just as good."

"I was afflicted with pimples and boils, and running sores on face and neck," writes Robert S. Wert, Esq., of No. 615 Galloway Ave., Columbus, Ohio. "I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets,' and was cured."

Constipation is the commonest beginning and first cause of many serious diseases and it should always be treated with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets used in connection with the "Discovery." These are the most perfect natural laxatives and permanently cure.

A WOMAN SCORNED.

"You mean that you wish me to release you from your promise—to give you back what you are pleased to call your freedom?"

"There's no need for you to take it like that, Betty. You know it has been very pleasant, but"—

"But it cannot last? I see. It seems a pity you didn't think of that sooner."

"Well, to tell you the truth, I thought of it some weeks ago, but I was under the impression that you—well, that you had money, you know, and"—

But Leonard Bryng quailed before the flashing scorn of the blue eyes.

"Go on," said the girl coldly. "Please finish."

He wasn't gifted with a very keen intelligence, this debonair young curate, so he went on, blundering, to his doom.

"Well, you see, if there had been money in the case my brother couldn't have objected. We should be independent of his allowance; but, considering that he's an old bachelor and never likely to marry, he naturally looks to me to—well, to place a suitable woman at the head of the family, you know. No doubt if she had money he would overlook the lack of birth and position, but"—

"Stop!" cried Betty fiercely. "You ask me to marry you; then, because you see in me a penniless girl, with neither father nor brother to avenge the wrong, you not only break your given word and talk about 'freedom,' but you add insult to injury and tell me that if I had sufficient money to pay your price you would have condescended to marry me. Go!" she cried. "I will not hear another word! I thank heaven I know you as you are! And you, coward that you are, will know when you stand in the pulpit that there is at least one woman in the world who knows that you dare not preach as you practice! Don't speak to me again! I will not hear another word!"

Rev. Leonard turned away with a sheepish expression on his handsome face.

"What a little fiend she is," he muttered; "a perfect little vixen, for all her pretty face! Who'd ever have thought she could go on like that? And I thought her so sweet and gentle too!"

Betty stood with her little quivering form drawn to its full height in a very paroxysm of passion and wounded love till he was out of sight. Then she flung herself on the ground and gave way to a storm of grief.

They had been engaged three months, and Betty had thought him perfect in spite of the fact that he insisted on keeping their engagement secret. They must wait, he declared, till his elder brother returned from abroad; to tell him by letter would spoil all. Raymond was such an old bachelor he would have no sympathy with lovers' hopes. So Betty waited. There was no one to be humored or deceived by her, but Betty had her secret.

In six months she would be 18 and would come into her estate. In the meantime she was too old to stay at school. Her guardian was crusty and took little trouble. Betty didn't care for society, so she was sent to rusticate with her old nurse and foster mother till the time arrived for the king to enjoy his own.

Often the child had pictured to herself how Leonard would tell her his brother had refused his consent, that there was nothing before them but poverty, which he dared not let her share, and yet he could not give her up. How the clouds would lift and his dear eyes brighten when she told him that soon she would have a thousand a year of her own! It was sweet to think that he knew her only as Betty Mrs. Brown's niece. She had always called the old woman "Auntie," and he never suspected she was an heiress in her own right and no relative of her humble friend.

But a day had come when Leonard met her in the primrose glen and told her of his brother's return, and instead of telling him of their engagement he had asked Betty to give him back his freedom. It wouldn't be "honorable" to ask any girl to share his poverty, and the squire would never consent to marriage with a farmer's niece.

"The man who asks a woman to share his riches has some love for her, the man who asks her to share his poverty has more."

The words flitted through Betty's mind before she took in the full force of Leonard's words and recognized the great, unpardonable insult he offered her. Then, as the truth was driven home, she forgot all else in the blinding pain of a woman scorned.

"Is anything the matter? My child, are you hurt?"

Betty raised her tear stained face and met the glance of two steadfast brown eyes, then the speaker swung himself from the saddle and led his horse across the mossy sward to where she lay. With a stifled sob the girl sprang to her feet, but her bosom was heaving, her breath coming in gasps, and she couldn't speak—nay, she could scarcely stand—and the stranger slipped a strong arm round her for support.

"You have had an accident. No?" as she shook her head. "Then you've had bad news? Ah, when we're young, troubles are apt to feel very heavy, and clouds look very black."

Betty freed herself from the protecting arm and leaned against the horse's shining coat, her white fingers playing idly with the pommel of the saddle.

"You will think me very foolish," she said. "I've had no accident, no bad news—at least"—

"Only a lovers' quarrel, that will come right in the morning?"

"It will never come right," the girl said quickly, impelled by a sudden impulse; then, checking herself: "But you are too kind to trouble about me. I must not detain you, sir."

"I will see you out of the wood, at any rate," he returned kindly. Then together they strolled toward the farm.

There was a pleasant feeling of curiosity in the stranger's mind as to who the pretty child was. As she paused at the white gate it suddenly flashed across him. It couldn't be! He had just been at the farm. This couldn't possibly be the little niece Mrs. Brown had talked about in a rambling, mysterious way? This dainty girl, with her supple figure and gracefully poised head, could never be that woman's relative? But Betty had opened the gate while he meditated, and, with a shyly murmured "Thank you," she was gone.

And the squire—for he it was—rode slowly homeward, thinking, trying to recall what good Mrs. Brown had said about young folks and flirtation, how folks wasn't always as poor as they seemed and how it was good for parsons to marry young and settle down with a wife and family round them. She couldn't have meant to imply anything about his brother and—no! to speak of that pretty childish thing in the same breath as anything so prosaic as a "wife and family" was too absurd.

The idea annoyed the squire in a most unreasonable manner. "Wife and family!" How these folk did talk, to be sure! He must ask Leonard. And later he did drop hints on the subject, but his brother most emphatically averred that he hadn't yet seen the woman on whom he would bestow his hand and heart.

Of course it had been the squire's mistake—he shouldn't have jumped to conclusions, but Mrs. Brown's hints and Betty's tears had got mixed in his mind, and he had fancied his brother responsible for one or both. It was a relief to think that Leonard was free.

After that the squire called often at Mrs. Brown's. She was one of the best tenants—there might be repairs needed at the farm.

Always Betty was there, either helping to make sweet butter, collecting eggs or feeding little fluffy chickens, and one day the squire pulled up his horse at the home paddock and watched.

Old Farmer Brown had been breaking in a colt, and there was Betty, seated on its back, her pretty face flushed with excitement. Then the farmer let go the leading rein, and Betty cantered triumphantly round the field.

"Bravo!" At the squire's voice the girl looked up. She was just about to leave the saddle, and her hold on the high spirited little animal's head was relaxed. With a start it reared, then bolted. Betty tried in vain to regain her seat. She fell, her foot caught in the stirrup, and the colt started at a mad gallop round the paddock.

"Good God!" The squire sprang over the low wall, and in a moment the recreant little steed was brought to a stand and the fainting girl was in his arms. Kneeling down by the brook close by, they bathed her face and hands, and soon the blue eyes opened.

"It was all my fault!" the squire groaned. "I was a fool to shout like that. You—you might have been killed."

"Nay, nay, sir; don't take on. There's no harm done," said Farmer Brown good naturedly. "The lass is no worse. Are you, Betty, child? I'll just catch Rob Roy before he does further mischief; then I'll help Betty up home."

Betty was still resting against the squire's rough sleeve. She felt dazed and queer, but very comfortable, and the squire kept chafing her little cold hands in his own warm clasp.

"You might have been killed!" he repeated hoarsely. "Betty, do you know if you had died the light of my life would have gone out? Oh, childie, could you ever accept an old man's love? I am old enough to be your father, but I love you more than all the world beside!"

"So you have money after all, it seems! Raymond has done well for himself. You won't tell him we were ever engaged?"

"I shall tell him some day that you asked me to marry you," said Betty proudly. "But I will not betray you. Don't be afraid, I know how to be generous. And Raymond trusts me. He will not press the matter.

"Well, you can afford to be generous, I suppose," Leonard answered sullenly. "You've not come off badly after all. You see, you and I might have had to wait years for the property."

"Oh, how dare you speak like that!" she cried. "Is all honor dead within you? But you are going away. After this we need not meet again till"—

"Till you are married. Well, you can afford to despise me now, Betty."

"Your one cry is 'Afford, afford!'" she said. "But the girl who is loved as I am loved can 'afford' a good deal. Even a woman scorned can 'afford' to be generous to the man she thought she loved when real love comes and conquers all.'

* * * * * * * *

It was nearly a year after their wedding, and Betty and the squire stood among the primroses where he had first found her, and she told him the story of why she cried that day.

"And you've never cried for him since, Betty?"

"Never, Raymond. Those were my first and last tears for a false lover, and I have never regretted that day."

"Regretted it!" The squire drew her close and kissed her sweet lips almost reverently. "It was the happiest day of my life," he said, "for it brought me you."—Answers.

DOCTORS COULDN'T CURE.

But Mrs. Rowe was Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Woodstock, May 2—(Special) Woodstock ladies are among the healthiest and prettiest in Canada. When therefore it became known that one of them, Mrs. W. Rowe was suffering, and had suffered for twelve years, with that curse of womankind—Female Weakness—aggravated by Kidney and Liver Disease, the sympathy of her sisters was freely given her.

The female population of Woodstock are now overjoyed over Mrs. Rowe's recovery.

Dodd's Kidney Pills did it.

The doctor told Mrs. Rowe she could never be cured.

Different "remedies" failed to help her.

A few boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her completely.

The Supreme Hymn.

Speaking of hymns, the Rev. Robert Collyer said the other day: "I well remember one day when this subject was the object of a discussion between Ralph Waldo Emerson and Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes. The latter said that many of the so called hymns were more pieces of cabinet work. Then his voice deepened, his eyes shone, as we remember him in his noblest moments, as he said, 'One hymn I think supreme.' Emerson threw his head back, as he always did when his attention was arrested, and waited. Dr. Holmes repeated the first verse:

"Thou hidden love of God, whose height,
Whose depth, unfathomed, no man knows,
I see from far thy beauteous light.
Inly I sigh for thy repose.
My heart is pained, nor can it be
At rest till it finds rest in thee.

"'I know—I know,' exclaimed Emerson. 'That is the supreme hymn.'"—New York Tribune.

The Two Lobes of the Brain.

In the ordinary working of the brain one half is more active than the other and exercises a superiority on its neighbor lobe. This lobe—in ordinary persons the left, of course—is the cerebral master. Heredity, education, or what we will—all the combined influences, in short, which mold human life—have tended, by some process of physiological selection, to place one lobe over the other in point of importance. The other (right) lobe is the servant of the left in a measure. Its education has been neglected, and it requires the control of its better cultured neighbor in order that life may be conducted in a sensible and sane fashion. The most hopeless cases of insanity, Wigan would have held, would be those in which both hemispheres were affected. If one was alone ailing, the other might exert more or less control over it, and the extent of the control would depend on which lobe exhibited the diseased action. All degrees of insanity or mental derangement could thus be accounted for on this supposition of the relative control of one hemisphere by the other. The perfect life is that in which the better and higher half controls the weaker and less responsible.—Andrew Wilson, M. D., in Harper's Magazine.

Something Like a Search.

A Welshman who was in London when extensive sewering operations were in progress lost his watch. He reported the matter to Scotland Yard, and the officials said they would leave no stone unturned to find the missing timekeeper. Shortly afterward Taffy again visited the metropolis and saw street after street turned up. He was told that in all 36 miles of road were in the same condition. He rushed down to Scotland Yard and exclaimed to the wondering inspector:

"I didn't think I was giving you all that trouble. If you don't find the watch by Sunday, I wouldn't break up any more streets."—Pearson's Weekly.

HUMAN SACRIFICES

On the Altar of Diabetes, Saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, Only.

Hardly a family in the country is free from Diabetes. Great thirst, failing sight, numbness in the thighs, bleeding gums, swollen ankles, emaciation, nervousness, pale or turbid urine, loss of sexual power, decaying teeth, pains in the loins or small of the back, are all positive signs that Diabetes is in the system.

Do you know how it ends? In Death. A premature, horrible, agonized, pitiful death. The victim has no peace, no ease in life. His days are filled with tortures. His nights are waking dreams of agony. He longs to die, yet fears the terrors of his end. He dies, a bloated, fetid, repulsive mass of corruption. That is the only end of unchecked Diabetes. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it. They drive it out of the system thoroughly, create new, clean blood, rebuild the diseased kidneys, and restore robust health.

THE DEAF HEAR.

DR. CHASE'S CATARRH CURE

Working Wonders in Toronto.

Gave MRS. BINDON her hearing when Specialists failed.

About 3 years ago, Mrs. Bindon, of 11 Maitland St., Toronto, was attacked with la Grippe, which affected her hearing to such an extent that she was completely deaf. It was a serious affliction and she tried many remedies and consulted a prominent specialist on ear diseases, but derived no benefit. By a happy circumstance she was led to use Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure, and before she had completed 3 boxes her hearing had partially returned.

She persisted in the application of the remedy, so confident was she of ultimate sure, and by the time 12 boxes had been used her hearing was completely restored. For 3 months now she has been free from deafness, and no emancipated sufferer was ever more delighted than Mrs. Bindon. On Sunday she goes to church and enjoys the service, a thing she was unable to do before Dr. Chase's Catarrh Cure gave her back her hearing.

CANADA LIFE
Assurance Company.

ANOTHER PROSPEROUS YEAR.

Large Increase in Surplus.

The fifty-first annual report of the Canada Life shows this old established Company to be in a most flourishing condition. The annual meeting was held yesterday. Following is a synopsis of the report:—

A PROSPEROUS YEAR.

In presenting to the Shareholders their 51st Annual Report, the Directors are gratified in announcing that the Company has fairly shared in the somewhat improved condition of the business of the country, as will be seen by the Statements and Accounts now submitted. By these it will be observed that the Company has transacted a larger business than during the previous year, and has increased its clear surplus by no less than $497,093 05.

NEW BUSINESS.

The applications for new assurances during 1897 numbered 3 066, for the sum of $6,185,996, of which, however, 266 for $531,000 were declined, the lives not appearing up to that standard which it is in the interest of the company's other assurers should be maintained, and as 191 applications for $373,360 were not carried out, the issue of the year was for $5,291,636, under 2,609 policies, exceeding 1896 by 573 policies for $798,980.

The total business in force at the close of 1897 was $72,719,555 29 of Assurances, under 33,407 policies, upon 24,469 lives.

POLICY CLAIMS.

The claims by deaths paid during 1897 amounted to $770,168 45, and Endowment policies for $128,846 92, having matured, these sums, as well as $218,481 29 for profits, $145,411.18 for surrenders, and an annuity of $400, making in all $1,263,307.84, were paid to policyholders during the year.

INCREASE IN ASSETS.

The Income receipts of the year were $2,963,272.83, and deducting therefrom all payments to policy-holders for claims by death, for profits, and for matured Endowment policies, as well as other outlay, including expenses of management, there was left the sum of $1,272,486.05, which increased the Company's Assets to $18,678 915 67.

SURPLUS.

As appears by the Abstract of Assets and Liabilities, after providing fully for the necessary reserve for all policies of the Company, and for all its other Liabilities, there is shown a Surplus of $1,564,082 05.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, Mr. A. G. Ramsay, in moving the adoption of the report, said:

The Directors' Report and the usual accounts and statements have for some days been in your hands, and have now been taken as read. While the report is brief, it contains, I think, along with the various published accounts, all that is required to enable those interested in the Company to judge of its progress and success in the past year. The addition during 1897 of nearly half a million dollars to the surplus or profits fund is a large and satisfactory one, and without invidiously comparing it with the figures of any other particular Company. I may say that it is more than was attained by all the other Canadian companies combined. The new business of the year was, you will observe, of satisfactory and gratifying amount, and in excess of the previous year, and you will be pleased to know that it is of that desirable class which will result more to the profit of the Company than would a larger amount obtained at heavier expense, or from less desirable regions than the healthful climate of Canada, and the four Northern States to which we have thus far deemed it judicious to confine the operations of the Company. The existing assurances are $72,719,555 or nearly twice as much as they were 12 years ago. The death claims of the year continued of very favourable amount, and being well within what was calculated upon, that fact testifies to the care observed in the selection of the lives, and to the judicious limitation of the business to the healthful climates already alluded to.

The recent lamentable failures of some of the companies doing business on the assessment system, and the anxiety felt as to the others which are based upon the same fallacious principles lead me to point out that these occurrences are only the inevitable results, which were from the first predicted by those whose knowledge and experience enabled them to judge of what the future of companies of the kind must be. At our meeting in 1887, when concerns of the kind were making strenuous efforts to establish themselves in Canada, I alluded to the miserable failures they had been in England and in America, and I said that their "ephemeral existence indicates how useless the assessment system of assurance is as a family provision. It can only offer the uncertain hope of a cheap assurance for a few years, till the company breaks down. It cannot afford any guarantee that a definite amount of assurance will certainly be paid to a widow or children after an assurer's death, whether that occurs at an early day or a distant one, and without such a guarantee as that, which our own and other sound companies offer, life assurance must be a fraud and a delusion." I added that "I was aware that agents and managers of companies of the kind pointed to the names of prominent business and professional men who have joined them, or who act as their directors, but as some of them at all events allow their names to be employed in that way, simply because policies have been gratuitously given to them, one can judge how little weight should attach to the names of the gentlemen thus used to decoy others to join such companies." One cannot envy the feelings of the prominent gentlemen alluded to, who induced persons to take policies in companies of the kind, from which they are now driven out by their failure, or by the levy of such high payments as they are unable to meet.

As the accounts show, the year's income was within a trifle of three million dollars, and the assets of the company were increased to the very considerable amount of nearly nineteen million dollars, and yielding, after deducting liabilities of every kind, a net surplus or profit of $1,564,082 for allocation at the end of next year, along with whatever addition there may be made to it between now and that time, and as the management and other expenses by which the profits to policy-holders are very largely influenced continue to be on a more moderate percentage than that of other Canadian or American companies, the prospects for our assurers are of a favourable character.

It is anticipated that legislation will be introduced by the Government, modifying the present 4½ per cent. rate of interest prescribed by law as the basis for Life Assurance Reserves, and adopting the new mortality Tables based upon the observations and large experience of the British Insurance Companies, in course of compilation by the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, and I may say on behalf of the Board in reference to the amendment to the charter, alluded to in the Directors report of last year, that the Directors purpose to avail themselves of the occasion of that legislation to seek such amendments to the law as may meet the Board's requirements.

The motion was seconded by Mr. F. W. Gates, Vice-President, and unanimously carried. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the agents, officers, medical and legal advisers of the company, Mr. Adam Brown speaking in eloquent terms of their services rendered to the Company.

Mr. Leggat moved and Lieut.-Col. McLaren seconded a hearty vote of thanks to the President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Company during the past year. Brief and interesting addresses were also made by Sir George Kirkpatrick and Sir George Burton, the latter of whom was heartily congratulated upon the recent honour conferred upon him by the Queen.

The retiring Directors, Chief Justice Sir George Burton, Col. Sir Casimer Gzowski, K.C.M.G., and Mr. N. Merritt, were re-elected. At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Mr. A. G. Ramsay was re-elected President and Mr. F. W. Gates Vice-President.

The meeting passed off very harmoniously, every one present being gratified with the progress and continued prosperity of the Canada Life, which, as Sir George Kirkpatrick remarked, was easily leader of all Companies in the Dominion.

UNCLE SOL

Goes to Market.

And you're really back, Sol. I've had dinner waiting this half hour. Whatever kept you?

Well, Maria, Iv'e just been up to the post office. They're the most obligin' people you ever did see. I goes up to the hole and I says, "Is there anything for Solomon Timotheus?"

"Yes, sir," the little fellow says, "there is a letter for you."

I says, "You're a brick," (you know I often say that like) and he blushed, smiled and said, "No, I'm a Stone."

After that I went down to the market. I tell you they have a powerful fine market. 'Twould do your heart good t' see all the butter 'n' eggs and seoh like. But they've a mighty queer system o' weighing everything that comes on. I fear it'll spoil the market. I heard a man say so to day; but I'm goin' to inquire into this 'ere thing an' see for myself. 'Tis kind o' funny that they from far away get in such a way when in each other's way, as they weigh or wish they were away to weigh their goods another way by some other weigh(t). Yes, I tell ye its all weigh, weigh up there. Well, Maria, some people are tight. I don't mean air tight, or whiskey tight, but money tight. I actually saw a poor Salvation Army lass, as they call 'm, ask a man how much his butter was. He said either 15 or 16 cents, I'm not sure which, but anyway the woman says "I'll take a pound." He lifted a roll up in his fingers and put it into her basket. She handed him a ten and a five cent piece; I suppose, poor thing, she thought he said 15 cents, and away she went with a smile on her face, but that 'ere fellow followed her to the stairs and grabbed her by the arm and says, "I want that other cent, miss." I was so mad, Maria, I could scarce keep in. And they tell me it was going in some places at 14 cents.

Oh, Sol, how tight!

Well I'll be hanged (on a sour apple tree) if I didn't hear some funny things to-day. And ye know, Maria, they're the most friendly people here I ever did see. One man comes up to me and he says, Hello, Uncle Sol, glad t'see you back. I hear you have a son in the Cuban war. Yes, says I, I have, poor Tom, God bless him.

Well, he says, you'll be able to make out this easily. "Why's the Yankee navy like a donkey?"

And to tell the truth, Maria, I was beat. At last I gave up and you'd never guess till your dying day what he said: "Because it has no Main(e)." Well I laughed and I laughed and up shoots a whole crowd around me and one coon says "I'll have a bottle. "A bottle of what?" says I. "Och," says he, "a bottle of whatever you have to sell." And the man with me says as quick as thunder, "He hasn't weighed it yet." Ye know, Maria, I was perfectly 'stounded. I didn't know what they were talking about. And up comes a youngster with a pair o' scales, and says I'll weigh it, Mister; and up sprang a man an' says "Toll please," and held out his hand full o' money. I says to him, says I, "well I'm not hard up but I'll take some of your money for friendship sake, like," and he velled, an' he howled and called a police, and before I could say Port Robinson (I don't mean the one that keeps the Star Grocery) they landed me in the police station.

Well, Maria, it took near a half hour for that 'ere man an' I to 'eplain things to them.

But 'long comes Mr. Dumble (true old friend he was) an' says in his usual kind way: "Gentlemen, I know this man, Mr. Timotheus, when he lived in town years ago, and I am fully persuaded from what he and this other gentleman have said that it is entirely a mistake."

And, Maria, I now stand before you a free nigger, like.

* * *

This wife of mine, Maria I mean, is a powerful reader, 'specially since Tom, poor boy, gave me a 'cyclopedya, or whatever you call it, and I believe she's been looking up Cuba, and this is what she found:—

C.U.-ll-An attentive student.

Cuba, so called by its aborigines, is the largest and richest of the West Indies. It was discovered by Columbus, 1492, on his first voyage.

Its prior names were Juana in honour of Isabella's son; Fernandina, on the death of Ferdinand; Santiago after the patron saint of Spain, and Ave Maria in honour of the Virgin. Columbus thrice visited Cuba, but no settlement of importance was done till 1515, when Havana was founded. Havana has been several times destroyed, first by French privateer in 1538, and again by the French in 1554. The Cubans during these years were in constant terror of invasion by the pirates that infested those seas, and built Moro and Punta, two fortresses to further protect Havana. In 1762 Havana was taken by the English after a stubborn attack, but was given back next year by the Treaty of Paris.

From this date the true development of Cuba began.

So loyal have been the Cubans, that on the deposition of the Spanish sovereign by Napoleon, they all took an oath to preserve their island for the deposed king, and declared war against Napoleon.

From this onward Cuba has been governed by Governor-Captain Generals from Spain. Some of whom honourably acquitted themselves, while others were creatures of infamy. They came with full power and authority from Spain, surrounded by a mass of impertinent Spanish officials, and as time dragged on, so increased the ire and hatred of the native Cubans. This has manifested itself in frequent risings for greater privileges and freedom.

The first of such was "Black Eagle" in 1829, another in 1844, and in 1848 a band hailed from the United States to aid the Cubans. In the same year President Polk proposed the buying of the island for $1,000,000. Ten years later a similar proposition was made, the sum being this time $30,000,000, but these never matured. During the Spanish revolution of 1868 the Cubans seized the opportunity of rebelling. Since that time there has been frequent uprisings, and of late years the struggle has been incessant.

It is stated that Spain in eight years sent no less than 145,000 soldiers and her most favoured commanders, but with no result. On the other hand Cuba has seen her trade decrease, her crops reduced, her people deserting to the United States, and her taxes have been trebled in vain to meet the ever increasing expenses and floating debt. Out of $36,000,000 taxes raised in Cuba, Spain requires $6,000,000. Slavery has existed on this island to an alarming extent for three centuries. Although there nominally is no slavery on the island at the present time, there is in reality as degraded a form of servitude as ever existed in any country on the face of the globe.

Mothers, do you blame me that I should be willing to send my only son to help these poor, down-trodden people? No, indeed you don't. Had you a dozen you would part with them in so righteous a cause.

MARY ANN.

["Mary Ann" might give both sides, and tell us to what extent the trouble between the Cubans and their Spanish masters has been intensified and fomented by filibusters from the United States.

A Banker's Experience.

"I tried a bottle of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for a troublesome affection of the throat," writes Manager Thomas Dawson of the Standard Bank, now of 14 Melbourne Ave, Toronto. "It proved effective. I regard the remedy as simple, cheap and exceedingly good. It has hitherto been my habit to consult a physician in troubles of this nature. Hereafter, however, I intend to be my own family doctor."

Crick in the Back.

Doan's Kidney Pills will take it out quicker than anything you know of. Mr. George Durand, Hamilton, Ont., says:— "Doan's Kidney Pills have made me stronger, removed the tired feeling and cured my weak kidneys and aching back."

Hagyard's Yellow Oil cures all pain in man or beast; for sprains, cuts, bruises, callous lumps, swellings, inflammation, rheumatism and neuralgia it is a specific.

FLOWER SUNDAY IN ST. LUKE'S

A Beautiful Sermon and a Fine Address by Rev. Rural Dean Webb.

A very timely and profitable service was that of the Children's Flower service in St. Luke's last night. There was a very large congregation present. The children laden with the flowers they had procured and purchased, entered the church in procession and deposited their flowers, which were placed as their offering upon the altar, by the Rector. Mr. Bushel, a student of Trinity College, read the service, and Rev. Rural Dean Webb, who had taken the morning service, and preached an excellent sermon, addressed the children in an admirably instructive and entertaining manner. He was very deeply impressed with the splendid singing of the children and asked them to repeat two verses to which the children responded very heartily with "Consider the Lilies." and "O Lord, how great is Thy Bounty." From these two texes the speaker drew many instructive lessons. He pointed out that the beauty of God was his holiness, as exemplified in the life of Jesus Christ, who as a child was a perfect example to children. The children paid the closest and apparently most intelligent attention to the beautiful address of Mr. Webb

The music by the choir was special and well presented. It may be mentioned that the music for the special flower hymn was composed by the organist, Mr. Davies.

THE DEANERY OF NORTHUMBERLAND.

The Meeting in St. Luke's—Missionary Address by Mr. Maconochie.

The clergy of the Deanery of Northumberland, under the presidency of Rural Dean Webb, commence their quarterly session at St. Luke's this evening, when a missionary meeting will be held in the school house which promises to be of an exceptionally interesting character. Mr. Maconochie, for twenty-five years a deputy-commissioner in the Indian civil service, will give an address on "Mission Work in the Punjaub." The general public is cordially invited to attend.

To-morrow the morning session will be devoted to the discussion of the words of Ordination of Priests, introduced by Rev. W. L. Armitage, which will be followed by a paper on Maurice's "Kingdom of Christ" by Rev. H. Symonds. At 1 p. m. luncheon will be served in the school by the ladies of St. Luke's, when the churchwardens of St. John's, All Saints' and St. Luke's are invited to meet the clergy. In the afternoon "Church Progress in the Deanery" will be discussed by Rev. G. Scott and others.

3 STUNNERS For Bargain Day— THURSDAY.

GOUGH BROS. Store is the focus for all eyes. There is neither fast pace nor slow pace about this business organization. In harmony with the spirit that pervades this store is the embodiement of action. We are always to the front with flying colours—and everybody knows it.

Ever since the opening of our New Clothing Emporium in Toronto, which is admitted to be the largest exclusive Clothing Concern in the country, we have been more than ever confirmed in the view that we are ourselves to be:—"The Greatest Clothing Providers in Canada."

Being Sandwiched in between the biggest Departmental Stores, of Toronto, and the big crowds they draw, benefitting us by drawing grist to the mill, we find it an easy matter to Out-class these pretentious careers.

Why?

Because the claim has been made and repeatedly proven, that Gough Bros. buy and sell Clothing, Hats, Boots, Underwear, Neckwear and Outfittings of every description for men, cheaper than any other merchant in the land. That fact is absolute.

Because such buying power—such close connections with leading manufacturers—such ability to handle large quantities of goods necessary for eight associate stores—furnishes convincing proof of our leadership. That fact is undeniable.

Because our money is made in the advantage we secure in buying big lots. We cut the rich manufacturers' profits down when we get to them with a big Order in one hand and Cash in the other. If one wont take it the other will. That fact is indisputable.

THIS WEEK'S PROGRAMME:

Now comes the climax of Bargain-giving in the choicest of hand-picked goods for our Peterborough Customers.

This week we are ready with a fresh grip on the reins, and start out on our summer campaign with an invincible fleet of Little Prices. The story is short. A big purchase of Summer Shoes, Suits and Neckwear came into our hands the other day, at prices that are only possible from the advantages obtained by the combined buying power of many stores. And the Ultimatum is this:—

U.S. TROOPS FOR CUBA

Will Sail by the Mallory Line Transport Str. Gussie.

7,000 SPRINGFIELD RIFLES,

A Lot of Ammunition and Hundreds of Boxes of Provisions Will Be in the Cargo—A Landing to Be Made in Cuba Near Havana—General War News.

Tampa, Fla., May 10.—The steamer Gussie, one of the Mallory line boats, chartered by the Government for use as a transport, will sail for Cuba this morning, loaded with arms, ammunition and supplies, furnished by the United States Government, for the use of the Cuban insurgents. A company of 100 United States troops, the First Regiment of Infantry, will accompany the expedition and aid in guarding the landing of the valuable cargo, and will, if necessary, penetrate into the interior far enough to place the supplies in the hands of the insurgents. The expedition will be in charge of Capt. W. H. Dorst, General Miles' aide, who has just returned from Cuba.

The Gussie has on board between six and seven thousand Springfield rifles, about 200,000 rounds of ammunition, and several hundred boxes of provisions, consisting principally of canned meats and hard tack. The utmost secrecy is maintained regarding the point of landing, but, in view of Capt. Dorst's recent landing near Havana, where he communicated with the insurgent leader, General Delgado, it is believed that the expedition will be headed for a point not far from Havana. The Gussie had mounted on her forward deck yesterday a one-pounder rapid-fire gun. It is understood, however, that she will be met at some point not far from Key West by a gunboat from the blockading squadron, and escorted to the designated landing place.

The Whitney, the sister ship of the Gussie, which sailed for Dry Tortugas Saturday with two companies of the Fifth Infantry, returned yesterday. It is intimated that she will follow the Gussie to Cuba as soon as the arms, ammunition and supplies can be loaded. Before a week has passed, it is believed that the insurgent leaders will have been furnished with arms enough for at least 15,000 men, and, with a base of supplies established on the coast, a vigorous campaign against the Spanish forces will be inaugurated.

Large amounts of powder and projectiles for the blockading squadron are now arriving here. On Picnic Island there are 12 cars loaded with dynamite, torpedoes, powder and other munitions, which will soon be sent to Key West, and as many more cars are on the wharf tracks. An extra heavy guard has been placed around the cars. Hundreds of carpenters are at work fitting up the big transports, and it is believed now that all of the boats here will be in readiness for loading by Wednesday night.

Troops for Manila.

San Francisco, May 10.—Within this week five thousand men will be quartered at the Presidio in this city, awaiting transportation to Manila. Every day troops from Oregon, Washington, Utah and Idaho will be pouring in, and the work of mustering in the militia continues.

GRATITUDE TO DEWEY.

President McKinley's Message to Congress Recommending Distinction.

Washington, May 10.—Fitting tribute was paid by Congress yesterday to Commodore Dewey for the magnificent victory he achieved in the battle of Manila Bay.

A message from the President was read, recommending that a vote of thanks be extended by Congress to Commodore Dewey and the gallant officers and men of his command. Without a word of debate and without a dissenting voice, the Senate and House agreed to the resolution, carrying into effect the recommendation of the President. Senator Lodge presented and the Senate passed a resolution authorizing the President to present a sword to Dewey and medals to officers and men under him who were in the battle of Manila. It appropriates $10,000 for the purpose.

COMMODORE DEWEY.

By His Brevity and Race Kinship With Naval Heroes of the Past Wins the Thunderer's Praise.

London, May 10.—The comment on the battle at Manila, as the details come in, is universally flattering to Commodore Dewey and the American Navy. The Times says: "The destruction of the Spanish fleet was complete, as complete as any achievement recorded in naval annals, Commodore Dewey showing himself worthy alike of the great traditions of the United States navy and of his kinship with the race that produced Nelson."

The Standard remarks: "Commodore Dewey has evidently taken as his model for despatch writing that laconic British sailor of famous memory who reported a decisive naval victory thus: 'Engaged enemy yesterday. Captured ships as per margin.'"

The Daily News says: "Commodore Dewey's despatches, in their conciseness and modesty, are in accordance with the best naval traditions. The battle establishes a record among contests of the kind, for one of the combatants destroyed the whole fleet of the other without himself suffering any loss whatever. The victors carried the whole job through in a thoroughly workmanlike manner. It is especially worth noting that the discipline of the American ships is reported to have been perfect; for many Spanish authorities and some independent critics thought this might be a weak point on the American side. The excellence of the American tactics and the superiority of the marksmanship are likely to be a permanent factor in this war. The chief lesson which the battle of Manila enforces is what everybody knew before, namely, that under modern conditions of warfare, no amount of personal bravery can possibly make up a deficiency in weight and large metal."

Expecting News.

Washington, May 10.—Naval officials are expecting interesting news from Admiral Sampson within the next twenty-four hours. It is now officially admitted that the Admiral yesterday was with his fleet near Cape Haytien, on the north coast of San Domingo and distant about a day's run from Porto Rico. If Sampson had not struck the Spanish flying squadron yesterday he may strike a blow at Porto Rico itself to-day.

Cabinet to Be Reconstructed.

Madrid, May 10.—The Queen Regent consulted late yesterday with Senor Montero Rios, President of the Senate, who advised a reconstruction of the Cabinet.

It is increasingly probable that the Cabinet will be re-formed with Senor Gamazo included, after the Lower House has adopted the indemnity bill.

WAR NOTES.

The battleship Oregon has arrived at Bahia, Brazil.

The auxiliary cruiser St. Paul has put to sea from Delaware Breakwater.

Between sixty and eighty thousand men are to be landed in Cuba at once.

An army of 5,000 men is to be transported from San Francisco to Manila.

Porto Ricans are clamoring for American assistance to help them throw off the Spanish yoke.

The House has passed a bill authorizing the United States Government to arm and feed the people of Cuba.

Captain Roberts of the Warren Line steamer Roman, now in port at Boston, reports having seen a Spanish torpedo boat off the Nova Scotia coast last Thursday morning.

The French press is greatly chagrined over the American victory. The report was accepted as true that Admiral Dewey was locked up in Manila Bay. The Russian press is also strongly pro-Spanish.

A terrific gale, accompanied by torrents of rain and lightning and thunder, created havoc at the Hempstead Plains, where the American troops are encamped. Nearly all the tents were blown down and the camp thrown into confusion.

MR. McCARTHY'S CONDITION.

Last Night It Was Very Critical—Nature of the Injuries Inflicted.

Toronto, May 10.—Dr. Pepley, seen late last night, said that there was very little change in Mr. McCarthy's condition. The Doctor was with him all Sunday night and last night.

At times the patient revives a little and then gets very wretched indeed, breathing with great difficulty. Sedatives are administered all the time. One or more ribs have been broken and pressed in upon the right lung.

"Mr. McCarthy is in a very critical condition. While I would not venture to say what will result, serious complications may crop up," said the Doctor.

MAYO COUNTY KICKS.

Asks the United States to Intervene and Make Ireland the Eastern Cuba.

Dublin, May 10.—There was a demonstration near Westport, County Mayo, yesterday, to protest against "the indifference of English rulers towards starvation in Ireland."

It was resolved to start a national appeal to the President and Congress of the United States, pointing out the condition of the population, "insulted and coerced by insolent foreign masters," and praying for the intervention of the Government of the great republic "to obtain self-government for Ireland and a cessation of famine and over-taxation."

IT WAS A WILD RACE WITH DEATH

Two Farmers and Their Families, With the Above Noted Exception, However, Successfully Escaped With Their Lives, But Lost All Their Possessions — A Terrible and Noisy Upheaval.

Quebec, May 10.—The usually quiet little village of St. Anne de la Parade, famous for its landslides of 1892 and 1896, was again thrown into a wild state of excitement yesterday morning by a telephone message from St. Casimir that another landslide had occurred at St. Thuribe, a few miles away.

About four o'clock on Saturday morning the neighborhood of St. Thuribe was startled by a low continuous rumbling and tremor of the earth. In the vicinity were the two houses occupied by the farmers named Douville and T. Tessier, and a school house. Tessier, on hearing the noise, aroused his family, and they made good their escape, losing their house, barns, etc., which were quickly engulfed in the upheaval, and completely lost to view. Poor Douville was not so fortunate. He and his wife, with their four children, started to flee from the danger which was fast approaching their homestead, the children crying piteously with fright, and clinging to their parents. It was a wild race with death. The father endeavored to carry one of the children while the mother assisted the others. The tumult of the landslide was awful, and turned their blood cold with horror at the prospect of the fatal end which seemed to be awaiting them. They were running as fast as they could, but the dreadful noise was getting nearer and nearer and it seemed the ground was moving under them at every step.

Suddenly a piercing scream rent the air and their five-year-old girl disappeared from view almost under their very eyes. It was not a moment for turning back, and they kept on until they fell to the ground with fatigue. Their happy home was now completely buried. It had sunk in a topsy-turvy manner for over fifty feet into the bowels of the earth, with it went every vestige of their barns, cattle, and, worst of all, their five-year-old daughter

About sixteen acres in all slid away down from the mainland in a snowshoe shape, the tail of the snowshoe merging into a small river known as River Blanche. It is not expected that further slides will take place, but nevertheless the whole of the adjoining neighborhood is in a state of frenzy and excitement and moving away from the vicinity. The river being small and the water low there is no danger of a flood doing any damage.

WHEAT FORTUNES.

Some of the Fortunate Ones in the City of Montreal W. W. Ogilvie Clears a Million Dollars.

Montreal, May 10.—The merchants yesterday were counting their profits in the various wheat transactions of the past four weeks. It appears that besides the tremendous net gains of the two big milling concerns, several small fortunes have been made as well.

Mr. W. W. Ogilvie is said to have had 1,500,000 bushels of wheat on hand, and stands to make not less than $750,000, or perhaps a round million. These concerns write off two profits, the first on the wheat and the second on flour.

It also looks as if Mr. Robert Meighen, the ever-active and far-seeing President of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, would have to tell his directors at the next annual meeting that the spring rise of 1898 had netted them from $500,000 to $750,000 clear profit.

Mr. Hugh McLennan comes next on the list, with a handling of a million bushels of wheat, and profits amounting to almost a quarter of a million dollars.

Dame Rumor also says that Mr. Alex McFee has come out right side up to the tune of from $20,000 to $30,000.

Mr. A. G. McBean has also scored profits to the extent of $18,000, and, as with the rest, no one appears to be sorry for the Glengarrian's good luck.

Mr. James Carruthers of Montreal and Toronto has also had exceedingly good fortune in wheat and oats, and a well-versed gentleman chalked down $25,000 as the amount Mr. Carruthers had made.

Messrs. Bartlett, Frazier & Co. constitute a Chicago firm, but they do their shipping here, and their profits will turn out to be from $30,000 to $40,000.

Messrs. Lohrke & Co. have also made about $20,000.

Messrs. Crane & Baird make very little noise, but those who know say they have not made a cent less than $25,000, but perhaps $30,000 would be nearer the mark.

The profits of the above-named firms have been made in legitimate institutions, delivery having been made in all cases. There have, however, been several cases of clear speculation where the dealers came out on the right side.

Messrs. J. & C. Warrington's profits in yesterday's rise alone reached $10,000, while their total gains will not be a cent less than $40,000.

The Messrs. Warrington are cheese dealers, but they take a shy at the Chicago wheat pit at times. This week they have made a bull's eye every time.

Brakeman Killed at Walkerton.

Walkerville, Ont., May 10.—A sad accident occurred in the L. E. & D. R. Railway Company's yards here yesterday. Albert Scott, brakeman, fell from the top of a box car under the moving train, three cars passing over him and severing one of his legs completely, just below the knee, and badly mangling the other. His head also was badly cut. He was taken to the Hotel Dieu, Windsor, and his condition is considered very critical.

Child Burned to Death.

Hamilton, May 10.—Reuben Argents, a 4-year-old lad who lives in Birch avenue, was burned to death. His clothes took fire from a bonfire in his father's yard and his body was terribly burned. Death came to his relief a few hours after

DEIFYING DEWEY.

Many Canadian journals touched with the contagion of gush indulged in by our American cousins, are magnifying Commodore Dewey's victory at Manilla into a deed of magnificent heroism. No doubt the Commodore showed good strategy and fearlessness of consequences, but there seems nothing particularly glorious in peppering away at a fleet and at forts so poorly constructed and armed, that in several hours fighting not a single American was killed, while two or three hundred Spaniards were destroyed. If Dewey had encountered a force anything nearly equal in strength to his own, and had showed equal bravery and success, then there would be some reason in transforming him into a nineteenth century Nelson. If Commodore Dewey wishes to do something really heroic and great let him land his marines to take possession of Manilla. He will meet a force as greatly in excess of his own strength as his was in excess of the Spanish strength in the fight of Sunday, May 1st.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

SOME of the American papers are discussing what the United States will do with the Philippines. In this matter the celebrated receipt for cooking a hare applies—"first catch the hare." The United States haven't got the Philippines yet!

TIME brings its vindications and revenges. Not long since the powers of Europe saw fit to ignore Great Britain in dealing with the Armenian question, but as their concert involved no action no great stir was created, and Britain coolly ignored the ignoring. Now the powers wish to take concerted action in behalf of Spain as against the United States. But because Britain holds aloof the powers, paying a decided practical tribute to her influence dare not take action without her.

THE United States is sending a force to take possession of the Philippines, but it promises to be no pic-nic excursion. This is the time when the intensely hot season in these Islands reaches its climax. Shortly the season for the great typhoons opens. Thunderstorms (sometimes of great violence) occur in May and June, and occasionally, though rarely, cyclonic storms of a larger type. The most dangerous hurricanes in Luzon, in the northern portion of the Philippine Archipelago, as as in the Greater Antilles, are reserved for the late summer and autumn months, when the Pacific doldrums are farthest north and the wet season is far advanced or drawing towards its close.

IMPROVED ROADS IN QUEBEC.

Not only, we observe, is the spirit of emulation sought to be aroused by the Government of Quebec among the municipalities, in the matter of improving the country roads, but the spur of a material inducement is likewise being applied. The result of the special grants made last year has proved so for successful that no fewer than 77 municipalities have had their names enrolled as competitors for Government bounties; and between June, 1897, and March last 150 miles of road have been repaired by means of the special machines purchased by the Government and hired—or, upon conditions, given—to the municipalities for the purposes of road repair. By this time, probably, it has begun to dawn upon the minds of Quebec farmers, as it has done upon those of many Ontario rural dwellers, that good roads pay, and that a change from the old and stupid system of statute labour tinkering at mud roads was necessary, in the common interest.

The manner in which the Provincial authorities of Quebec began the treatment of the road question, and the modifications now thought desirable, are explained in a recent circular from the Department of Agriculture, thus:

A special grant of $300 was placed last summer at the disposal of each county, to be divided into premiums of $125, $100 and $75 between the first three municipalities that availed themselves of the same. The same grant will be given this year to the counties which shall have claimed it in whole or part between this and the month of July next.

In counties where the total amount of $300 shall have been distributed between now and July, the department will again grant from and after that date three premiums of $75 each to the first three municipalities applying for the same. If a single municipality in a county has then availed itself of the offer made to each county, the department will place at the disposal of the same county a bonus of $100 and two of $75.

Moreover, in order to encourage the stoning of roads, the department has decided to grant each county municipality aid towards the purchase of stone-breakers, with engine, roller and sorter, provided that the total cost of such machines do not exceed $2,400 per county.

An amendment to the Municipal Code authorizes county councils to arrange with a near-by parish, village or town for doing repairs to the roads of the latter. That is, as we understand it, if Shefford county, for example, having a good and successful road repairing outfit, can offer Waterloo to fix up the roads of that village more cheaply or expeditiously than the village authorities can themselves do the work. Shefford may make a bargain with Waterloo to that effect, sending a notification of the fact to the Provincial Government. A parish or other municipality desiring to get the advantages the Government offers, may obtain the promised premium when it certifies that two miles at least of road has been repaired. To prevent undue trafficing in the possession of machines, however, it is stipulated that in case of the purchase of a stone-breaker, half a mile of macadamized road must have been completed and accepted by an officer of the Department before the Government contributions shall be paid. Further, machines for repairing earth roads that are bought by the municipalities with the help of the Government shall remain the property of such municipalities for at least three years; and the county council that purchases stone-breaking machines cannot sell such machines before they have been at least five years in use in the same county.

We look to see a material improvement in the character of roads and streets in Quebec parishes and towns effected by the continuance of such a policy. As a measure of economy and progress, the move is to be highly commended, and we congratulate the enlightened Minister on so advantageous a move, and on the way in which his offers are being received.—Monetary Times.

OUTPUT OF GOLD.

Abundance of gold and prosperity are not necessarily convertible conditions, a fact well illustrated by a consideration of the statistics of the product of the precious metal during the last decade or so, which has been one generally characterized by the prevalence of hard times. The total world's output of gold in 1887 amounted to a value of $109,000; in 1896 this had increased to $216,000,000. Industrial depression diverts capital into gold mining, sometimes more than comes out of. It is noteworthy that in almost every instance where there has been a remarkable increase of the gold product there has been a corresponding stagnation of other industries, branches of mining naturally excepted. This has been exemplified in Australia, the Transvaal, Hungary, Central Russia and Canada. The first named in ten years produced upwards of six and a half per cent. of the total output of the world, and in 1896 produced gold to the value of $43,000,000, while the has not only within a year commenced the development of the Yukon deposits, the value of which is still an uncertain quantity, but has exhibited a marked advance in the outputs, both of Nova Scotia and British Columbia. It is also true that the year 1848, when gold was discovered in California, was one of commercial depression, almost universally, and while 1851, when gold was found in Victoria and New South Wales, inaugurated an era of unprecedented prosperity for these colonies, it is equally true that it had been preceded by a period of much hardship.

It is interesting to note that Nova Scotia's output of gold has been one of steady growth, aggregating from 1862 to 1896 a total yield of 638,322 ounces, while the product for 1897 was the largest on record, amounting to 26,962 ounces. The quantity of placer and lode gold produced by British Columbia in 1897 much exceeds that of the maritime province, aggregating as it does 131,817 ounces, of the value of $2,636,340. While the gold fields of New South Wales, rich as they are, have not of late been as productive as in previous years, it cannot be said that Victoria shows any material decrease in output. In 1895, for example, it produced 740,086 ounces, while in 1897 the yield was 770,720 ounces. New Zealand's gold fields are probably the only ones of note which exhibit a very decided falling off, the product for 1897 being little more than one-half that of the previous year. On the other hand, Western Australia has suddenly taken its place as one of the great gold-producing districts of the world. A very few years ago it was thought to offer but an alternation of pasture and desert land; in 1895, however, the Yilgarn and Coolgardie gold fields produced 231,512 ounces of gold, 281,295 ounces in 1896, and in the first six months of 1897 as much as 192,000 ounces. It is believed by the most competent experts that gold abounds in Rhodesia, but this is a field as yet entirely undeveloped. In the adjoining Transvaal, however, experience has shown that the quantity of precious ore deposited there is practically unlimited. It is confined to a narrow tract of land, yet the total amount to be extracted is estimated at more than four times the yield of the entire State of California during a period of fifty years, and certainly the output, hitherto carried on under the most irksome, primitive and costly conditions that Krugerian obstruction could impose, goes far to justify this sanguine anticipation.

THE NEW WOOL SEASON.

The wool growers and wool merchants of the Dominion are anxiously enquiring about the prospects of the new wool season. Although a definite answer cannot be given describing the situation fully, it must be admitted that the nearer the season's approach, the less bright have prospects become. The export market, practically, in the United States, has always been the controlling factor in Canadian wool, and developments there during the past month have been distinctly averse to the interests of wool growers. A prominent Philadelphia house is authority for the statement that "sales of wool during last month were the smallest since 1896. Prices have fallen on an average of 5c per scoured pound from the highest point reached just previous to the destruction of the Maine. As much of the larger stock of wool held by manufacturers, bought last year to cover orders for goods, is still unpaid for, the hardening rates for money have had their influence in inducing a number af holders to convert their wool into cash. Certain lines of business have already been benefitted by the war conditions and Government orders, although the appropriations for national defence are but slowly finding their way into circulation. Thus far, while the Government orders for woollen goods may have checked the decline, they have not been large enough to cause any perceptible hardening in the prices of wool.

During the month of March, the withdrawls from the United States Government bonded warehouses for consumption were less than 5,000,000 lbs. as against 55,000,000 lbs for the same month of last year, a falling off of over 91 per cent. The most unfavourable part of market conditions is that styles are not such as require Canadian fleece wool in the production of cloth. The tendency being toward a smooth finish and close weaves, to which the wools of this country are not so well adapted.

Some of the Canadian growers are said to be basing their ideas of high values for the coming season's clip upon the argument that little or none of last year's growth remains in the country. It is true that prior to the passing of the Dingley bill all the fleece wool in Canada was rushed across the border line in great haste. But unfortunately shipment did not in all cases mean sale and, much less, consumption. A leading authority in the New England States estimates that not more than one half of last year's Canadian fleece wool imports has been converted into cloth. Holders are asking 29 to 30 cents per pound for their stock. When from this we make an allowance for 12 cents a pound duty, freight charges, and a small margin to the dealer for his trouble, it will be seen that Canadian growers will have to be content with very little for their wool this season, unless a radical change in the situation occurs. Only unwashed wool is as yet coming forward. The weather is too cold for washing purposes, but so soon as it becomes warmer we may look for the first receipts of washed fleece wool. In the meantime it is impossible to give market quotations, but from present indications not more than 16 cents should be paid for wool delivered in Toronto. Buyers cannot be too conservative and cautious in opening the market.

TWENTY KLONDIKERS DROWNED.

They Went Through the Ice in a Defile Near Crater Lake.

San Francisco, May 10.—Word has reached here that on Monday last the ice covering a stream in a defile near Crater Lake gave way under the passing throng of Klondikers and more than a score of men were precipitated into the water and drowned. Dr. J. P. Frizell of Los Angeles, who brings the news, passed the scene only a few hours after the calamity occurred. It was on the other side of the summit, between Linderman and the Long Lake, at a point in the canyon some 14 miles above Stonehouse, where an ice slide over a mountain stream has been utilized as a path for sleds. A number of men were advancing in almost unbroken rank, each hauling a heavily laden sled, when there was a sudden crash. The ice opened for 30 feet or more and in an instant twenty-two men, with their supplies, were whirled down and under the surface of the stream to drown, without even the chance of battling for life.

IS ON THE DEFENSIVE

Sir Charles Tupper Makes a Strong Denial in the House.

NEVER WROTE D. CO. R.R. LETTER

The Government Will Not Bring Down Any More Important New Business This Session—An Alien Agent for Toronto—Mr. Casey's Bill Passed, and Mr. Richardson's Withdrawn.

Ottawa, May 10.—The feature of yesterday's proceedings was a big howl from Sir Charles Tupper concerning the alleged doings of a newspaper correspondent. Canada's "Great Stretcher" had got, if one could judge by the noise he made, a bigger dose of the medicine he used aforetime to administer, in the days long gone by of course, than he cared to swallow in his present condition of party debilitation. His past record as one who was extremely careful of the truth lost him some sympathy, although all members of the House are jealous of the honor of their confreres, as it is but right they should be. The evidence of the grievance complained of was not at all conclusive, nor indeed was it clear that the correspondent aimed at was the right party, if subsequent inquiry should prove there was anything in the complaint at all.

Nearing the End.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in answer to Sir Charles Tupper, stated that he could not at the moment make a full statement, but he might say that the Government did not intend bringing down any new business of a serious nature. There might be some matters of importance locally, but nothing relating to the general public.

Sir Charles Tupper asked if it was the intention to introduce a bill for the organization of the Yukon Territory.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied in the affirmative. He said: "It will not be a full bill, because we do not possess at the present time all the information and data necessary to fully organize the territory, but we require, in view of the special conditions prevailing there, to have some general legislation passed."

The Transportation Contract.

Sir Charles Tupper said that he had received a telegram from Col. Prior at Victoria, stating that Seattle was jubilating over the fact that the Dominion Government had given the contract to the Boston & Alaska Transportation Company for the carriage of hundreds of tons of supplies to the Yukon via Seattle. The message added that if this were correct the Government's action would be a serious blow to Victoria and Vancouver.

Dr. Borden stated that a contract had been given to the company named to transport some of the supplies that were going up for the use of troops next winter, "but," he added, "the largest part is going from Vancouver; only a small portion will go via Seattle. The company have three boats, and they desired, to get the supplies forwarded early, that they should be allowed to send a portion by way of Seattle."

Mr. Taylor occupied the attention of the House for nearly an hour with remarks in reference to the purchase of a site for a drill shed at Gananoque.

Alien Law in Toronto.

The Premier announced that an order had been sent to the Department of Justice to have an alien labor agent appointed at Toronto.

Sir Charles Tupper Denies.

Sir Charles Tupper brought to the notice of House the fact that the correspondent of the Toronto Globe had sent to that paper an abstract of the evidence taken before the Drummond County Railway Committee, but to the Halifax Chronicle and St. John Telegraph, with which paper, he understood, the correspondent was connected, he had sent an entirely different story, namely that he (Sir Charles Tupper) had written a letter previous to the last general election to Mr. Pope, M.P., that the Government would be favorable to some arrangement to take over the Drummond County Railway. He denied that he had ever written such a letter and claimed protection from the press gallery.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he was not aware that the Globe correspondent had furnished the report to the Halifax Chronicle, which Sir Charles Tupper said was inaccurate. Sir Charles had raised the question whether members of the press gallery should be secretaries of committees.

Sir Charles Tupper—No, I do not raise that point, but I do say that the correspondent should not falsify the record.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier—Then I will say no more.

After some further debate Mr. Foster arose and said: "The correspondent of the Chronicle informs me there are three stenographers on that committee, and that as a matter of fact he did not take down that evidence, and he did not send the report to the Globe. I take it from his note that he did send the report to the Chronicle. He also states that he telegraphed a correction of his report. It is only fair to make this statement."

Mr. Speaker took occasion to remark that the stenographers were appointed by the committee, and the Speaker had no control over them. As regards employes of the House, however, he had insisted that they should not meddle in politics, as newspaper writers or otherwise.

Question and Answer.

Mr. Bergeron was informed by Mr. Blair that the sum of $2,257,080 had been spent up to date on the construction of the Soulanges Canal.

Mr. Wallace was told that the local agents of the Canadian Government in Great Britain are Messrs. Day, Russell & Co., who have been paid for legal services £738 and to whom the Government still owe £1,713. None of the money, the Solicitor-General said, was for other than legal services.

Mr. Davies moved for "copies of all reports and plans respecting or in any way relating to a route through and from the Northwest Territories to the Yukon district via Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, Green Lake, Isle La Crosse and the Clearwater River and Fort McMurray on the Athabasca." He spoke at some length in favor of the opening up of this route, and was supported by Mr. Davin, after which the motion was adopted.

Casey's Railway Bill Amended.

On Sir Wilfrid Laurier's motion, Mr. Casey's bill compelling railway companies to equip cars and engines with air brakes, etc., was returned to committee to strike out the seventh clause, which provides for compensation to injured employes.

The bill was then read a third time and passed.

Civil Servants' Salaries.

When the order was reached and Mr. Richardson's (Lisgar) bill respecting the attachment of civil servants' salaries was called, Sir Wilfrid Laurier asked the honorable member not to press the bill in its present form. While he was in favor of the principle of the bill, and was struck with Mr. Richardson's arguments in its favor, the law officers of the Crown were of opinion that some re-casting, for which there was not now time this session, would be necessary before being passed into law.

Mr. Richardson said that, under these circumstances, he would not press his bill, though he would have been glad to have had it become law. He then withdrew the bill.

The motion for papers carried and the House adjourned at 1 o'clock a.m.

Concessions From the United States.

Ottawa, May 10.—In the Senate yesterday Hon. David Mills said the issuing of miners' licenses at the boundary did not interfere with the trade of the coast cities in British Columbia, as parties going to the Yukon bought their outfits at the port from which they sailed. The only result of compelling them to call at Vancouver or Victoria would be to invite the retaliation of the Government at Washington. This would be most unwise as long as the Government had to utilize the territory claimed by the United States to obtain easy access to the Canadian Yukon. He could say that the Government were promised and expected to get concessions from the Government of the United States in return for the concession made.

A RELIABLE OFFER.

Honest Help Free to Men.

The (Peterborough Examiner) is authorized to state by Mr. D. Graham, Box 133, Hagersville, Ont., that any man who is nervous and debilitated or who is suffering from any of the various troubles resulting from overwork, excesses or abuse, such as nervous debility, exhausted vitality, lost vigor, unnatural drains and losses, lack of development, etc., can write to him in strict confidence and receive free of charge full instructions how to be thoroughly cured.

Mr. Graham himself was for a long time a sufferer from above troubles and after trying in vain many advertised remedies, electric belts, etc., became almost entirely discouraged and hopeless. Finally he confided in an old clergyman, whose kind and honest advice enabled him to speedily obtain a perfect and permanent cure. Knowing to his own sorrow, that so many poor sufferers are being imposed upon by unscrupulous quacks, Mr. Graham considers it his duty as an honest man and a firm believer in Christian sympathy and kindness, to give his fellow-men the benefit of his experience and assist them to a cure. Having nothing to sell, he asks for no money, the proud satisfaction of having done a great service to one in need, he rightly considers an ample reward for his trouble. If you write to Mr. Graham you can rely upon being cured and upon absolute secrecy as well.

Address as above, enclosing a stamp, and refer to the (PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER). No attention, however, will be given to those writing out of mere curiosity, therefore state that you really need a cure.

Any of these signs is proof positive of Kidney Disease. Will you be cured, or will you die? Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only means on earth that will cure you. They never fail.

A LESSON IN BOILING.

Satisfactory Cooking Depends Largely on This Trivial Process.

Sallie Joy White lays down these valuable rules for boiling in "Cookery For Girls" in The Woman's Home Companion:

"For all green vegetables use soft water, salted and freshly boiling. Cook rapidly until soft. The time will depend upon the age or the freshness of the vegetable.

"With green peas, shelled beans, green corn, asparagus, celery and spinach use as little water as possible, and let it boil away, leaving just enough to moisten, and thus save all the desirable soluble matter that may have been drawn out. Cook cabbage and cauliflower uncovered, in a large kettle of rapidly boiling water, salted and with a saltspoonful of soda in it; onions, scald and change the water twice. All others cook in water enough to cover, and drain it off after cooking. Green summer squash, cabbage and other watery vegetables should be pressed in a cloth or strainer and well drained.

"Many people who attempt to cook are apt to forget that there is a wide distinction between 'boiled water' and 'boiling water,' and that the freshness is lost by long boiling, so that the sooner water is used after it has reached the boiling point the more satisfactory the cooking will be. If water stands after boiling, it loses its vitality and cannot be used with good results. That is why tea and coffee are so frequently flat and lifeless, without sparkle or flavor; not because the leaves and berries are not good, but because they are improperly made with 'boiled water' instead of freshly 'boiling water.'"

WELLS & RICHARDSON CO:

Gentlemen,—It is with extreme pleasure I give you a testimonial in favour of your wonderful remedy, Paine's Celery Compound. Last January I had la grippe, and it left me suffering with that dread disease, inflammatory rheumatism. My hands and feet were swollen badly; I also had the rheumatism in my sides and shoulders and in the muscles of my back.

I suffered very much until a friend advised my husband to procure Paine's Celery Compound for me. I commenced taking the Compound in April; I have used ten bottles and am perfectly cured. The Compound has given me a good appetite and made a new person of me. I hear Paine's Celery Compound praised every day by people who have used it, and I heartily recommend it to all who suffer from rheumatism.

Opera House To-morow Night.

Read what the Belleville Daily Sun says:—"The concert given last night in the Opera House by Miss Nelle Robinson, Mr. Wilkes Steward, Mr. J. Nevin Doyle and Mr. Walter Mills was one of the treats of the season. The attendance was not what the concert deserved, but the audience was a very enthusiastic one. Mr. Mills opened the programme with a piano solo, which was well played and warmly received. A comedy—"Breaking the Ice"—by Miss Robinson and Mr. Steward was a pretty bit of work and received loud applause. Mr. Doyle sang "Dear Heart," and in response to an encore he sang "The Yeoman's Wedding Song." He was in grand voice and appeared to the very best advantage. A selection from Richard III by Mr. Steward was well interpreted. Miss Robinson in a monologue, "Naughty Zell," was splendid. Mr. Doyle again sang and gave as his number and encore, "Love's Proving," and "Skippers of St. Ives." A comedy, "The Silent System," by Mr. Stewart and Miss Robinson closed the programme. It was a most delightful little piece and caused plenty of laughter. Prices, 15c, 25c and 35c. Seats now on sale at Ormond & Walsh's drugstore.

GONE TO OTTAWA.

A Local Deputation to Interview the Government To-morrow Regarding the Mud Lake Bridge.

A deputation, consisting of His Worship Mayor Davis, and Councillors McWilliams and Langford, and Messrs. Warden Pearce, County Engineer Belcher, District Councillors Casement, Anderson and Reeve Costello, of Ennismore, left for Ottawa on the Klondyke train this afternoon.

To-morrow the deputation accompanied by Mr. John Lang, M. P., Mr. Jas. Kendry, M.P., and Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., will wait on the Government, asking for a grant to assist the county, the township and the town in having a more permanent structure erected to take the place of the present floating bridge across Chemong Lake.

It is contended that the erection of the dam at Buckhorn so raised the water in the lakes north of Buckhorn, as to compel the county to widen the bridge a considerable distance, thereby subjecting it to a greater sweep of the wind and storm, thus necessitating a greater expense upon the county than formerly. It is also urged that the construction of the locks at Buckhorn for the Trent Valley Canal again raised the water of the lake, making it still more difficult to keep the bridge in position, and now that the county are considering some scheme for the proper maintenance of a more substantial structure, they feel that the Government should assist materially, owing to the increased expense of maintenance, or of filling in should such a course be decided upon.

LACROSSE.

There was a great turn-out of players on the lacrosse grounds last evening. Every man that played on the senior team last year was on the field, together with several of the old juniors and a large number of the Granites. New blood was also in evidence, and as there were twenty-six men, all told, the practice was one which will be productive of much good. There are a few more men who should turn out, including Phelan, Wasson, Boland Crossley, Sheridan, Monorief and Miller.

The goal nets are to be ordered immediately, in order that the boys can get used to shooting on them before the matches begin.

TUESDAY, MAY 10, 1898.

A MUSICAL EVENING.

Sacred Concert at Murray Street Baptist Church.

Whatever we may lack as a community, there is no question that in its aspirations at all events, Peterborough is a musical town. The concert given by the choir of the above church is entitled to more than passing notice, not only because of the general excellence of the various renderings, but also on account of the high character of the selections. The choral numbers were quite a feature of the programme, and were exceedingly well sung. The attention paid to light and shade was very pleasing and showed conscientious and careful training by the leader, Mr. G. K. Martin. "Hark! Hark! my Soul" was especially well sung, the obligato being effectively taken by Mrs. Hunter.

"The Heaven's are Telling," though an exacting chorus, was well and firmly handled, the attack being very good. Perhaps, however, from a musical standpoint, the choir did their best work in the concluding choral, Concone's "Evening Hymn," sung without accompaniment. This number was almost an ideal presentation, and was sung with good taste and feeling.

Of the soloists it is only necessary to say that Miss Montgomery's rendering of the "Plains of Peace" and "Eternal Rest" were all that could be desired, while Mr. Mulligan's "Saved by a Child" was greatly appreciated. In lieu of a recall Mr. Mulligan kindly sang as an extra number "The Light of the World" in the second part. Miss Ratcliffe, of Toronto, who was heard for the first time by a Peterborough audience, received a most hearty reception, more than justified by her really exquisite rendering of "The Angel at the Window," and "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing." The latter number was a pleasing triumph of vocal art and called forth a most enthusiastic encore, to which she responded with a "Lullaby" song. The audience would gladly have asked for even more, but the hour was already late, so they had to be satisfied. It is to be hoped Miss Ratcliff will be heard again in Peterborough before long. She may be sure of a hearty welcome whenever she appears.

The final selections from "Elijah" were fairly well rendered and patiently waited for. Special mention must be made of the beautiful rendering of the unaccompanied trio — "Lift Thine Eyes" — sung by Mesdames Scott, Dykeman and Hutchinson in good time and expression, while Miss Hutchinson's sympathetic and sweet voice was heard to advantage in the beautiful aria— "O Rest in the Lord." Mrs. Scott and Mr. G. K. Martin also distinguished themselves in their careful rendering of the preceding recitatives, which, although difficult, received a satisfactory interpretation. The choir is also congratulated on their able accompanyist, Miss Algar, whose work all through was conscientious and effective. In addition to two duets played with Mrs. Martin, she also gave a beautiful rendering of Sherwood's "Nun and the Fountain," which was greatly appreciated.

Particular attention is called to the fact that the fine piano used on the occasion was a Gerhard Heintzman, lent by Mr Mulligan.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

A Complaint Considered Against the G. T. R. Cattle Yards—Report of the Medical Health Officer.

At a meeting of the Board of Health held yesterday afternoon Mr. B. Shortly, the President, was in the chair, the other members present being Dr. Burnham and Messrs. Robt. Innes and Henry Donne.

Medical Health Officer Clarke and Sanitary Inspector Rozzel were also in attendance.

A letter was received from D. O. Legendre, complaining of the fact that the Grand Trunk Co. had established large cattle yards near his property on Aylmer street, which was becoming a nuisance and a menace to the health of the community. A petition was also received from a number of residents in the vicinity in reference to the same matter.

The sanitary inspector reported having examined the premises and stated that he had no fault to find. The cattle were never kept in the yards for more than a day and, although they made considerable noise, yet from a sanitary standpoint there was no nuisance.

Mr. Rock Gordon, who was present, asked that a visit be paid to the stockyards in wet weather, and Sanitary Inspector Rozzel was instructed to comply with this request.

Dr. Clarke, medical health officer, reported that since the last meeting there had been ten cases of scarlet fever in town, but that none were fatal. Out of four cases of diphtheria one was fatal. The sanitary inspectors began their rounds on Monday last and would complete their work by May 15th. Up to date 328 yards had been visited, 144 notices served and 184 found in good order. The district so far inspected was between Charlotte and Smith streets east of George. One matter in particular to which he wished to draw the attention of the Board was the nuisance arising from the slops, etc., which were thrown in the alleys and back yards in the rear of the stores. This, he thought, could only be remedied by compelling connection to be made with the sewers.

The Chief of Police stated that numerous complaints had also been made of the condition of the premises in the rear of Simcoe street properties, west of George street.

On motion of Dr. Burnham and Mr. Innis a motion was passed requesting the town council to see that the bylaw was enforced compelling the closing of closets and vaults between Charlotte and Brock streets on George and the connecting of the premises with the sewer. Also that the Sanitary Inspector see that the regulations are carried out.

Dr. Clarke also brought up the matter of maintaining cleanliness in the schools, and the following resolution was moved by Dr. Burnham and Mr. Denne: "That the Medical Health Officer be notified to write to the Inspector of Public Schools in regard to carrying out the sanitary regulations in reference to children attending the schools."—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

A Running Sore Pronounced Incurable by Eight Doctors—Cured by Dr. Chase.

Mr. R. D. Robbins, 148 Cowan Ave., Toronto, says:—"I had a bad leg which was simply unsightly. From below the knee to the ankle was one great sore. Eight doctors treated me without benefit. I was induced to try Dr. Chase's Ointment Which cured me, and all that remains to be seen are the scars."

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

The public interested in the noble work of the Children's Aid Society—and all whose lives are touched by the principles of true Christianity are interested—is particularly reminded of the lecture on the subject of the work and aims of the Society, to be delivered by Mr. J. J. Kelso, Superintendent of Neglected and Dependent Children, in the Opera House to-night. Interest will be added the lecture by illustrative stereopticon views, projected by Mr. R. M. Roy. Mr. Kelso has been officially identified with the work since the establishment of the Society, and in addition to his active official connection, has shown a warm personal interest in the work—circumstances which will invest his address with instructive and elevating influences. It goes without saying that the prevention of crime is the chief radical means of appreciably decreasing its prevalence. Environment, perhaps, more than natural depravity, aside from the influence of criminal heredity, is responsible for the conditions that prevail in the world to-day; and change of environment,—the translation of children still innocent—from evil home influences and associations to the better and pure atmosphere of pure homes and making their development into useful citizens almost a certainty, is, in brief, the chief function of the Children's Aid Society. The circumstances that affect this work, the means in use, the success achieved and the necessity of enlarging the sphere of beneficent influence will be dealt with in detail tonight by Mr. Kelso, who is practically master of his subject. The congregations of the several churches should furnish contingents of auditors that collectively would pack the opera house to-night. The silver collection to be taken, in aid of the funds of the society, should represent a substantial addition.

HIGH COURT.

The Spring Sittings Opened Monday Before Justice Robertson.

The High Court sittings opened Monday afternoon at one o'clock before Mr. Justice Robertson. Amongst the members of the bar in attendance were Messrs. Watson, Q.C., and E. B. Aylesworth, Q.C., Toronto; W. A. F. Campbell and G. J. Sherry, Norwood; R. M. Ruddy and A. A. Smith, Millbrook; L. M. Hayes, E. B. Edwards, Geo. Edmison, R. M. Dennistoun, D. W. Dumble, D. O'Connell, W. H. Johnston, E. B. Stone, W. A. Stratton and J. W. Bennett.

The first case taken up was that of Kells vs. Coombe, which, on His Lordship's advice, was settled out of court.

Miles vs. Campbell—The plaintiff is a farmer residing in Dummer. The defendant, a merchant and money lender of Keene. The late Mr. John Burnham, as solicitor for Campbell, sold Miles a farm, the east half the 6th in the 4th of Dummer, for $2,200, receiving a cash payment of $1,060, and a mortgage for the balance in favour of Campbell, providing for payment of any amount at any time. Miles went on paying principal and interest for two years until the mortgage was fully paid, getting receipts from Mr. Burnham for each payment. After Mr. Burnham's death Miles wanted a discharge of his mortgage. Mr. Campbell refused to give it, alleging that he had received from Mr. Burnham the interest but no principal. The action was brought to compel Mr. Campbell to give a discharge.

The evidence showed that since 1884 Burnham had acted as solicitor for Campbell, investing for him a great deal of money in numerous mortgages, receiving the interest and principal and paying it over to Campbell. Campbell kept a mortgage book in which was entered these payments, and when Burnham wanted a mortgage discharged the discharge was either signed by Campbell at the office or in Keene, and sent to Burnham by mail. Campbell admitted that all the interest and principal on these mortgages was paid to him through Burnham. He never saw Miles or had dealings with him until after Burnham's death. Burnham made many investments for Campbell on his own valuation, Campbell not seeing the property. The plaintiff stated that at the time he gave the mortgage to Burnham, Burnham told him to pay the interest and principal thereon at his office; that he knew Burnham was acting for Campbell and that he paid into Burnham as Campbell's solicitor. The plaintiff contended that the continuous receipt by Burnham of Campbell's interest and principal representing a great many mortgages and received by Campbell with foreknowledge, was an acknowledgement of Burnham's authority to receive the money and created Burnham his agent for that purpose. The defendant relied on the general law, that a solicitor without authority, expressed or implied, is not authorized to receive either interest or principal.

The Court held in this case that the payment to Burnham was as consistent with Miles paying to Burnham to be given Campbell, as his own solicitor, as his paying to Burnham as Campbell's solicitor, and that there was not sufficient evidence to justify him in concluding that Burnham had authority from Campbell to receive the money; and his action was dismissed with costs, with leave to appeal.

Dumble & Johnston for plaintiff; Dennistoun, Peck & Stevenson for defendant.

Weigh Yourself before Taking Them.

GAINED 22 POUNDS.

I have more faith in Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills than anything else I have ever used. Since using them I have recommended them to several of my friends who were troubled as I was, and now they are in splendid health. I had been a sufferer, like a great many other women, with a disease peculiar to my sex. I tried everything I could read or think about to help me, but was getting worse instead of better. My condition was terrible—I was losing flesh and color and my friends were alarmed. I consulted a doctor of this town and he said I would never get better; that I would always be sickly and delicate, and that medicines were of little use to me. Hearing what Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills had done for others, I determined to try them myself, and to-day I weigh one hundred and forty pounds, while before I weighed only one hundred and eighteen pounds, and now I have a constitution that is hard to beat. I have not suffered any pain in months, and earnestly hope that Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills will reach every woman suffering as I did. Sincerely yours, MAY COLE, Simcoe, Ont. Dr. Ward's Blood and Nerve Pills are sold at 50c. per box, 5 boxes for $2.00, at druggists, or mailed on receipt of price by THE DR. WARD CO., 71 Victoria St., Toronto. Book of Information free.

VULCANIZED RUBBER.

How Charles Goodyear Made the Original Discovery.

It is a bitterly cold night about the year 1840. Around the cracked, unpolished kitchen stove of one of Boston's humblest homes are huddled a man, his wife and family. The surroundings are of the plainest possible. Of furniture there is scarcely a piece that would bring anything at a pawnshop, but of evidence of squalor and want there is abundance. Part of the two remaining chairs has just been broken up to keep the fire from dying out, and as the flames crackle with renewed life the man picks from the floor a dark looking substance and gazes at it with a longing that is pathetic. He holds it up and studies it with many a sigh that cuts the heart of his faithful wife and his loyal children. In changing this substance from one hand to the other it drops upon the hot stove. There is a sudden filling of the room with a pungent, offensive odor before the man, with a startled cry, can snatch the now half scorched substance from the stove. But there is a marked change on the man's face as he examines the burned spots. He feels the substance with a new and intense interest. Is he near the end of years of labor, suffering and disappointment? Thanks to the cold outside, it will not take long to decide. The burned substance is hung outside the door. In an hour the cold has not affected it. In two hours it still retains the properties most desired. In the morning no change has taken place. A great discovery is complete. Charles Goodyear has found the process of making vulcanized rubber.

Here, then, was Goodyear, after years of varying hopes and unvarying ill fortune, in possession of a secret that was destined to place his name in the highest niche of fame. But this knowledge did not bring him immediate fortune—in fact, this he never secured. He had lost the confidence of all who had helped him, and for two years his sufferings surpassed even those of the years of experimenting. At this time he moved to New York, and it was said of him, "If you meet a man who has on an india rubber coat, cap, stock, vest and shoes, with an india rubber purse, without a cent in it, that is Goodyear." He had to pawn all his furniture for food, and he pledged an umbrella with Vanderbilt to secure a few ferry tickets to the city. At last enough money was secured to put his invention on the market, and Goodyear's process very soon made the manufacture of rubber goods one of the principal industries of the world. But although others made immense fortunes out of vulcanized rubber the inventor got little share of it. He went to England and France exhibiting his products. He was awarded the great council medal at the exhibition of all nations at London in 1851, the grand medal of honor to the world's exhibition at Paris in 1885, and was presented with the cross of the Legion of Honor by Napoleon III. Yet with all these honors he died a comparatively poor man at the Fifth Avenue hotel in New York July 1, 1860.—Chicago Post.

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease—rheumatism—consumption—skin disease, the "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

HIS CHECK WAS GOOD

THE STORY OF A RAGGED MAN AND A GOTHAM HOTEL CLERK.

An Amusing Incident Which Demonstrates Anew That It Is Not Always Wise to Judge a Man by the Cut of His Coat or the Fit of His Trousers.

Dave Gelvin—it is pronounced Galvin—of Maitland, Mo., is one of the cattle barons of northwest Missouri, a section of country which has a large number of cattle barons. As a hustler and a pusher Dave has few equals and no superiors, and what he does not know about cattle would not be worth finding out.

Dave is always so busy looking after his cattle interests that he seldom has time to "dress up" in his company clothes, and at first sight a stranger would take him for an innocent granger, eager to buy a gold brick or likely to blow out the gas.

Several years ago Dave shipped a lot of export cattle from Maitland and went as far as New York with them. When he arrived in New York, he looked like the ragged end of poverty, but he was too busy to secure a change of clothing. He had some business to transact and intended taking a train for home the next morning. Dave is a lover of the good things of life, so he inquired his way to the Hoffman House and affixed his name to the register. The clerk looked at him for a moment and asked if he wanted a room.

"Yes, and a good one," replied Dave.

"Any baggage?"

"No."

"Our rates are $10 a day, and we require cash in advance from unknown parties," said the clerk.

"Oh, darn your rates; give me the room. I want to wash," said Dave.

"All right. Ten dollars, please."

Dave run his hand in his pocket, but all he could fish up was $2.71. This sum was made up by a silver dollar, two silver half dollars, two quarters, a 20 cent piece and a penny.

"Oh, I'll pay you in the morning," said Dave, turning to go to the elevator.

But the clerk knew a thing or two. He was not to be caught that way—not he.

"There is no deviation from our rules, sir," the clerk said politely but firmly. "You must pay in advance."

"Then I'll give you a check," said Gelvin, who was rapidly becoming angry.

He stepped back to the desk, filled out a check for $500 and handed it to the clerk. But the clerk was not a greenhorn. He was a New Yorker, he was. He would not accept the check unless certified.

By this time Dave was mad. He said a few words in Latin, or in a language that sounded like it was of a foreign origin.

"Confound your rules, you blasted chump! I could buy and sell you ten times over, you pigheaded, pimply faced dude. If you don't think that check is good, send it over to the Chemical National."

The clerk called a messenger boy and dispatched him to the Chemical National, with a note asking if a check of $500 signed by David Gelvin of Maitland, Mo., was good.

The clerk knew it was not, but Dave was fighting mad, and the clerk realized that if he did not make a seeming effort to ascertain the worth of the check he would get into trouble. While the messenger was absent Dave walked the floor of the magnificent office and talked to himself.

In due time the messenger returned with an answer. It read, "Mr. Gelvin's check worth $500 is perfectly good."

The clerk at once became obsequious. There was nothing too good for Mr. Gelvin of Missouri.

"Well, give me back the check," said Dave. "I'll go over to the bank and cash it myself."

The check was handed to the irate man, and he marched out and never returned. The clerk was evidently filled with curiosity about the Missourian, for he sent a letter to Charley Donovan, cashier of the Maitland bank, asking if Gelvin's check for $1,000 was good. Charley wrote back that Gelvin's check for $1,000 was perfectly good; that it was good for $10,000, for five times that, and then he would have a balance in the bank. "You dod blanked fool," wrote Donovan, "if Gelvin takes a notion to buy your third rate hashery and offers a check for it, take it quick. It's as good as the gold."

Dave declares that the ambition of his life is to go back to New York some time and dazzle the eyes of that hotel clerk. He insists that when the time comes he is going to dress like a king, hire a corps of footmen, a dozen valets, carry 37 trunks, travel in a special car and go down to New York and throw that hotel clerk into fits.

This will explain why Gelvin is such a tireless worker. He has enough to live on in luxury and ease all the rest of his life, but he has not yet accumulated enough to make that New York trip in what he considers the proper style. Until he does he will work harder than any hired man on his place.—Omaha World-Herald.

BREAD RIOTS IN ITALY.

No Further Serious Riots at Milan—People Killed at Monza.

Milan, May 9.—Last night passed without any further serious rioting, though the city was in partial darkness, owing to the destruction of the electric lighting wires. A proclamation has been issued, calling upon the people to remain tranquil, and reinforcements of troops continue to arrive here. They will guard the outskirts of the city.

At Monza, nine miles from here, there was a demonstration yesterday against calling out the reserves. The troops charged three times and three people were killed and 16 were wounded.

300 Reported Killed.

Lugano, Switzerland, May 9.—Yesterday was a terrible day at Milan. About 1 o'clock in the afternoon a veritable battle occurred in the Via Somtraire. Thousands of tiles and chimneys were hurled from the roofs upon the troops, who were compelled to retire. A similar fight took place in the Via Torino, and it is believed that no fewer than 300 were killed and 1,000 injured.

TO FORTIFY ST. JOHN'S, NFLD.

Great Britain Is Taking Time by the Forelock in This Case.

St. John's, Nfld., May 9.—Owing to the serious international complications growing out of the war between the United States and Spain, the British Government is arranging to fortify St. John's. The British War Office has cabled the Governor, Sir Herbert Murray, as to the condition of the forts and barracks belonging to the Imperial Government, which were given into the custody of the colonial authorities when the troops were withdrawn from here in 1870. Sir Herbert Murray and the Colonial Ministry are consulting, with a view of housing Imperial troops, the first contingent of which is likely to arrive from Halifax this week.

A STRONG ARGUMENT.

Wm. McCabe, Esq., Managing Director, N. A. L., Toronto:

DEAR SIR,—Please accept my thanks for your cheque just handed to me, for $3,901.98, in settlement of my $2,500 Fifteen Year Endowment Policy in your Company. Such a result as this, after the risk on my life has been carried for fifteen years, beginning from forty-five years of age, argues one thing strongly, namely, that the management of the North American Life must be in competent hands. The other options you have offered me, viz.: a Paid-up Life policy for $6510.00, or a Life Annuity for $401.90, are, I presume, equally liberal, and it affords me much pleasure to recommend your Company to my friends or any one desiring insurance.

Yours truly,
